Viscount Dunedin.—In March 1920 the 2nd plaintiff in this case, Arajania, who is not a certified share-broker, and who describes himself as the sub-broker of the 1st plaintiff Bharucha, who is a certified share-broker, sold on the Bombay Stock Exchange to 1st defendant, Gora, 129 shares of a Company called Alcock, Ashdown & Co., Ltd., for delivery on the 14th April, 1920. Neither of the two plaintiffs was the registered holder of any such shares. In order to make good the delivery the 1st plaintiff acquired the requisite number of shares in the market from various brokers, and took from these brokers blank transfers signed by the registered holders along with the corresponding certificates. These certificates and blank transfers were handed by the 2nd plaintiff to the 1st defendant at 6 P. M. on the 14th April. At 8 P. M. a cheque for the sum due under the contract in favour of the 1st plaintiff was handed to the 2nd plaintiff. This cheque was dishonoured on the next day.

The 1st defendant, having had the blank transfers and certificates thus delivered to him, made certain propositions as to the raising of money to Manilal, a partner in the firm of Wadilal & Co., the 2nd defendants, and handed the certificates and transfers to him. The 2nd defendant in turn handed them to the 3rd defendant, Ghia, again on certain propositions as to raising money.

The cheque was never honoured, and the 1st defendant absconded. The present action is brought by the 1st and 2nd plaintiffs against all the three defendants, asking for return of the certificates and blank transfers or otherwise for damages.

Proof was led before the Trial Judge, who held in fact (1) that plaintiff No. 2 acted as sub-broker to plaintiff No 1, and that, accordingly, plaintiff No. 1 had a direct title to sue the other defendants; (2) that Manilal, the defendant No. 2, knew when he took the certificates and shares that the cheque of Gora, defendant No. 1, was not likely to be honoured. He gave a decree in favour of plaintiff No. 1 against all defendants. The ratio of his judgment is to be found in the following passage:—

"Gora was only an ostensible owner and the plaintiffs, who were the unpaid vendors, had equity in them, and they could have stopped Gora from getting these shares transferred in his name in the books of the Company, but if Gora had passed on these shares either by way of sale or by way of pledge to any third person who acted bona fide and without notice, then I certainly think that such a person would have a better title to these shares than the plaintiffs. But in this case it is abundantly clear that Gora himself felt that he was not the owner ....Manilal had notice that these shares were not paid for, and Ghia, being a mere nominee of Manilal, Ghia was in no better position than Manilal himself. They took these shares with the infirmity from Gora, and, therefore, they cannot claim these shares in priority to the plaintiffs."

He had previously pointed out that in a question with the Company the owners of the shares were the old owners who had signed the blank transfers.

On appeal by the 2nd and 3rd defendants the learned Judges of the Appellate Division of the High Court reversed the judgment of the Trial Judge and dismissed the action as against them. They held on the facts that plaintiff No 2 had acted as agent for plaintiff No. 1, and that consequently, as plaintiff No. 2 was not a certified broker, the buyer was not affected by the rules of the Stock Exchange. This is only of importance as regards a certain Rule C, with which their Lordships will afterwards deal. On the merits of the case they held that, under the Indian Contract Act, the property of the shares as sold passed on the delivery of the certificates and blank transfers to Gora; that, after that plaintiff No. 1 had no claim against Gora except upon the cheque; that consequently he had no claim against defendants Nos. 2 and 3, and could not have a judgment against defendant No. 3 for delivery of the certificates and transfers. They held further that s. 121 of the Contract Act, which is in these terms—

121. "When goods sold have been delivered to the buyer, the seller is not entitled to rescind the contract on the buyer's failing to pay the price at the time fixed unless it was stipulated by the contract that he should be so entitled," prevented the plaintiff from rescinding the sale, there having been no stipulation provided in the contract for sale that he should be so entitled. Appeal was then taken by the plaintiffs to the King in Council.

Their Lordships agree that the stipulation referred to in the section must be an express stipulation and that, as nothing was proved to the contrary, it must be presumed that the contract here was an ordinary contract for the sale of shares effected by bought and sold notes.

On the hearing of the appeal to their Lordships, the view expressed by the Trial Judge that Gora was only an ostensible owner of the shares and the plaintiff, who was the unpaid vendor, had the equity in them, was elaborated into an argument that, according to the law of England, there would be an equitable lien in favour of the unpaid purchaser and that that law applied. Such a view would be so far-reaching in ordinary Stock Exchange transactions that their Lordships think it necessary to emphasise their view of its unsoundness. In the first place, so far as lien is concerned, the law as to lien is statutory and is contained in the 95th and following sections of the Indian Contract Act. Section 95 applies to this case; unless there is possession there is no lien. But, further, there seems to their Lordships a good deal of confusion arising from the prominence given to the fact that the full property in shares in a Company is only in the registered holder. That is quite true. It is true that what Bharucha had was not the perfected right of property, which he would have had if he had been the registered holder of the shares which he was selling. The Company is entitled to deal with the share-holder who is on the register, and only a person who is on the register is in the full sense of the word owner of the share. But the title to get on the register consists in the possession of a certificate, together with a transfer signed by the registered holder. This is what Bharucha had. He had the certificates and blank transfers, signed by the registered holders. It would be an upset of all Stock Exchange transactions if it were suggested that a broker who sold shares by general description did not implement his bargain by supplying the buyer with certificates and blank transfers, signed by the registered holders of the shares described. Bharucha sold what he had got. He could sell no more. He sold what in England would have been choses in action, and he delivered choses in action. But in India, by the terms of the Contract Act, these choses in action are goods. By the definition of goods as every kind of moveable property it is clear that, not only registered shares, but also this class of choses in action are goods. Hence equitable considerations not applicable to goods do not apply to shares in India.

Now s. 78 is as follows:—

"78. Sale is effected by offer and acceptance of ascertained goods for a price, or of a price for ascertained goods, together with payment of the price or delivery of the goods."

Here the goods were not ascertained goods at the time of the contract, for the contract was only for so many shares of Alcocks', not of any particular shares, but then s. 83 provides:

"83. Where the goods are not ascertained at the time of making the agreement for sale but goods answering the description in the agreement are subsequently appropriated by one party for the purpose of the agreement, and that appropriation is assented to by the other, the goods have been ascertained, and the sale is complete."

So soon, therefore, as Arajania, acting for Bharucha, handed Gora the certificates and transfers and Gora accepted them and gave the cheque, the goods became ascertained goods, the sale was complete and the property passed. From that time onward Bharucha and Arajania could only sue Gora on the cheque, or for the price of the shares unpaid in respect that the cheque had not been honoured. They had no longer any jus in re of the certificates and transfers. They had no statutory lien, for they had parted with possession, and, consequently, as they had no contract with defendants Nos. 2 and 3, they could not sue them for delivery of the shares, whether the defendants had got good title as against Gora or had not.

Their Lordships have already mentioned that the Trial Judge held that the sale was between brokers, and was, therefore, under the Rules of the Stock Exchange, from which finding the Court of Appeal dissented. In their Lordships' view it is not necessary to decide this question of fact. They will assume, for the purpose of the argument, that the sale was as between brokers. That brings in Rule C of the Bombay Stock Exchange, which is as follows:

" C. If the cheque given for the monies of the shares will not be honoured at the Bank on the day following the day when the cheque is given, the shares shall have to be returned immediately to the person selling (them), and the person purchasing (them) shall have to take away those shares having paid the rupees in cash before 2 o'clock on that very day. And if the person purchasing shall fail to do so, those shares will be sold off by auction before 3 o'clock.

* * * *"

It was argued that the effect of this rule was to make the delivery not actual but conditional, with the result that the property did not really pass till the cheque was honoured. Their Lordships consider this argument quite unsound. The Contract Act settles that property is to pass on delivery. Delivery is a fact, and the statutory result must follow. Further, the rule cannot be read as an express stipulation in the sense of s. 121 because it does not say what s. 121 provides must be said. But in truth, in their Lordships' view, the rule in question had nothing to do with the perfection of contracts or the passing of property. It is for quite another purpose. The buyer may be unable, from temporary embarrassment, to meet his cheque on an exact day. Time is of the essence of this ordinary contract of sale of shares, therefore, he is enjoined by the rule to hand back the shares; he is given the latitude of paying up till 2 o'clock, but if he does not do so then they are sold by the authorities, so as to fix, without further ado, the damages which are become due for breach of contract.

Their Lordships will accordingly humbly advise His Majesty to dismiss the appeal with costs.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellants:—Messrs. T. L. Wilsan & Co.

Solicitors for the Respondents:—Messrs. Hore, Pattisson & Bathurst.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 625 OF 1923.

November 6, 1925.

Present:—Sir Dawson Miller, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Foster.

Sri Sri BAIDYANATH JIU THROUGH SURESH CHANDRA CHAUDHURY—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
HAR DUTT DAWARI AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 120—Suit to recover remuneration for services in temple—Limitation—Recurring right.

There is a vast distinction between a suit brought to establish a periodically recurring right and a suit brought to enforce payments due as remuneration for the performance of services arising out of that right. [p. 828, col. 1.]

A suit by the dwaris of a temple to recover dues which they claim to be payable to them as remuneration in respect of their services in connection with the temple is governed by Art. 120 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and a claim relating to a period more than 6 years prior to the date of the institution of the suit would be barred by time. [p. 828, col. 2.]

Second appeal against a decision of the District Judge, Santal Parganas, dated the 7th May 1923, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Deoghar, dated the 29th December 1922.

Messrs. N. C. Sinha and B. B. Ghose, for the Appellant.

Messrs. A. B. Mukherjee and B. B. Mukherjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Miller, C. J.—The plaintiffs who are respondents in this case are three dwaris of the celebrated temple of Baidyanath at Deoghar. They have instituted this suit to recover certain dues which they claim to be payable to them as remuneration in respect of their services in connection with the temple. The remuneration consists of payments for the greater part in kind which are said to be due for special services in connection with the performance of the hom puja and to a small extent in cash in respect of other services. The suit was instituted originally against Sadhupadhya Umesha Nand Jha who was the high priest in charge of the temple of Sri Sri Baidyanath but pending the suit, sometime in 1920, the high priest died and as there was a dispute about the succession a Receiver was appointed to take charge of the properties of the temple and he (the Receiver, Babu Suresh Chandra Chaudhury) has been substituted in place of the original defendant.

Amongst other defences to the suit it was contended on behalf of the defendant that the claim which covers a period of 13 years before the institution of the suit was barred or partly barred by limitation. On the other hand, the plaintiffs contended that s. 10 of the Limitation Act applied to a suit of this nature and consequently that no period of limitation applied in the case. This view was accepted by the learned District Judge whose judgment is the subject of this appeal. The contention apparently is that the suit is one for the purpose of recovering part of the trust property or the proceeds thereof from the hands of those who are responsible for its distribution. It seems to me that it is impossible to regard a suit of this nature as coming within the purview of s. 10. The plaintiffs, although no doubt they are entitled out of the proceeds of the property belonging to the temple to certain payments in the nature of wages and to certain remuneration, cannot, in my opinion, be said to be bringing this suit for the purpose of following the trust property in the hands of the trustee. Their claim is not one which has been shown to be in any way charged upon the trust property although no doubt the payments made to them must come out of the proceeds of the endowment, but if one were to hold that this is a suit coming within s. 10 then it seems to me that it would equally follow that any claim by a servant or other person who had a right to be paid remuneration even for wages would equally be bringing a suit within the meaning of s. 10. It is sufficient to say that, in my opinion, s. 10 has no application to the present suit.

It was contended by the appellant, in the first place, that the claim was one for wages and was covered by Art. 102 of the Limitation Act which provides for a suit for wages not otherwise expressly provided for by the Schedule, the period being three years from the date when the wages accrued due. Alternatively he relied on Art. 120 which provides a 6 years' period of limitation. The respondents who sue on behalf of themselves and the other dwaris attached to the temple although they are in a sense servants of that institution hold in fact an hereditary office. They are bound to perform certain services and by way of emolument they are entitled to certain specific payments. Although the services, on the occasions when they officiate, are performed only by a few of them the fees to which they are entitled are distributed amongst the whole body of the dwaris. They are not paid a regular recurring wage but certain fees as emoluments attaching to the hereditary office. It does not appear to me that a case like this is one which is governed by Art. 102 of the Limitation Act. I do not consider that the payments made in this case which were almost entirely payments made in kind, so much ghee per year, can come under the head of wages.

It was contended by the respondents that if s. 10 had no application then Art. 131 applied to the case. That Article provides for a suit to establish a periodically recurring right and the period of limitation is 12 years from the time the plaintiff is first refused the enjoyment of the right. There have been conflicting decisions in the High Courts in India as to the applicability of that Article in cases where claim is not for the establishment of a periodically recurring right but for the remuneration arising by reason of the right itself. The High Court at Madras has taken the view that Art. 131 of the Schedule applies to a suit to recover sums due under such a right whether there is a prayer for declaration of the plaintiff's right or not and in the case of Manavaikrama Zamorin Raja Avergal of Calicut v. Achutha Menon (1), a Full Bench of the Madras High Court after expressing some doubt as to the propriety of earlier decisions of the same Court eventually arrived at the conclusion that those decisions should not be interfered with. In fact the Chief Justice states his opinion thus:—"If this matter had been res integra I should have been disposed to hold that Art. 131 should be construed as applying to a suit brought for the purpose of obtaining an adjudication as to the existence of an alleged periodically recurring right, and not to a suit in which it was sought to recover moneys alleged to be due by reason of the alleged right." He felt, however, that the earlier decisions of the same Court ought not to be overruled and Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair who agreed with him admitted that the question was not free from doubt. Mr. Justice Oldfield also agreed with the learned Chief Justice for the reasons stated by him. That decision undoubtedly finds some support also from a decision of the Bombay High Court, Sakharam Hari v. Lakmipriya Tirtha Swami (2). After expressing the opinion that a cash allowance due from one temple to another was in the nature of nibandha or immoveable property, the Court there held that where it was annually payable the right to payment gave to the person entitled a periodically recurring right as against the person liable to pay, and the right to any amount which has become payable stands as to such person on the same footing as the aggregate of rights to amounts which are to become payable and also those which have become actually due. As against these decisions we have a different view taken by the High Court at Allahabad. In the case of Lachmi Narain v. Turab un-nissa (3), it was held that the words of Art. 131 are altogether inapplicable to a suit to recover arrears of payments due under a registered contract and an earlier case of the Chief Court of the Punjab was followed in preference to the view held by the Madras High Court.

It seems to me that there is a vast distinction between a suit brought to establish a periodically recurring right and a suit brought to enforce payment due as remuneration for the performance of services arising out of that right. In the present instance a suit has been brought and went on appeal to the High Court and was finally decided in July 1920 in which the present plaintiffs sued the present defendant for a declaration of the very right in respect of which the remuneration is now claimed. Having had their right declared in that suit they then brought the present suit claiming not to establish their right, which is already established by the decree of the High Court, but to recover the remuneration due to them for the hereditary services for which they had not been paid, and which in fact they had not been allowed to perform, pending the dispute between the parties. I think that some light can be thrown upon this matter by reference to Arts. 128 and 129 which almost immediately precede the Article in question. It is quite clear from a perusal of those Articles, one of for which applies to a suit by a Hindu for arrears of maintenance and the other by a Hindu for a declaration of his right to maintenance, that the framers of this Act had clearly in mind the distinction between a suit for declaration of a right and a suit claiming arrears of remuneration arising out of the exercise of that right and had it been the intention to include both classes of suit under Art. 131 I think that we should have found words appropriate to that effect. It seems to me that Art. 131 was intentionally drafted so as to include merely a suit to establish a right.

In these circumstances as none of these Articles appear to be applicable to the facts of the present case one must look to the general Art. 120 which the appellant relied on, if Art. 102 should not apply; and this appears to me to be the Article applicable to the present case. It provides for a suit for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in the Schedule and the period of limitation is 6 years from the date when the right to sue arises. If that Article is applicable, as I think it is, it follows that the claim of the plaintiffs in this case is barred beyond 6 years back from the period when the suit was brought.

The result is that the decree of the learned District Judge will be varied by limiting the amount recoverable to the dues falling within 6 years from the date when the suit was instituted. I think that the appellant is entitled to his proportionate costs of this appeal.

Foster, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Decree varied.

---

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 806; 38 M. 916; (1914) M. W. N. 228; 15 M. L. T. [illegible]28; 26 M. L. J. 377.

(2) 5 Ind. Cas. 869; 34 B. 349; 12 Bom. L. R. 157.

(3) 14 Ind. Cas. 505; 34 A. 246; 9 A. L. J. 297.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 10 OF 1925.
October 13, 1925.
Present: —Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.
PREM NARAYAN—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
MAN SINGH—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920), ss. 49, 50, 109—Sir land—Cultivating rights—Transfer—Permission in general words, scope of—Sanction for sale, whether sufficient for mortgage of portion—Sanction of Sub-Divisional Officer—Confirmation by Deputy Commissioner, whether necessary—Endorsement on transfer deed, whether sufficient proof of sanction—Civil Courts, whether have power to question propriety of sanction.

A permission by the proper Revenue Officer to transfer cultivating rights in sir lands must be taken to be a permission to transfer them in any way, for any consideration, to any person, at any time the owner pleases unless the permission is limited in any of these ways. A permission for the sale of such rights would, therefore, suffice for validating a transfer by mortgage of those rights. [p. 829, col. 1.]

If a sanction is granted for the sale of the cultivating rights in the entire sir land in the village, it will be available for the transfer of such rights in a part of the land. [p. 830, col. 1.]

The sanction required under ss. 49 and 50 of the C. P. Tenancy Act or by any of the rules made on the subject under s. 109 of the Act is the sanction of the Revenue Officer, i.e., Sub-Divisional Officer, and though under the rules under s. 109 the Revenue Officer dealing with an application of this kind must in certain cases forward it to the Deputy Commissioner if he does not reject it, the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner is not necessary under the Act for the validity of the transfer. The sanction of the Revenue Officer, i.e., Sub-Divisional Officer, being all that is required for the purpose of validating the transfer. [p. 830, col. 1.]

The endorsement by the Revenue Officer relating to the grant of the sanction by him for the transfer is complete proof of such sanction and the Civil Courts cannot enquire whether the Revenue Officer ought to have granted the sanction or not. [ibid.]

Appeal against a decree of the Second Subordinate Judge, First Class, Raipur, dated the 24th November 1924, in Civil Suit No. 41 of 1924.

Sir B. K. Bose and Mr. V. Bose, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. C. Roy, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff-appellant sued on a mortgage by the defendant of a share in a village including the cultivating rights in the 36·44 acres of sir appertaining to it. The order of the Financial Commissioner on the application to transfer the cultivating rights in the sir sanctions "the transfer by sale" of the share in the village "without reservation of cultivating rights in 41·18 acres of sir land". It has been stated in this Court that there were never more than 36·44 acres of sir belonging to the mortgagor, but the mistake has never been noticed. It is, however, clear that the present extent of the sir is only 36·44 acres. The endorsement of the Sub-Divisional Officer on the mortgage-bond is as follows. "I certify that the transfer without reservation of sir right of 36·44 acres out of 41·18 acres of sir land in Mouza Tarra Tahsil and District Raipur which is effected by this document has been duly sanctioned. Vide Financial Commissioner's Order No. 375 dated 18th September 1920 in Revenue Case No. 47·11/10 of 1919-20."

It was pleaded for the defendant that, as the Financial Commissioner's sanction was for a transfer by sale, the transfer by mortgage was not sanctioned and is, therefore, invalid. The judgment of the lower Court on this point, against which the plaintiff appeals, is to the following effect. The rules made under s. 50 of the Tenancy Act, 1920, provide that "the nature of and the reasons for the intended transfer should be stated in the application for sanction", and both the Financial Commissioner and the Revenue Officer have to consider the eventual position of the transferor. In considering that, "the nature of the transfer, that is whether it is a sale, mortgage or a lease, as well as the time when it is made are very material and form a most important factor." Therefore, it is "clear that it is the intention of the Legislature that a sanction given for one kind of transfer should not be used for another kind, or that a sanction given for a particular transfer cannot be available for a different one." It is open to a Civil Court, therefore, to "go behind the note of the Sub-Divisional Officer on the back of the mortgage in suit and say that the note is not supported by the required sanction". In this case the sanction is for a transfer by sale and cannot cover a transfer by mortgage. Cultivating rights in the sir must accordingly be exempted from foreclosure.

It seems to me clear that permission by the proper Revenue Officer to transfer the cultivating rights in sir land is permission to transfer them in any way for any consideration to any person at any time the owner pleases, unless the permission is expressly limited in any of these ways. The order of the Financial Commissioner in this case is in its words limited to a transfer by sale, but it is clear that there was no intention of limiting it in that way or of excluding a transfer by mortgage, The Revenue Officer has nothing to do with the transfer of the share or of the proprietary rights in the sir; he is concerned only with the cultivating rights in the sir. If he sanctioned the transfer of those rights in the whole of the sir land in a village, it would hardly be said that the proprietor could not transfer them in a half of it only, reserving the other half for himself. If that were so, the transfer of those rights in 36·44 acres in this case would be invalid because the order of the Financial Commissioner expressly mentions 41·18 acres and it is not shown that there were not 41·18 acres of sir land in the village though a statement to that effect has been made in this Court. Similarly, sanction for a complete transfer by sale must include sanction for a partial transfer by mortgage. It may be mentioned that it would be difficult for the Financial Commissioner or the Revenue Officer before deciding whether to grant the sanction, to consider "the time when" the transfer would be made in the future.

But we are not concerned with the orders of the Financial Commissioner at all. All that is required in the way of sanction by ss. 49 and 50 of the Tenancy Act, 1920, or even by any of the rules on the subject made under s. 109 of the same Act is the sanction of the Revenue Officer, that is the Sub-Divisional Officer. Under s. 50 (2) of the Act and the seventh of the rules made under s. 109, the Revenue Officer dealing with an application of this kind must in certain cases, if he does not reject it, "forward it for the orders of the Financial Commissioner" (now the Deputy Commissioner).

But there is nothing in the Act or the rules making the sanction of the Financial Commissioner (or the Deputy Commissioner) necessary for the validity of a transfer, even in those cases which have to be forwarded for orders. The sanction of the same Revenue Officer, that is, the Sub-Divisional Officer, is still all that is required, though he is forbidden to give it without the permission of a higher authority. That however does not concern anybody but those officers, and I apprehend that a sanction granted by a Sub-Divisional Officer after forwarding the case to the proper authority for orders would be valid and sufficient even in the unlikely event of its being not in accordance with those orders, as it has been held in the lower Court to be in this case.

Anyhow there was no disobedience or misunderstanding of orders here, and the proper Revenue Officer sanctioned the transfer by mortgage of the cultivating rights in 36·44 acres of sir land in the endorsement on the bond which is quoted at the beginning of this judgment. We are not concerned with anything beyond or behind that; the endorsement is complete proof that the proper Revenue Officer did sanction the transfer effected by the instrument, and we cannot enquire whether he ought to have done so or not.

The decree of the lower Court will be modified by the substitution of the word including for the word excluding in the description of the property to be foreclosed. All the costs in both Courts will be paid by the defendant-respondent. The time up to which redemption is allowed must be extended to the 26th of December 1925. The decree of the lower Court has, therefore, to be further modified by the substitution of the 26th of December 1925 for the 24th of May 1925 as the end of the period allowed for redemption, and of Rs. 7,471-10-0 for Rs. 6,894-10-0 as the total payable for principal and interest up to that date and costs in both Courts.

G. R. D. Decree modified.
Z. K.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE PATNA HIGH COURT.
December 2, 1925.
Present:—Lord Shaw, Lord Phillimore, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

Rao Bahadur MAN SINGH—APPELLANT
versus
Maharani NAWLAKHBATI AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Widow—Surrender, validity of—Estate under management of Court of Wards, effect of—Court of Wards Act (IX B. C. of 1879), s. 60.

A surrender by a Hindu widow of the whole of her interest in the estate of her deceased husband in favour of the nearest reversioner or reversioners at the time of the surrender is valid, provided it is a bona fide surrender and not a device to divide the estate with the reversioners. [p. 836, col. 2.]

Where a Hindu widow's estate is under the management of the Court of Wards, the widow is not competent to surrender the estate to the nearest reversioner of her husband. Any such surrender is void under the provisions of s. 60 of the Court of Wards Act. [ibid.]

Appeal from a decree of the Patna High Court, (Mr. Justice Das and Mr. Justice Kulwant Sahay) in Appeal from Original Decree No. 205 of 1922, dated the 6th April 1923, affirming that of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Bhagalpur, dated the 5th June 1922.

Messrs. L. DeGruyther, K. C., and S. Hyam, for the Appellant.

Sir G. R. Lowndes, K. C., and Mr. E. B. Raikes, for the Respondents.

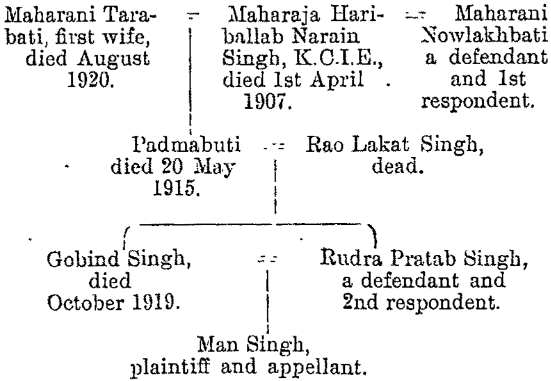
JUDGMENT.

Sir Jhon Edge.—This is an appeal from a decree, dated the 6th April 1923, of the High Court at Patna, which affirmed a decree, dated the 5th June 1922, of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Bhagalpur.

The parties to the suit in which this appeal has arisen are Hindus, by caste Rajput, of the District of Bhagalpur, who are governed by the Law of the Mitakshara, and the following pedigree shows how they are related:—



Maharani Tarabati, first wife, died August 1920.
Maharaja Hariballab Narain Singh, K.C.I.E., died 1st April 1907.
Maharani Nowlakhbati a defendant and 1st respondent.
Padmabuti died 20 May 1915.
Rao Lakat Singh, dead.
Gobind Singh, died October 1919.
Rudra Pratab Singh, a defendant and 2nd respondent.
Man Singh, plaintiff and appellant.

Sir Hariballab Narain Singh died intestate on the 1st April, 1907, possessed of the Sonbarsa estate, which was situate principally in the District of Bhagalpur and produced an income of about two lacs of rupees a year. On his death his two widows, Maharani Tarabati and Maharani Nowlakhbati, succeeded him in the possession of the estate. On the 30th April, 1907, the two widows, who were pardanashin ladies, jointly presented to the Collector of Bhagalpur a petition in which they alleged that the estate was heavily involved in debt, that there were large arrears of income to be collected, and that they were unable to manage the estate, and asked that they should be held under s. 6 of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, to be disqualified proprietors, and should be declared by the Court of Wards incompetent to manage their own property and that the estate should be taken over by the Court of Wards. That application was forwarded by the Collector to the Court of Wards, and thereupon the Court of Wards under s. 27 of the Act made on the 27th May, 1907, an order declaring that the widows were incompetent to manage their own property and declaring that it was determined under s. 35 of the Act that the Court of Wards should take charge of the property of the widows and directed that possession of such property should be taken on behalf of the Court of Wards. Thereupon the widows became wards of the Court of Wards. The Court of Wards allowed to each of the widows Rs. 625 a month for her maintenance On the death of Maharani Tarabati in 1920 the monthly allowance made by the Court of Wards to Maharani Nowlakhbati for her maintenance was increased to Rs. 1,250. The widows and the survivor of them continued to live in the family house of the Sonbarsa estate.

On the 18th December, 1918, the widows, as parties of the first part, and Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh, as parties of the second part, made a deed, written in English, which, omitting the Schedule, is so far as is material as follows :—

"(Sd.) Sri Maharani Teravati. By my own pen.

(Sd.) Sri Maharani Nowalakhavti. By my own pen.

This INDENTURE made the eighteenth day of December of the Christian year One Thousand Nine Hundred and eighteen between Maharani Tarabati and Maharani Nowlakhbati, the senior and the junior widow respectively of the late Maharaja Harballabh Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., residing at Sonbarsa in Thana Sonbarsa, Pargana Nisankhpur Korha, District Bhagalpur, hereinafter called the First Party of the one part; and Rao Bahadur Govind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh sons of the late Rao Bahadur Takat Singh and daughter's son of the said Maharaja Harballabh Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., residing at Barware, in the Jeypore State in Rajputana, hereinafter called the second party of the other part, WHEREAS the late Maharaja Harballabh Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., died intestate on the 1st day of April, 1907, leaving considerable property, moveable and immoveable, commonly called the Sonbarsa Estate, mostly situate in Pargana Nisankhpur Kurha in the Sub-Division of Madhipura, District Bhagalpur, and leaving behind him no male issue but only two widows, namely, the first party and an only daughter namely, Maharaj Kumari Padmabati, mother of the Second Party, and two daughter's sons by the said daughter, namely, the Second Party AND WHEREAS on the death of the said Maharaja Bahadur the first party succeeded to and came into possession of all property, moveable and immoveable, left by him, with the rights of Hindu widows under the Benares School of Hindu Law, which governs the family of the said Maharaja Bahadur AND WHEREAS by reason of the FIRST PARTY being pardanashin ladies incapable of managing a big property like the Sonbarsa Estate, the Court of Wards has taken up the management of the said Estate under the provisions of Act IX of 1879 (B. C.) on their behalf, and is at present managing the property through Rai Sahib Nilmoney Dey, Manager appointed under the provisions of the said Act AND WHEREAS the First Party are now getting a monthly allowance of Rs. 625. (Rupees six hundred and twenty-five) each from the Court of Wards for their respective maintenance. AND WHEREAS the said Maharaj Kumari Padmabati died on the 20th day of May 1915, AND WHEREAS the first party are now growing old and are desirous of remaining aloof from the concerns of the world and of spending their latter days in Divine Worship and meditation in the Holy City of Benares, with an allowance for their maintenance befitting their rank and position. AND WHEREAS for the reasons aforesaid the first party wish to relinquish and surrender their Hindu widows' estate in the said property left by the said Maharaja Bahadur, their deceased husband, to the next heirs, the Second Party who have undertaken to pay them or the survivor of them, out of the income and profits of the said estate left by the said Maharaja Bahadur, the monthly sum of Rs. 2,000 (Rupees two thousand) for maintenance and also to defray the expenses of the daily and periodical worship of the family deities Lachhmi Narayan Jeo, Ram Chandra Jeo and Radha Krishan Jeo, at a cost of Rs. 100 (Rupees one hundred) per mensem. AND WHEREAS the Second Party have agreed to all the terms aforesaid.

NOW THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH.

1. That the first party Maharani Tarabati and Maharani Nowlakhbati do hereby relinquish and surrender all their rights in the property moveable and immoveable, left by their husband, the late Maharaja Hariballabh Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., commonly called the Sonbarsa Estate, now in the charge and under the management of the Court of Wards to and in favour of the Second Party Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh, the next heirs of the said Maharaja Bahadur under the Hindu Law, and in pursuance thereof the first party do hereby make over the entire property aforesaid to the second party in full extinction of their rights therein as Hindu widows.

2. That the second party will be entitled to the whole property aforesaid from this date and they will hold and enjoy the same in the rights of daughter's sons succeeding to the property of their maternal grandfather under the Benares School of Hindu Law, the share of each being a moiety of the said property.

3. That the second party will be entitled to have their names entered as proprietors in equal share in respect of the revenue-paying or revenue-free estates included in the said property by removing the names of the first party now recorded in the registers maintained under Act VII of 1876 (B. C.).

4. That the first party will at once inform the Court of Wards of this surrender and request the Court to make over the charge and management of the said property to the second party subject to the Court's retaining the management if it thinks fit, under s. 13A of the said Act IX of 1879 (B. C.)

5. That the first party or the survivor of them, will be entitled to receive a maintenance allowance of Rs. 2,000 (Rupees two thousand) per mensem, from the second party out of the rents and profits of the said property so long as they or either of them live or lives.

6. That the second party undertake to keep up and maintain the daily and periodical worship of the family deities Lachhmi Narayan Jeo, Ram Chandra Jeo, and Radha Krishna Jeo, installed at the Sonbarsa house left by the said Maharaja Bahadur, at a cost of Rs. 100 (Rupees one hundred) per mensem, and should they omit or neglect to carry out this undertaking the first party will be entitled to enforce the fulfilment thereof.

In WITNESS WHEREOF the said parties to these presents have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first above written in the presence of:—

Witnesses.-(1) Bindhyeswari Prasad Singh, High Court Vakil, Monghyr.
(2) Ajodhya Prasad Choudhary M. C., resident of Kassim Bazar, Monghyr.

Witness.—Prabhu Charan Ambasta, Bhikhanpur, Bhagalpur.
„ Bindyeswari Prasad Singh, Vakil, Monghyr.
„ Anirudh P. Singh Pleadar and Zemindar, Panjwara, Bhagalpur.
„ Ram Chandra Singh of Mohanpur, Bhagalpur.
„ Ram Chandra Singh of Mouza Chakla Hanuman Nagar. By my own pen.
„ Babu Nirbhay Narayan Singh of Bindwara Pargana, Monghyr. By my own pen."

The deed was registered on the 18th December, 1918.

On the same day, 18th December, 1918, Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh by their ekrarnama agreed in writing with the widows so far as is material as follows:—

"This agreement made on the 18th (Eighteenth) day of December one thousand nine hundred and eighteen between Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh, alias Begai Singh, sons of the late Rao Bahadur Lakat Singh, and daughter's sons of the late Maharaja Harballab Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., residing at Barwara in the Jaipur State, Rajputana, hereinafter called the first party of the one part and Maharani Tarabati and Maharani Nowlakhbati, the senior and the junior widows, respectively of the said Maharaja Harballah Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., residing at Sonbarsa, in Thana Sonbarsa, Pargana Nisankpur Karha, District Bhagalpur, hereafter called the second party of the other part, whereas the said Maharaja Harballab Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E. died intestate on the 1st April, 1907, leaving considerable property moveable and immoveable, commonly called the Sonbarsa estate, mostly situate in Pargana Nisankpur Kurha in the Sub-Division of Madhipura, in the District of Bhagalpur, but also situate in part in Pargana Farakya in the District of Monghyr and leaving behind him no male issue, but only two widows, namely, the second party, and an only daughter, namely, Maharaj Kumari Padmavati, mother of the first party, and two daughter's sons by the said daughter, namely, the first party. And whereas on the death on the said Maharaja Bahadur, the second party succeeded to and came into possession of all property, moveable and immoveable left by him with the rights of Hindu widows under the Benares School of Hindu Law, which governs the family of the said Maharaja Bahadur, and whereas by reason of the second party being pardanashin ladies, incapable of managing a big property like the Sonbarsa estate the Court of Wards has taken up the management of the said estate, under the provision of Act IX of 1879 (B. C.) on their behalf and is at present managing the property through Rai Saheb Nilmoney Day, Manager appointed under the provisions of the said Act: And whereas the said Maharaj Kumari Padmabati died on 20th (Twentieth) day of May, 1915. And whereas the second party who are now growing old and are desirous of remaining aloof from the concerns of the world, and of spending their latter days in Divine worship and meditation in the holy city of Benares, have proposed to surrender their estate to the first party who are now the next reversionary heirs of the said Maharaja Bahadur under the Hindu Law on getting a suitable maintenance for the remainder of their natural lives, and an assurance that the worship of the family deities at Sonbarsa should be kept up and maintained in the proper stage by the first party. And whereas the first party have agreed in the event of the said surrender being made, to give the second party or the survivor of them, a maintenance allowance of Rs. 2,000 (Rupses two thousand) per mensem, and also to keep up and maintain the worship of the said family deities in a suitable style at the cost of Rs. 100 (Rupees one hundred) per mensem. And whereas the second party consider the said amount of maintenance allowance and of the expenses of worship fair and reasonable and, therefore, they are executing the deed of surrender contemplated by them. The first party, therefore, in consideration of the premises, do hereby agree of their own free will and accord that from the day they became the proprietors of the said Sonbarsa estate, by reason of the surrender aforesaid they and their heirs, successors, executors, administrators and assignees shall pay to the second party or the survivor of them, so long as they or either of them live or lives, the monthly sum of Rs. 2,000 (Rupees two thousand) for their maintenance in a style suitable to the rank and position held by their deceased husband, and if they fail to pay the allowance due for any months (which is to be taken as an English month) on the first day of the following month, the second party will be at liberty to enforce the payment thereof, with simple interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per mensem, by process of Court, and the said arrears of allowance, with interest and the costs of the suit if any to enforce the payment thereof shall be the first charge on the property mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed which forms, a part of the estate surrendered by the second party as mentioned above. And the first party further agree that from the day aforesaid they shall keep up and maintain the daily and periodical worship of the family deities Lachhmi Narayan Jeo, Ramchander Jeo, and Radha Krishna Jeo installed at the Sonbarsa house left by the said Maharaja Bahadur, at a cost of Rs. 100 (Rupees one hundred) per mensem (the month being taken as an English month), and should they omit or neglect to carry out this agreement the second party will be entitled to enforce the fulfilment thereof. In witness whereof the parties to these presents have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first above written in the presence of witnesses (1) Bindheyswari Prasad Singh, High Court Vakil, Monghyr, (2) Ajodhya Prasad Chaudhury, M. C., resident of Kassim Bazar Monghyr."

That agreement was registered on the 18th December, 1918.

On the 23rd December, 1918, the two widows sent the following letter to the Collector of Bhagalpur :—

"To

The Collector of Bhagalpore.

Dated Bhagalpore, the 23rd December, 1918.

Sir,

We have the honour to state the following for your information :—

That we are disqualified proprietresses of the Estate known as the Sonbarsa Estate and we are Wards of the Court.

That we have two grandsons named Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratap Singh.

That for sometime past we had been contemplating surrendering our rights to the estate in favour of our two grandsons who are the reversioners to the estate and we had informed Mr. B. C. Sen, I. C. S., the then Collector and the Hon'ble Mr. H. J. McIntosh, I. C. S., the then Commissioner, informally about our intentions.

That we have kept Mr. Sen informed informally about all the steps that we have been taking in connection with our intention to surrender the Estate.

That we had taken the best legal advice (e. g.,) of the Government Advocate, Bihar and Orissa and Government Pleader, Bhagalpore, and we were given to understand that under the law we had every right to surrender the estate in favour of our two grandsons.

That in pursuance of our intentions to keep the authorities informed about all our actions in connection with the surrender, we so far back as March 1918 sent a copy of the proposed deed of surrender to the Collector of Bhagalpore with our forwarding letter dated the 4th March 1918.

That we have executed and registered the deed of surrender on the 18th instant and as provided in para. 4 of the said deed we beg to inform you about the same and request you to take steps to make over the charge and management of the said properties to Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rudrapratap Singh, our two grandsons aforesaid if the Court of Wards do not think fit to retain management under s. 13 (a) of Act IX of 1879 (B. C.).

That we have been given to understand that our two grandsons aforesaid are applying for the mutation of their names in the registers maintained under Act VII of 1876 (B. C.) and that we have no objection to their so doing.

We have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servants,
(Sd.) Sri Maharani Tarabati.
(Sd.) Sri Maharani Nowlakhbati,
Maharanis of Sonbarsa."

The gentlemen whom the widows mentioned as the Government Advocate and Government Pleader in giving any advice to the widows acted as their legal advisers, and not in any respect as representing the Court of Wards.

On the 15th April, 1919, the Court of Wards through their Deputy Collector sent the following reply to the widows to their petition of the 23rd December, 1918 :—

"To

Maharani Tarabati Kumari and Nowlakhabati Kumari, Sonbarsa.

Their petition No. nil, dated the 23rd December, 1918.

The Maharanis of Sonbarsa are informed that the Board of Revenue, Bihar and Orissa considers that the deed of relinquishment executed by them in favour of their grandsons is invalid.

(Sd) H. Bhattacharyja, Wards Deputy Collector."

The Court of Wards had never given any sanction to the widows or to either of them to create any charge upon or interest in the property of the Wards or any part thereof.

In February, 1919, Gobind Singh applied to the Court of the Deputy Collector of Bhagalpur for mutation of names in his favour in respect of an eighth share in the estate on the ground that he had a right to the moiety of the estate, his contention being that the deed of the 18th December 1918, operated as a surrender of the interests of the widows of their interests in the estate. Rudra Pratab Singh did not oppose the application. The application was opposed by the Manager of the Court of Wards on various grounds, one of which it is only necessary in the view their Lordships take of the law applicable to the case to consider, and that is that the Court of Wards had not sanctioned the so-called surrender and that it was consequently invalid under s. 60 of the Court of Wards Act, 1879. That section is as follows:

"60. No Ward shall be competent to create, without the sanction of the Court, any charge upon, or interest in, his property or any part thereof."

The Court in that section mentioned was the Court of Wards. Gobind Singh's application for mutation of names was rejected.

Gobind Singh died in October, 1919. Maharani Tarabati (the first wife) died in August, 1920. Man Singh, who was the son of Gobind Singh, brought this suit on the 17th January, 1921. In his plaint Man Singh referred to the deed of the 18th December, 1918, and relied upon it as a surrender by the widows of their interest as proprietors of the Sonbarsa estate and as having vested that estate in his father, Gobind Singh and in Rudra Pratab Singh. The 11th, 12th and 13th paras. of the plaint state the title upon which the suit was brought, thus:—

"11. That by the said deed of surrender the said Maharanis having put an end to their life estate as Hindu widows in favour of the entire body of the then reversioners the aforesaid Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratab Singh the defendant, second party in the aforesaid Sonbarsa estate, all the properties both moveable and immoveable appertaining to the said Sonbarsa Estate vested solely and absolutely in the said reversioners, who became entitled to hold, possess and enjoy the aforesaid estate as the absolute owners of and successors to the properties left by their maternal grandfather by right of inheritance under the Benares School of Hindu Law.

12. That as the aforesaid heritage being one which is known as obstructed heritage, the plaintiff's father Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh and Rao Bahadur Rudra Pratap Singh, the defendant, second party acquired equal rights in the same and the share of each being a moiety of the said properties.

13. That the plaintiff's father, Rao Bahadur Gobind Singh died in October, 1919 leaving the plaintiff his only son and the sole heir to his estate and he is lawfully entitled to all the rights and interest acquired by his late father in the aforesaid Sonbarsa Estate by virtue of the aforesaid deed of surrender."

Man Singh, the plaintiff, prayed for the following amongst other reliefs:—

"(a) That the Court be pleased to declare that by the deed of surrender and the ekrarnama, dated the 18th of December 1918 the plaintiff's father and the defendant second party became entitled as the next immediate reversionary heirs of the late Maharaja Sir Harbalab Narain Singh Bahadur, K. C. I. E., to all the properties left by him and the defendant, first party has no right to withhold possession of the Sonbarsa estate from the plaintiff and the defendant second party.

(b) That the Court be pleased to pass a decree for recovery of possession of all the properties moveable and immoveable mentioned in Schedules A and B annexed to the plaint as well as any other properties that may be found on discovery to appertain to the Sonbarsa Estate in favour of the plaintiff and the defendant, second party by dispossessing the defendant, first party."

In Sch. B of the plaint, which contains a list of the moveable properties which were claimed, carriages, palkis, cattle, elephants, bullocks, cows, buffaloes, horses, and other things are mentioned as having been retained in the possession of Maharani Nowlakhbati.

The defendants, Maharani Nowlakhbati and Rudra Pratap Singh filed separate written statements. The Maharani Nowlakhbati in her written statement pleaded amongst other things that the widows being disqualified persons and their estate being under the management of the Court of Wards, they had no authority to execute the alleged deed of surrender without the sanction of the Court of Wards and that the plaintiff's father did not acquire any valid title under the said deed, and also did not admit as correct the view of the law propounded in paras. 12 and 13 of the plaint and put the plaintiff to proof of his title.

The defendant Rudra Pratap Singh in his written statement pleaded amongst other things that the alleged deed of surrender was not a surrender of the whole interest of the Maharani's and was void and illegal, and also that it was void and ineffectual as not having the sanction of the Court of Wards. Rudra Pratap Singh by his written statement put the plaintiff to proof of his title.

The Subordinate Judge framed twelve issues, of which the fifth is in the opinion of their Lordships the crucial issue in this case. It was "5. Is the deed of surrender valid having regard to the provisions of s. 60 of the Court of Wards Act (IX of 1879)? If it is found that the deed of the 18th December, 1918, was in contravention of that section the plaintiff's suit fails and this appeal fails, and it is not necessary for the Lordships to consider whether the widows understood the deed or had executed it under any misrepresentation as to its object or effect, or without any independent advice, or to consider any other issue, or the questions of law raised in the 11th paragraph of the written statement of the Maharani Nowlakhbati, which was that "the plaintiff should prove that he is entitled to a moiety share in the Sonbarsa estate, even if the said deed of surrender be held to be a valid document." Whilst saying this, their Lordships feel it right to say that the lengthy and elaborate judgments of the Courts below have been of assistance to them in understanding the facts which were in dispute between the parties to this suit.

In this case no question, that there was any necessity for the surrender, arose. There was in fact no necessity for a surrender of the interests of the widows. The Subordinate Judge and the High Court in appeal concurrently found in effect that the parties to the deed of the 18th December 1918, intended by that deed that the widows should surrender some of their interests in the Sonbarsa estate to Gobind Singh and Rudra Pratap Singh, and that the so-called surrender was void as being in contravention of s. 60 of the Court of Wards Act, 1879. Those learned Judges might have found on the facts that the deed was void independently of s. 60 of the Act.

The question as to whether a surrender without necessity by a Hindu widow of her widow's interest in her deceased husband's estate, even in favour of the nearest reversioner, is valid was considered by the Board in Rangasami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden, (1). In the judgment of the Board in that case, at page 84*, it was said that:—

"The result of the consideration of the decided cases may be summarized thus: (1) An alienation by a widow of her deceased husband's estate held by her may be validated if it can be shown to be a surrender of her whole interest in the whole estate in favour of the nearest reversioner or reversioners at the time of the alienation. In such circumstances the question of necessity does not fall to be considered. But the surrender must be a bona fide surrender, not a device to divide the estate with the reversioner."

In Sureshwar Misser v. Maheshrani (2) the Board affirmed that pronouncement of the law. In the latter case, in which the parties were subject to the law of the Mithila School, the widow of the deceased proprietor on the death of her infant son took absolutely the moveable property. In that case there were serious disputes in the family as to title and the next reversioners to the son sued the widow and her daughters to set aside the Will of her husband under which the daughters were entitled to succeed to the immoveable

(1) 50 Ind. Cas. 498; 46 I. A. 72; 36 M. L. J. 493; 17 A. L. J. 536; 29 C. L. J. 539; 21 Bom. L. R. 640; 23 C. W. N. 777; (1919) M. W. N. 262; 42 M. 523; 26 M. L. T. 5; 10 L. W. 105; 1 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 66 (P. C.).

(2) 57 Ind. Cas. 325; 47 I. A. 233; (1925) M. W. N. 472; 39 M. L. J. 161; 28 M. L. T. 154; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 128; 12 L. W. 461; 18 A. L. J. 1069; 25 C. W. N. 194; 48 C. 100; 41 C. L. J. 433 (P. C.).

---

*Page of 64 I. A.—[Ed.]

property on the death of the son without issue. A family compromise was agreed to, and in performance of it the widow surrendered all her rights of succession to the immoveable property, and the plaintiff the next reversioner, and her daughters gave her for life a small portion of the land for her maintenance. The Board held that the compromise was a bona fide surrender of the estate, and not a device to divide it with the next neversioner, the giving of a small portion of it to the widow for her maintenance not being objectionable, and consequently that the transaction was valid under the principles laid down by the Board in Rangasami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden (1).

The so-called surrender in the present case was, as stated above, void in law, and was also void as being in contravention of s. 60 of that Act.

Their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellant:—Messrs. Barrow, Rogers & Nevil.

Solicitors for the Respondent:—Messrs. Watkins & Hunter.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE No. 1693 OF 1923.

December 4, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Suhrawardy and Mr. Justice Mukerji.

GNANADA GOBINDO CHOUDHURI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

NALINI BALA DEBI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Res judicata—Rent suit—Rate of rent.

The essence of the doctrine of res judicata is that where a material issue has been tried and determined between the same parties in a proper suit and in a proper Court as to the status of one of them in relation to the other or as to the right or title claimed by one of them against the other, the same question cannot be agitated by them again in another suit. In the case of suits for rent or other recurring liability, the causes of action for suits for successive periods are different. In the case of such suits, for the doctrine to apply, it will have to be shown that the question of right or liability not merely for the period in the previous suit but that for all times or once for all was directly and substantially in issue and was tried and determined. If a direct issue on the point was raised and decided the decision would be res judicata in respect of any suit for a subsequent period. If the decision falls short of that requisite and if the general question was gone into and decided merely for the purpose of deciding the right or liability for the period involved in the suit, then the issue was raised not directly and substantially but collaterally or incidentally. In a suit for rent, no issues need be framed, but where issues are framed, the non-existence of a direct issue of this character has to be seriously taken into account in determining whether the question of right or liability for all times was really directly and substantially in issue. [p. 839, cols. 1 & 2.]

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Pabna and Bogra, dated the 19th March 1923, modifying that of the Subordinate Judge, Second Court, Pabna, dated the 11th August 1922.

Babus Brajo Lal Chakravarty and Susil Kumar Bose, for the Appellants.

Mr. Sarat Chandra Roy Chowdhuri (with him Babu Sarat Chandra Khan, Mr. Gopal Chandra Das and Babu Nirode Bandhu Roy), for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Mukerji, J.—This appeal arises out of a suit for rent in respect of a patni tenure for the years 1324 to 1327 B.S. The defendants may be classified into two groups, the defendants Nos. 1 to 5, 8 and 9 being the holders of an 8-annas interest, while the other 8-annas which was formerly held by the defendant No. 6 Jamini Kumar Pakrashi is now alleged to be held by the defendant No. 7 Nalini Bala Debi. The plaintiffs' case is that this 8-annas share was purchased by the estate of one Bidhumukhi Debi which now belongs to Nalini Bala Debi. Bidhumukhi is dead, and so is her adopted son Birendra, whose widow is Nalini Bala.

The Subordinate Judge decreed the plaintiffs' suit against the defendants Nos. 1 to 5 and 7 to 9. On appeal preferred by the defendant No. 7 Nalini Bala the learned District Judge absolved her from liability for payment and set aside the decree in so far as it was against her. The plaintiffs have appealed.

On the merits the learned District Judge was of opinion that the 8-annas share of Jamini was purchased for the estate of Bidhumukhi and with her money and, therefore, the estate was liable for the rent. He, however, held that a previous decision stood as a bar in the plaintiffs' way and operated as res judicata.

The facts relating to the previous litigation are these: That suit was instituted for rent of the patni for the years 1320 to 1323 B. S. The holders of an 8-annas share of the patni were the defendants Nos. 1 to 7 therein. Jamini Kumar Pakrashi was the defendant No 8. The defendant No. 9 was one Soshi Bhushan Chatterji (or Bhattacharjya) executor to the estate of Brojendra Mohan Roy, husband of Bidhumukhi, No. 9 (ka) was Birendra Mohan Roy son of Brojendra Mohan Roy, and No. 10 was the said Soshi Bhushan Chatterji, (or Bhattacharjya) executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi. It is not very clear when exactly the said defendant No. 10 was impleaded in the suit, but in any event, he was added after the issues in the suit had been framed. There was a debt due to Bidhumukhi by Jamini on note of hand, on which a decree was obtained and in execution of that decree Jamini's 8-annas share in the patni was purchased. In that suit question arose as to whether the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the rents from Soshi Bhusan as executor to the estate of Brojendra or from Birendra or from Soshi Bhusan as executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi. The Subordinate Judge in a long, hesitating and rambling judgment discussed the facts and eventually arrived at certain conclusions which may be gleaned from his judgment and which may be summarised as follows:—The property was an acquisition to the estate of Bidhumukhi. It was not purchased by Soshi Bhusan as executor to the estate of Brojo Mohan and so Soshi Bhusan as such executor was not liable; nor was Birendra liable; presumably as Bidhumukhi's estate was then unadministered and Soshi Bhusan as executor to that estate was in seizin thereof. In the judgment recorded by him on the 30th April 1918 the learned Subordinate Judge expressed an opinion that the purchase was made by Soshi Bhusan but not as executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi, and not with due regard to the interest of Birendra, who was a minor and out of fraudulent and selfish motives and ultimately held—"but as the decree was in a suit on a note of hand by Jamini in favour of Bidhumukhi and the sale was in execution of the decree on a note of hand by Jamini in favour of Bidhumukhi and Soshi is the executor to her estate, and as Soshi as such executor has not put in any objection to the claim against him as such executor, the suit is decreed ex parte against him". On the 1st May 1918 an application was made on behalf of Birendra for amendment of the judgment, and upon that the learned Subordinate Judge amended his judgment in this way: Instead of the decree being that the suit is decreed ex parte against Soshi as such executor, meaning executor to Bidhumukhi's estate, it would run thus—"The suit is decreed ex parte against Soshi, sued as executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi, but he is to be personally liable and not the estate for the rent claimed". It would seem that by this amendment the learned Subordinate Judge wanted to absolve the estate of Bidhumukhi from liability but then he proceeded to conclude his order with these observations:—"I ought to notice here that I have forgotten to notice and decide a point raised in the defence of defendant Birendra and argued by the Pleaders of the parties: it was to the effect that Soshi even if he purchased the patni as executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi could not by the purchase render the estate liable for rent for the patni and the estate could not be liable for rent for the period claimed. I regret that this matter escaped me when writing judgment, but I am not competent to decide it now". I confess I am unable to understand what the learned Subordinate Judge meant by these observations if in point of fact, he amended the judgment in the way that he did. On the basis of the judgment a decree was prepared and in that it was declared that "the estate of Bidhumukhi would not be liable for this decree." From this decree two appeals were preferred, one by Jamini with which we are not concerned now, and the other on behalf of Soshi as executor to the estate of Bidhumukhi. The latter challenged in the appeal the part of the decree making him personally liable and absolving Bidhumukhi's estate from liability. The learned District Judge held that a decree against Soshi as executor was quite right and the subsequent addition in the judgment "but he is to be personally liable and not the estate for the rents claimed" was wholly unwarranted. He, therefore, set aside the decree in so far as it purported to make Soshi personally liable and as regards the liability of the estate for the rent claimed he declined to interfere with the decree in that respect as the estate was not represented before him, Soshi Bhusan having ceased to be executor while the appeal was pending, and having thereafter died and Birendra also having died and Nalini Bala as his widow having been substituted as his heir in his place, but nothing appearing as to where the estate lay at the time. In accordance with this judgment, a decree was drawn up in which it was declared that "Soshi Bhusan is exonerated from the personal decree".

The learned District Judge has held that the decision of the Subordinate Judge absolving Bidhumukhi's estate from liability operates as res judicata and there cân be no decree against Nalini Bala who now holds that estate. He seems to have been of opinion that the question as to whether the estate was liable or not was specifically raised and decided in that case, that the previous suit was dismissed as against the estate of Bidhumukhi and that the decree of the Trial Court exonerating Bidhumukhi's estate became final.

The essence of the doctrine of res judicata is that where a material issue has been tried and determined between the same parties in a porper suit and in a proper Court as to the status of one of them in relation to the other or as to the right or title claimed by one of them against the other, the same question cannot be agitated by them again in another suit: Krishna Behari Roy v. Bunwari Lall Roy (1). In the case of suits for rent or other recurring liability, the causes of action for suits for successive periods are different. In the case of such suits, for the doctrine to apply, it will have to be shown that the question of right or liability not merely for the period in the previous suit but that for all times or once for all was directly and substantially in issue and was tried and determined. If a direct issue on the point was raised and decided the decision would by res judicata in respect of any suit for a subequent period: Nobo Doorga Dossee v. Foyzbux Chowdhury (2) Vishnu v. Ramling (3) Natesa Gramani v. Venkatarama Reddi (4) and Dwarka Das v. Akhay Singh (5). If the decision falls short of that requisite and if the general question was gone into and decided merely for the purpose of deciding the right or liability for the period involved in the suit, then the issue was raised not directly and substantially but collaterally or incidentally. In a suit for rent, no issues need be framed, but where issues are framed, the non-existence of a direct issue of this character has to be seriously taken into account in determining whether the question of right or liability for all times was really directly and substantially in issue. In the present case in previous suit the ordering portion of the judgment of the Trial Court distinctly stated "that Soshi as executor was to be liable and not the estate for the rent claimed", the decree framed in accordance with the judgment expressly absolved the estate from liability in respect of the particular decree, and the concluding paragraph of the judgment which I have already quoted above left the question of the liability of the estate for all times as undertermined.

The respondents contend that the decision of a question in an earlier suit which was not raised in the issues but which it was necessary to decide therein operates as res judicata in respect of the same question when it is raised in a subsequent suit. They urge on the authority of the decision of the Privy Council in Soorjomonee Dayee v. Suddanund Mohapatter (6) that it is not necessary to constitute a matter directly and substantially in issue that a distinct issue should have been raised upon it and that it is sufficient if the matter was decided in substance. In that case the Privy Council followed a decision of Lord Hardwicke in Gregory v. Molesworth (7) that "where a question was necessarily decided in effect, though not in express terms, between parties to the suit, they could not raise the same question as between themselves, in any other suit in any other form". Their Lordships were of opinion, that the expression "cause of action" should be construed with reference rather to the substance than to the form of action; the question which had been decided in the earlier suit in that case was necessary to be decided in the earlier case and it was a question on which the plaintiff had sought for the decision of the Court. Several other decisions are also relied on on behalf of the respondents to which it is now necessary to refer: Lilabati Misrain v. Bishun Chobey (8) in which it was laid down that a decision may operate as res judicata although no issue had been expressly raised and that the test to be applied was whether it plainly appears that the question so raised by the parties in their pleadings was actually submitted by them to the Court and judgment given on it: Aghore Nath Mukerjee v. Kamini Debi (9) in which it was observed that where the dispute relates to matters which had already been in controversy and formed the subsidiary consideration in the previous suit, although the cause of action in the two suits are distinct the estoppel is to be limited to matters distinctly put in issue and determined in the prior action ;the case of Midnapur Zamindary Co. v. Naresh Narayan Roy (10) in which it was laid down that if in a previous suit a Court having a question before its mind and specially brought to its notice as a thing of importance decided that the issue did arise and was a necessary one, the decision on that issue will be res judicata in a subsequent suit though the issue might not be a necessary or proper one to be tried; a decision that was affirmed by the Judicial Committee in the case of Midnapur Zamindary Co. v. Naresh Narayan Roy (11) and several other cases in which similar proposition have been laid down. In the present case, however, there is hardly any room for the application of these principles, as it is not at all clear that the question of liability of the estate for the rent of the patni for all times was either raised or decided, while on the other hand the matters which I have already referred to point to a contrary conclusion.

---

(1) 2 I. A. 283; 1 C. 144; 25 W. R. 1; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 559; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 213; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 93 (P. C.).

(2) 1 C. 202; 24 W. R. 403; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 129.

(3) 26 B. 25; 3 Bom. L. R. 450.

(4) 30 M. 510; 17 M. L. J. 518; 2 M. L. T. 455.

(5) 30 M. 470; 5 A. L. J. 407; A. W. N. (1908) 192.

(6) 12 B. L. R. 304; 20 W. R. 377; I. A. Sup. Vol. 212 (P. C.).

(7) (1747) 3 Atk. 626; 26 E. R. 1160.

(8) 6 C. L. J. 621.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the decision of the learned District Judge on the question of res judicata cannot be supported and must be reversed.

The respondents have urged that if we consider the suit is not barred by res judicata we should remand the case to the lower Appellate Court in order to deal with the merits of the case. We readily assent to their prayer because the decision of that Court on the merits is far from satisfactory. No clear or definite findings have been arrived at on the questions of fact which arise in the case and the reasoning on which the finding as to liability of the estate is based does not commend itself to us.

We, therefore, set aside the decree of the learned District Judge and send the case back to his Court so that the appeal may now be re-heard and dealt with afresh on the merits. Costs of this appeal will abide the result.

Suhrawardy, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Appeal allowed.
Case remanded.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

ORIGINAL CIVIL SUIT No. 906 OF 1925.
February 18, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Lobo, A. J. C.
FIRM OF HAROON BROTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
versus
COWASJI BEZONJI AGHA—
DEFENDANT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIX, rr. 1, 2—Interim mandatory injunction, whether can be granted—Discretion, when to be exercised.

A Court has power to grant an interim mandatory injunction, but the power should be exercised only in very exceptional circumstances, and for this purpose each case must be considered on its own merits. [p. 841, col. 2.]

Champsey Bhimji & Co. v. Jumna Flour Mills Co., 28 Ind. Cas. 121; 16 Bom. L. R. 566 and Kandaswami Chetti v. Subramania Chetti, 41 Ind. Cas. 384; 41 M. 208; 6 L. W. 140; (1917) M. W. N. 501; 33 M. L. J. 48, followed.

Application for interim mandatory injunction.

Mr. Pahlajsing B. Advani, for the Plaintiffs.

Mr. Srikishondas H. Lulla, for the Defendant.

ORDER.—In this suit relating to easements, for a declaration and injunction, an application was filed along with the plaint for an interim injunction prohibiting the defendant from closing five windows on the ground floor of the plaintiffs' premises with regard to which the plaint mentioned that the defendant was erecting a shed which would result in closing these five windows. The application also prayed that the defendant be prohibited from proceeding to interfere with 17 other windows on the ground floor of the plaintiffs' premises. An interim injunction was issued.

On 12th January 1926 the interim injunction was confirmed without prejudice to the defendant's contentions regarding the

---

(9) 6 Ind. Cas. 554; 11 C. L. J. 461.

(10) 63 Ind. Cas. 161; 33 C. L. J. 317.

(11) 80 Ind. Cas 827; 51 I. A. 293; A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 144; 26 Bom. L R. 651; 47 M. L. J. 23; 51 C. 631; 35 M. L. T. 169; (1924) M. W. N. 723; 29 C. W. N. 34; 20 L. W. 770; L. R. 5 A. (P. C.) 137; 23 A. L. J. 76; 3 Pat. L. R. 193; 6 P. L. T. 750 (P. C.).

22 windows. The Pleader for the defendant undertook not to block the remaining windows on the ground floor.

On 15th January the plaintiffs filed another application under O. XXXIX, rr. 1 and 2, C. P. C., praying for a mandatory injunction requiring the defendant to remove a corrugated iron shed put up by him against a part of the plaintiffs' northern wall which completely blocked up five of the 22 windows referred to in the plaint. The application is supported by an affidavit stating that the shed had been hurriedly completed by the defendant when the suit was filed, and before the injunction could be served on him. The application is also supported by the affidavits of two of the tenants of the plaintiffs who are affected by the closing of these five windows.

On behalf of the defendant an affidavit has been filed by Dhanjishah Cowasji Agha which on the point in question merely states that the shed put up by the defendant was completed "before the institution of the suit."

After hearing the arguments of the Pleaders for both sides, I was invited to inspect the premises in order to form my own opinion as to the necessity or otherwise of an interim mandatory injunction in respect of the five windows and the shed in question. The Pleader for the plaintiffs also stated that his clients were agreeable to advance the reasonable cost of pulling down the shed.

I have visited the premises in question. The tenements affected by the shed are single room tenements receiving ventilation on the northern side from the windows now closed by the shed and on the southern side from an entrance door and window. They receive neither light nor air from any apertures on the eastern or western side.

I think it would not be proper for me at this stage to say anything at all with regard to the effect on the tenements in question of the shed erected by the defendant which blocks up the five windows in these two tenements, as this is one of the materal questions in the suit, and anything said by me on this point would to some extent be a prejudging of a material question in the suit.

That I have the power to grant an interim mandatory injunction has been laid down by the Bombay High Court in a case reported as Champsey Bhimji & Co. v. Jumna Flour Mills Co. (1) and by the Madras High Court in a case reported as Kandaswami Chetti v. Subramania Chetti (2). In fact the Pleader for the defendant concedes that I have such power, but argues that a Court in its discretion would use this power only in very exceptional circumstances. The argument, no doubt, is sound, but each case is to be considered on its own merits. In the present case the structure put up by the defendant which blocks up the five windows with which I am dealing is a miserable, flimsy and dilapidated shed built of old corrugated iron sheets riddled with holes and full of cracks. This structure, I gather from the affidavits before me, has undoubtedly been hastily put up with hastily collected materials immediately before, if not partly after, the filing of this suit.

In these circumstances, without expressing any view with regard to the effect on the two tenements containing the five windows which are closed by the shed, I think I shall be exercising my discretion judicially in holding that the status quo should be maintained, and in ordering that on the plaintiffs' depositing the sum of Rs. 50 in Court, the defendant is to remove the obstruction to the five windows by the entire removal of the shed or in such other manner as may be agreed to by the Pleader for both parties. The sum of Rs. 50 deposited by the plaintiffs will be considered as costs in this suit.

P. B. A. Injunction issued.
Z. K.

---

(1) 28 Ind. Cas. 121; 16 Bom. L. R. 566.

(2) 41 Ind. Cas. 381; 41 M. 206; 6 L. W. 140; (1917) M. W. N. 501; 33 M. L. J. 448.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

In the matter of APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE No. 135 OF 1922.
November 7, 1925.
Present:—Justice Sir Jwala Prasad, KT.
Sheikh ABDUL GHAFFAR AND ANOTHER —APPELLANTS
versus
MRS. F. B. DOWNING AND OTHERS— RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. III, r. 4—Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), Sch. II, Art. 10—Advocate, whether must file appointment in writing—Court fee, whether payable.

The effect of the Notification No. 57, dated the 16th September 1925, published in the Bihar and Orissa Gazette of the 7th October 1925, is to dispense with cl. (3) of r. 4 of O. III of the C. P. C., and an Advocate has now to file appointment in writing as any other legal practitioner in the High Court. [p. 842, col. 2.]

A power of appointment in writing filed by an Advocate, whether he is a Barrister or not, authorising him to make or do any appearance, application or act on behalf of his client, requires the Court-fee payable upon a vakalatnama as prescribed in Art. 10 of Sch. II to the Court Fees Act. [p. 844, col. 2.]

Reference made by the Taxing Judge under s. 5, Court Fees Act.

Mr. S. M. Naimtullah, for the Appellants.

Mr. L. N. Singh (Government Pleader), for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a Reference to me as a Taxing Judge under s. 5 of the Indian Court Fees Act. The question is whether a particular document requires any stamp. The document is a letter of appointment given by two persons Sheikh Abdul Ghaffar and Sheikh Abdul Jabbar, appellants in First Appeal No. 135 of 1922 pending in this Court, to Mr. S. M. Naimatullah Barrister-at-law, who has been enrolled as an Advocate of this Court. The letter of appointment runs as follows:—

"Dear Sir,

"I/we hereby appoint you to act and plead on my/our behalf in the above-noted case and to make or withdraw all deposits that may have to be made or withdrawn on my/our behalf in connection with the said case." It bears the following heading:—"F. A. No. 135 of 1923, Sheikh Abdul Ghaffar (appellant-respondent) v. F. B. Downing (respondent-opposite party)."

This is in accordance with the Notification No. 57, dated the 16th September 1925, published in the Gazette on the 7th October 1925, which runs as follows:—

"Notwithstanding anything contained in O. III, r. 4 (3) of the First Schedule of the C. P. C., 1908, no Advocate shall be entitled to make or do any appearance, application or act for any person unless he presents an appointment in writing, duly signed by such person or his recognised agent or by some other agent duly authorised by power-of-attorney to act in this behalf, or unless he is instructed by an attorney or Pleader duly authorised to act on behalf of such person."

Previous to the aforesaid notification no Advocate who was a Barrister was required to present any document empowering him to act by virtue of cl. (3) of r. 4 of O. III of the C. P. C. The first clause of that rule requires that the appointment of a Pleader to make or do any appearance, application or act for any person shall be in writing and shall be signed by such person or by his recognised agent or by some other person duly authorised by power-of-attorney to act in this behalf. The word "Pleader" is defined in s. 2, cl. (15), C. P. C., as "any person entitled to appear and plead for another in Court, and includes an Advocate, a Vakil and an attorney of a High Court." Therefore in order to exempt an Advocate from the necessity of filing his appointment by his client in writing, cl. (3) of r. 4 of O. III was enacted. The effect of the recent notification referred to above is to dispense with cl (3) of r. 4 and an Advocate has now to file his appointment in writing as any other legal practitioner in the High Court. The appointment is for the purpose of authorizing him to make or do any application or appearance or act on behalf of a suitor in this Court. Rule 1 of O. III enacts "any appearance, application or act in or to any Court, required or authorised by law to be made or done by a party in such Court, may, except, where otherwise expressly provided by any law for the time being in force, be made or done by the party in person, or by his recognised agent or by a Pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf." The subsequent rule defines "recognized agents" as including amongst others persons holding powers-of-attorney, authorizing them to make and do such appearance or applications or acts on behalf of such parties. Therefore the letter of appointment authorizing an Advocate to make or do appearance or application or act on behalf of any party in a litigation in this Court is a power-of-attorney. It is distinguishable from a power-of-attorney given to one who does not belong to the legal profession inasmuch as an Advocate is a Pleader within the meaning of the term as defined in the C. P. C. The letter of appointment being a power-of-attorney is not a document exempted from payment of stamp duty, for all powers-of attorney are chargeable to duty whether they come within the definition of a power-of attorney given in cl. (21) of s. 2 of the Stamp Act or are powers-of-attorney which go by the special name of vakalatnamas mukhtarnamas. The former are chargeable with the duty prescribed in Art. 48, Sch. I of the Indian Stamp Act and the latter under Art. 10, Sch. II of the Court Fees Act

There can, therefore, be no doubt that the letter of appointment in question in the present case filed by Mr. Naimatullah and for the matter of that any similar power of attorney called by whatsoever name filed by an Advocate whether he is Barrister or not must bear a stamp duty. Formerly the Barrister-Advocates were exempted from filing their appointment in writing and, therefore, there could be no question of their payment of any duty; but since they are now required to put in their appointment in writing for the specific purposes of making or doing any appearance, application or act on behalf of any suitor in this Court or in the Courts subordinate to this Court, the letter of appointment must be stamped with duty. Under the old rules also the power-of-attorney in question was chargeable with duty for it authorizes Mr. Naimatullah to withdraw deposits in Court on behalf of his client.

It was ruled long ago by Sir Edward Chamier, C. J., that if a Barrister wanted to perform the functions of a Pleader he must file a vakalatnama. Vide letter No. 5306 dated the 15th August 1917, from the Registrar of this Court to the Registrar of the Circuit Court wherein it is stated that Counsel must file a written authority similar to that required from Vakils to enable him to withdraw money. In the case of Laurentius Ekka v. Dukhi Koeri (1) I have referred to the case of Mr. Misra, a Barrister-Advocate of this Court, practising at Cuttack. He applied for refund of money on behalf of his client and filed a petition under his own signature without filing a vakalatnama. The learned Chief Justice observed that if Mr. Misra wanted to perform the functions of a Pleader he must file a vakalatnama This view has been maintained in this Court in several cases and a practice has been established of not allowing refund of money to an Advocate unless he is especially authorised in that behalf and files duly stamped vakalatnama. The stamp law requires that a refund of money can only be made to a person holding a power-of-attorney duly stamped, from the person on whose behalf withdrawal is sought. Therefore in so far as the letter of appointment in question authorises Mr. Naimatullah to withdraw deposits on behalf of his client it is chargeable with a Court-fee prescribed for a vakalatnama under Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act irrespective of the notification in question. The power-of-attorney authorized Mr. Naimatullah to act in the appeal on behalf of his client and the object of the Taxing Officer in referring the case to me is for the purpose of having a decision upon the general question whether a power of appointment which authorizes an Advocate to act, who is a Barrister or not, should be stamped as a vakalatnama under Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act, for he says that the question is one of importance and is likely to be raised frequently until the matter is finally decided. The general question is whether a power of appointment which authorizes an Advocate of this Court to make or do any appearance, application or act on behalf of his client, should be stamped as a vakalatnama under the Court Fees Act. The recent notification requires an Advocate of this Court, whether he is a Barrister or not, to file a power of appointment in writing for the purpose of acting, appearing or making application on behalf of his client. I have already held that such a power of appointment must bear a stamp as a power-of-attorney either under Art. 48, Sch. I read with cl. (21), s. 2 of the Stamp Act or as a vakalatnama or mukhtarnama under Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Indian Court Fees Act.

It was held in the Full Bench case of Permanand v. Sat Pershad (2) that a document purporting to authorize the person in whose favour it was executed, who was not a certificated mukhtar or Pleader, to appear and do all acts necessary for the execution of a decree of a Court, outside the United Provinces, which had been transferred to a Court in those Provinces for execution, required to be stamped as a power-of-attorney with a one rupee stamp and not as a vakalatnama or mukhtarnama. To the same effect is the Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court in a Reference under s. 46 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879 (3). The distinction drawn is based on the principle that a Pleader should file a power of-attorney called mukhtarnama or vakalatnama as provided for in Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act, whereas any person who is not a Pleader may file a power-of-attorney as provided for in the stamp law.

Now the word "Pleader" as defined in s. 2, cl. (15) of the C. P. C., includes an Advocate, a Vakil and an attorney of a High Court and his appointment to make or do any appearnce, application or act for a suitor, will, for the purpose of r. 4, O. III, cl. (1), be an appointment of a Pleader. Inasmuch as the appointment in writing of a Pleader under r. 4, O. III requires a fee prescribed for the power-of-attorney known by the name of vakalatnama in Art. 10 of Sch. II of the Court Fees Act, a similar power of a appointment in writing filed by an Advocate, whether he is a Barrister or not, will also require a stamp prescribed for a vakalatnama. It is contended that the word "vakalatnama" applies to a power-of-attorney given to a Vakil and consequently a power-of-attorney given to an Advocate would not come under the word "vakalatnama" mentioned in Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act.

---

(1) 92 Ind. Cas. 179; 4 Pat. 766; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 73.

(2) 9 Ind. Cas. 617; 33 A. 487; 8 A. L. J. 378.

(3) 9 M. 358; 3 Ind. Dec (N. S.) 645.

Reference has been made to the Legal Practitioners' Act which recognizes three classes of practitionres called Vakils, Pleaders and Advocates and it is said that the word "vakalatnama" used in the aforesaid Art. 10 of the Court-Fees Act refers only to the power-of-attorney filed by a Vakil and not to a power-of-attorney filed by an Advocate. The argument ignores the fact that the Pleaders of the Subordinate Courts who are not Vakils in the special sense of the term as not being entitled to practise in the High Court are also required to file vakalatnama for which a fee is payable as prescribed in Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act. The word "Vakil" used in Art. 10 does not, to my mind, refer to the special class of practitioners known as "Vakils." It is a vernacular word and connotes in English a document which authorizes one person to represent another. The word "Vakil" itself means an agent or representative authorized to conduct any business on behalf of another person and in the Muhammadan Law, persons who conduct marriages on behalf of the principles are called Vakils. Persons who conduct a case in Court for another came subsequently to be called Vakils and such agents were recognized in the law Courts prior to the establishment of the British Courts in India and any Pleader practising in the lower Courts even now is popularly called a Vakil though he is not a Vakil in the special sense of the term which applies only to one entitled to practise in the High Court. The word "Pleader" as used in the C. P. C. includes a "Vakil" and an "Advocate" and in the Government of India Act s. 101 (d), a Vakil is described as a Pleader, of a High Court. Article 10 of the Court Fees Act uses the word "vakalatnama" as meaning a power-of-attorney executed for the conduct of any case in a Court and its various provisions indicate that the word "vakalatnama" relates to a power filed by a legal practitioner to conduct a case on behalf of a suitor irrespective of the class to which that legal practitioner belongs. The word "vakalatnama" there refers to a power-of-attorney filed by a Pleader as used in the C. P. C., s. 2, cl. (15) and O. III, r. 4. Therefore a power-of-attorney filed by an Advocate would also come under the category of vakalatnama mentioned in Art. 10 of the Court Fees Act, when it authorizes an Advocate for the purpose of conducting a case to make or do any appearance, application or act on behalf of his client.

I, therefore, hold that the power of appointment in writing filed by an Advocate, whether he is a Barrister or not, authorizing him to make or do any appearance, application or act on behalf of his client, would require a Court-fee payable upon a vakalatnama as prescribed in Art. 10, Sch. II, of the Act.

Z. K. Order accordingly.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREE
No. 1703 OF 1924.
August 6, 1925.
Present :—Justice Sir Ewart Greaves, KT., and Mr. Justice Mukerji.
SIVADAS DUTTA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
BIRENDRA KRISTA DUTTA—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

*Landlord and tenant—Suit for rent by co-sharer landlord—Abatement, plea of, whether can be raised—Measurement, whether can be claimed—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Consent decree—Unnecessary finding—Res judicata—Rent suit, findings in, where binding.*

In a rent suit the tenants are not precluded from raising the question of abatement of rent by reason of the fact that the suit is one between one of several co-sharer landlords and the tenants, when the plaintiff co-sharer under an arrangement between himself and his other co-sharers and the tenants has been collecting his share of the rent separately. [p. 845, col. 2]

When deduction or abatement of rent is claimed by a tenant in a suit for rent he may insist on a measurement and an order for measurement must be made if a case justifying or necessitating the order is made out. [p. 846, col. 1.]

Res judicata by its very words means a matter upon which the Court has exercised its judicial mind, and a judgment passed on consent cannot be considered as a judicium. A consent decree, therefore, does not come within the rule of res judicata as contained in s. 11 of the C. P. C. It, however, raises an estoppel as much as a decree passed in invitum and the decree must be held binding as against the parties thereto unless there was want of jurisdiction or there were present circumstances which would go to vitiate the agreement on which the consent was founded. [p. 847, col. 2; p. 848, col. 1.]

Where a Court in a rent suit definitely determines the area of the land in the possession of the tenant and the annual rent payable for the same, it might be said that the determination is general and not limited to the particular years for which rent is claimed, and in a subsequent suit the tenant can only dispute the findings by proving that the area or the rent has since altered. [p. 848, col. 2.]

Where a decree is not based on a finding but is granted in spite of it and the party against whom the finding is arrived at is not able to challenge it on appeal, the finding cannot be regarded as necessary for the decision of the suit and does not operate as res judicata. [p. 849, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, First Court, 24-Pergannas, dated the 15th of April 1924, affirming that of the Munsif, First Court at Baruipore, dated the 28th of November 1921.

Babus Jogesh Chandra Ray, Sitaram Banerjee, Pankaja Kumar Dutt and Probodh Kumar Das, for the Appellant.

Sir Provash Chandra Mitter and Babu Shamadas Bhattacharjee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Mukerji, J.—The appeal arises out of a suit for rent. The plaintiff claims in his one-anna share, rent for certain lands at the rate of Rs. 89-10-10½ gandas per year from 1324 to 1327, alleging that the defendants hold 2610 bighas odd at a rental of Rs. 1,434-8-8 gandas. His case is that the area and the rental were fixed in a suit inter partes, i. e, Rent Suit No. 49 of 1887 of the First Court of the Subordinate Judge at Alipore. The defendants contend that they hold about 1002 bighas of land under two pottas dated 4th Jaistha 1242 and 5th Falgoon 1247, that since the grant of the said pottas the plaintiff and his co-sharers have got remission of 25 per cent. of the rent payable by them to the Government under whom they hold, and that by the terms of the aforesaid pottas the defendants are legally entitled to get a deduction at the same rate. They further say that some of the lands have been washed away or rendered unculturable and under the terms of the pottas they are entitled to a deduction on that ground as well. In order to have the rental assessed they applied for a measurement of the lands. As regards Rent Suit No. 49 of 1887 their case is that the result thereof is of no consequence so far as the plaintiff is concerned.

The Courts below have decreed the plaintiff's suit. The Court of first instance held that the defendants are bound to pay rent to the plaintiff at the rate claimed and that in a previous rent suit between the parties, viz., Suit No. 447 of 1917 it had been held that that was the rate at which they should pay. It refused the application for measurement and left the question as to the area of the rent-land open and undecided. It also observed in its judgment that the pottas had not been proved in the case and so no interpretation of the pottas was possible, and that the defendants had failed to prove what quantity of land, if any, had been washed away. The Court of Appeal below proceeded upon the view that no plea of abatement could be given effect to in a suit in which all the co sharer-landlords are not parties. It also held that the decree in Suit No. 49 of 1887 was binding between the parties as to the rental, as also the decree in the subsequent suit for rent, namely, Suit No. 447 of 1917. The defendants have thereupon preferred this appeal.

In our judgment of the 27th February 1925 we decided that the learned Subordinate Judge was wrong in holding that the defendants were precluded from raising the question of abatement of rent by reason of the constitution of the suit, namely, that it was a suit between one of several co-sharer-landlords and the tenants, when the said co-sharer under an arrangement between himself and his other co-sharers and the tenants has been collecting his share of the rent separately. To this decision we still adhere.

Then arises the question whether the defendants are entitled to have the lands measured in order that their plea of abatement may be given effect to. As regards this part of the case I confess I was under a misconception and I did not appreciate the exact position until Sir Pravas explained the facts to us.

The question whether the defendants are entitled to have the lands measured could not and in point of fact did not arise in any of the earlier suits, and standing by itself that question cannot be regarded as concluded upon any principle of res judicata or any such similar principle. When deduction or abatement is claimed by the tenant in a suit for rent he may insist on a measurement, and an order for measurement must be made if a case justifying or necessitating the order is made out. In the present case the defendants' application for an order for measurement has been refused; and in order to determine whether it has been rightly refused or not we must examine the grounds on which the application was based, or rather the grounds on which abatement was claimed.

The defendants' plea of abatement of rent rests on the terms of the pottas of 1242 and 1247 referred to above. To put the matter more precisely we have to refer to some documents which have been freely referred to in the arguments before us, though some of them, e. g., the pottas of 1242 and 1247, are not on the record. The defendants, as I have said, had to make out a case for measurement, and if we are to proceed merely on the materials on the record we must be constrained to hold that the necessary evidence has not been adduced by them. It would not, however, be right to dispose of the appeal on that ground as the relevant documents, on which the decision of the question depends, have been placed before us and have been referred to by both the parties, and the facts in so far as they are necessary for the determination of the question are either undisputed or indisputable.

It appears that there is no controversy as to the rent payable under the lease of 1242. There is, however, a stipulation in the lease of 1247 which runs thus: "As the Government will in my case exempt embankments, dams, chowkas, pasturage and irreclaimable lands from assessment, so (we) shall allow exemption in your case." The landlords subsequently obtained a concession from the Government exempting them from assessment to the extent of one-fourth of the entire grant for ever. The defendants, therefore, claim that under the stipulation contained in the aforesaid terms of the lease they are entitled to a deduction of one-fourth of the rental, and for that purpose they want the lands to be measured. In para. 10 of the written statement the defendants further alleged that large quantities of land have been washed away or rendered unfit for cultivation owing to influx of saltwater and that they are entitled to have the lands measured and claim abatement of rent on that ground under the terms of the pottas. Evidently, therefore, there were two grounds on which the measurement was asked for, that is to say firstly to support the claim on the ground of deduction of 25 per cent, and secondly to support the claim on the ground of abatement for diminution of area.

As regards the second of the aforesaid two grounds, it may be disposed of in a few words. The pottas are not in and it is not possible to say whether the right which the defendants claim is reserved to them. Moreover the learned Munsif observes in his judgment that, "the defendant (sic) has not examined any witness and has failed to prove what quantity of his land has been washed away." It is clear, therefore, that this ground is not supported in any way, and no case has been made out for a measurement on this ground.

The other ground requires serious consideration. The plaintiff's case is that by reason of the decree in Suit No. 49 of 1887 the defendant is precluded from claiming the deduction of one-fourth of the rental as stipulated for in the pottas of 1247. The facts relating to that suit are these: In that suit five persons, viz., Bhupendra, Jnanendra Narendra, Jatindra and Sukhamoyee who were owners of 3-annas15-gandas. share sued the appellant's predecessor Mr. A. B. Mitter for rent for the years 1290 to 1292 B. S. for 13 annas share of the rent making all the other co-sharers pro forma defendants. These co-sharers were ranged in two groups; the first group consisting of pro forma-defendants Nos. 1 to 13, who were the owners of the remainder of the 13-annas. share, and the second consisting of the pro forma defendants, one Uma Sundari who was the owner of the remaining 3-annas. share which was not included in the suit. Soon after the institution of the suit some of the pro forma defendants of the first group including one Haridas Dutt, the pro forma defendant No. 2 in the suit, who was the predecessor of the plaintiff in this suit got themselves transferred to the category of the plaintiffs. The other pro forma defendants of this group and also pro forma defendant Uma Sundari, the owner of the remaining 3-annas share remained pro forma defendants as before. In that suit rent was claimed on the allegation that the suit-lands were 1265 bighas 10 cottas 6 chittaks and at the rate mentioned in the pottas that is to say

Rs. 715 and odd. Mr. Mitter, the appellants' predecessor pleaded in that suit that he was entitled to the deduction on the basis of the pottas. One of the issues framed in the suit was : "What is the amount of jama payable by the defendant? Is not the defendant entitled to get a deduction of one-fourth of the rental according to the terms of the potta dated the 5th Falgoon 1247 ? This issue was decided against the defendant Mr. Mitter by the Court of first instance. He appealed to the District Judge who allowed him the deduction claimed. The five original plaintiffs then preferred an appeal to this Court with the principal defendant Mr. Mitter, the added plaintiffs amongst whom was Haridas Dutt, and the other co-sharer defendants as respondents in that appeal. Of the respondents the only one who appeared in the appeal was Mr. Mitter. That appeal was disposed of by this Court (Maclean, C. J. and Banerjee, J) on the 24th April 1890 by the following order :—" By consent let this case be remitted to the Court of first instance which is to depute an Amin to go to the place and measure the culturable lands included within the defendants' holding and the amount of rent which will be payable by them will be assessed upon that measurement. The costs will be in the discretion of the Court of first instance". On this order the case went before the Trial Court and a measurement being made a report was submitted by the Amin who made the measurement. The Subordinate Judge then took up the matter and in his judgment there appears the following observation: " The defendant cited the Civil Court Amin as a witness on his own behalf, but declined to examine him, and nothing has been shown to induce me to think that the Amin's measurement is inaccurate. I must under the circumstances find the quantity of culturable land within the defendants' holding to be 2610 bighas 9½ cottas". The learned Judge, however, held that the quantity of land being in excess of the area stated in the plaint, he should make a decree in favour of the plaintiffs for the amount claimed. A decree was very carefully prepared and the relevant portions of that decree run as follows :—

" The claim of the plaintiffs and the pro forma defendants in respect of their 13-annas share be decreed. Out of Rs. 2733-6 2¼ gandas claimed Rs. 789-14-14¾ gandas due in the share of the plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 5 be decreed in their favour with interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from the 11th April 1887, the date of suit to the date of realization and that the principal defendant No. 1 the Official Trustee do pay the said amount to the plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 5 from out of the estate of the late Srinath Dutt". Then follow certain directions as to costs in favour of the plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 5. Thereafter, " It is further ordered and decreed that the rent of the land in arrears be assessed as follows :—For 1086 bighas 4 cottas 8 chittaks of culturable land in plot No. 1 of the potta dated 4th Jaistha 1242, Rs. 577-3-0. For 456 bighas 18 cottas of culturable land in plot No. 2 and 1067 bighas 5 cottas of culturable land in plot No. 3 of the potta dated 5th Falgun 1247, Rs. 577-3annas and Rs. 857-5-8¼ gandas respectively. As regards the balance of the amount in claim, viz., Rs. 1,943-7-8 gandas the pro forma defendants do get the same together with interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from the 11th April 1887 the date of the institution of the suit, from the defendant No. 1 out of the said estate, that is to say the co-plaintiff Haridas Dutt will get in his own 1-anna share Rs. 210-10-6-9. 12." Then follow the amounts which the other co-plaintiffs would recieve.

This decree does not purport to have been passed in the presence of the Pleaders of the co-plaintiffs. Nevertheless it was a decree inter partes as between the predecessors of the parties to the present suit. Of this decree two views may possibly be taken. As between the original plaintiffs and Mr. Mitter it was a decree passed on the basis of a consent order, and as between the co-plaintiff Haridas Dutt and Mr. Mitter it was passed, not on the basis of a consent order, but in the ordinary way in a contested proceeding. The effect of this decree judged from either point of view, in my opinion, is practically the same.

Res judicata by its very words means a matter upon which the Court has exercised, its judicial mind, and a judgment passed on consent cannot be considered as a judicium. A consent decree, therefore, does not come within the rule of res judicata as contained in s. 11 of the C. P. C. It, however, raises an estoppel as much as a decree passed in invitumm Nicholas v. Asphar (1), Laksmishankar Devshankar v. [Vishnuram (2), Bai- shankar v. Morarji (3) and Kumara Venkata Perumal v. Thatha Ramaswamy Chetty (4).] In so far as the decree was based on the consent order, and purported to proceed on the consent as between the original plaintiffs and Mr. Mitter it must be held binding as against them unless there was want of jurisdiction, such as was the case in Rajlakshmi Dassi v. Katyayani Dassi (5), and some of the authorities cited and discussed therein or unless there were present some circumstances which would go to vitiate the agreement on which the consent was founded, as was the case in Huddersfield Banking Co., v. Lister (6) or Great North West Central Railway v. Charlebois (7). The decree, therefore, although it goes beyond the scope of the suit, which must be taken to have been enlarged by consent, is binding as between the consenting parties and their successors-in-interest.

---

(1) 24 C. 216 at p. 237; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 810.

(2) 24 B. 77; 1 Bom. L. R. 534; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 588.

As between Haridas Dutt and Mr. Mitter it was not a decree based on consent, but a decree passed in a contested proceeding, wherein Haridas Dutt cast in his lot with the original plaintiffs and took no active part in the litigation and secured ultimately a decree as against Mr. Mitter giving him certain rights. Consent was given by Mr. Mitter to have the decree which the learned District Judge had made in his favour allowing him deduction of the 25 per rent. on the basis of the pottas set aside, the scope of the suit was enlarged and a decree was passed in the suit, the suit being finally heard and determined in his presence. He waived the objection which he had taken to the claim on the ground of the deduction to which he was entitled, and allowed a decree to be passed declaring the quantity of the land, and the rental to be paid for it. This objection not only might and ought to have been made a ground of defence in the former suit, but was actually taken therein. An issue was directly raised on it, and it was decided against Mr. Mitter in the Trial Court and in his favour in the Appellate Court. He allowed the decision of the latter Court to be set aside, waived the objection and allowed a decree to be passed fixing the quantity of land and assessing the rental thereon and he took no appeal from this decree. In my judgment the same matter can no longer be pleaded in defence to the plaintiff's claim and the defendant's plea as to deduction based on the aforesaid term of the pottas must be ruled out as being barred by the principle of res judicata.

But then it is said that the cause of action in the present suit is different from what it was in the suit of 1887 and, therefore, the defendants are entitled to raise the question again. I have carefully considered this matter, but, in my opinion, in the face of the declaration in the decree to which I have referred it is impossible to take the view that the defendant Mr. Mitter merely failed to prove in the said suit his right to the deduction he claimed—a position which would have enabled him or his successors to raise the defence in a subsequent suit; but that the only view possible to take of the matter is that in the said previous suit the Court definitely determined the area of the land in the defendant's possession and the annual rent payable for the same. The distinction has been very clearly pointed out in the decision of this Court in the case of Nil Madhab Sarkar v. Brojo Nath Singha (8) where this is what is stated, "But the cause of action is in this case different, each year's rent being in itself a separate and entire cause of action, and the mere failure of the defendant to prove what he tried to prove in the previous suit would not, we think, prevent him from proving it in this. The case might have been different if the Court had in the previous suit definitely determined the area of the land in the defendant's possession and the annual rent payable for the same. It might then be said that the determination was general, and not limited to the particular years for which rent was claimed, and that the defendant could only succeed in the present suit by proving that the area and the rent has since altered". In my opinion the present case comes within the class of cases last mentioned in these observations.

It then becomes necessary to decide whether the decision of Suit No. 447 of 1917 of the First Court of the Munsif at Baruipur operates as res judicata or not. That suit was between the parties to the present suit and was in respect of rent for the same lands for the years 1321 to 1323. The

---

(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 535; 36 B. 283; 13 Bom. L. R. 950.

(4) 9 Ind. Cas. 875; 35 M. 75; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 290; 9 M. L. T. 487; 21 M. L. J. 709.

(5) 12 Ind. Cas. 464; 38 C. 639.

(6) (1895) 2 Ch. 273; 64 L. J. Ch. 523; 12 R. 331; 72 L. T. 70[illegible] 43 W. R. 567.

(7) (1899) A. C. 114; 68 L. J. P. C. 25; 79 L. T. 35.

(8) 21 C. 236 at p. 239; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 789.

Munsif held as to the plea for deduction of 25 per cent. that the decree in Suit No. 49 of 1887 operated as res judicata. The Subordinate Judge on appeal was of a different opinion but he decreed the plaintiff's suit in full, so that the plaintiff could not prefer any appeal against this adverse finding of the Subordinate Judge on the questions of res judicata. Under circumstances such as these it has been repeatedly held that the finding cannot operate as res judicata, the decree of the learned Subordinate Judge not being based on the finding but inspite of it and such a finding not being necessary for his decision: Rango Balaji v. Mudiyeppa (9), Nando Lall Bhuttacharjee v. Bidhoo Mookhy Debee (10) and Thakur Magundeo v. Thakur Mahadeo Singh (11).

Lastly in view of the arguments advanced before us it is necessary to refer to the result of a few other litigations in some of which, it is said, a view contrary to which I have taken has been adopted by this Court of the effect of the decree in Suit No. 49 of 1887.

The first one is the litigation which culminated in R. A. Nos. 373 and 450 of 1897. These appeals arose out of Suit No. 13 of 1895 in which the five original plaintiffs sued the predecessors of the present defendants for their 3 annas-15-gandas share of the rent. The suit finally came up to this Court on appeal. This Court, Maclean, C. J. and Banerjee, J., overruled the defendants' contention that the decree had gone beyond the limits of the suit held that the decree was binding between the parties to the consent, and that the true view to be taken was that by consent of the original plaintiff and the defendant and the other parties not objecting the scope of the suit had been enlarged. In the judgment in these appeals there is, if anything a declaration very much against the appellant's contention, a declaration to the effect that the decree of the previous suit is binding on the appellant as regards future rents. This declaration seems to be too general, but what the precise meaning of it is need not be enquired into in the present appeal.

The next one is S. A. No. 75 of 1903. It arose out of a suit for rent against the appellant No. 1 and another instituted by the heirs of Umasundari the owner of the 3-annas share. Umasundari's interest was outside the scope of Suit No. 49 of 1887. This Court, Mitra, J., held that she was not competent to take advantage of the decree.

The next one is S. A. No. 1867 of 1911. In this suit the plaintiffs who claimed not merely the shares of the original plaintiffs but also of some of the co-sharers, who were not made co-plaintiffs sued the appellants for rent. This Court (Chatterjea and Beachcroft, JJ.) held that so far as the share of the original plaintiffs was concerned the decree was binding but in respect of the shares which the plaintiff obtained from the pro forma defendants, the co-sharers of the remainder of the 13 annas share, who had not transferred themselves to the category of the plaintiffs the decree was not binding.

None of these decisions appear to me to be in conflict with the view I take.

The result, therefore, is that, in my judgment, no ground has been made out which would support a prayer for measurement such as was put forward on behalf of the defendant in this suit and the suit has been rightly decided by the Courts below. The appeal fails and should accordingly be dismissed with costs.

As regards the proceedings in review I desire to observe that the incorrect information supplied by the parties to their learned Vakils was responsible for the error in our judgment of the 27th February 1925, and that, therefore, the costs of these proceedings should be borne by each party for himself or themselves.

Greaves, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(12) 88 Ind. Cas. 654; 41 C. L. J. 330; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 783.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 280 OF 1922.
December 1, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Walsh and Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal.
Thakur SHEORAM SINGH AND OTHERS
—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
BABU SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 132, 147—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 58—Mortgage by conditional sale—Suit to recover money due—Limitation, commencement of—Option given to

---

(9) 23 B. 296; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 197.
(10) 13 C. 17; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 508.
(11) 18 C. 647; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 432.

mortgagee—Waiver—Interpretation of Statutes.

Article 147 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act is applicable only to the class of mortgage generally known and defined by the Transfer of Property Act as an English mortgage. A suit to recover money due on a mortgage by conditional sale is governed by Art. 132 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and limitation begins to run from the time when default is made in payment of an instalment of interest, where the mortgagee is given the right on such default to sue for the whole amount. [p. 850, col. 2; p 851, col. 1.]

There is a presumption that the Legislature when it repeats in a latter Act an expression which has obtained a settled meaning by judicial construction, intends the words to mean what they meant before. [p. 850, col. 2.]

Per Kanhaiya Lal, J.—The essential characteristic of a mortgage by conditional sale is that on the breach of the condition of re-payment the contract executes itself and the transaction is closed and becomes one of absolute sale to be enforced in a particular manner. [p. 853, col. 1.]

A mortgage-deed provided that if interest for any six months remained unpaid, the mortgagee shall have power either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage-money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period or to wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest till the expiry of the term fixed. In a suit to recover the amount of the mortgage-money:

Held, that despite the authority given to the mortgagee by the mortgage-deed, the operation of the clause which gave an option to the mortgagee for his own benefit could not be waived so as to prevent or postpone the starting of limitation against him and that limitation began to run from the date when interest for a period of six months became due and remained unpaid. [p. 852, col. 2.]

First appeal from a decree of the Second Subordinate Judge, Cawnpore, dated the 10th of April 1922.

Dr. K. N. Katju, for the Appellants.

Mr. Iqbal Ahmad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Walsh, J.—The main question, which has been argued in a very interesting discussion in this appeal, is the question which Article of the Limitation Act applies to this mortgage. The learned Judge in the Court below has applied Art. 132. If this is a mortgage by conditional sale, that would be right. We are of opinion that it is a mortgage by conditional sale. In the first place the parties so described it. That would not be conclusive, but the vernacular word employed is always used as meaning mortgage by conditional sale, and the general form of the document corresponds to such mortgages as drawn in these Provinces. In the second place there is a provision that if default is made in payment of interest, at the time of such default the mortgage-deed shall be treated as a sale deed. In other words it is ostensibly a sale, or perhaps it would be more accurate to describe it as a bargain and sale to be defeated by a condition subsequent, namely, the payment of interest. But if default is made in the payment of interest, then it becomes a real sale, and the definition in s. 58 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that where a mortgagor ostensibly sells on condition that on default of payment of the mortgage money on a certain date the sale shall become absolute, or that on payment being made the sale shall become void, such transaction is called a mortgage by conditional sale. Thirdly, the plaintiffs by their plaint did not ask for foreclosure or sale, or for a sale at all, but sued for the money or for foreclosure, clearly treating their rights as governed by the law applicable to a mortgage by conditional sale in respect of which a decree for sale is prohibited by s. 67. We are asked, on the other hand, to hold that Art. 147 applies on the ground that this was not really a mortgage by conditional sale, and (although not an English mortgage), a mortgage in respect of which the mortgagee might sue for foreclosure or sale, and we were asked to apply Art. 147 to such a document in spite of the judgment of the Privy Council in the case of Vasudeva Mudaliar v. Srinivasa Pillai (1) We are unable to do so. We regard the judgment of the Privy Council in that matter as peremptory and binding upon us. Whether or not their Lordships' observations were necessary for the disposal of the case, they were considered observations delivered for the express purpose of setting at rest a question which was much controverted at the time in India, and they held that Art. 147 was applicable only to the class of mortgage generally known and defined by the Transfer of Property Act as an English mortgage. They gave what they described as preponderating reasons for adopting this view. The second was that there was a presumption that the Legislature, when it repeated in a later Act an expression which had obtained a settled meaning by judicial construction, intended the words to mean what they meant before. That reason applies with even greater force to their Lordships' view, at the present day than it did then. The judgment was delivered in 1907. The provisions of the Transfer of Property Act were re-enacted so far as they apply to remedies in respect of mortgages in the First Schedule to the C. P. C. of 1908, and Art. 147 of the Limitation Act has been re enacted in the Limitation Act of 1908 without change, and, therefore, bearing the narrower interpretation given to it by the judgment of the Privy Council to which we have referred. We hold, therefore, that Art. 132 applies to this case. It follows that the claim is barred unless the plaintiffs establish payment of interest sufficient to take the case out of the mischief of the Statute. We are bound in this Court where the law has been finally settled until it is reversed elsewhere, to hold the view that in a mortgage in this form the Statute begins to run from the time when default is made in payment of an instalment of interest, where the mortgagee is given the right on such default to sue for the whole amount. The question of the payment of interest is a question of fact which the learned Judge has disposed of in an emphatic judgment. It is not necessary to enter into the details of this question. It is not quite clear whether or not the learned Judge meant to hold that all the entries of payments in the plaintiffs' books were false. In some respects, however, the criticisms which might be made on the plaintiffs' case are stronger than the learned Judge recognised. There is absolutely no excuse for the failure of the plaintiffs to enter their books in the list required by law under O. VII, r. 14. The failure to do so was, in any view, a piece of gross neglect by Brij Narain their Vakil. He produced them almost at the last moment, namely, in March. The defendants entered a strong objection. The learned Judge gave leave for their production, but was obviously unfavourably impressed by the failure of the plaintiffs to give notice at the proper time of the existence of these documents. The deliberate withholding of these books was a flagrant breach of the endorsement which the plaintiffs themselves and their Vakil had put on the plaint, that whatever papers were in the possession of the plaintiffs would be filed. These papers were in the possession of their Vakil, either as an ex-arbitrator or as their Vakil or as both. From the moment that he chose to act as their Vakil he could not deny that he held them as the plaintiffs' representative, and it is not to be wondered at, inasmuch as they were withheld for some weeks, and the witnesses who were called to support them were also called late in the hearing, that the Judge regarded them with suspicion. Even if the books contain genuine entries of actual payments made by the family of the defendants, the entries entirely fail to identify such payments with a liability for interest in respect of this bond. There is no reference to the principal due under the bond. There were admittedly other transactions with the debtor. Some of the entries undoubtedly related to other transactions, and none of them can be clearly identified as relating to this transaction, though some of them, if genuine, may have done so. The total entries shown by the plaintiffs in their books amount to over Rs. 1,500, and they alleged in the plaint that only Rs. 600 had been paid. Their oral evidence entirely failed to explain anything. In our view the plaintiffs failed to discharge the onus which lay upon them, and nothing has been shown which would justify us in differing from the learned Judge upon these findings of fact. The result is that the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

---

(1) 30 M 426; 9 Bom. L. R. 1104; 4 A. L. J. 625; 11 C. W N. 1005; 6 C. L. J. 379; 2 M. L. T. 333; 17 M. L. J. 444 3 I. A. 186 (P. C.).

Kanhaiya Lal, J.—I wish to add a few observations as to the questions which have been argued before us in the course of the hearing. The plaintiffs sought to recover money due on a mortgage effected by Darshan Singh the predecessor of the defendants, in favour of Prag Singh, the predecessor of the plaintiffs, on the 7th of August 1903. The mortgage-deed provided for the payment of the mortgage-money with interest thereon at eleven-annas per cent. per mensem within seven years, and further contained a stipulation that the interest accruing due for the half year shall, if not paid up, be added to the principal amount, and that if interest for any six months remained unpaid, the mortgagee shall have power either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period or to wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest till the expiry of the term fixed. It is further stated that both the conditions were left entirely to the choice or option of the mortgagee, that the mortgagee had liberty to act in accordance with either of those conditions, that is to say either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period, or to waive the default and wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest agreed till the expiry of the term fixed. In fact the mortgagor covenanted that in no circumstances he shall have power to raise any objection or make any refusal, and he further agreed that if at the stipulated time the money remained unpaid, the mortgage-deed shall be treated as a sale-deed, and the mortgage-money as the sale-consideration.

The allegation of the plaintiffs was that they had received Rs. 600 on account of interest at different times from one of the defendants, and they sued for the foreclosure of the mortgage in case the mortgage-money was not paid within such time as might be fixed by the Court for the purpose.

The defendants pleaded inter alia that they had made no payments towards the mortgage-money, and that the claim was barred by limitation. There were other pleas raised in defence with which this appeal is not concerned.

The Court below dismissed the suit holding that the plaintiffs had failed to establish that the defendants had made any payments towards interest as such within the meaning of s. 20 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). On the other points raised in the suit it gave its findings in favour of the plaintiffs. The sole question for determination in this appeal, therefore, is whether the claim of the plaintiffs is within time, either by reason of the covenants entered in the mortgage-deed or of the payments alleged to have been made by the defendants. The Court below applied Art. 132 of the Indian Limitation Act which provides a limitation of 12 years for a suit to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property, and that period is to be computed from the time when the money becomes due. Under one covenant that money was to have fallen due on the expiry of seven years unless re-paid at any time within that period. By another covenant it could have been claimed on the non-payment of interest for any six months unless the default was waived by the mortgagee, who was given the right or an option by the contract of mortgage to disregard it and wait till the expiry of the longer term. The argument addressed to us here is that the contract gave the mortgagee authority, option or liberty to act in either one of the two ways mentioned in the deed on the happening of a certain event, and it was open to him, to waive the one and adhere to the other. In other words it is suggested that the effect of the waiver by the mortgagee authorized by the contract would be not to stop the running of limitation, but to postpone the cause of action or starting of it, till the other default provided for by the deed had taken place. Whatever might be said in favour of the view contended before us, the Full Bench decision in the case of Shib Dayal v. Meharban (2) is conclusive on the matter, and we are constrained to hold that despite the authority given by the contract, the operation of the clause which gave an option to the mortgagee for his own benefit could not be waived so as to prevent or postpone the starting of limitation against him.

It is argued, however, that the mortgage-deed in question is in terms not a mortgage by conditional sale, and that under O. XXXIV, r. 4, cl. (2) the plaintiffs could be given either a decree for foreclosure or for sale within the meaning of Art. 147 of the Indian Limitation Act, which was introduced for the first time by Act XV of 1877. As observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Vasudeva Mudaliar v. Srinivasa Pillai (1), suits of the present class were governed before Act XV of 1877 was passed by Art. 132 of Act IX of 1871, which referred to suits for money charged upon immoveable property. The language of Art. 132 has since then been slightly altered. The Limitation Act of 1871 provided a limitation of 60 years for a suit to recover possession of the immoveable property mortgaged from the mortgagee from the date when the right to recover possession accrued. There was no provision in that Act for suits "to redeem" a mortgage other than a mortgage accompanied by possession. By Act XV of 1877 suits against the mortgagee to redeem a mortgage were also provided for, and it is suggested that in order to make the remedies of the mortgagor and the mortgagee co-extensive, a departure was deliberately made, when Art. 147 was introduced for the first time. Whether this was so or not, the decision of their Lordships in the case of Vasudeva Mudaliar v. Srinivasa Pillai (1) and the earlier decision of Wilson and Porter, JJ., in the case of Girwar Singh v. Thakur Narain Singh (3) which they followed does not leave it any longer open to us to determine how far Art. 147 of the Limitation Act of 1877 was intended to apply to suits for foreclosure like the present.

---

(2) 69 Ind. Cas. 981; 20 A. L. J. 819; A. I. R. 1923 All. 1; 45 A. 27 (F. B.).

(3) 14 C. 730; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 484 (F. B.).

The learned Counsel for the plaintiffs-appellants has argued that the mortgage in question is an anomalous mortgage within the meaning of s. 78 and not a mortgage by conditional sale, and reading s. 67 of the Transfer of Property Act with O. XXXIV, r. 4, cl. (2) of the C. P. C., a decree for either foreclosure or sale can be passed in the present case. The mortgage-deed does not purport to provide for the immediate sale of the property conditionally or otherwise. It only provides for the enforcement of the deed by foreclosure at the expiry of the stipulated period, but as observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Thumbusawmy Moodelly v. Hossain Rowthen (4) the essential characteristic of a mortgage by conditional sale is that on the breach of the condition of re-payment the contract executes itself and the transaction is closed and becomes one of absolute sale to be enforced in a particular manner. Section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act defines a mortgage by conditional sale as a transaction by which the mortgagor ostensibly sells the mortgaged property on condition that on default of payment of the mortgage-money on a certain date the sale shall become absolute. The deed in the present case is not exactly worded in that form; but in substance it adopts that form, and as pointed out in the case of Ali Ahmad v. Rahmatullah (5) such defaults in which deeds are generally executed are intended to operate as deeds of mortgage by conditional sale. Article 147 of the Limitation Act IX of 1908, cannot, therefore, be applied to the case. The only other question is that of the alleged payments said to have been made towards interest, but the account books produced only go to show that there was a general account between the mortgagor and the mortgagee in connection with this deed and certain other advances independently made by the mortgagee, about which an arrangement appears to have been made by the mortgagor to pay the moneys due by instalments of Rs. 400 per year. The account books contain certain entries showing payments made towards these instalments, but they do not show that these payments were made towards interest as such due on the deed in suit, and the oral evidence produced on the point to supplement what is not entered in the books cannot be believed. The Court below was, therefore, justified in holding that these payments if made, did not save limitation.

I agree in the order proposed.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

Second Civil Appeal No. 209 of 1923.
September 4, 1925.
Present :—Mr. Justice Reilly.
KODURI VENKATARAMAYYA—
Defendant—Appellant
versus
THUMULURI PUNNAYYA—Plaintiff—
Respondent.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 115—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 41—Minor, execution of sale-deed by, representing to be adult—Suit to set aside alienation—Minor whether estopped—Refund of purchase-money on setting aside sale.

Where a minor represented himself to be a major and joined in the execution of a sale-deed and the alienee believed in that representation and acted on it in taking the sale, in a suit by him on attaining majority for a declaration that the sale-deed was void against him on the ground that he was a minor on the date of sale:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was not estopped from proving that he was a minor at the date of sale;

(2) that under s. 41, Specific Relief Act, the decree in favour of the plaintiff could be made conditional on the plaintiff re-paying the consideration paid by the alienee in respect of the sale.

Second appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, at Masulipatam, in A. S. No. 163 of 1921, preferred against that of the Court of the Additional District Munsif, Gudivada, in O. S. No. 112 of 1920.

Mr. B. Satyanarayana, for the Appellant.

Mr. B Somayya, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Plaintiff and his elder brother sold certain property to defendant under Ex. I in 1915. He has sued for a declaration that Ex. I is void so far as i relates to his one-half share of the property on the ground that he was a minor when he joined his brother in executing it and for the partition and recovery of his one-half share. The District Munsif dismissed the suit; but on appeal the Subordinate Judge has made the declaration prayed for and has decreed that the property be divided and plaintiff's half share be delivered to him; but he has made all this conditional on plaintiff depositing in Court within 3 months Rs. 1,250, that is, half the amount of the purchase-money paid by defendant, failing which the suit will be dismissed. Defendant appeals to this Court.

---

(4) 1 M. 1; 2 I. A. 241; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 193; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1 (P. C.).

(5) 14 A. 195; A. W. N. (1892) 42; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 495.

It has been found by both the lower Courts that plaintiff was a minor when he executed Ex. II but that he dishonestly represented to defendant at that time that he was a major and that defendant believed that representation and acted on it in taking the sale-deed from plaintiff as a major that is, that plaintiff intentionally caused defendant to believe that he was a major, and to act on that belief. Both the lower Courts are of opinion that plaintiff is not estopped in this case from pleading minority. Defendant alleged in his written statement that plaintiff was a major at the date of Ex. I. It is urged for defendant that, as that was defendant's case and as it was found that plaintiff intentionally caused defendant to believe that he was a major and to act on that belief, the lower Courts were not at liberty to find that plaintiff was a minor at the date of Ex. I. Plaintiff was estopped under s. 115 of the Evidence Act from denying that he was a major at that date, and, therefore, we have no knowledge, and must carefully guard ourselves against acquiring any knowledge, that he was not then a major. That appears to be the logical result of applying s. 115 of the Evidence Act to the facts found in this case, there being nothing in the section itself to confine it to persons other than minors or to preclude it from affecting a minor who in fact has intentionally caused another party to believe a thing to be true and to act upon that belief. But that is the very position taken up in Dadasaheb Dasrathrao v. Bai Nahani (1) which was expressly dissented from by Coutts-Trotter, J., (now C. J.) in Mallacheruvu Raghavayya v. Mallacheruvu Subbayya (2). In that case, in which the prayers were similar to those in this case, it was proved that at the time of the sale-deed the plaintiff was a minor but not that he had represented that at that time he was a major. It is not, therefore, as accepted by the lower Courts, an authority that plaintiff is not estopped in the present case from pleading his minority. But it has been brought to my notice that is A. S. No. 89 of 1920 on the file of this High Court (unreported) in which the Original Court had found that a defendant who had executed a mortgage-deed when a minor fraudulently representing to the mortgagee that he was a major and causing the mortgagee so to believe, was liable to refund the mortgage-money and eventually made a preliminary decree for sale as on a valid mortgage. Wallis, C. J., and Krishnan, J., laid down that the defendant was not estopped from pleading his minority and dismissed the suit. In doing so they quoted as authorities Guruswami Pantulu v Budhkaran Lall (3) from the very brief report of which it appears that a defendant who when a minor had executed a mortgage-deed, was held by Wallis, C. J., and Sadasiva Iyer, J., not to be estopped from proving that he was a minor at the date of execution even if he had so misrepresented himself as a major and Leslie v. Sheil (4) It was Leslie v. Sheill (4) which Coutts Trotter, J., regarded as sufficient to destroy the value of the Bombay decision in Dadasheb Dasrathrao v. Bai Nahani (1) and was also treated as the leading authority in Guruswami Pantulu v. Budhkaran Lall (3). As Coutts Trotter, J., pointed out Leslie v. Sheill (4) has been mentioned with approval by the Privy Council in Mahomed Syedol Ariffin v. Yeoh Ooi Gark (5). But with great respect I may perhaps point out that Leslie v. Sheill (4) has little to do with estoppel. There it was part of the plaintiff's case that the defendant was a minor at the time of the transaction concerned. Indeed he was still a minor when the writ was issued and the decision was that the plaintiff had not any of the remedies claimed against the defendants who had obtained a loan from them by misrepresenting himself as a major. The approval of Leslie v. Sheill (4) expressed by the Privy Council in

---

(1) 41 Ind. Cas. 180; 41 B. 480; 19 Bom. L. R. 561.
(2) 43 Ind. Cas. 908; 7 L. W. 124.
(3) 53 Ind. Cas. 14; 10 L. W. 225; 26 M. L T 245.
(4) (1914) 3 K. B. 607; 111 L. T. 106; 58 S. J. 453; 30 T. L. R. 460; 83 L. J. K. B. 1145.

Mahomed Syedol Ariffin v. Yeoh Ooi Gark (5) appears to have had no reference to any question of estoppel; and in that case it was not found that the mortgagee-plaintiff actually believed that the minor concerned was a major. Several other cases of this and other Courts have been quoted before me; but I do not think it necessary to discuss them now. I think I am clearly bound by the decision of a Bench of this Court in A. S. No. 89 of 1920 to find that plaintiff was not estopped from proving that he was a minor at the date of Ex. II. The appeal on that point fails.

Plaintiff has filed a memorandum of objections appealing against the Subordinate Judge's order that he must deposit half the purchase-money. I do not think that Leslie v. Sheill (4) and Gurusami Pantulu v. Budhkaran Lall (3) on which Mr. Somayya has relied to show that a defendant who when a minor has obtained money on loan or mortgage by representing himself as a major cannot be compelled to refund it, are of much interest in connection with this aspect of the present case. Here plaintiff comes to Court and asks for relief by way of a declaration that Ex. I is void so far as it relates to his share of the property, and under s. 41 of the Specific Relief Act that relief may be granted to him on the condition that he makes such compensation to defendant as justice may require. Mallacheruvu Raghavayya v. Mallacheruvu Subbayya (2) is authority for that if any is required. Nor is it necessary, in my opinion, to attempt to trace in any detail where the purchase-money for plaintiff's share of the property went or to attempt in such a case as this to distinguish between restitution and re-payment. The Subordinate Judge has found that except an advance payment of Rs. 100 made to plaintiff's brother, the whole of the purchase-money was paid to plaintiff and his brother jointly and that plaintiff derived full benefit from the purchase-money. In the circumstances, the fact that the disposal of Rs. 400 out of the total purchase-money Rs. 2,500 has not been shown by the evidence does not affect the propriety of the latter finding. An attempt has been made on plaintiff's behalf to question this finding at the hearing in other respects; but, as plaintiff has not had the evidence printed, he cannot succeed in that attempt. Since the date of Ex. I plaintiff and his brother have become divided, and plaintiff is in possession of his share of the family property. In the circumstances the Subordinate Judge's decision to make plaintiff's success in the case conditional on his payment of the Rs. 1,250 appears just and proper. The objection in regard to mesne profits, which has been raised in plaintiff's memorandum, has not been argued before me.

An additional ground of appeal has been filed subsequently by defendant, to the effect that plaintiff should have been directed also to pay him Rs. 150, half the amount spent by defendant in improving the land while in his possession since the date of Ex. I. About this there is only the vague evidence of defendant himself unsupported by any accounts. The point does not appear to have been argued before the Subordinate Judge. I see no sufficient reason to interfere with the Subordinate Judge's decision in this respect.

Both the appeal and the memorandum of objections are dismissed with costs.

V. N. V. Appeal dismissed.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 52 OF 1925.
January 1 , 1926.
Present:—Mr Justice Raza.
AHMADULLAH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS —APPELLANTS
versus
BASHIR AHMAD—PLAINTIFF AND
Musammat RUQQAN BIBI—DEFENDANT —RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 144—Co-owners—Suit for possession—Limitation—Ouster—Adverse possession.

The possession of one co-owner must be deemed to be the possession of all the co-owners, unless there was some act of ouster by which one of the co-owners was deprived of possession by another. [p. 857, col. 1.]

Where parties are co-sharers and no partition has taken place between them, mere non-participation of profits by one and occupation and enjoyment of the joint property by the others is not per se adverse possession. There must be a disclaimer of others' right by an open assertion of a hostile title on the part of the other co-owner setting up adverse possession and notice of such disclaimer to the others. Limitation against a co-sharer does not begin to run until his title is openly denied. [p. 857, cols. 1 & 2.]

---

(5) 39 Ind. Cas. 401; 43 I. A. 256 at p. 261; 21 C. W. N. 257; (1917) M. W. N. 162; 19 Bom. L. R. 157; (1916) 2 A. C. 575; 86 L. J. P. C. 15; 115 L. T. 564; 32 T. L. R. 678 (P. C.).

Where in a suit for possession the plaintiff has established his title as a co-owner, the onus is on the defendant co-sharer to plead and prove adverse possession for the statutory period. Article 144 of Sch. I o the Limitation Act applies to such a case. [p. 857, col. 1.]

Secretary of State for India v. Chelikani Rama Rao, 35 Ind. Cas. 902; 39 M. 617; 31 M. L. J. 324; 20 C. W. N. 1311; (1916) 2 M. W. N. 224; 14 A. L. J. 1114; 20 M. L. T. 435; 4 L. W. 486; 18 Bom. L. R. 1007; 25 C. L. J. 69; 43 I. A. 192 (P. C.), followed.

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Fyzabad, dated the 3rd November 1924, modifying that of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Sultanpur, dated the 7th May 1924.

Mr. Hyder Husain, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. Wasim, for Respondent No. 1.

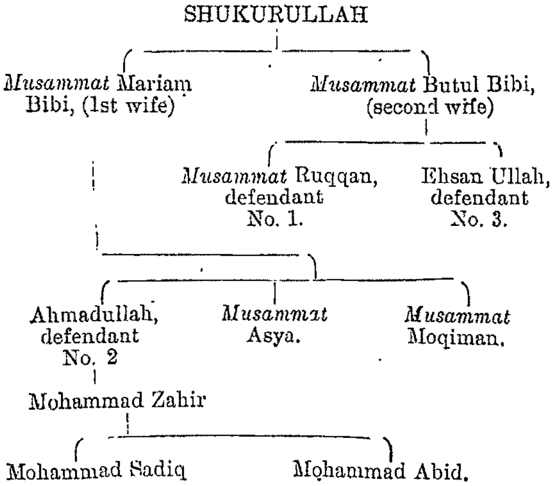
JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from a decree of the learned District Judge, Fyzabad, dated the 3rd November 1924, modifying a decree of the learned Additional Subordinate Judge, Sultanpur, dated the 7th May 1924, partially decreeing the plaintiff's claim. This was a suit for possession of a certain zemindari property specified in the plaint. The relative position of the parties will appear from the following pedigree:—



SHUKURULLAH
Musammat Mariam Bibi, (1st wife)
Musammat Butul Bibi, (second wife)
Musammat Ruqqan, defendant No. 1.
Ehsan Ullah, defendant No. 3.
Ahmadullah, defendant No. 2
Musammat Asya.
Musammat Moqiman.
Mohammad Zahir
Mohammad Sadiq
Mohammad Abid.

Shukurullah died about 35 years ago. His second wife, Musammat Butul Bibi, died in his life-time. The plaintiff obtained a sale-deed from Musammat Ruqqan, defendant No. 1 on the 26th May 1919. He brought the present suit for possession of the property on the basis of that deed. His case was that Musammat Ruqqan was entitled to a share in the inheritance of her father Shukurullah and her mother Musammat Butul both. The defence which was raised by the defendants and which is material to this appeal is as follows:—

1. Musammat Ruqqan was excluded from inheritance by custom, so far as Shukurullah's property is concerned.

2. She was never in possession of the property in suit within limitation.

The first Court gave the plaintiff a money-decree against the defendant No. 1; but dismissed the claim for possession of the property, finding both the points mentioned above, against the plaintiff and in favour of the defendants. The lower Appellate Court allowed the appeal and modified the decree of the first Court and gave the plaintiff a decree for joint possession against the defendants Nos. 1 to 4 in respect of a 13/16th pies share in the villages in suit belonging to Shukurullah and Musammat Butul Bibi. The plaintiff was also given a decree for Rs. 593-12-0 as against defendant No. 1 (Musammat Butul Bibi) together with interest at 6 per cent. per mensem on the said amount from the 26th May 1919 to the date of realization.

This appeal has been filed by Ahmedullah and Ehsanullah, brothers of Musammat Ruqqan. Ehsanullah has sold his share to Mohammad Azim who is the appellant No. 3 in this appeal. The share sold by Ehsanullah exceeds his legal share to the extent of a 6/16th pies share.

The appellants challenge the findings of the learned District Judge on the two points mentioned above. It is admitted by the parties that 13/16 pies share is the share to which Musammat Ruqqan is entitled under the Muhammadan Law in the property of her father and her mother both.

I take up the first point. The family custom has been set up in respect of the father's property only. There is no documentary evidence to prove the alleged custom. Two wajib-ul-araiz have been produced in this case. Exhibit 24 is the wajib-ul-arz of Satthin and Ex. 2, the wajib-ul-arz of Asroga. Shukurullah was a resident of Satthin. According to the wajib-ul-arz of Satthin, the rules of Muhammadan Law are observed there in questions regarding succession. According to the wajib-ul-arz of Asroga, daughters are excluded from inheritance by custom: That wajib-ul-arz was dictated by Sham-sher Ali Khan, "karinda" of one Bibi Ghasiti. It appears that Musammat Ghasiti was the wife of one Pir Ali, maternal uncle of Shukurullah. It may be that Shukurullah had got the Asroga property through, Musammat Ghasiti but the wajib-ul-arz of that village cannot help the defendants in this case. In that wajib-ul-arz the custom prevailing in the family of Musammat Ghasiti was recorded. That custom cannot anyhow be the custom of Shukurullah's family. The oral evidence which has been produced to prove the alleged custom is quite worthless and must be rejected. The learned District Judge has subjected the whole evidence to a careful analysis. Some instances are cited, but no connection of these instances with Shukurullah's family is shown. The oral evidence is quite unreliable and was properly rejected by the learned District Judge. The first point must, therefore, be decided against the defendants.

The second point also must be decided against the defendants. The appellants' learned Counsel has argued, with reference to the plaint, that Art. 142 of the Limitation Act governs the case. I am not prepared to agree with him on that point. I have examined the plaint carefully. I am of opinion, having regard to all the allegations in the plaint, that the present suit falls under Art. 144 of the Limitation Act. Under Art. 144 where plaintiff has established his title, the onus is on the defendants both to plead and to prove adverse possession for the statutory period [Secretary of State for India v. Chelikani Rama Rao (1) and Inderpal Singh v. Thakur Din Singh (2).] The possession of one co-owner must be deemed to be the possession of all the co-owners, unless there was some act of ouster by which one of the co-owners was deprived of possession by another. The mere fact that the defendant No. 1 was not in enjoyment of the rents and profits of the property in suit does not establish that her brothers and co-sharers were in possession adverse to her. It is not shown that they ever set up any title adverse to the defendant No. 1. Where parties are co-sharers and no partition has taken place between them, mere non-participation of profits by one and occupation and enjoyment of the joint property by the others is not per se adverse possession. There must be a disclaimer of others' right by an open assertion of a hostile title on the part of the other co-owner setting up adverse possession and notice of such disclaimer to the others. Limitation against a co-sharer does not begin to run until his title is openly denied.

I do not think it proper or necessary to interfere with the discretion of the learned District Judge in awarding costs in this appeal. The result is that the appeal fails and must be dismissed. I dismiss the appeal with costs and order the appellants to pay the costs of the contesting respondent in this Court. The decree of the lower Appellate Court is confirmed in all respects.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

---

(1) 35 Ind. Cas. 902; 39 M. 617; 31 M. L. J. 324; 20 C. W. N. 1311; (1916) 2 M W. N. 224; 14 A. L. J. 1114; 20 M. L. T. 435; 4 L. W. 486; 18 Bom. L. R. 1007; 25 C. L. J. 69; 43 I. A. 192 (P. C).

(2) 78 Ind. Cas. 895; 27 O. C. 77; 10 O. L. J. 646; A. I. R. 1924 Oudh 266.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION
No. 120 OF 1924.
March 20, 1925.
Present:—Sir Lancelot Sanderson, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Rankin.
THE OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BENGAL —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
W. G. BOWDEN—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Calcutta Rent Act (III of 1920), s. 11—Landlord and tenant—Covenant not to sublet without written consent—Breach of covenant—Waiver of breach—Ejectment.

Where a lease provides that the lessee shall not assign, sub-let or part with possession of the demised premises or any part thereof without the previous consent in writing of the lessor but that such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld in the case of a responsible and respectable person, and the lessee subsequently sub-lets the premises, without the written consent of the lessor, the lessor continuing to receive the rent with knowledge of the sub-lease and without objection thereto, the breach of covenant is merely technical and the subsequent receipt of rent by the landlord amounts to a waiver of the breach. In such a case it cannot be held that the tenant has failed to perform the conditions of the tenancy within the meaning of s. 11 (1) of the Calcutta Rent Act. [p. 859, col. 2.]

Per Rankin, J.—The last words of sub-s. (1) of s. 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act cannot possibly mean that because a breach of covenant was committed by a tenant in 1921, which was perfectly harmless, was never made a grievance of, and as to which no request for compensation or damages was ever made, therefore, it is impossible for the Court to give the tenant, in 1924 the benefit of the Rent Act. [ibid.]

Appeal against the judgments of Buckland, J, dated the 22nd February 1924 and of Ghose, J., dated the 20th May 1924.

Mr. Pugh (with him Mr. Barwell), for the Appellant.

Mr. B. K. Ghosh (with him Mr. P. C. Basu), for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Sanderson, C. J.—This is an appeal from two judgments, the first of which was delivered by my learned brother Mr. Justice Buckland on the 22nd of February 1924, and the second of which was delivered by my learned brother Mr. Justice C. C. Ghose on the 20th of May 1924.

The suit was brought by the plaintiff, the Official Trustee of Bengal, as Trustee of the Estate of Anna Apcar, on the 5th of December 1923: and, it was alleged that the defendant had been the lessee under a lease, dated the 20th of November 1919 for a period of four years, the term of which expired on the 30th day of September 1923.

There was a further allegation that on the 13th of August 1923, the plaintiff gave notice to the defendant to quit and vacate the premises on the expiry of the lease, as the premises were required for the use and occupation of one Johannes Apcar, the present sole beneficiary under the trust.

The plaint alleged that the defendant failed to give possession of the premises and, it then contained a definite statement that "the premises were bona fide required for the use and occupation of the said beneficiary Johannes Apcar."

It is, therefore, clear that when this plaint was filed, the plaintiff had the provisions of the Calcutta Rent Act in mind, and he was asserting in effect that the Calcutta Rent Act would not protect the defendant from an order of ejectment by reason of the fact that the premises were bona fide required for the use and occupation of Mr. Apcar. It is material to notice this and because of what occurred at the trial. The suit was heard on the 21st and the 22nd of February. On the second day, namely, the 22nd, it appears from the judgment of my learned brother Mr. Justice Buckland that the learned Counsel for the plaintiff then stated for the first time that he relied not only on the allegation that the premises were required for the use and occupation of Mr. Apcar but also upon the latter words of s. 11, sub-s. (1) of the Calcutta Rent Act.

The learned Judge came to the conclusion that it was not proved that the premises were bona fide required by Mr. Apcar for his own occupation, and, I need not say more than that I agree with the learned Judge's finding upon that question of fact.

The learned Judge then allowed the other point, which had been raised by the learned Counsel for the plaintiff, to be investigated: and, he gave directions that the necessary pleadings should be filed by the one side and by the other: and, he adjourned the hearing of the suit for a month.

The suit then came before my learned brother Mr. Justice C. C. Ghose.

The allegations upon which the plaintiff relied on that occasion were these: He relied first of all upon a covenant in the lease which is as follows: "The lessee doth hereby covenant with the lessor not to assign, sublet or part with possession of the said premises or any part thereof without the previous consent in writing of the lessor, but such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld in the case of a responsible and respectable person other than a boarding house keeper or tenants other than Europeans:" and, it was alleged on behalf of the plaintiff that the defendant without the knowledge or consent of the plaintiff and without application made for the consent of the plaintiff, sublet and gave possession of the upper floor of the premises, during the subsistence of the lease, to one Mr. Stevenson at a monthly rent of Rs. 225 and that the defendant also without such knowledge or consent and without such application made, and during the subsistence of the said lease, sublet and parted with possession of and was now subletting certain of the godowns, forming part of the said premises to other persons as monthly tenants, and that such persons were now in possession thereof.

The learned Judge came to the conclusion that there had been a breach of the covenant in question; and he stated that, in his opinion, the question was whether or not there had been a waiver of the breach of that covenant. He then concluded as follows: "In my opinion, therefore, there was waiver of forfeiture of the lease, and accordingly the plaintiff's suit for ejectment must fail and be dismissed."

With much respect to the learned Judge, it seems to me that the conclusion at which the learned Judge arrived was not framed in the correct manner. Waiver of the breach of the covenant and waiver of the forfeiture are not the same things. In my judgment there was no forfeiture, because even though there may have been a breach of covenant the lessor had not done any act which showed his intention to determine the lease, as provided by s. 111......... (g) of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, and the learned Counsel who appeared for the appellant agreed that in this case there was no forfeiture. But I understand that the learned Judge meant to come to the conclusion that the plaintiff had in fact waived the breach of the covenant and that consequently the plaintiff was not entitled to succeed.

With regard to the two allegations upon which reliance was placed and as to which there is really no question of fact before us, it appears to me that the alleged subletting of the godowns is of no avail to the plaintiff in this case, because as I understand the case, the position seems to be that the godowns were sublet before the lease was executed and that the ground floor, in the time of the defendant's predecessor, as well as in the time of the defendant, had been used as an office for the purpose of conducting the business of the Melitus Estate and that those facts must have been known to every one concerned.

The other matter relating to the subletting of the upper floor to Mr. Stevenson is in a different position: Mr. Stevenson went into possession in April 1921, and remained there until April 1923: and, the learned Judge has found as a fact that the plaintiff, the Official Trustee, knew either in July or in August 1923 that there had been a subletting to Mr. Stevenson. That finding of fact of the learned Judge has not been contested in this Court.

The question, therefore, remains whether the subletting to Mr. Stevenson in April 1921 is sufficient to prevent the defendant from relying upon the provisions of the Calcutta Rent Act.

Section 11 (1) provides as follows: "Notwithstanding anything contained in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, or the Indian Contract Act, 1872, no order or decree for the recovery of possession of any premises shall be made so long as the tenant pays rent to the full extent allowable by this Act, and performs the conditions of the tenancy . . . . ." In my judgment there was no doubt a technical breach of the covenant committed by the defendant in April 1921 when he sublet the upper floor of the premises to Mr. Stevenson: and, the technical breach consisted in that he failed to apply for the plaintiff's consent in writing to that subletting. There is nothing to suggest that if he had applied he would not have got the consent of the lessor or if the consent had been refused it is possible that the defendant might have let it to Mr. Stevenson without such consent on the ground that he was a responsible and respectable tenant. That is the technical breach and the only breach upon which, in my judgment, the plaintiff could rely in this case. I have no doubt that that technical breach was waived by the Official Trustee when he heard about it in July or August 1921. It is clear that he received the rent for August and September 1923 after he had obtained that knowledge. He never made the smallest complaint about the upper floor being sublet to Mr. Stevenson in April 1921, and he did not take any steps to terminate the tenancy on the ground of the breach of the covenant to which I have referred. I have no doubt that there was a complete waiver by the plaintiff of the technical breach of the covenant.

In these circumstances, in my judgment, it cannot be said that the defendant failed to perform the conditions of the tenancy within the meaning of s. 11 (1) of the Calcutta Rent Act.

For these reasons, in my judgment, the conclusion at which the learned Judge arrived was correct and this appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Rankin, J.—I agree. With reference to the words in the first sub-s. of s. 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act, there are some things that those words must import, some things which they may import and there are some things which they cannot import. I do not think that they can possibly mean that because a breach of covenant was committed in 1921 which was perfectly harmless, which never was made a grievance of, and as to which no request for compensation or damage was ever made, therefore, it is impossible for the Court to give the tenant in 1924 the benefit of the Rent Act. Whether the phrase "and performs the conditions of the tenancy" must be read as applying only to the time, during which the tenant's right to possession depends entirely upon the Calcutta Rent Act, has been argued before us. If that position be correct it still remains that by the last words of the proviso to sub-s. (1) the Court could in a proper case take into account breaches of the conditions of the tenancy committed during the course of the original tenancy. But it is not necessary for the purposes of this case to determine any nice question of construction.

The position is that, so far as it appears, no objection could have been taken to Mr. Stevenson. Had permission been asked and refused it would presumably have been open to the tenant to ignore the covenant altogether. Mr. Stevenson appears to have been in occupation of a part of the premises for two years. He left in April 1923. Whether the Official Trustee at that time knew anything about his occupation, it seems almost certain that the beneficiary Mr. Apcar to whose instructions the Official Trustee paid great attention, must have known about this fact. So far from making any grievance of the matter, when it was discussed between the Official Trustee and his beneficiary in July 1923 the correspondence shows that there was no objection at all being taken about this question of subletting. The letter of the 2nd of August is not the letter of the man who says "you have been guilty of this breach; I do not think it necessary to forfeit, but at the end of your time you will have to go." His point is that, "The end of your lease is coming. I desire to charge you more rent; and one of the things which makes it reasonable for me to charge you more rent is the amount of rent you have been realising from your sub-tenants to say nothing of the rent that I presume is paid for the use of the office." Suppose for the sake of argument that in 1921 this matter had come to the notice of the Official Trustee and the tenant had said, "I am very sorry. I should have asked for your permission before I sublet," and the lessor had said, "Never mind, it is all right," or suppose the landlord said, "I will not forfeit but I shall charge you as damages one rupee" and that the tenant had paid. It is absurd, in these circumstances, to suppose that, because there was a technical breach in 1921, that it could have been utilized against the tenant at the end of 1923 or the beginning of 1924. The facts in this case are certainly not so strong but they come, in my opinion, to the same result: they show, in point of fact, a knowledge of the whole transaction after the event without any complaint being entertained in the mind of the landlord in respect of this matter. Had such a complaint been made, anything that could have been asked as compensation might have been paid by the tenant. In my judgment it would be putting an unreasonable construction upon s. 11 in this case, if we were to hold that the tenant after 1921 was entirely deprived of any benefit of the Calcutta Rent Act. I entirely agree that the mere question of waiver of the right of re-entry is in no way conclusive in this case.

It seems to me that the learned Judge's decision was right in the result, and I agree that the appeal should be dismissed.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL SIDE APPEAL NO. 111 OF 1923.

March 23, 1925.

Present:—Justice Sir Kumaraswami Sastri Kt., and Mr. Justice Krishnan.

THE PURASAWALKAM HINDU JANOPAKARA SASWATHA NIDHI LTD. BY HIS SECRETARY K. CHINNATHAMBY PILLAI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

KUDDUS SAHIB AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 69—Mortgage—Sale, power of, irregular exercise of—Mortgagee, right of, to recover balance of mortgage-money—Notice, whether necessary—Negligence—Principal and agent—Agent acting to best of his capacity, whether liable.

Where one person is employed by another to do a certain kind of work with full knowledge of his qualifications and the latter does the best that he can with respect to the work entrusted to him, there can be no question of negligence unless he does something which any reasonable man with his qualifications would have omitted to do. [p. 862, col. 1.]

Where in a mortgage-deed the amount due for principal is not re-payable at any particular time nor is anything stated as to when it is to be re-paid, there can be no default in payment of the principal sum due within the meaning of s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act until there is a demand made for the money. [p. 863, cols. 1 & 2.]

When a mortgagee demands payment of the mortgage-money, he should be in a position to give back the mortgaged property and allow the mortgagor to redeem. Where he has wrongfully disabled himself from doing so, for instance, by having sold away the mortgaged property under an irregular exercise of his power of sale; he cannot sue the mortgagor for the balance of the mortgage-money. [p. 864, col. 1.]

A mortgagee has a right to make use of his remedies against the mortgagor for obtaining payment of his money; but as soon as the mortgage-money has been fully paid he is bound to deliver over the mortgaged property to the mortgagor. If he has made it impossible for himself to restore the property mortgaged, he cannot proceed against the mortgagor to recover the amount of the mortgage-money. [p. 864, col. 2.]

Per Krishnan, J., Obiter :—In cases falling under s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act, if interest amounting to at least Rs. 500, is in arrears and unpaid for three months the mortgagee, if he has got a power of sale under the mortgage, can exercise the power without notice to the mortgagor. [p. 867, col. 2.]

Appeal from a decree of Mr. Justice Coutts Trotter, passed in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court, in C. S. No. 3 of 1923.

The Advocate-General and Mr. K. Narasimha Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. T. Pattabhirama Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—This is an appeal from the decision of Justice Coutts Trotter dismissing the plaintiff's suit; the plaintiff which is a fund sued to recover Rs. 6,032-9-6 with costs and further interest. Plaintiff's case is that the 1st defendant applied for a loan to the fund of Rs. 10,000 on the mortgage of two of his properties, 17, Thacker Street, Vepery, and 17, Perambore Barracks Street. On his application the usual form and papers were filed with the 2nd defendant who is the appraiser and the 3rd defendant who is the surveyor of the fund in the usual course of business to value and appraise the properties, that they wrongfully valued the properties at about Rs. 12,000 and odd while the real value of the properties was much lower, that on the strength of their valuation the fund advanced Rs. 9,475 to the 1st defendant and got the mortgage-deed, Ex. C executed on the 8th February 1921, that as the defendant did not pay the money due on the mortgage the mortgaged property was sold under power of sale reserved to the plaintiffs under the deed of mortgage on the 13th and 21st October 1922 when the properties realised only Rs. 2,150 and Rs. 2,600 respectively as against the sum of Rs. 10,782-9-6 due on the mortgage at the date of the sale, that the 1st defendant has to pay Rs. 6,032-9-6, the difference between the amount due on the date of the sale and the amounts realised by private sale, that the 2nd and 3rd defendants by their wrongfully appraising the property at an amount far in excess of the actual value acted in conspiracy with the 1st defendant to defraud the fund and acted also with gross negligence in the valuation and that they are, therefore, liable to pay the difference between the actual value of the property and the amount due on the mortgage. The 1st defendant denied the claim of the fund. He pleaded that the properties mortgaged were worth about Rs. 20,000, one property being worth Rs. 8,000 and the other Rs. 12,000. He sets up an agreement whereby the fund itself promised to lend the money in order to enable him to redeem a prior mortgage. He states that the power of sale was wrongfully exercised and the sale is not binding on him. He also pleads that the property was under-sold collusively by the fund.

The defendants Nos. 2 and 3 denied that they overvalued the properties. They denied that there was any fraud or collusion between them and the 1st defendant. They stated that the property was correctly valued and that they are not liable for the deficiency if any. They also pleaded that the sale was not properly conducted.

Justice Coutts Trotter dismissed the plaintiff's suit against defendants Nos. 2 and 3. He held that there was no conspiracy or negligence and as regards the 1st defendant he held that the power of sale was improperly exercised, that notice was not properly given and that consequently the plaintiffs have no right to claim any deficiency. So far as the 2nd and 3rd defendants are concerned the learned Advocate General who appeared for the fund conceded that no case of conspiracy was proved but he supported the appeal on the ground that the defendants grossly overvalued the property. Reliance was mainly sought to be placed on the evidence of Mr. Aiyaswami Mudaliar who was called by the plaintiffs to prove the value. I am not satisfied on the evidence that the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 negligently overvalued the properties or that there was any conspiracy between the parties. The 2nd and 3rd defendants have given evidence as to what they did so far as the valuation of the properties was concerned. There are some facts which to my mind make it rather clear that there could not have been over-valuation which is now sought to be suggested. I find on the evidence of the 1st defendant that there were previous mortgages on this property in favour of the Madras City Co-operative Bank at a time when there was only one item of property in existence and the other was only a vacant site. We find that at that time a sum of Rs. 5,000 was lent and under the rules of the Bank only 2/3rd can be lent so that about a year before the suit mortgage, the properties were valued by that Bank at Rs. 7,500. I also find that a sowcar lent Rs. 3,000 on one item of property. The evidence is that after the mortgage to the Bank, the 1st defendant built on the vacant site at a cost of about Rs. 5,000 so that at the time of the mortgage to the fund it is difficult for me to believe that the property was worth only about Rs. 4,000 as Mr. Aiyaswami Mudaliar would have us believe. Under these circumstances I think that there has been no case made out against the 2nd and 3rd defendants either on the ground of conspiracy or on the ground of negligence. As pointed out by the learned Judge the 2nd and 3rd defendants were employed by the fund with knowledge of their qualifications and so far as they are concerned they did what they thought to be the best. There can be no question of negligence unless they have done anything which any reasonable man with their qualifications would have omitted to do. The fund which employed them was aware of their qualifications.

I may say in this connection that I disagree with the learned Judge in the view he takes that there has been anything in the conduct of Mr. Sivagnana Mudaliar which is unprofessional. He got permission from the High Court to act as legal adviser and director of this fund. So far as the business of the fund is concerned, it appears that the fund consists of persons who take shares and borrow monies and what the share-holders get is about 9 per cent. compound interest and it is only the balance that is divided. It is divided in such a way as to give a remuneration to the legal adviser, the director, the appraiser and others. In this case it cannot be said that the percentage allowed to Mr. Sivagnana Mudaliar is anything which can be said to be high or unreasonable. On the contrary it works out at a very low figure, about Rs. 200 a year.

As regards the directors I do not think they can be blamed for employing the 2nd and 3rd defendants because in their case also the qualifications will depend on the remuneration and they could not have gone and employed experts or men with high qualifications having regard to the very small remuneration paid to both of them. They had to fix the remuneration according to the funds in their hands. I do not think it can be said that in employing the 2nd and 3rd defendants the directors were guilty of negligence or were answerable for employing persons who ought not to have been employed, more especially as we find in this case that during all these years there have been no complaints made by the share-holders or anybody of any misconduct or any loss that arose to the fund by their employment.

So far as I have dealt with the case of 2nd and 3rd defendants which seems to us to be fairly clear. The case of the 1st defendant is a little more complicated. So far as the sale is concerned the evidence of the Secretary is that this sale was conducted in pursuance of a notice, Ex. D which was given on the 26th July 1921. The sale took place on the 13th and 21st October 1922 about 15 months after the date of the notice. It also appears that after the notice was given, the fund received payments of Rs. 300 while the amount due at the date of the notice was about Rs. 442. No payments were made subsequently. So far as the notice is concerned I have little doubt that the receipt of Rs. 300 after the notice and the staying of the sale as threatened was clearly an abandonment of any rights which the fund wanted to enforce by reason of the notice. They received the money and kept quiet 15 months after. I do not think that the fund could act on that notice at the expiration of such a long time. Fresh notice ought to have been given if they wanted to sell.

Then the question is whether the fund is entitled to sell without giving any notice. On this part of the case we have to see the Articles of Association and the mortgage-deed. The Articles of Association define the rights between the share-holders and the fund. This is clear from s. 21 of the Indian Companies Act. In this case the loan was to a share-holder. Article 72 runs as follows:—

"If any person who has received loans on mortgage of moveable or immoveable properties, fails to pay the monthly interest regularly and allows such interest at any time to accumulate to what shall be due for three months, the Secretary shall call upon him by notice in writing to pay the principal and interest due and in default of such payment the property shall be liable to be sold by public auction; provided always that the Secretary may at any time before the commencement of the sale at his discretion withdraw from sale any property moveable or immveable the arrears of interest on which shall be less than what shall be due as interest for three months." It is argued by K. Narasimha Iyer that this is merely a direction to the Secretary and it confers no rights on the share-holder or the mortgagor. I do not think that this contention can be upheld. It is clearly a provision put in in the interests of both the fund and the mortgagor, the fund being entitled to sell if three months' interest is in arrears, the mortgagor being entitled to due notice to enable him to pay up. The deed of mortgage, Ex. C provides for a power of sale. The clause runs as follows:—

"If with regard to the interest payable every month accordingly, three months' interest falls in arrears at any time or if the Nidhi being in need of the principal and interest gives intimation by means of notice to pay off the same and I or my heirs fail to pay the principal and interest, the Nidhi itself shall sell the aforesaid houses and grounds by public auction or private sale under s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act and credit the expenses in connection with the said sale and whole of the amount due by me to the Nidhi; and if there is excess it should be paid to me. If there is shortage I shall myself be responsible and pay the amount falling short together with interest as mentioned above". It ends as follows:—"Further, until this mortgage debt is discharged I shall be bound by the rules now in force in the Nidhi and the rules which may be framed from time to time".

This mortgage, therefore, incorporates the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act and of the Articles of Association. The amount due for principal is not re-payable at any particular date. Nor is anything stated as to when it is to be re-paid. Under these circumstances it seems to me to be clear that until there is a demand made for the money, there can be no default in payment of the principal sum due. No doubt the fund could have sued the next day for the money or the mortgagor might have offered to redeem the next day but that would not make non-payment a default within s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act. I may refer in this connection to the case in Ramadh Bibi Ammal v. Kandasami Pillai (1) where Justices Spencer and Krishnan have discussed the question of what is the meaning of default and they incline to the view that before there can be said to be default where no time is fixed there ought to be a demand. Section 69 of the Transfer of Property Act begins by stating that the power of sale in the mortgage-deed conferred on the mortgagee or any person in his behalf to sell or concur in selling, in default of payment of the mortgage-money, the mortgaged property or any part thereof without the intervention of the Court is valid in certain specified cases. Then it says in what cases such power of sale will be valid. There is to be a default in the payment of the mortgage-money. Now, in this case, reading s. 69 with the Articles of Association and the mortgage-deed, I am clearly of opinion that before the sale is held for the purpose of recovering principal and interest due on the mortgage notice has to be given and the learned Judge was right in coming to the conclusion that the want of notice was an irregularity because the fund did not act in a manner that would entitle them to have sold the property rightly. There was no notice given before the sale. It is suggested that there was a notice of the date of the sale sent to the 1st defendant to his address but that was returned as he was not in Madras and it cannot be said that that notice was not a notice required by the Transfer of Property Act or Art. 72. It is unnecessary in this case to decide the wider question raised whether in case of interest alone being due notice is necessary; because I think that if Art. 72 is also to be considered notice is necessary whether the sale is for the amount due for principal or interest. There having been, therefore, no proper notice under Art. 72 as regards sale of this property, the question is whether the plaintiffs can sue to recover the balance which is claimed under the sale. The evidence in the case shows that the sales were not properly held. One item of property was purchased by Swaminatha Mudaliar a relation of a director benami in the name of his brother. So far as the sale is concerned, it appears that there were only three bidders as regards that item. One was the Secretary himself and the other two, Munisami Naicker and Murugesa Mudaliar. It appears from the evidence that the sale was adjourned from time to time. Only 200 notices seem to have been printed for all the six occasions on which sales were adjourned and no proper notice was given so as to enable the general public to come and bid for the properties. I do not think that on the evidence on records the sale can be said to have been duly and properly held so as to entitle us to hold that the prices realised at the sales were fair and adequate prices. Having regard to the evidence as regards the value of the property given by the plaintiff I do not think I can hold that the sales were for adequate prices. I am of opinion that the properties mortgaged are worth at least 10,000 rupees.

---

(1) 51 Ind. Cas. 724; 9 L. W. 479; (1919) M. W. N. 82; 25 M. L. T. 154.

The next question is as to whether the plaintiffs are entitled to sue for the balance which they claim even though the power of sale was improperly exercised and even though there were irregularities in the sale, and low prices realised leaving the 1st defendant to file a counter-claim or a separate suit for damages, or whether the suit itself cannot be maintained. Before dealing with the question it must be remembered that the suit is not against the purchaser of the property as he is not a party to the suit, and it is not by the defendant to redeem or get damages for wrongful sale but it is a suit by the plaintiff against the defendant to recover the balance of mortgage-money. The case does not fall within s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act and has to be decided on considerations as to the general law regulating the rights of mortgagor and mortgagee. It is clear that when a mortgagee demands payment of the mortgage-money, he should be in a position to give back the mortgaged property and allow the mortgagor to redeem. This is the effect of O. XXXIV, rr. 5, 6 and 8 of the C. P. C. and mortgage-decrees are always drawn in the form that on payment of the money the mortgagee should return the title-deeds and, if, in possession, give possession to the mortgagor. Where he wrongfully disables himself from doing so the law in England seems to be that he cannot after a wrongful sale sue for the balance of the mortgage-money. The authorities on the subject are referred to in Ellis & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon-Johnson (2) Lord Justice Warrington refers to the rule of equity at page 470* as follows:—

"A mortgagee who cannot or will not return the mortgaged property on payment is not entitled to sue for the debt."

He goes on to observe: "There can, I think, be no question that such was and is the rule in equity. In Palmer v. Hendrie (3) the rule was there stated by Romilly, M. R: 'These then are the relative duties and reciprocal obligations between mortgagor and mortgagee. The mortgagee has a right to make use of all his remedies against the mortgagor for obtaining payment of his money; but as soon as the mortgage-money has been fully paid, he is bound to deliver over the mortgaged estate to the mortgagor. The question is whether, when the mortgagee has made it impossible to restore the property mortgaged, he can proceed against a mortgagor to recover the amount of the mortgage-money He can undoubtedly, at law, sue upon the covenant, and consequently, the executors of Hendrie are, at law, entitled to recover from the plaintiff the unpaid mortgage-money; but the mortgagees must perform their reciprocal obligations; they are bound, on payment, to restore the property to the mortgagor, and this—is a most important part—'if it appears, from the state of the transaction, that, by the act of the mortgagee, unauthorised by the mortgagor, it has become impossible to restore the estate on payment of all that is due, I am of opinion that this Court will interfere and prevent the mortgagee suing the mortgagor at law."

The learned Judge also says that this statement of the law was cited and adopted by Stirling, J., in Kinnaird v. Trollope (4) and refers to the rule being based on the very nature of a mortgage security and the reciprocal obligations of mortgagor and mortgagee and considers it as being in accordance with justice and common sense. Sargant, J., observes: "The cases of Walker v. Jones (5), Palmer v. Hendrie (3) and Kinnaird v. Trollope (4) have definitely recognised that, in general a mortgagee or his

---

(2) (1924) 2 Ch. 451; 93 L. J. Ch. 554; 131 L. T. 652; 68 S. J. 682; 40 T. L. R. 680.

(3) (1859) 27 Beav. 349; 54 E. R. 136; 122 R. R. 426.

(4) (1888) 39 Ch. D. 636 at p. 644; 57 L. J. Ch. 905; 59 L. T. 433; 37 W. R. 234.

(5) (1865) 1 P. C. 50; 3 Moo. P. C. (N. S.) 397; 35 L. J. P. C. 30; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 381; 14 L. T. 686; 14 W. R. 484; 16 E. R 151; 146 R. R. 114.

---

*Page of (1924) 2 Ch.—[Ed.]

assignee cannot recover his debt from the mortgagor except upon performing his reciprocal obligation of reconveying the mortgaged property to the mortgagor and, accordingly, where the security for the debt was a specific estate, and through the unauthorised acts of the mortgagee it had become impossible to restore the estate at law, the mortgagee lost the right to sue for the mortgage-debt." All the learned Judges of the Court of Appeal are clear that a mortgagee who wrongfully disposes of property so as to prevent redemption could not sue for the mortgage-debt. In the case of moveables they thought that if he could purchase exactly similar stock and deliver he might do so. But in the case of immoveable property it is clear that the principle could not apply as both under the Specific Relief Act and otherwise, it is presumed that the breach of contract to deliver immoveable property cannot be compensated for by damages. This decision was affirmed by the House of Lords as appears from the note in the Weekly Notes of the 28th February 1925 page 61 [Ellies & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon Johnson (6)] where the Lord Chancellor is reported to have held that a creditor holding securities which he has wrongfully disposed of could not have judgment for his debt. Reference was made to Madras Deposit & Benefit Society v. Passanha (7) and it is argued that a suit would lie to recover the balance. It was a reference from the Small Cause Court and all that the Judge held was that the provision giving 15 days' notice in the mortgage-deed was invalid but it did not prevent a suit for the recovery of the debt. It also appeared there that more than three months' notice was, as a matter of fact, alleged to have been given. It does not appear that there was no default in the payment of the mortgage-money and the report is so meagre that it is difficult to hold that it is clear authority for holding that a person who sells mortgaged property wrongfully can turn round and demand the balance of the money leaving the mortgagor to a separate suit for damages. As pointed out in Ellis & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon Johnson (2), above referred to, it is not a question of set-off or counter-claim, it is a question of defence to the action itself on the ground that it is not maintainable. The latest decision of the House of Lords and the Court of Appeal are clear so far as the law goes. The sections of the Conveyancing Act as to power of sale do not differ in any material part from s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act, the sections of the Conveyancing Act being almost identical with the sections of the Transfer of Property Act, I think there is clear authority for holding that where there has been a wrongful sale it is not open to the mortgagee who has put it out of his power to allow the defendant to redeem to sue the mortgagor for recovering the balance of the mortgage-money. We think that the judgment of Justice Coutts Trotter is correct and that the suit against the 1st defendant also fails. In the result the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs three sets.

Krishnan, J.—In this case the fund called the Purasawalkam Janopakara Nidhi, Ltd., is the appellant before us. The suit of the fund against the three defendants has been dismissed by Mr. Justice Coutts Trotter and hence the appeal against the defendants. The 1st defendant a Muhammadan and a share holder of the fund applied for a loan of Rs. 10,000 from the fund on the security of two of his properties in Madras one in Thacker's Street and the other in Perambore Barracks Road. The papers in connection with this application were sent by the Secretary of the fund to the 2nd defendant, the appraiser of the fund for the purpose of ascertaining the value of this property. It was a rule of the fund that mortgages should be given on immoveable property only to the extent of 75 per cent. of their value. The appraiser went and saw these houses and made certain measurements and finally estimated the value of the properties to be about Rs. 12,000 and odd. The papers were then sent by the fund to the surveyor, the 3rd defendant whose duty was to check the estimate of the appraiser. He adopted the usual method he was adopting of making inquiries in the neighbourhood about the rental value and generally looking at the property to satisfy himself that the appraiser's value was more or less correct. He reported after making such investigation as he usually did that the value of the properties as estimated by the appraiser was correct. On this the fund advanced to the 1st defendant a sum of Rs. 9,475. This was on the 8th January 1921. The fund subsequently had these properties sold under the power of sale granted to them by the mortgage-deed, Ex. C in October 1922. When the properties were sold they fetched only about Rs. 4,750 in all, so that the fund stood to lose about Rs. 6,000 and odd in this transaction if further money was not realised from the 1st defendant, the mortgagor. They bring this suit against the mortgagor, the 1st defendant, for the balance due on the mortgage. They have in this suit added also their two officers, the appraiser and the surveyor on the allegation that they conspired together with the 1st defendant to unduly inflate the value of the properties so that a larger amount might be given on the security of the properties than would otherwise have been given. They also charge that these two officers were grossly negligent in the performance of their duty even if they did not actually conspire with the 1st defendant and on that ground also they sought to make them liable to make good the loss which the fund was likely to suffer. The case proceeded to trial on this footing on the issues raised between the various defendants and the plaintiffs.

---

(6) (1925) W. N. 61; (1925) A. C. 489; 94 L. J. Ch. 221; (1925) B. & C. R. 54; 133 L. T. 60; 69 S. J. 395; 41 T. L. R. 336.

(7) 11 M. 201; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 140.

It is convenient to consider the case of these defendants separately as the plea of conspiracy has entirely failed which was the only common ground between all the defendants. The fund have not adduced any evidence of this conspiracy and no attempt has been made to controvert the finding of the learned Trial Judge that the conspiracy is not proved. I will take the case of the surveyor first because that seems to be the easiest of the three. The learned Judge has found that the surveyor is not chargeable with any negligence at all and I think the learned Judge is right in that view. The surveyor is as the learned Judge points out, an ex-school-master, who does not seem to be properly qualified to do the work of surveying which he has been appointed to do. The directors knew the qualifications of the surveyor when they appointed him. They must be taken to have accepted the best he could do in the discharge of his duty as a satisfactory discharge of his functions. What he usually did was, as I have said already, to go and value the property by looking at it generally and by finding out from the neighbourhood the rental value of the property. In this case the rental value which he found on inquiry justified him in coming to the conclusion that the estimate of the appraiser was correct. After all it must be understood that this appraising and checking are not expected to be very accurate but only to give a rough idea of what the property is worth so that the fund may not lose money. As the surveyor did what he usually did in such matters and as the directors must be taken to have known his practice and they never objected before, he cannot be charged with negligence at all. Therefore the case against him for negligence fails.

Next, as regards the appraiser, the 2nd defendant, the learned Judge has come to the conclusion that he was negligent for he says: "He saw thousands of cubic feet of bricks which were not there, he imagined the existence of concrete foundations which in fact did not exist, he measured joists and beams not with a tape but with an eye which made him find more than he saw." I do not think that that is altogether a fair way of putting the case so far as he is concerned. He went there and took his measurements as usual. He was apparently never in the habit of measuring very exactly the walls and the joists and so on but he was taking rough measurements of things and upto date no complaint had been raised against him, for doing his work in that manner. When the Engineer Aiyaswami Mudaliar went there he apparently found that those measurements were not accurate. He took very strict measurements evidently but it seems to me that the differences between the measurements of Iyaswami Mudaliar and of the 2nd defendant do not show such a disparity as to attribute negligence to the latter. If the appraiser had not gone to the place where those houses were, and merely made a fanciful estimate, one can say he was negligent, but when he did the very things he was expected to do and which the directors knew he was doing and arrived at results which were perhaps not quite so accurate as one would have liked, I do not think it is correct to attribute negligence, to him. I am inclined to think that the finding that he was grossly negligent is not correct. The learned Judge dismissed the case against him in spite of his finding that he was negligent on the ground that the failure to realise enough money to cover the mortgage by the sale of these two properties was not due to any act of the appraiser. He was of opinion that the properties were under-sold in the auction that took place because at that time there was a slump in the value of property in the neighbourhood on account of certain disturbances in the Buckingham and Carnatic mills. The evidence in the case shows that the properties must have been undersold for, as my learned brother has pointed out, they were worth at least Rs. 8,000 or Rs. 9,000. The two properties without the new house constructed on the second of them were accepted as sufficient security for a loan of Rs. 5,000 by a very careful money-lending body called the Madras City Co-operative Bank. That implies that they estimated the value at Rs. 7,500 before the new house was built as they advanced only 2/3rh of the value and the new house was built at an expenditure of about Rs. 5,000 by the 1st defendant. Making all deductions, I think one may very well value the properties at Rs. 9,000. I do not think, therefore, that there was very much loss caused by the report of the appraiser. However that may be, I prefer to put my judgment on the ground that he has not been proved to have been guilty of negligence and, therefore, he is not liable.

Now, as regards the 1st defendant, as remarked by my learned colleague, his case is a little more difficult and raises some interesting questions of law. The learned Trial Judge has dismissed the suit against him on the ground that the sale was carried through in defiance of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. He observes: "As the 1st defendant has not secured the rights given to him by the Transfer of Property Act, I think the suit against him must also fail." He has not discussed the case of the 1st defendant, at any length and, therefore, it is difficult to be sure how the learned Judge dealt with it. It is argued before us by the 1st respondent that the properties were really worth about Rs. 20,000 or at any rate more than enough to cover the mortgage debt and that the sale of these properties without notice to him and in a manner which led to considerable loss because the sale was not conducted with that amount of publication and care as one would expect the mortgagee to take in selling the mortgaged property, was an improper sale and, therefore, he was not bound to make good the balance of the mortgage debt. The first question that arises on the defence is whether it was necessary to have given him notice before the sale. If notice was necessary, I am in agreement with my learned brother in thinking that no proper notice was given. The notice relied on by the Secretary to the fund sent 15 months before the date of the sale for the payment of a sum of interest then due but mostly re-paid subsequently is not sufficient, in my opinion, to justify the sale 15 months after. It is stated—and I take it that it is correct—that at the time of the sale about Rs. 1,300 was due for interest alone and it is argued that under s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act when interest on the mortgage amounted to at least Rs. 500 and remained unpaid for three months after becoming due, the power of sale can be exercised by the mortgagee without any notice whatsoever given. It seems to me that it is not necessary to definitely pronounce upon this argument but I am inclined to think that the argument is correct that in cases falling under s. 69 if interest amounting to at least Rs. 500 is in arrears and unpaid for three months the mortgagee, if he has got the power of sale under the mortgage, can exercise the power without notice to the mortgagor but that is not the point here. The point here is that under the Articles of Association it is expressly provided under Art. 72 that "the Secretary shall call upon him (the debtor) by notice in writing to pay the principal and interest due and in default of such payment the property shall be liable to be sold by public auction." This article is certainly a binding provision between the mortgagor in this case who is a share-holder of the fund and the fund itself. The Secretary was bound under that article to call upon the defendant by notice in writing to pay up the principal and interest due and it was only in default of his complying with that demand that the properties could have been sold. It was suggested that this article was only a sort of direction by the fund to its own Secretary as to how he was to act and that the mortgagor, the 1st defendant could not take advantage of the provision. I do not think that this suggestion is at all correct for it is one of the Articles of Association, a rule in an Article of Association can very well be relied upon by a person dealing with the fund knowing that the fund could not act without the provision of the article being complied with and here there is the further reason that the 1st defendant was himself a shareholder. Under these circumstances, it is perfectly clear that the Art. 72 should have been complied with by the Secretary. Now let us see what the result of his non-compliance is. Section 69 says that the power conferred by the mortgage-deed on the mortgagee to sell or concur in selling in default of payment of the mortgage-money is valid in the following cases and in no others. To start with, therefore, it must be established that the power of sale under the mortgage-deed has come into play, in other words that the mortgage-money has become payable, as Chief Justice Macleod has held in Jerup Teja & Co. v. Peerbhoy Adamji (8). There it was a case where a time was fixed for the mortgage-money to be re-paid and as the sale was attempted within that time, the learned Chief Justice held that the money did not become payable and, therefore, the power exercised under s. 69 was improperly exercised. I am of opinion, that as notice should have been given before the power of sale could have been exercised by the fund, the absence of that notice makes it an improper sale. Our attention was drawn to what is called a notice said to have been sent just before the sale to the address of the 1st defendant through post but that notice came back undelivered to the fund and the fund knew perfectly well that the notice had not been served. If it did not come back, the fund might have been justified in presuming that it was delivered but it was returned. Furthermore the notice itself was not a proper notice calling upon the debtor to pay the principal and interest due as required under Art. 72, it was a printed copy of the notification to the public of the sale that was going to take place of the properties and nothing more. For both these reasons that notice was inadequate to serve the purpose of compliance with Art. 72 of the Articles of Association. It follows, therefore, that according to my view the mortgage-money had not become payable under the mortgege-deed with the result that, though the plaintiffs need not have served any notice for making sub-cl. (c) of cl. (2) of s. 69 applicable, they were not in a position to exercise the power of sale because of the initial difficulty of making out that there was a default in payment of the mortgage-money. The question then argued was what effect should be given to this failure to give the necessary notice? On the one hand it was suggested that we should take no notice of it in this case but that the 1st defendant should be referred to a new suit for damages if he had suffered any damage by the sale having been held in an improper manner without notice to him. On the other hand it was argued for the 1st respondent that, this being a suit for the balance of the mortgage-debt by the setting-off the sale-proceeds of a sale which was illegally held, the mortgagee's suit should be dismissed in toto because it was urged that a mortgagee who is not in a position to deliver over the mortgaged property because he has parted with it in a wrongful manner cannot sue the mortgagor for payment of the mortgage-debt. So far as the English Law is concerned it is pretty clear from the authorities cited and which have been referred to by my learned brother that the law is that the mortgagee who wrongfully disposes of the property and who is, therefore, unable to restore the mortgaged property when the mortgage-money is paid to him cannot maintain a suit for the mortgage-debt at all and necessarily, therefore, for any balance of the mortgage-debt. For this the latest authority is the case in Ellis & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon Johnson (2). The learned Judges have stated there the law on the point although in the particular case they stretched a point in favour of the mortgagee and made him liable only for damages as the case was one of wrongful sale of shares which could easily be purchased and re-placed In such a case they held that the strict rule applicable to immoveable property need not be applied and that the Trial Judge was right in estimating the amount of damages arising from the action of the mortgagee and allowing that amount. Here this being a case of immoveable property the rule would apply in all its strictness if it were in England. The question then is whether this rule should be applied in this country or not. There is nothing so far as I can see in s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act or any other section of that Act which militates against the application of this rule. Sections 20 and 21 of the English Conveyancing Act of 1881 are very nearly in the same words as s. 69 of our Transfer of Property Act; and certainly the last clause of s. 69 is exactly in the same words. Nevertheless the learned Judges in England have applied that rule as between mortgagor and mortgagee when the latter lost the mortgaged property by some wrongful act of his. The Lord Chancellor in his judgment affirming the decision in Ellis & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon Johnson (2), above cited, lays down the rule in very broad terms as appears from Ellies & Co.'s Trustee v. Dixon Johnson (6). I must confess that I felt some hesitation in applying this rule here when we have no Indian authority on the point brought to our notice. However that may be the rule seems to be based upon equity and good conscience and I think we must adopt it here as well. The case cited in the Madras Deposit and Benefit Soceity v. Passanha (7) has really no bearing on the present point. That is the only case under s. 69 which has been brought to our notice. There certain property had been sold under the power granted under the mortgage-deed. It appears from the statement made by the learned Judge of the Small Cause Court making the reference that in that case the sale had taken place as a matter of fact after proper notice to the mortgagor. But it was apparently argued in that case that because in the mortgage-deed there was a covenant that the property might be sold after 15 days' notice which was against the provisions of s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act the sale should be treated as invalid and the claim for the balance of the mortgage-debt should be held to be barred. The learned Judges rightly held if I may say so with respect that the provision in the mortgage-deed did not constitute a bar at all. But they certainly did not consider the question as to what was to happen if the sale was an improper sale and if the mortgaged property had been parted with by the mortgagee by a wrongful act of his. That question was not before them at all. I am, therefore, of opinion that the learned Judge's decision that the plaintiff's claim against the 1st defendant also fails is correct in this case.

---

(8) 64 Ind. Cas. 634; 23 Bom. L. R. 1241.

Before closing I should like to add that the strictures passed by the learned Judge against a well-known member of the Bar Mr. Sivagnana Mudaliar are, in my opinion, not justified. The Vakil, it is now stated, had obtained the leave of the Chief Justice to become a director of the fund; and the fact that he became legal adviser to the fund does not, in my opinion, amount to anything unprofessional in his conduct. The fee he was getting was a very small one. I must, therefore, agree with my learned brother in holding that the learned Trial Judge was not right in passing the strictures he passed on the Vakil.

The directors of the fund also have a grievance because it is suggested by the learned Judge that the share-holders may make a claim against them. That is a matter with which we are not concerned at all. So far as I can see the directors have done nothing to justify a claim by the share-holders but I do not wish to say anything more about it. I agree that this appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs, three sets.

V. N. V. Appeal dismissed.
Z. K.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION SECOND APPEAL No. 241 OF 1925.
November 25, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Sulaiman.
Musammat BITTEE—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPELLANT
versus
Pandit KANHAIYA LAL MISIR—DECREE-HOLDER—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182—Execution of decree—Sale of decree—Application for execution by purchaser directed to be filed owing to defect in sale-deed—Removal of defect—Fresh application—Limitation.

The purchaser of a decree from a decree-holder made an application for execution of the decree but it was discovered that the number of the decree was entered incorrectly in the deed of sale. The application for execution was, however, merely ordered to be "filed". The purchaser then obtained another sale-deed which described the decree correctly and made a fresh application for execution:

Held, that the previous application having been ordered to be simply 'filed' and not having been struck off owing to a default of the decree-holder, must be deemed to have been still pending when the subsequent application was made and that the subsequent application must be treated as an application for revival of the previous application and no question of limitation arose in respect of the subsequent application, which in its turn could be availed of as giving a fresh start of limitation. [p. 870, col. 2; p. 871, col. 1.]

Execution second appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Benares, dated the 8th November 1924.

Mr. Hazari Lal Kapoor, for the Appellant.
Mr. Panna Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a judgment-debtor's appeal arising out of certain execution proceedings. In 1913 a final decree for partition was passed in favour of Sheo Shanker the vendor of the contesting respondent. Applications for execution were made by Sheo Shanker in 1914 and in subsequent years but no delivery of possession could be made. On the 2nd of October 1916 Sheo Shanker executed a sale-deed in favour of the present respondent. On the strength of this sale-deed Sheo Shanker's vendee filed an application for execution on the 9th of January 1918. Notice was ordered to be issued on this application and was served on the judgment-debtor Musammat Bittee. On the 10th of May 1918 she filed objections to the execution. She did not plead that the application of the 9th of January 1918 was in any way barred by time, nor did she plead that Kanhaiya Lal Misir was not a transferee of the decree and was not entitled to execute it. The only objection which she raised was that he could not execute the decree without first paying her Rs. 30 allowed under the partition decree. Subsequently on the 8th of June 1918 Sheo Shanker the original decree-holder filed an application stating that he had transferred the decree to the applicant who should be allowed to execute it. On the 15th of June 1918 the application came up for disposal. The Court looked at the copy of the sale-deed filed by the applicant and noticed that the number of the decree mentioned in it was slightly different from the number of the decree sought to be executed. The Court thought that apparently the transfer was of some other decree. If that was its real conclusion, it ought to have dismissed the application on the ground that Kanhaiya Lal Misir had no locus standi to execute the decree. The Court, however, did not dismiss the application nor rejected it, nor did it even strike it off. It was simply ordered to be 'filed'.

On the 6th of September 1918 Kanhaiya Lal got a second registered document executed in which the mistake in the previous sale-deed was corrected. He then filed a fresh application on the 2nd of May 1921 for execution. This time he did not file a copy of the decree along with this application and though the Court on several occasions granted him time to file a copy he failed to do so. His application was ultimately struck off. He then filed another application on the 15th of January 1924 which also was struck off. Lastly he filed the present application on the 21st of May 1924 for execution. The judgment-debtor filed objections to the execution. The Courts below have overruled those objections and have allowed the execution to proceed. The judgment-debtor has come up in second appeal. The learned Counsel for the appellant had not urged any plea of want of right in the respondent to execute the decree, nor has he urged any plea of res judicata. The only plea urged before me is that the present application is barred by time. The argument for the appellant is that there being no valid sale-deed of the decree on the 9th of January 1918, Kanhaiya Lal had no locus standi to make the application. His application, therefore, was not according to law. It is further urged that in any case the Court by its order dated the 15th of June 1918 decided that the transfer was of a different decree. It is then urged that if the application of the 9th of January 1918 was itself not according to law the subsequent applications cannot be deemed to be applications within time or according to law.

The Courts below have taken the view that there was a mere mistake in the sale-deed which was subsequently corrected and that it was the intention of the parties that the decree should be transferred. The learned Judge has relied on the case of Salekhan v. Vishvanath (1) and held that a mistake of that kind was a technical one and could be cured subsequently. If, however, the order of the 15th of June 1918 were to be taken to be an adjudication that there was no transfer of the decree in favour of Kanhaiya Lal then there would be difficulty in the way of the respondent in saying that this application of the 9th of January 1918 in spite of that adjudication must be deemed to have been in accordance with law. The Court, however, did not pass any formal order allowing the objections nor did it pass any formal order dismissing the application. The order that it should be filed, whatever the true intention might have been, was meaningless. I have already said that the plea of res judicata is not urged before me. It is, therefore, impossible to say that the Courts below were precluded from holding that the original sale-deed was in reality a sale-deed of the decree though a mistake crept in in its number. That being so it cannot be doubted that the application of the 9th of January 1918 was not incompetent.

(1) 9 Ind. Cas. 349; 13 Bom. L. R. 22.

That application having been ordered to be simply 'filed' and not having been struck off owing to a default of the decree-holder must be deemed to have been still pending when the application of the 2nd of May 1921 was filed. Although this last application purported to be a fresh application for execution it can be treated as an application for revival, as has been done in several cases. I may only mention the case of Qamaruddin Ahmad v. Jawahir Lal (2). This application for revival would then at the very least become a step-in-aid of execution. The application of the 15th of January 1924 would then be within three years of this last step and that application in its turn would make the present application within time.

I am, therefore, bound to hold that the application was not barred by time and I accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(2) 27 A. 334; 2 A. L. J. 397; 1 C. L. J. 381; 9 C. W. N. 601; 15 M. L. J. 258; 32 I. A. 102; 7 Bom. L. R. 433; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 810 (P. C.).

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

Civil Rule No. 801 of 1925.
July 22, 1925.
Present:—Justice Sir Hugh Walmsley, Kt., and Mr. Justice Mukerji.
SACHINDRA LAL MITTER—
Defendant No. 2—Petitioner
versus
PANCHANON MITTER and others—
Opposite Party.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 94, O. XXXIX, r. 1—Suit for declaration—Temporary injunction, whether can be granted.

In a suit for declaration of title which contains no prayer for any injunction which may last after the disposal of the suit, the plaintiff is not entitled to ask for a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the exercise of his rights by the plaintiff during the pendency of the suit.

Application under s. 115 of the C. P. C., 1908, in the matter of Miscellaneous Appeal No. 75 of 1925 of the Court of the First Additional District Judge of 24-Perganas (Alipur), and in Title Suit No. 15 of 1925 of the Subordinate Judge, Second Court, 24-Perganas, (Alipur).

Dr. Bijan Kumar Mukerji, for the Petitioner.

Babus Rupendra Coomar Mitter, Mrtyunjoy Chattopadhya and Panna Lal Dutt, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

Mukerji, J.—It is unnecessary to set out the facts connected with the litigation out of which this application arises as they have been set out in detail in the judgments of the two lower Courts. The application arises out of an order issuing a temporary injunction restraining the defendants, one of whom the defendant No. 2 is the petitioner before us, from interfering with the possession of the plaintiffs. The sole question before us now is whether the Courts below had jurisdiction to pass the order of temporary injunction complained of in this case. The order has been made in connection with a suit which is now pending in the second Court of the Subordinate Judge of the 24 Perganas. The prayers in the plaint in that suit are substantially as follows: (a) that the right of the plaintiffs who are three in number, as shebaits of certain deities may be declared; (b) that it may be declared that the three plaintiffs are entitled to the management of the debutter properties for a period of three years commencing from the 1st Magh 1331, B. S., each of the plaintiffs being entitled to such management for a period of one year; (c) that the defendants be restrained from interfering with the possession of the plaintiff No. 1 till the decision of the suit; the prayers (d), (e) and (f), that if necessary a scheme may be framed, need not be referred to as they relate to certain consequential reliefs. It is clear, therefore, that the suit is not for recovery of possession against the defendants. In cl. (c) to which I have already referred, the plaintiffs pray for an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with their possession only till the decision of the suit. There is, therefore, no prayer for any injunction which may last after the disposal of the suit. The question is whether, upon prayers such as these, a temporary injunction may be issued by the Court in connection with the suit. In order to determine this question, we have to refer to the application upon which this injunction has been granted. The application filed by the plaintiffs supported by the affidavit of the plaintiff No. 1 states, first of all, the facts relating to the suit that is now pending. In para. 2 of the application, it is distinctly stated that the plaintiff No. 1 is now in possession of the properties which form the subject-matter of the suit, having been put in possession thereof by the last manager

Kanailal Mitter. In para. 3, it is stated that, if the defendants be not restrained from interfering with the possession of the plaintiff No. 1, there will be a serious dislocation of business, the properties will be wasted, the sheba and puja of the deities will suffer as there will be no realization from the debutter properties and there will be breaches of the peace. Upon these allegations, it is difficult to say how a case justifying an injunction either under the provisions of O. XXXIX or s. 94 of the C. P. C. has been made out. Indeed, the learned Vakil appearing on behalf of the opposite party does not profess to contend that the case comes within the purview of O. XXXIX, C. P. C., but he urges that the injunction granted should not be disturbed inasmuch as it was really issued in accordance with the terms of s. 94, C. P. C., to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated. The allegations taken at their highest amount to this that, if an injunction is not granted, there will be interference in the plaintiffs' collection of rents, that there may be apprehension of a breach of the peace and that there may be disturbances of the plaintiff No. 1's peaceful possession of the properties to which he has been put in possession. These allegations even if established would not, having regard to the nature of the suit and the reliefs prayed for, bring the case within the scope of s. 94, C. P. C., and it cannot be said that, even if these allegations be true, the refusal to grant a temporary injunction would defeat the ends of justice. Whatever other remedies he may have in the matter, injunction in the present suit is not his remedy. In this view of the matter, I am of opinion that the order that has been passed restraining the defendants from interfering with the plaintiffs' possession till the decision of the suit has been passed without jurisdiction. I would, therefore, make the Rule absolute and set aside the order passed by the Court below with costs to the petitioners, the hearing-fee being assessed at two gold mohurs.

Walmsley, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Rule made absolute.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL NO. 31 OF 1925.
March 8, 1926.
Present:—Sir Grimwood Mears, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Lindsay.
Babu SHEO DARSHAN SINGH—OPPOSITE PARTY—APPELLANT
versus
BENI CHAUDHRI AND OTHERS—
APPLICANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage—Redemption decree—Costs, whether charge on mortgaged property—Decree, interpretation of.

Costs awarded to the mortgagee in a redemption suit are, as a rule, added to the amount of the security, and the mortgagor is made personally liable for them only in very exceptional cases of misconduct.

It is competent to the Court in the exercise of its discretion to award the costs personally against the mortgagor, but where the terms of the decree are ambiguous it ought not to be construed in such a manner as to enable the mortgagee to realise his costs personally from the mortgagor.

Amina Bibi v. Ram Shanker Misar, 50 Ind. Cas. 730; 41 A. 473; 17 A. L. J. 582, followed.

Letters Patent Appeal against a judgment of Mr. Justice Daniels (differing from that of Mr. Justice Mukerji), dated the 18th December 1924.

Mr. Shiva Prasad Sinha for Mr. Haribans Sahai, for the Appellant.

Mr. U. S. Bajpai, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This case comes before us by reason of a difference of opinion between the Judges who decided Second Appeal No. 1696 of 1922.

The question is one of the interpretation of a decree passed in a suit for redemption of a mortgage, and the facts may shortly be stated as follows:—

Babu Sheo Darshan Singh brought a suit for redemption of a mortgage and obtained on the 22nd of April 1919 a preliminary decree. The Court found that the plaintiff had to pay for redemption a sum of Rs. 1,747-8-6 for principal and interest and Rs. 69-2-0 for costs, making a total of Rs. 1,816-10-6.

The item for costs just referred to included only two-thirds of the costs incurred by the defendants-mortgagees.

This sum was deposited by the plaintiff-mortgagor in Court and on the 26th of June 1919 a final decree under O. XXXIV, r. 8 was passed. On the 15th of July 1919 the plaintiff was put in possession of the mortgaged property.

Meanwhile the mortgagees appealed against the preliminary decree and on the 2nd of December 1920 the Appellate Court varied the preliminary decree by directing the payment of a larger sum and also by giving direction for payment of certain costs. The time for payment was extended by the appellate decree to the 2nd of March 1921. Before this latter date the plaintiff did deposit in Court an extra sum of Rs. 175 making a total of Rs. 1,991-10 6. There was, however, due from him under the appellate decree a further sum of Rs. 45-6-0 in respect of costs, and this sum he did not pay before the date in question.

On the 18th of June 1921 the mortgagees applied to the Court and asked to be restored to possession of the mortgaged property, on the grounds that the decree of the Appellate Court had modified the decree of the Court of first instance and that the full sum payable by the plaintiff-mortgagor had not been deposited in Court. The mortgagee also asked for mesne profits for the period covered by the plaintiff's possession. The defendants got an order for re-delivery of possession and also got an order entitling them to Rs. 800 as mesne profits for two years. The plaintiff then appealed on the ground that he had in effect complied with the terms of the appellate decree and was not entitled to re-deliver possession to the mortgagees. In other words his plea was that the payment of the above mentioned sum. of Rs. 45-6-0 was not a condition precedent to his obtaining redemption and to his being entitled to retain possession of the mortgaged property.

The question arose, therefore, whether this sum of Rs. 45-6-0, costs awarded in appeal, was a charge on the mortgaged property. Was this sum added to the mortgage money? The two learned Judges of this Court have differed in their opinion regarding this matter. It appears to us, however, that the view taken by Mr. Justice Daniels is the correct view and that, as a matter of law, this sum of Rs. 45-6-0 was a charge on the mortgaged property. It is true that in the decree of the Appellate Court there was some confusion regarding the order for costs. The Appellate Court was of opinion that the defendants-mortgagees were entitled to their full costs in the Court of first instance, that is to say to a sum over Rs. 100 and it made an order accordingly. It laid down that the plaintiff-mortgagor was liable to pay Rs-1,991-10-6 by the 2nd of March 1921, and then went on to give further direction regarding costs. Both sides admit that as framed the additional order regarding costs was erroneous in respect of the amount specified but there is no dispute whatever that a sum of Rs. 45-6-0 was payable by the mortgagor under the Appellate Court's decree. The question, whether costs awarded in the manner just referred to were a charge on the mortgaged property, is one regarding which the law is well-settled and in this connection we may refer to the statement of the law laid down in Ghose's Law of Mortgage in India, 4th Edition, Vol. I, page 619. Speaking of redemption the learned author says: " But the costs of the action will, as a rule, be only added to the amount of the security; and the mortgagor will be made personally liable for them only in very exceptional cases of misconduct." The learned author goes on to say that it is certainly competent to the Court in the exercise of its discretion to award the costs personally against the mortgagor but where the terms of the decree are ambiguous it ought not to be construed in such a manner as to enable the mortgagee to realise his costs personally from the mortgagor. The law has been laid down in the same sense in a case in this Court reported as Amina Bibi v. Ram Shanker Misar (1). We think, therefore, that the interpretation put upon this decree by Mr. Justice Daniels was a correct one, and in accordance with the law as explained above. It follows, therefore, that the mortgagor, having failed to make a deposit in Court of the full sum charged upon the property, was not entitled to retain, possession as against the mortgagees after the decree had been passed in appeal. We approve of the view taken by Mr. Justice Daniels and dismiss this appeal with costs including fees on the higher scale.

S. S.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 50 Ind. Cas. 730; 41 A. 473; 17 A. L. J. 582.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE NO. 7 OF 1924.

December 22, 1924.

Present:—Justice Sir Ewart Greaves, KT., and Mr. Justice Chakravarti.

JATINDRA CHANDRA BANERJEE
—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
MURLIDHAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 116—'Latent defect, meaning of—Sale by sample—Open delivery—Refund, suit for, whether maintainable—Damages.

Where in a case of sale of goods by sample open delivery is taken after examination of the goods and the goods are subsequently discovered to be defective, the purchaser cannot claim a refund of the purchase-money, his only remedy is by way of damages. [p. 875, col. 1.]

The expression "latent defect" in s. 116 of the Contract Act means a defect which is not obvious to the eye and is not apparently noticeable. [p 875, col. 2.]

Section 116 of the Contract Act is applicable to a case of sale by sample. [ibid.]

Appeal against a decree of Mr. Justice Buckland, dated the 11th December 1923.

Sir B. C. Mitter and Mr. I. B. Sen, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Pugh and Moor, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Chakravarti, J.—The defendant appeals against the judgment of Mr. Justice Buckland delivered on the 11th December 1923 decreeing the suit of the plaintiff for refund of the purchase-money of certain goods.

The facts are shortly these:—On the 13th October 1922 the plaintiff purchased from the defendant ready goods, three cases of Black Italian for Rs. 6,002-5-6 and took open delivery of the goods on the same day from the godowns of Messrs. Cox & Co. in three boxes of which two had already been opened and two pieces were taken out for samples. It is the plaintiff's case that the pieces were counted at the time of delivery and no question was then raised that there was any deficiency in the goods or that the goods were not up to the sample.

It appears that the defendant on his turn had purchased the said goods from Cox & Co. and in fact on the same day paid Rs. 5,402-2-0, to Cox & Co. the price for which he had purchased the goods.

The goods continued in the possession of the plaintiff and on the 9th November for the first time the plaintiff wrote to the defendant that the goods were found tender (i. e. rotten). The defendant replied to this letter on the 10th alleging that the open delivery of the goods were taken after examining them in the presence of the broker and no objections were taken before that date. Then after demand for refund of the purchase price, this suit was brought on the 26th January 1922.

The defendant in his written statement stated that the delivery of the goods was taken after full inspection and that the plaintiff had no right to reject the goods and that the "alleged rejection was not made within a reasonable time."

A number of issues were raised and the only claim in the issues was for refund and not for damages.

The evidence adduced in the case was not so full as it might be, but that was owing to the fault of the parties and consequently the learned Judge had to decide the matter on the record as it was. It appears that the goods were surveyed by a professional surveyor who made a report on the 27th November 1922 and Mr. H. R. Stark, the surveyor was examined in the case and proved his report.

The learned Judge found upon the evidence that the sale was by sample and that the goods were rotten and unsaleable. Further the learned Judge has found that the plaintiff had no reason to suspect between the 13th October and 7th November that the condition of the goods was unsatisfactory and that in the circumstances of the delay in claiming rejection of the goods was not unreasonable. Then the learned Judge held that the plaintiff exercised no act of ownership beyond keeping the goods in his godown. On these findings the learned Judge made a decree in favour of the plaintiff directing a refund of the money claimed.

Sir B. C. Mitter for the appellant contended that the plaintiff has made out no case for damages and his only case was for refund of the purchase-money and that case should fail because the plaintiff exercised acts of ownership by selling the goods and there was unreasonable delay before the plaintiff complained against the soundness of the goods. The learned Counsel further contended that assuming that the plaintiff was entitled to claim damages the plaintiff has failed to prove what the damages really were. It was further contended that the goods were according to sample and that the defect in the goods, if any, was a latent defect and that under s. 116 of the Contract Act the defendant was not liable to pay damages. In support of his last contention he strongly relied upon the report and the deposition of Mr. Stark.

As to the first point, Mr. Pugh for the respondent, at the very outset stated that he would not press his claim for refund and he would be content with a decree for damages and that as the value of the goods was only Rs. 50 he asked for a decree for the amount claimed less that amount, It appears to us that in the circumstances, the plaintiff could not claim a refund of the purchase-money, his remedy if any would be by way of damages and not refund.

It further appears to us that the plaintiff after he took possession of the goods, exercised acts of possession as an owner when he sold some of the goods on the 25th and 26th of October to sub-purchasers who according to the plaintiff returned the goods to him as unsaleable. We are not satisfied that the delay in rejecting the goods was a reasonable delay and that after exercising acts of ownership in the goods the plaintiff could not claim refund of the purchase-money.

We agree with the learned Judge in his finding that the goods were not saleable and their value was only Rs. 20 as established by the evidence of Mr. Stark and there was no rebutting evidence on the point. There was an alternative claim for damages in the plaint and evidence was led on this point.

The most important point is the question as to whether or not the defect in the goods was a latent defect within the meaning of s. 116 of the Contract Act.

The report and the evidence of Mr. Stark conclusively show that on outward view the goods appeared to be perfect. I quote a passage from his report where he says:—

"An examination of the cloth in 3 and 4 was made and although the paper wrappers and tape which secured same appeared in perfect orders, the cloth itself, which also appeared on inspection to be undamaged was when tested by tearing found to be partially rotten."

"The state of the cloth which renders it of little value and quite unacceptable by the buyers for sound goods is due, in my opinion, to the effect of the fumes from some substance like bleaching powder."

The vendor failed to detect the defect when open delivery of the goods was taken and in fact it was not detected until a long time after when the sub-purchasers returned the goods. There can then be no question that the defect was one which was not obvious to the eye and could not be detected without testing the strength of the cloth.

There is no suggestion that the vendor was guilty of any fraud in the matter. In fact he bought the goods as they were lying in the godowns and made only a small profit on the bargain and there was no special warranty for quality by the defendant.

Section 116 of the Contract Act runs as follows :—" In the absence of fraud and of any express warranty of quality, the seller of an article which answers the description under which it was sold is not responsible for a latent defect in it".

The word "latent defect" is not defined in the Act. Taking the illustration as a guide, it seems clear that the word 'latent defect' means a defect which is not obvious to the eye and is not apparently noticeable.

The English Sales of Goods Act defines the word but that is of little help to us in construing a different Act. The learned Counsel for the plaintiff did not contend that the defect was not a "latent" one within the meaning of s. 116 but he contended that s. 116 did not apply to a case of sale by sample. No authority for this proposition was cited before us. On a careful reading of the sections of the Contract Act beginning with s. 110 to s. 116 we find nothing in them which would suggest that the operation of s. 116 is limited in that way.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the defendant is not liable for damages for a defect in the goods which was a latent one within the meaning of s. 116 of the Contract Act.

The result, therefore, is that this appeal is allowed and that the plaintiff's suit should be dismissed with costs in all Courts.

Greaves, J.—I agree.

Z. K.   Appeal allowed.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 61 OF 1924.

February 1, 1926.

Present :—Mr. Justice Hasan and Mr. Justice Raza.

Syed MOHAMMAD ZAFAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat KANIZ SAIYADA AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint—Court-fee not tendered—Procedure—Amendment at late stage.

An application for amendment of a plaint should not be rejected on the ground that the necessary Court-fee had not been paid with the application. The application should be granted and the plaintiff required to pay the requisite Court-fee within a time fixed by the Court. [p. 876, col. 2.]

Under O. VI, r. 17, C. P. C., all amendments ought to be allowed at any stage of the proceedings which satisfy the two conditions:

(a) of not working injustice to the other side, and [p. 877, col. 1.]

(b) of being necessary for the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties. [ibid.]

Appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Sultanpur, dated the 21st September 1924.

Messrs. Niamat Ullah and Ali Zaheer, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. Wasim, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a declaratory suit. The plaintiff is the son of one Mohammad Baqar of Isauli, who died on the 22nd October 1922 leaving zemindari property in certain villages in the Sultanpur District. The defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are the daughters of Mohammad Baqar and the defendant No. 3 is his widow. On the death of Mohammad Baqar mutation was effected in favour of the parties in respect of the shares they were entitled to under the Muhammadan Law. The shares are as follows:—

Plaintiff 7-annas.
Defendant No. 1 3½-annas.
Defendant No. 2 3½-annas.
Defendant No. 3 2-annas.

The plaintiff brought the present suit on the 3rd November 1923, alleging that he alone was in possession of the entire property left by Mohammad Baqar and that he alone was entitled to the entire property, the defendants being excluded from inheritance by a custom. He prayed for a declaration that he was entitled to the 9-annas share in respect of which mutation had been effected in favour of the defendants by order of the Revenue Court.

The defendants Nos. 2 and 3 filed their written statements admitting the plaintiff's claim. The suit was resisted by the defendant No. 1 alone. She denied the plaintiff's allegations about possession and custom and contended that she was in rightful possession of the share which she was entitled to under the Muhammadan Law as an heir of Mohammad Baqar deceased. It was further pleaded that the suit for declaration was not maintainable as the plaintiff was not in possession of the share in dispute.

The learned Subordinate Judge decreed the plaintiff's claim for declaration with respect to the 5½-annas share of the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 who confessed the judgment However he dismissed the claim against the defendant No. 1 with respect to her 3½-annas share on the finding that the plaintiff was not in possession of that share and the suit for mere declaration was not, therefore, maintainable.

The plaintiff has filed this appeal challenging the finding on the point decided against him. It is also contended that the learned Subordinate Judge was wrong in not granting the plaintiff's applications for amendment of the plaint.

We think this appeal should be allowed. The appellant's prayer, that the decree of lower Court be set aside and the case remanded for decision on merits, must be granted.

The plaintiff filed an application on the 22nd January 1924 for amendment of the plaint praying for insertion of a relief for recovery of possession in case the plaintiff was not found in possession of the property in dispute. That application was rejected on the ground that the necessary Court-fee had not been paid with the application. The plaintiff filed another application for amendment to the same effect on the 30th August 1924. This application was accompanied with the requisite amount of Court-fee. This second application was also rejected. It was rejected on the ground that it was filed too late as the parties had closed their evidence on all the points. The arguments were concluded on the 27th August and the case was then reserved for judgment.

We think the learned Subordinate Judge did not exercise his discretion properly in rejecting the applications for amendment in this case. No difficulty would have arisen if the first application for amendment had been allowed and proper order passed thereon. That application should not have been rejected on the ground that the necessary Court-fee had not been paid with the application. This was irregular. The application should have been granted and the plaintiff required to pay the requisite amount of Court-fee within the time fixed by the Court. If he had failed to comply with the order then he would have suffered the consequences. It was not necessary for him to pay the Court-fee just at the time he had presented the application for amendment.

The second application was of course filed late; but having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, we think it ought to have been allowed even at that late stage. The learned Subordinate Judge has himself observed in his judgment that applications for amendment may be allowed at a very late stage of the suit even in second appeal. He has rejected the application observing, that "the loss caused to the plaintiff by the dismissal of the suit on this ground would not be irretrievable as the fresh suit after this will not be barred on any ground." This being the case, the application should have been allowed to avoid multiplicity of suits. Under O. VI, r. 17, C. P. C. all amendments ought to be allowed at any stage of the proceedings which satisfy the two conditions:

(a) of not working injustice to the other side, and

(b) of being necessary for the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties.

The amendment applied for does not alter the real matter in controversy between the contending parties. The learned Subordinate Judge has not rejected the application for amendment on that ground. We do not think that the amendment would have caused the contesting defendant an injury which could not be compensated in costs. We find that both parties have led evidence on the whole case and it is necessary that findings should be given on all the issues arising on the case. The suit should be finally determined.

We allow the appeal. The decree of the lower Court is set aside as against the contesting defendant. The plaintiff's application for amendment dated the 30th August 1924 is allowed. The plaint will be amended accordingly. The plaintiff should pay Rs. 100 as costs to the contesting defendant in this connection, within one month hence. The case is remanded to the lower Court for decision on merits under O. XLI, r. 23, Sch. I of the C. P. C. No fresh evidence will be admitted on the issues on which the parties have already produced their evidence and closed their respective cases. The Court-fee stamp which has been returned to the plaintiff by the lower Court should be filed in that Court before the case is taken up by that Court. Costs here and hitherto will abide the result.

We find the plaintiff has filed an application for revision against an order rejecting his application for amendment of the decree. It is contended that the Pleader's fee was not correctly entered in the decree. The learned Subordinate Judge rejected the application on the ground that there was an appeal from the original decree to this Court and the point could be taken up here. As the decree has been set aside, this application should be dismissed. Now there will be a fresh decree when the suit is finally determined by the lower Court as directed above. No order as to costs of this application.

N. H. Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 354 OF 1925.

November 25, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sulaiman.

DEBI BAKHSH—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

FIRM SHAMBHU DIAL-GANGA PRASAD—DECREE-HOLDERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182—Decree passed against wrong person by mistake—Application for execution—Amendment—Substitution of judgment-debtor's name—Limitation, extension of—Previous application, whether in accordance with law.

In a suit in which there were several defendants the Court purporting to pass a decree against one particular defendant passed it by mistake against another. The decree-holder made several applications for execution of the decree against the defendant whose name was entered in the decree. The latter then applied for amendment of the decree and the decree was amended by striking out his name and substituting the name of the defendant against whom the Court had intended to pass the decree. This was done more than three years after the date of the passing of the decree. When the decree-holder made an application for execution of the decree against the defendant whose name was entered in the decree on amendment an objection was taken that the application was barred by time:

Held, (1) that so long as the wrong decree stood, the only person against whom the decree-holder could proceed in execution was the person whose name was entered in the decree and that, therefore, the applications made by the decree-holder for execution prior to the amendment of the decree were made in accordance with law within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and operated to save limitation; [p. 879, col. 1.]

(2) that the present application having been filed within three years of the last application was within time; [p. 879, col. 2.]

(3) that on another view of the case, it was not possible for the decree-holder to execute the decree against the real judgment-debtor till the date of the amendment and that it was only after the amendment that a right to apply to execute the decree against him had accrued and that for this reason also the application was within time. [ibid.]

Execution second appeal from a decree of the First Subordinate Judge, Cawnpore, dated the 13th November 1924.

Mr. S. N. Seth, for the Appellant.

Mr. U. S. Bajpai, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a judgment-debtor's appeal arising out of an execution proceeding. A curious point of law arises in this case owing to a mistake made by the Court of first instance when passing the decree. The suit was instituted against three persons whose names were mentioned in the plaint in a certain order. The learned Munsif, when writing his judgment, altered the serial numbers of the defendants and although apparently he intended to pass a decree against the appellant Debi Bakhsh, the decree was passed against Bhawani Shankar on the 16th of January 1916. The plaintiff armed with this decree against Bhawani Shankar proceeded to execute it. Applications for execution were filed against Bhawani Shankar on the 23rd of July 1919, on the 13th of July 1922 and on the 26th of February 1923. With regard to this last application it may be mentioned that originally the names of all the three defendants were included in this application but when objections were raised by persons whose names were not to be found in the decree, the decree-holder's Vakil naturally exempted them and asked for execution against Bhawani Shankar alone.

Bhawani Shankar then filed an application for amendment of the decree on the ground that it was not the intention of the judgment to decree the claim against him. Owing to a second blunder, notice of this application was not sent to Debi Bakhsh the appellant, but only to the plaintiff-decree-holder. The Court being satisfied that Bhawani Shankar had not been made liable amended the decree and substituted the name of Debi Bakhsh in place of Bhawani Shankar on the 5th of January 1924, although no notice had been issued to Debi Bakhsh.

The decree-holder then put in an application for execution of this amended decree on the 28th of January 1924 against Debi Bakhsh. Debi Bakhsh objected to the execution. His objections were disallowed by the first Court. He appealed to the lower Appellate Court and the only point urged before that Court was that the present application for execution was barred by time. His appeal, however, has been dismissed.

In second appeal the learned Vakil for the appellant contends that inasmuch as there were no proceedings in execution against Debi Bakhsh from the date of the decree till the supposed amendment the decree had become dead and no amount of amendment could revive it. His contention is that the present application for execution, even though it be within three years from the date of the amendment, is barred by time. His second contention is that the decree-holder having exempted him in Execution Department once before is now estopped from asking execution against him, and the third point, though not taken in the grounds of appeal, is that the amendment, having been made behind his back, is a nullity and not binding on him.

If one reads the language of Art. 182 (4) of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908) the first impression would be that an application for execution if made within three years of the date of its amendment is within time. That would seem to be a proper inference on its literal construction, as there are not any further qualifying words. But it does seem to have been held in several cases that if the decree was time-barred, and in that sense had become dead, its amendment would not give the decree-holder a fresh start. I may refer to the case of Anandram v. Nityananda Barham (1) which was followed in the case of Rabiuddin v. Ram Kanai Sen (2). As it is not absolutely necessary in this case to decide this point finally I assume this contention to be correct, that is to say I assume that if the decree had become time-barred on the date of its amendment then the decree-holder cannot get a fresh start.

As regards the question of an amendment behind the back of the appellant I must concede that it was unfair to amend the decree without giving Debi Bakhsh an opportunity to show cause against it. But if the amendment has been wrongly made it is still open to Debi Bakhsh to apply to the Original Court which has amended the decree for a review of its order on the ground that it was passed behind his back and that it is unjust or wrong. It is not necessary for me in this appeal to express any final opinion as to whether the order for amendment was right or wrong. I have in stating the facts assumed it for the purpose of this appeal that the amendment was correct.

---

(1) 32 Ind. Cas. 744.

(2) 59 Ind. Cas. 186.

As regards the question of exemption it is obvious that the decree-holder's Vakil was bound to exempt Debi Bakhsh and Debi Sahai from the execution proceedings taken under the wrong decree. The names of these persons were not in the decree and they could not be proceeded against. That exemption, in my opinion, would not amount to an estoppel when subsequently it was discovered that the decree was wrongly prepared and was in fact amended.

The main question which I have to decide is whether the present application is barred by time. This depends on the further question whether the decree was kept alive by successive applications made in 1919, 1922 and 1923 against Bhawani Shankar whose name had been wrongly entered in the decree and not against Debi Bakhsh the true judgment-debtor. The learned Vakil for the appellant has strongly contended before me that execution proceedings taken against strangers can, in no sense, keep the decree alive and that all these applications must be deemed to have been applications not in accordance with law. He has distinguished this case from cases where execution is taken out against joint judgment-debtors. It is, no doubt, a fact that Bhawani Shankar's name was wrongly entered in the decree. But so long as the wrong decree stood, the only person against whom the decree-holder could proceed was Bhawani Shankar. He could not before amendment really proceed against Debi Bakhsh. The applications for execution which he filed were on the face of the wrong decree the only applications which he could have made and, therefore, in my opinion they must be deemed to have been made in accordance with law. The defect was not so much in the applications as in the decree sought to be executed. The applications themselves were perfectly in order. They were, therefore, proper applications under Art. 182 of the Limitation Act. If this were not the correct law then the result would be that if by a mistake the name of a wrong judgment-debtor is substituted in a decree and the mistake is not discovered for three years the decree-holder would be without any remedy. I do not consider that this is the true position. The applications were proper applications so long as the decree remained unamended with the result that the decree must be deemed to have been kept alive up to 1923. The present application having been filed within three years of the last application is also within time. In this view of the matter it is not necessary for the decree-holder to fall back on Art. 182 (4) and calculate time from the date of the amendment, namely, the 5th of January 1924. The propriety of the order of amendment has been left open by me.

There is another aspect of the case according to which also the application for execution can be held not to be time-barred. As the name of Debi Bakhsh had been omitted from the wrong decree that decree before its amendment was incapable of execution against Debi Bakhsh. It was not possible for the decree-holder to take any steps by way of execution against him. It is only since the decree has been amended and the name of Debi Bakhsh brought on the record as a judgment-debtor that a right to apply to execute the decree against him has accrued. It seems to me that under these circumstances the decree-holder is entitled to execute it against him. This view is supported to some extent by the observations in the case of Muhammad Suleman Khan v. Muhammad Yar Khan (3) that the corresponding Article in the old Limitation Act must be deemed to necessarily contemplate the existence of a decree capable of being executed at the date of the decree and that that Article would not apply if a wrong decree incapable of execution were passed.

The appeal is accordingly dismissed. As, however, a difficult point of law arose owing to the negligence of the plaintiff in not seeing that the correct decree had been prepared, I direct that the parties should bear their own costs of this appeal.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(3) 17 A. 39 at p. 41; A. W. N. (1894) 191; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 349.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 157 OF 1925.
November 13, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Cuming and
Mr. Justice B. B. Ghose.
MANMATHA NATH SETT—DEFENDANT
No. 1—APPELLANT
versus
NAGENDRA NATH BHATTACHARJYA
—PLAINTIFF AND PURNA CHANDRA DAS
AND ANOTHER—Pro forma DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXVIII, r. 6—Attachment before judgment—Past conduct of defendant.

Under O. XXXVIII, r. 6, C. P. C., the Court must be satisfied that the defendant is now about to dispose of his property with the intention of delaying and obstructing any decree that the Court might pass against him.

The mere fact that the defendant in the past mortgaged or otherwise disposed of his property is not sufficient ground for an order under O. XXXVIII, r. 6, C. P. C.

Appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge, First Court, 24-Perganahs, dated the 7th of April 1925.

Babus Braja Lal Chakravarti and Paresh Lal Shome, for the Appellant.

Babu Tarkeshwar Pal Choudhury, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Cuming, J.—This is an appeal against an order of the learned Subordinate Judge of 24-Perganahs Mr. B. K. Dutt ordering under O. XXXVIII, r. 6, C. P. C., that the property of defendant No. 1 in a certain money suit should be attached before judgment. To justify an order under this rule it is necessary that the Court should be satisfied that the defendant with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property or is about to remove the whole or any part of his property from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. Now the evidence on which the learned Subordinate Judge has apparently relied to show that defendant No. 1 is about to dispose of his property is a bare statement of the plaintiff's son on affidavit. He states on affidavit that he believes that the defendant is about to dispose of his property through two persons Bhusan Chandra Das and Mani Lal Chatterjee. No details whatever are given beyond this bare statement. It is not clear who these persons are or where they reside.

The learned Subordinate Judge has also relied on the fact that some three or four years ago the defendant and his father borrowed a sum of Rs. 25,000 and mortgaged their properties to do so. It may be here pointed out that the mere fact that the defendant in the past mortgaged his property or otherwise disposed of it would not be in itself a sufficient ground for an order under O. XXXVIII, r. 6. What we are concerned with is the present conduct of the defendant and the Court must be satisfied that he is now about to dispose of his property with the intention of delaying and obstructing any decree that the Court might pass against him. I am not satisfied on the evidence that he is about to dispose of his property. As I have pointed out the only evidence is the affidavit of the plaintiff's son. No further evidence has been produced. It is to be noted that in the affidavit it is stated that the statements made in paras. 1, 2, 3 and 4 are true to the knowledge of the deponent and all the remaining statements are true according to his information, enquiry and belief. The most important paragraphs in this affidavit are paras. 6 and 7 in which he alleges that the defendant is trying to dispose of his property; and, therefore, this portion of his statement is true according to his information, enquiry and belief. He does not inform us as to the sources of his information, enquiry and belief. Therefore this affidavit by itself is not sufficient to satisfy me that the defendant No. 1 is about to dispose of his property. As against this affidavit we have the denial of defendant No. 1. I am not, therefore, satisfied that the Court was justified in passing the order for attachment before judgment.

The appeal must, therefore, succeed and is decreed with costs. The order of the lower Court that defendant No. 1's properties (which are properties Nos. 1 and 3 and to which the appeal has been confined) should be attached before judgment must be discharged. Hearing-fee of this appeal is assessed at five gold mohurs.

Ghose, J.—I agree.

M. B. Appeal decreed.
N. H.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEALS NOS. 182 AND 183 OF 1925.
August 13, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Fawcett and
Mr. Justice Coyajee.
VALLABHRAM GANPATRAM AND OTHERS—ACCUSED—APPELLANTS
versus
EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 34, 193, 381, 466—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 30, 124—Removing Official file from proper custody—Dishonest intention—Theft—Abetment—Destruction and mutilation of documents—Exculpatory statement, whether confession—Official reports, whether privileged.

A correspondence file belonging to Government was in the custody of a mamlatdar who handed it over for safe custody to a clerk. The latter kept the file at his house, but while he was away accused No. 1, a karkun in the mamlatdar's office, obtained the key of the house from the person with whom it had been left, and removed the file Accused No. 1 then accompanied accused Nos. 2 and 3, who were interested in the property to which the file related, to the house of their Pleader who had been retained to prepare an appeal and for that purpose wanted to inspect the file. Accused No. 1 handed over the file to accused Nos. 2 and 3 at the Pleader's house and himself went away. He returned in the evening and having obtained the file from accused Nos. 2 and 3 replaced it in the house of the clerk. It was subsequently discovered that during the interval that the file had been in the possession of accused Nos. 2 and 3 one document had been abstracted and some others had been mutilated. The file contained documents of which accused Nos. 2 and 3 were not entitled to have inspection:

Held, (1) that accused No. 1 having removed the file from the possession of the clerk who had the custody of it on behalf of the mamlatdar, without the consent of the mamlatdar with intent to cause wrongful gain to accused Nos. 2 and 3, he was guilty of an offence under s. 381 of the Penal Code; [p. 883, col. 2.]

(2) that accused Nos. 2 and 3 were guilty of an offence under ss. 381/109 of the Penal Code; [p. 887, cols. 1 & 2.]

(3) that the inference was that the removal and the mutilation of the documents had been effected by one or both of accused Nos. 2 and 3; [p. 883, col. 2.]

(4) that even if it was effected by one of them in the presence of the other in furtherance of the common intention of both of them, s. 34 of the Penal Code was applicable and both of them were guilty of offences under ss. 193 and 466 of the Penal Code. [p. 887, col. 2.]

Per Fawcett, J.—A statement made by an accused person denying his guilt is not a "confession" within the meaning of s. 30 of the Evidence Act. [p. 886, col. 2]

Reports by one Government Officer to another written in official confidence are privileged under s. 124 of the Evidence Act and are not documents that an outsider has a right to inspect. [p. 886, col. 1.]

Criminal appeals from convictions and sentences passed by the Sessions Judge, Surat.

FACTS.—One Lallubhai Narsi, the father of accused No. 2 and the grandfather of accused No. 3, applied to the Government for the lease of a certain plot of land which was granted to him on the condition that, before taking possession of the land, he should cause to be built at prescribed places certain wells to be approved by the Local Board. As he took possession of the land before substantial compliance with the conditions imposed on the lease he was ordered to be evicted from the land by the Collector who sent the order, along with the correspondence file to the mamlatdar for proper compliance. The mamlatdar sent the order to his aval karkun for necessary action and himself proposed to go through the file with the help of his land correspondence clerk, Jeyshankar. The file was sent to Jeyshankar for safe custody, but when the peon took it to his house, he found it locked as the clerk was away on a private business. Jeyshankar had left the key of this house with his neighbour Premshankar with instructions to keep the file in his house when the peon brought it. Vallabhram, the accused No. 1 who was a record clerk in the mamlatdar's office came in the afternoon of the same day, obtained the key and removed the file, and along with accused Nos. 2 and 3 went to Bulsar at the residence of the latter's Pleader. While the Pleader was going through the file, accused No. 1 left for some other business and in the evening all the three accused came back and the file was re-placed. On Jeyshankar's return he demanded the file from accused No. 1 who had again taken it for the purpose of making certified copies of certain documents to be supplied to the accused Nos. 2 and 3 at their request and under orders of the mamlatdar. The accused gave back the file pointing out that certain papers were missing while others were either mutilated or altered.

Messrs. Amin, M. P. Talivala, Velinker, G. N. Thakor and R. W. Desai, for the Accused.

Mr. Kanga, Advocate-General, (with him Mr. S. S. Patkar), for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Coyajee, J.—[After stating the facts of the case His Lordship proceeded:—] On these facts, the charge Ex. I was framed. The Sessions Judge agreeing with two out of the three assessors held that accused No. 1 had removed the tumar from Jeyshankar's house, with the intention of helping accused Nos. 2 and 3 to utilise it for their own benefit by removing certain papers and altering some others. He, therefore, convicted accused No. 1 of an offence under s. 381, Indian Penal Code. He convicted accused Nos. 2 and 3 under s. 381 read with s. 109; and also under ss. 466 and 193 read with s. 34 in respect of the two mutilated documents Exs. 8 and 14. Punishments were awarded, as stated in the judgment.

On July 24, 1920, accused Vallabhram made a confession (Ex. 33) before the First Class Magistrate at Bulsar. He retracted it in the Court of the Committing Magistrate and maintained that attitude in the Sessions Court. Before us, however, his Counsel has relied on the facts set out in that statement. The learned Advocate-General, thereupon, revived his claim to rely upon it as against all the appellants. I, however, prefer not to take it into consideration as against accused Nos. 2 and 3.

On behalf of accused Nos. 2 and 3 it is contended that the tumar was not removed by them in conspiracy with accused No. 1 from Jeyshankar's house to their own Vakil Govindji's house in Bulsar, as alleged, and that the story of the prosecution is entirely false. The defence led no evidence; and the voluminous evidence adduced by the prosecution way very fully and carefully discussed before us by learned Counsel on both sides; it leaves no doubt as to the correctness of the findings recorded by the learned Judge that all the three accused persons were guilty of the offence of theft. On the morning of the 6th, accused Nos. 2 and 3 arrived in Pardi and met accused No. 1 (Exs. 34 and 57). At about noon accused No. 1 obtained from Premshankar (Ex. 65) the key of Jeyshankar's house; he opened it and removed the tumar. Accused Nos. 2 and 3 engaged a tonga of Mithal Ramji (Ex. 51), and they all went to the house of the Vakil, Govindji Vasanji (Ex. 24) at Bulsar. The tumar was shown to him. They returned to Pardi at about 9-30 at night and stayed in the house of accused No. 1 till about 11 P.M. The evidence is discussed at length in paras. 10 and 11 of the judgment of the Trial Judge, who says:—

"From what has been stated above there is no doubt to my mind and the assessors are of the same opinion that in the morning of the 6th May, Vallabhram removed the file from the house of Jeyshankar and that all the three accused handled it before they took it to Bulsar on the evening of that day. All the three accused were in possession of the file till it was brought back from the Pleader's house at Bulsar to Pardi on the night of 6th May. On the next day, i. e., 7th May Vallabhram was admittedly in charge of the file because he prepared a copy of the Collector's order therefrom and handed it over to the third accused. Pranshankar (Ex. 35) and Lalbhai (Ex. 59) have stated that the three accused were seen closeted in the house of the first accused inspecting some papers on the 7th May. This evidence seems to be correct and practically speaking Vallabhram retained charge of the file till it was returned to Jeyshankar on the morning of the 8th in a mutilated condition."

The evidence completely supports this conclusion.

It is, however, contended that the removal of the tumar from Jeyshankar's house does not constitute the offence of theft, because (1) it was removed (it is alleged) with Jeyshankar's consent, and (2) in any case, Vallabhram did not intend to take the tumar dishonestly out of the possession of its custodian.

On the first point, reliance is placed on the following statement made by Jeyshankar in his cross-examination: "I admit that I told Vallabhram that if he required the key of my drawer it was in my house whose key was with my neighbour. The purpose of telling him this was that in my absence if Deva had to take away the Income Tax papers to Surat there should be no delay." We are not concerned with the Income Tax papers. Now, the tumar was the property of Government. On the morning of 6th May it was in the possession of the mamlatdar on behalf of Government. It is not suggested that he had given his consent to its removal to Bulsar. It is true that on the morning of the 6th the mamlatdar had entrusted it to Jeyshankar for safe custody. But the possession still continued to be the possession of the mamlatdar. Jeyshankar had no power to authorise its removal, and accused No. 1 who has been for many years a karkun in the mamlatdar's office presumably knew it. Indeed, it was because he knew it that he obtained the key from Premshankar under a false pretext. But however that may be, the removal of the tumar from Jeyshankar's house without the consent of the mamlatdar was sufficient to satisfy the requirements of s. 378, Indian Penal Code, provided the act was done with a dishonest intention. And, in my opinion, it would have made no difference even if Jeyshankar had consented to its removal, for such consent was outside the scope of his authority [see Reg. v. Hanmanta (1).] The object of removing the tumar from Jeyshankar's house was to show it to Lallubhai's legal adviser for enabling him to find therein materials for getting the Collector's order reversed; Jeyshanker could not—as indeed he did not—consent to such removal.

On the second point it was contended for Vallabhram that when he removed the tumar he did not intend to take it dishonestly; the Collector's order of eviction was to be carried out on or about May 15: accused Nos. 2 and 3 were in urgent need of copies of some of the documents; and the mamlatdar's office being closed on the 6th, such copies could not be obtained on that day in regular way; he, therefore, yielded to their entreaty to take the tumar to their Vakil in order that he might see the original order passed by the Collector. Accused Nos. 2 and 3 deny these allegations, and according to them this argument has no foundation in truth. They have, however, adopted the argument. The question then is one of intention. Now, direct evidence to prove a man's intention is seldom necessary and is not always available. In this case, the evidence sufficiently establishes the following facts: (1) The tumar was intact when Vallabhram removed it from Jeyshankar's house. (2) All the three accused persons handled it before they took it to Bulsar. (3) They were in possession of it till some time after it was brought back to Pardi at about 9-30 P. M. on the 6th. (4) On the 7th Vallabhram was admittedly in charge of the tumar. (5) On that day the three accused persons were seen in Vallabhram's house inspecting some papers (Exs. 35 and 59). (6) On the 6th and the 7th the tumar was handled by these persons and by no one else. (7) On the 8th, the tumar was handed over by Vallabhram to Jeyshankar in a mutilated condition—one document (being Mr. Lakhia's report) was entirely missing, and at least two documents (Exs. 8 and 9) had been mutilated, the nature of the mutilation being apparent on the face of them. In my opinion, it is unnecessary for purposes of this case to try and ascertain, as the learned Judge has done, the full extent of the damages done to the tumar during the time that it was available to these three persons. It is proved beyond doubt that Mr. Lakhia's report did form part of the tumar, and that Exs. 8 and 9 were intact, on the morning of the 6th May. The destruction of the said report, and the mutilation of Exs. 8 and 9 were clearly intended to support the petition which Lallubhai's Vakil prepared on the 8th or the 9th May and which was presented to the Commissioner on the 10th. The learned Judge has shown in paras. 13 and 14 of his judgment how this damage was calculated to advance the cause of Lallubhai. In these circumstances it was for the accused to offer an explanation as to the present condition of the tumar. No doubt, it would be unreasonable to expect any explanation from accused Nos. 2 and 3, for they have condemned the whole case for the prosecution as false from beginning to end. But accused No. 1 who admits the removal and his own possession of the tumar has offered no explanation as to its altered condition to the extent and within the period indicated above. I refer to his admission merely for the purpose of expecting an explanation from him. The attitude taken up by accused No. 1 on the one hand, and by accused Nos. 2 and 3 on the other is obviously embarrassing to all who have to deal with this case; I have, therefore, avoided all reference to Vallabhram's confessional statement, Ex. 33, in arriving at my conclusions.

In my opinion, the evidence clearly establishes the fact that Vallabhram removed the tumar with a dishonest intention, namely, with the intention of causing wrongful gain to Lallubhai. He mutilated or allowed accused Nos. 2 and 3 to mutilate the correspondence file with a view to enable Lallubhai to succeed in his appeal and as a result to retain possession of the land and the old well, which the Collector had called upon him to vacate. Even if his intention did not go so far, he enabled Lallubhai's advisers, including accused Nos. 2 and 3, to see and to read the tumar which contained, among others, documents which those persons could not lawfully have seen, and of which they knew they were not entitled to obtain copies (see Ex. 7, application of accused No. 2).

For these reasons, I would confirm the conviction of Vallabhram in Appeal No. 182, under s. 381, Indian Penal Code, and of accused Nos. 2 and 3 in Appeal No. 183, under ss. 381 and 109.

---

(1) 1 B. 610; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 405.

I would, therefore, confirm the convictions of all the three accused persons, subject to the above modification in favour of accused Nos. 2 and 3. I have considered their appeal for a reduction of sentences passed upon them. The Judge has ordered Vallabhram to suffer rigorous imprisonment for two years. To each of the accused Nos. 2 and 3 he has awarded rigorous imprisonment for two years in respect of each of the there offences—the sentences to run concurrently; there is also a fine of Rs. 500. In my opinion the reasons given by the learned Judge for awarding a deterrent punishment are sound. The offence is both serious and difficult to detect; and the case does not call for our interference.

Fawcett, J.—[After stating the facts His Lordship proceeded:—] Accused No. 1 Vallabhram agreed to the proposal of accused Nos. 2 and 3 to take the papers to their Pleader at Bulsar, and for that purpose some time in the afternoon of 6th May he got the key of Jeyshankar'a house from Premshankar on a false pretext and removed the correspondence. He then took it in a tonga with the two other accused to the house of their Pleader Govindji at Bulsar and left it with the Pleader and accused Nos. 2 and 3, or at any rate with accused Nos. 2 and 3, while he went into the town. He got back possession of it afterwards either at the Pleader's house or in the tonga, and put the papers back in Jeyshankar's house after his return. The first question to be considered on the charge of theft is whether his removal of the correspondence was without Jeyshankar's consent within the meaning of the definition of theft in s. 378, Indian Penal Code. It is clear that Jeyshankar was in proper possession of the correspondence as land correspondence clerk and chitnisi karkun. That is shown by the evidence of the aval karkun at page 21 of the paper-book, corroborated by his complaint Ex. 12 at page 43, and the evidence of the mamlatdar at page 144. The latter's evidence also shows that Jayshankar had permission to keep the papers temporarily in his house, and that the mamlatdar had given instructions that the papers should be carefully preserved in view of the likelihood of civil litigation regarding the Collector's order for evicting Lallubhai. The accused Vallabhram had no right to have possession of the correspondence except when he required it for the purpose of giving copies; or when he was required to do Jeyshankar's work in the latter's absence under the office order at page 71 of the paper-book. This is sufficiently proved by the evidence of the aval karkun at page 29. The evidence shows that Vallabhram could not legitimately have the papers on the 6th May for the purpose of giving copies, as that day was a holiday, and except by the special orders of the mamlatdar or the aval karkun copies could not be granted on that day. The applications for copies were in fact not made till the next day.

Therefore, as a matter of fact, I think it is clear that Jeyshankar did not give any authority to Vallabhram to remove the correspondence for such a purpose, and that the accused Vallabhram had no reasonable ground for conceiving that he had Jeyshankar's consent, either express or implied, to his removing the correspondence for that purpose. In my opinion, therefore, the removal so far as Jeyshankar is concerned, was without Jeyshankar's consent.

I think, however, that, even if Jeyshankar had consented, this would not protect the accused. The correspondence, as is admitted before us, was the property of Government. The evidence shows that the file went from office to office as the correspondence proceeded. It had come to the malatdar, because he had to carry out the order of the Collector for evicting Lallubhai. He was, therefore, in official possession of the correspondence on behalf of Government. The possession of Jeyshankar was merely that of a servant on account of the mamlatdar and of Government, as mentioned in s. 27, Indian Penal Code. It was the mamlatdar alone who could give authority for the removal of the papers away from Pardi. No doubt explanation 5 to s. 378 of the Indian Penal Code says consent may be express or implied, and may be given either by the person in possession or by any person having for that purpose authority, either express or implied. Thus Jeyshankar might have implied authority to consent to the removal of the papers from his house to the office by Vallabhram, or some other clerk, who could legitimately have them for the purpose of his duty. But there is nothing in the evidence to suggest that Jeyshankar had authority to consent to the removal of the papers for the purpose of having them shown to Govindji at Bulsar. Nor is it alleged that there was any such consent by the mamlatdar, and even if it had been given, it would not bind Government. On this point I agree with the remarks made in Reg v. Hanmanta (1). There it was held that the definition of "person" in s. 11 of the Indian Penal Code was sufficiently wide to include the Government as representative of the whole community, and that a consent, which the Forest Inspector was not authorised to give, and which was given in favour of the accomplice of his breach of trust, could not be construed into the consent of Government. The accused persons in that case were shown to have entered into a conspiracy to remove certain wood, intending thereby dishonestly to take it out of the possession of Government, without the consent of Government. The removal of the wood under those circumstances was held to be within the definition of theft in spite of the Forest Inspector's unauthorised consent to that removal. The present case is simpler, as the removal of the correspondence from Pardi was without the consent either of Government, the mamlatdar or Jeyshankar, who was a servant in possession of it on account of Government.

The next and the most important question is whether Vallabhram's intention in taking the correspondence out of this possession of Jeyshankar for Government was dishonest. On this point the Sessions Judge has held that his intention was dishonest, because he intended to help the second and the third accused in utilising the correspondence for their own benefit by removing some of the papers and altering others (page 330). I do not myself think that the evidence suffices to establish that his intention was to enable the other two accused to do this. The mere fact that the papers were tampered with does not show that accused Nos. 2 and 3 intended to remove or alter any of the papers, when they induced Vallabhram to take them to Bulsar; far less that Vallabhram knew of their intention to do so and intended to help them in that nefarious design. It obviously is improbable that he was a party to the mutilation of the correspondence, as it would be almost certain, as it actually did, to bring him into trouble. Nor does Vallabhram in his confession make any admission that supports this hypothesis. It is possible also that the conversation which the witness Mithal over heard in the tonga was really as to a protest by Vallabhram against their having taken advantage of their possession of the correspondence in this manner. Therefore, I do not hold that this intention is established against him. But it is clear that his intention was to give temporary possession of the correspondence to accused Nos. 2 and 3 and their Pleader. Vallabhram himself admits this in his confession, and pleads that many other clerks did the same thing (page 112). The question, therefore, is whether such an intention is dishonest within the meaning of s. 379, Indian Penal Code. I think that there is no doubt whatever that it is. First of all, the fact that he only meant to give a temporary possession to accused Nos. 2 and 3 and their Pleader is immaterial. Section 23 and ill. (b) to s. 378 show that a temporary keeping out of possession or giving of possession suffices to bring the case under s. 378, as ruled by this Court in Queen-Empress v. Nagappa (2). Then was there any intention of causing "wrongful gain" to accused Nos. 2 and 3 and their Pleader Govindji? Section 23 shows that their gain of the correspondence was wrongful, if it was obtained "by unlawful means." The word "unlawful" is not defined, but may be taken to correspond with the word "illegal," which is defined in s. 43; and it was explained in the Report of the Indian Law Commissioners that the two terms were intended to be used in the same sense and bear the same meaning: see Gour's Penal Law of India, Vol. I, page 202. Under s. 43 the word "illegal" is applicable to everything which is an offence, or which is prohibited by law, or which furnishes ground for a civil action. In the present case although there is no direct evidence on the point, a strong inference arises that accused Nos. 2 and 3 had bribed Vallabhram to show them the favour that he did in this case. Accused Nos. 2 and 3 are men of means, and there is no other apparent motive for Vallabhram's act. If that inference is correct, the means by which this temporary gain of the papers was obtained was an offence against the law relating to bribery in the Indian Penal Code. But leaving that aside, it is, in my opinion, clear that the conduct of Vallabhram and accused Nos. 2 and 3 would afford ground for a civil action by Government against them, since the taking of this correspondence out of the possession of Government was, in the circumstances of the case, clearly a trespass to goods, giving Government a cause of action against all three as joint tort-feasors: cf. Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. XXVII, pages 487 to 489 and pages 863 to 865. As there stated, an act of trespass may be complete by unlawful taking without any conversion, and the gist of the action is the unlawful taking or removing or damaging of a personal chattel. The taking was certainly not a lawful one, because accused Nos. 2 and 3 had no right to inspect the whole correspondence, far less to have the possession of it which they obtained. They were only entitled to have copies of orders or such other documents as would come within s. 76 of the Indian Evidence Act. Reports by one Government Officer to another written in official confidence are privileged under s. 124 of the Indian Evidence Act and are not documents that an outsider has a right to inspect. Thus rule 86 of the Rules for the conduct of the Legal Affairs of Government says:—

---

(2) 15 B. 344; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 234.

"86. The following important points relating to the conduct of all suits should be carefully attended to by all offices concerned, namely:............

(c) the production of documents in the possession of Government or of any Government Officer when required by the Court, or by the opposite party, should not be resisted unless for good and sufficient reasons such as are recognised by law; but the question of the admissibility of the documents, when produced, should be carefully considered and argued, it being borne in mind that the opinions of individual officers contained in official correspondence (which is so often called for by persons engaged in litigation with Government in order to establish their case) are, as a rule, not admissible in evidence." (Bombay Government Gazette, November 15, 1923, Pt. I, page 16, of the Notification No. 1778, dated August 31, 1923, Legal Department.)

Again Rule 17 of the Government Servants Conduct Rules says:—

"A Government servant may not, unless generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, communicate directly or indirectly to Government servants belonging to other departments or to non-official persons, or to the Press, any document or information which has come into his possession in the course of his public duties, or has been prepared or collected by him in the course of these duties, whether from official sources or otherwise."

The giving of possession of the correspondence by Vallabhram to accused Nos. 2 and 3 and their Pleader was clearly an improper and forbidden act, and the fact that it was improper to his knowledge is corroborated by Vallabhram's conduct in first of all getting possession of the key of Jeyshankar's house on a false pretext, and, secondly, in his avoiding entering the tonga of accused Nos. 2 and 3 at his house, as deposed to by the witness Mithal. Neither Vallabhram nor accused Nos. 2 and 3 can have in good faith believed that they were justified in taking the correspondence to Bulsar for the use of themselves and their Pleader there, and the case is one which is similar to that contained in ill. (m) to s. 378 of the Indian Penal Code. It could not have been their impression that they had the implied consent of Government to the use of the correspondence in this manner. Accordingly I hold that there was a dishonest intention on the part of Vallabhram, and that he is guilty of theft. I think it is also proved that accused Nos. 2 and 3 abetted him by instigating him to take the correspondence to Bulsar for the purpose I have mentioned, and by intentionally aiding him, e. g., by providing the tonga to take them to Bulsar and back. I leave out of account Vallabhram's confession in considering their case, as it denies his guilt and is not a 'confession' falling under s. 30 of the Indian Evidence Act, according to the rulings in Empress v. Daji Narsu (3) and Sankappa Rai v. Emperor (4). But the other evidence against them, which has been believed, suffices to prove their instigation, aid and guilty intention in regard to the theft by Vallabhram.

Before concluding, I shall briefly notice some other points arising on the appeal, It was contended by Mr. Amin for appellant No. 1 that the correspondence was not in the exclusive possession of Jeyshankar, but was in the possession also of Vallabhram, in as much as he had access to the house with Jeyshankar's permission. This, however, overlooks the fact that Jeyshankar's possession was only possession by a servant on account of Government under s. 27 and in any case it is not necessary that there should be 'exclusive possession'; for instance it has been held that there can be theft by a person who is in joint possession of the stolen property: cf. Queen-Empress v. Ponnurangam (5). The definition of possession in Stephen's Digest of Criminal Law, Art. 306, which was relied on by Mr. Amin, is really more applicable to the case of ownership as pointed out in Gour's Penal Law, Vol. II, page 1708. Then it was contended that Vallabhram had left the correspondence with the Pleader, who he might justly consider to be a respectable person, and therefore, he had no dishonest intention. This contention overlooks the fact that an intention to show the correspondence to the Pleader was in itself 'dishonest' for reasons already given. Also the correspondence was in fact left with accused Nos. 2 and 3: see Govindji (page 75) and the admission of Vallabhram himself to the same effect (page 117). In view of Vallabhram's admission that he left the Pleader's house, an admission which is corroborated by the witness Chandulal, and the fact that Govindji undoubtedly also left to attend Valliram's wedding ceremony, it is, I think, clear that he must have given the control of the correspondence to accused Nos. 2 and 3.

---

(3) 6 B. 288; 6 Ind. Jur. 480; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 649.

(4) 31 M. 127; 18 M. L. J. 63; 3 M. L. T. 270; 7 Cr. L. J. 325.

It was also contended that his subsequent conduct was in his favour on the question of dishonesty. But his conduct prior to the removal of the correspondence, e. g., in surreptitiously getting into the tonga, is really more important. The mere fact that he drew attention to some of the papers having been mutilated does not suffice to out-weigh the evidence of dishonesty. Nor does the fact that Jeyshankar did not complain about the mutilation of the papers as soon as he might have done effect the case against him. It certainly does not, in my opinion, show that Jeyshanker thought that the accused's conduct was straightforward; there is clear evidence to the contrary, and even if Jeyshankar did think so, it would not affect the proved facts.

Accordingly, I would confirm the conviction of appellant Vallabhram under s. 381 and of the other two under ss. 381 and 109. I also concur with my learned brother in confirming the conviction of accused Nos. 2 and 3 under ss. 466 and 193, Indian Penal Code, in respect of the document Ex. 8. Though there is no evidence of any eye-witness that the alteration of '400' to '4000' was done by them, the proved circumstances, in my opinion, leave no reasonable doubt that they are guilty. The suggestion that it was done by some one else to bring them into trouble is clearly opposed to the plain facts, as pointed out in my learned brother's judgment Though there is no evidence enabling the Court to say which of the two accused made the alteration, this is immaterial under s. 34, Indian Penal Code. Even if one of them did nothing but look on while the other made the alteration, this would not excuse the former, if the act was done "in furtherance of the common intention"; cf the remarks of the Privy Council in Barendra Kumar Ghose v. Emperor (6). Accused Nos. 2 and 3 were the persons taking the active part in the preparation of Lallubhai's appeal, and had the papers in their control. In the absence of any evidence to rebut it the presumption is that the alteration was made by one of them in the presence of the other, with a common intention that brings the case under ss. 193 and 466 of the Indian Penal Code.

I also agree that accused Nos. 2 and 3 should be given the benefit of the doubt in regard to the document, Ex. 14, and their conviction on that head of the charge reversed. This does not, however, affect the concurrent sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment under each of the two ss. 193 and 466, which was passed for one offence under each section though there were two documents in respect of which the two accused were convicted. It is unnecessary to decide whether this is correct under sub s. (1) of s. 35 of the Cr. P. C. as amended by Act XVIII of 1923, and s. 71, Indian Penal Code. As the three sentences of rigorous imprisonment for two years have been ordered to run concurrently, all we need consider is whether this sentence, plus a fine of Rs. 500 is excessive.

---

(5) 10 M. 186; 1 Weir 408; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 882.

(6) 85 Ind. Cas. 47; 27 Bom. L. R. 148 at p. 158; 29 C. W. N. 181; A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 1; (1925) M. W. N. 26; L. R. 6 A. (P. C.) 1; 26 P. L. R. 50; 6 P. L. T. 169; 23 A. L. J. 314; 41 C. L. J. 240; 48 M. L. J. 543; 1 O. W. N. 935; 3 Pat. L. R. 1 Cr.; 52 C. 197; 26 Cr. L. J. 431; 52 I. A. 40 (P. C.).

Accused No. 1 has also been sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment. We were asked to reduce these sentences, but I do not think there is any sufficient ground for our interference. I agree with the remarks made in para. 31 of the Sessions Judge's judgment. Not only was the offence a serious one, but it is also one calling for a deterrent punishment.

The appeals, therefore, fail (except in regard to the document Ex. 14). The convictions (subject to that modification) and sentences are confirmed.

Z. K. Appeals allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 1373 OF 1925.
January 25, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Harrison.
EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR
versus
ATMA SINGH AND ANOTHER—ACCUSED—RESPONDENT.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 160—Exchange of abuse—Offence, nature of—Criminal procedure—Technical objections by Crown.

An ordinary exchange of abuse in a public street where neither side is armed and no blows are struck is an offence too trivial to be taken notice of. [p. 889, col. 1.]

The Crown does not usually take technical objections either on the criminal or the civil side, whereby the doing of substantial justice may be defeated. [p. 889, col. 2.]

Case reported by the Sessions Judge, Rawalpindi.

FACTS.—Gurdit Singh and Sant Singh fought in the Bazar of Gujarkhan against Waryam Singh and Atma Singh and disturbed the public peace. These four persons thus committed an affray. They were brought before the Magistrate, First Class, Rawalpindi, and particulars of the offence were stated to them. In reply all four persons made an admission of having committed the offence. No question, however, was put to any of them why they should not be convicted. The Magistrate by his order of the 11th June 1925 found all four men guilty of an offence under s. 160, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced them to fines of Rs. 25 each. In his order he remarked that they had pleaded guilty to a charge under s. 160, Indian Penal Code, and he also remarked that their reputation had not been good.

GROUNDS.—Under s. 438, Cr. P. C., I report the case for the orders of the High Court with a recommendation that the sentence passed upon the four accused may be reversed or reduced.

The grounds for this recommendation are:—

(1) The accused were not asked if they had any cause to show why they should not be convicted as is required by s. 242, Cr. P. C.

(2) The Magistrate remarked in his order of conviction that the reputation of the accused had not been good, although there was no evidence on the record that the reputation of these men had not been good nor was there anything to this effect in the Police report on the basis of which the Magistrate took cognizance.

(3) The affray was not a serious one.

Diwan Ram Lal, for the Crown.

Dr. Nand Lal, for the Respondent.

ORDER.—Four men—Atma Singh, Waryam Singh, Gurdit Singh and Sant Singh—were convicted under s. 160, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 25 each. The sentence was passed by a First Class Magistrate and the Sessions Judge of Rawalpindi has reported the case for orders on three grounds:—

(1) The accused were not asked if they had any cause to show why they should not be convicted as is required by s. 242, Cr. P. C.

(2) The Magistrate imported into the case his own knowledge of the reputation of the accused and this was highly improper.

(3) The affray was not serious.

On ground No. 1 I do not think there is any reason for interference as the accused had pleaded guilty and thereby ended the matter for all practical purposes, though of course they might still have pleaded that the affray in question was a mere nothing. On the other hand the Trial Magistrate and the District Magistrate might have been expected to realise that this was so without being told.

On grounds Nos. 2 and 3 I think there is reason for taking action and I accept the application and acquit the accused.

The facts of this case were that the Police reported that there had been a technical affray in the village of Gujarkhan, words being exchanged between two men on the one side and two on the other. It is not alleged that other side was armed or any blows were struck. Apparently there was only the usual exchange of abuse such as may be heard from morning till night. On this the Police quite unnecessarily saw fit to "chalan" all four men apparently without enquiring who started the quarrel and who began to abuse. When this trivial case reached the First Class Magistrate Mr. Amin ud-Din, he proceeded to transfer it, having no authority to do so, to the Court of the Tahsildar. Mr. Amin-ud-Din is, I understand, a First Class Magistrate. He is neither an Additional District Magistrate, nor a Sub-Divisional Magistrate. The order in vernacular was apparently written by his Reader and is to the following effect:—"The case is transferred to the Tahsildar. Post script. It is to be sent up with a report under s. 107, Cr. P. C." The case had been unnecessarily started, was illegally transferred and after transfer was unnecessarily exaggerated into a case under s. 107. As proceedings under this section can only be taken by a First Class Magistrate, the post script was understood as an illegal cancellation of the illegal order of transfer and a further order of re-transfer to the Court of Mr. Amin ud-Din. On the accused appearing the offence was explained to them and they pleaded guilty. An order was then written into which the reputation of the accused was imported although no mention was made of it even in the Police report and acting apparently on wholly inadmissible evidence, which has never been tendered let alone admitted, the Magistrate convicted them. The Sessions Judge dismissed the first application for revision and on being moved to do so he re-opened the question and forwarded his recommendation to this Court.

Whether the action of the Sessions Judge was strictly regular or not in re-opening the matter in the form in which he did, I do not think there is any question of the competency of this Court to look into the case. The most amazing feature is that when notice issued automatically, as it does, to the District Magistrate, he saw fit to move the Crown to instruct Counsel to resist the miscarriage of justice being put right. Apart from the waste of the time and money of the Crown and Crown Counsel, which is no concern of mine, I wholly fail to understand what prompted the District Magistrate to take this action. The First Class Magistrate had behaved illegally—a point which must have struck the District Magistrate when he examined the record. Four men had been ordered to pay heavy fines without any adequate reason, and yet he questioned the sound action taken by the Sessions Judge in endeavouring to get the matter put right. Counsel for the Crown, while not attempting to support the conviction, has urged that the Sessions Judge has acted with technical irregularity and presumably the District Magistrate took up this attitude and ignored the general principle that the Crown does not usually take technical objections either on the criminal or the civil side, whereby the doing of substantial justice may be defeated.

The main ground on which I have interfered in this case is to be found in the maxim de minimis non cur at lex: If a prosecution were to be launched whenever two or more people exchanged abuse in a public street, the Courts would not have time for doing their necessary work, and where the Sessions Judge recommends the obvious course of acquitting people convicted of such trifling and technical misconduct, it would be better if the District Magistrate were to raise no protest.

N. H. Application accepted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 137 OF 1926.

March 15, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Daniels.

HUKUM SINGH—ACCUSED—APPLICANT

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 174—Subpœna, defective, failure to comply with—Offence.

A subpœna requiring a person to attend either at the thana or wherever the Inspecting Officer might happen to be is not legal subpœna as it does not require attendance at a definite place and an omission to comply with it is not an offence punishable under s. 174, Penal Code.

Empress of India v. Ram Saran, 5 A. 7; A. W. N. (1882) 145; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 24, referred to.

Criminal revision from an order of the District Magistrate, Etawah, dated the 12th October 1925.

Mr. Baleshwari Prasad, for the Applicant.

The Assistant Government Advocate, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—The applicant has been convicted under s. 174 of the Indian Penal Code of disobeying a subpœna requiring him to attend before the Sub-Inspector in a Police inquiry. Section 174 prescribes a punishment for any person being legally bound to attend at a certain place and time in obedience to a summons, notice, order or proclamation issued by a legally competent public servant, intentionally omits to attend at that place or time. The sub-poena which was issued to the applicant as issued in this case did not require him to attend at a certain place. It called on him to attend either at Sahail thana or wherever the Inspecting Officer might happen to be. This is not a legal subpœna, failure to comply with which can be punished under s. 174. If any authority other than the language of the section itself is needed for this proposition it may be found in the case of Empress of India v. Ram Saran (1). As the subpœna did not require the accused to attend at a definite place I set aside the orders of the Courts below and acquit the accused. The fine, if paid, will be refunded.

R. L. Order set aside.

---

(1) 5 A. 7; A. W. N. (1882) 145; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 24.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REFERENCE NO. 63 OF 1925.
November 6, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Adami and Justice Sir John Bucknill, KT.
FIRANGI SINGH—
versus
DURGA SINGH—

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 249—Warrant cases—Magistrate's power to stop case and release accused—Starting case afresh on complaint—Legality.

Section 249, Cr. P. C., is inapplicable to warrant cases. Therefore, an order by a Magistrate stopping a warrant case and releasing the accused under the section is illegal. [p. 891, col. 1.]

Where a Magistrate stops a warrant case and releases the accused purporting to act under s. 249, Cr. P. C., the case is still on the pending file of the Magistrate and can be re-opened either by an application by the Crown or suo motu by the Magistrate but cannot be started de novo upon a private complaint, the Police case being already on the pending file. [p. 892, col. 1.]

Criminal reference made by the District Magistrate, Gaya, dated the 26th July 1925.

Mr. Manohar Lal, in support of the Reference.

Mr. H. L. Nandkeolyar, Assistant Government Advocate (with him Mr. K. P. Jayaswal), against the Reference.

JUDGMENT.

Bucknill, J.—This was a referrence made to this Court by the District Magistrate of Gaya under the provisions of s. 438 of the Cr. P. C. This reference came before Macpherson, J., on the 2nd of September last and that learned Judge thinking that a novel point arose in connection with it, referred the matter to a Bench; the learned Judge also considered that it was desirable that the Crown should appear.

The difficulties which have occasioned this reference arose out of some rather confused criminal proceedings; and to what appear to be some mistakes in procedure made by two Sub-Divisional Officers which under the circumstances are not perhaps surprising. The position may be thus shortly explained. Last October there was a dispute about irrigation between the inhabitants of two villages call Kunj and Chari in the Gaya District. As a result no less than three cases were started. What is called case No. 1 was a summons case; the charge was under s. 143 of the Penal Code and was against the men of both the villages. What is called case No. 2 was a warrant case drawn up against certain persons under the provisions of ss. 148 323 and 430 of the Penal Code. It was against villagers of Kunj and in connection with that case a man of Chari village had been injured. What is called the third case was also a warrant case. This was directed against the villagers of Chari. All the cases came before the Sub-Divisional Officer. He tried case No. 2 but kept cases Nos. 1 and 3 pending until the result of the trial with which he was proceeding. The upshot of case No. 2 was that he convicted the accused. He then, in respect of the case No. 1, passed an order (as he was entitled to do) under s. 249 of the Cr. P. C. stopping the proceedings and releasing the accused. In case No. 3 he also passed a similar order, purporting to act under s. 249; he also directed the case to be entered as false. No question arose as to the Sub-Divisional Officer's power to deal as he did deal with the first case. But a question does arise whether he had any power to deal with case No 3 (a warrant case) under the provisions of that section. But in case No. 2 there was an appeal and the Sessions Judge reversed the decision of the Sub-Divisional Officer, and set aside the conviction. The Sub-Divisional Officer's order of conviction took place on the 23rd March last and his two orders relating to cases Nos. 1 and 3 were made on the same day. The learned Sessions Judge's decision was on the 6th May last. The next thing which happened was that on the 16th June the person who had been the informant in the case No. 3 applied to the Sub-Divisional Officer (who was not the same individual as the Sub-Divisional Officer who had tried case No. 2) making what purports to be a complaint; at any rate he was examined on oath by the new Sub-Divisional Officer, he sent for the connected records and on the 26th of June he passed an order summoning the accused. The District Magistrate in his reference suggests that both the orders of the Sub-Divisional Officers of the 27th March, 1925, purporting to stop case No. 3 under the provisions of s. 249 of the Cr. P. C. and that of his successor of the 26th June summoning the accused on what appears to be a complaint made by the informant in case No. 3 are wrong and should be set aside. There seems no doubt that both these orders must be set aside. In the first place there appears to be no good authority of any kind for suggesting that s. 249 can be utilized in respect of a warrant case. The heading of Ch. XX of Cr. P. C. which comprises ss. 241—249 refers to the "Trial of summons cases by Magistrate," and, as has been pointed out by the learned Assistant Government Advocate, it is quite clear that, upon a perusal of ss. 247—249, the last named section is only intended to apply to summons cases instituted other than upon complaint. It is true that Mr. Sohoni on page 614 of his work on the Code of Criminal Procedure (11th Edition) seems to think that the procedure contemplated under s. 249 might be applicable to warrant cases: but it is an old section and so far as can be ascertained there is no case which lays down such a proposition. Indeed from reading the preceding sections it certainly seems evident that s. 249 only deals with summons cases instituted other than upon complaint. Section 247 relates to summonses issued upon complaint and what the Magistrate's duties are if the complainant does not appear. Section 248 contemplates the possibility of withdrawal of a complaint by a complainant whilst s. 249 contemplates the powers of a Magistrate as to stopping cases and releasing the accused in any case instituted other than upon complaint. This order, therefore, thus made by the Sub-Divisional Officer on the 23rd March last is obviously one which he could not make and although it is in effect of no value it is, I think, desirable, in order that there should be no future difficulty, that we should formally declare that it is illegal and, so far as may be, if at all necessary, set it aside.

Now, although it has been suggested that what the complainant in case No. 3 did when he came up before the new Sub-Divisional Officer with his petition on the 16th of June last amounted only really to an informal drawing of the attention of the Sub-Divisional Officer to the fact that case No. 3 was still in existence on his file and had not been disposed of. I do not think that such a suggestion can on examination be seriously entertained, nor was it, I think, very seriously put forward by the learned Counsel who in effect appeared in support of what the Sub-Divisional Officer had directed by his order of the 26th June. The fact remains that it would seem that the Sub-Divisional Officer treated the petition as a complaint; he examined the accused on oath and in this way he seems to have treated the matter as one of which cognizance was being taken under the provisions of s. 190 (1) (b) of the Cr. P. C; in other words as a fresh affair. It need hardly perhaps be pointed out that, as the order made by his predecessor on the 23rd March purporting to act under s. 249 was void, the case was still really on his file and cognizance had already been taken of it under s. 190 (1) (a). It has been suggested, somewhat tentatively, that the order in case No. 3 made by the Sub-Divisional Officer on the 27th March last, although purporting to be made under s. 249, might be regarded as one made properly under s. 253 (2) as it is argued that the upshot is really the same and that it is merely a difference of form. I am not prepared to say that there is no difference in the effect of stopping a case under s. 249 and the discharge of an accused under s. 253 (2); but in this case I do not think that such a question is material or really arises because the Sub-Divisional Officer expressly purported to deal with the matter under s. 249 and in addition ordered that the case should be entered as false. Now in his order of the 26th June the new Sub-Divisional Officer after reciting what had previously taken place and the order made in the third case observes.

"Durgi Singh who is the complainant in case No. 3 now comes up and files this petition that his case might now be taken up and dealt with according to law. His prayer seems reasonable. I accordingly summon the accused under ss. 430 and 147, Indian Penal Code. Also summon prosecution witnesses for that date."

Now the learned Assistant Government Advocate has pointed out that it was not open to the Sub-Divisional Officer to take any such action as he did in re-opening a warrant case which was already on his file on an application of a private party. It seems very clear that what the Sub-Divisional Officer actually did (although his order is not particularly lucid) was that he really started a case de novo; but this he could not do because case No. 3 was still really on his file. There seems no doubt that he thought that his predecessor's order with regard to case No. 3 was a valid one and that it was not was never brought to his notice. It is quite clear that he could not act as he did in re-opening the case supposing that what he did could be regarded as his having done so upon the application of a private party. The learned Assistant Government Advocate points out that the Sub-Divisional Officer could of course re-open the case either upon application by the Crown or suo motu but in this case he did neither. Whilst the Police case was already on his file he could not start a fresh case upon a complaint. There is no authority of any kind given to us to controvert the views which have been placed before us by the learned Assistant Government Advocate. We, therefore, consider (a) that the order of the Sub-Divisional Officer of the 26th March under s. 249 of the Cr. P. C. was altogether an invalid order. It is hereby set aside. The result is that the warrant case No. 3 is still on the file of the Sub-Divisional Officer. (b) The order of the Sub-Divisional Officer of the 26th June is also invalid; it too must be set aside. The result will be as before that the warrant case No 3 is still on the Sub-Divisional Officer's file as it stood on the 27th of March last at the time of the invalid order purporting to be made under s. 249 with regard thereto. (c) The reference of the District Magistrate of 25th July, 1925, is, therefore, accepted. (d) The Sub-Divisional Officer either of his own motion or of course upon the application of the Crown may, if he so thinks fit, proceed with the warrant case No. 3.

Adami, J.—I agree.

R. L. Reference accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE NO. 18 OF 1925.
(CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION NO. 18 OF 1925.)
September 9, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Jackson.
M. R. M. RAMASAMI CHETTY
MANAGING DIRECTOR OF M. R. M.
RAMASAMI CHETTI AND CO. LTD.—
ACCUSED—PETITIONER
versus
V. S. CHENGALRAYA PILLAI—
COMPLAINANT—RESPONDENT.

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 104—Allotment of shares—Agreement before formation of Company to allot shares—Ratification by Directors after registration—Liability of Company to furnish particulars—Default—Penalty.

Certain persons who purchased a business registered themselves as a Company under the Companies Act. By the terms of the contract of purchase the vendor was entitled to certain shares allotted otherwise than in cash and such allotment was, after registration of the Company, ratified by the Directors at a meeting:

Held, that there was no contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee within the meaning of s. 104 (1) of the Companies Act and the Company was bound to furnish the particulars duly stamped under cl. (2) of the section and in default to do so, the officer responsible for the default was liable to be fined under cl. (3) of the section.

Petition, under ss. 435 and 439 of the Cr. P. C., 1898, praying the High Court to revise the judgment of the Court of the Second Presidency Magistrate, George Town, Madras, in C. C. No 20052 of 1924.

Mr. V. L Ethiraj, for the Petitioner.

The Crown Prosecutor, for the Crown.

ORDER.—Petition to revise the judgment and sentence of the Second Presidency Magistrate, in C. C. No. 20052 of 1924.

The petitioner sold his business to certain persons under a contract dated 1st October 1922. On 7th October 1922 these persons registered themselves as a Company. The Company furnished a return of allotment of shares under s. 104, Act. VII of 1913. The Registrar acting under s. 104 (b) called for the contract in writing entitling the vendor of the business to certain shares allotted otherwise than in cash.

The petitioner thought that the contract entered into before the Company was registered would be sufficient; but the Registrar demanded a contract entered into by the Company and since such a contract was not in writing, he called for prescribed particulars under s. 104 (2). Instead of furnishing these duly stamped, the petitioner produced the previous contract ratified at a meeting of the Directors. The Registrar held that this was not a compliance with his demand and prosecuted the petitioner under s. 104 (3). He has been fined Rs. 100. Hence the petition. I do not think that the ratification by the Board of Directors can be described as a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee; and in the absence of any such contract in writing the petitioner was bound to furnish the prescribed particulars duly stamped. There is, therefore no ground for revision. The petition is dismissed.

V. N. V. Petition dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REFERENCE NO. 4 OF 1925.

December 4, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Cuming and Mr. Justice B. B. Ghose.

EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR

versus

RAJENDRA KUMAR DUTTA AND ABDUL KHALEQUE—PLEADERS.

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), ss. 12, 13, 14—Legal Practitioner committing criminal offence—Procedure.

Where a legal practitioner is suspected of having committed a criminal offence, proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act should not be taken, but if it is thought necessary, action should be taken by way of a criminal prosecution. [p. 894, col. 1.]

Reference made by the Additional District Judge, Second Court, Mymensingh, through the District Judge, Mymensingh, in Miscellaneous Cases Nos. 1 and 2 of 1925.

Babu Surendra Nath Guha, for the Crown.

Mr. Sarat Chandra Roy Choudhury and Babu Debendra Narayan Bhattacharjya, for Rajendra Kumar Dutta.

Mr. Gopal Chandra Das, Moulvi Md. Nurul Huq Choudhuri and Babu Satyendra Kishore Ghose, for Abdul Khaleque.

JUDGMENT.—This is a reference concerning two Pleaders of the Mymensingh Bar, Babu Rajendra Kumar Dutta and Moulvi Abdul Khaleque.

The facts appear to be these:

There was a certain Title Suit No. 265 of the Local Sub-Judge's Court (Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi v. Sonaulla).

Rajendra Kumar Dutt was the Pleader on behalf of some of these defendants though it does not appear that he had received any vokalatnamah on behalf of Sonaulla. In the course of this suit a certain document was filed on behalf of the defendants on the 6th July 1923 by Rajendra Kumar Dutta. The plaintiff challenged the genuineness of this document. Certain evidence was taken and on the 7th July Babu Rajendra Kumar Dutt the defendants' Pleader retired from the case and the case was decided ex parte. On the same day the plaintiff moved the Court to prosecute Sonaulla for forgery. Notice was issued on Sonaulla and he appeared on 8th September 1923 and showed cause. Moulvi Abdul Khaleque appeared for him on this occasion.

The Court ordered a prosecution on 12th January 1924 and wrote the usual letter to the Magistrate on 18th January 1924. The same day the Magistrate issued process. What took place in the Magistrate's Court does not appear but on the 1st April 1924 Sonaulla preferred an appeal to the District Judge against the order for prosecution which was dismissed on 9th May 1924.

On the 26th May 1924 Sonaulla came to Babu Rajendra Kumar Dutt and instructed him to apply for the return of the documents filed in the original suit including the document which was the subject of the criminal charge. It is somewhat remarkable that this document was still on the record of the civil case. It ought to have been impounded but the probable explanation is that in view of the appeal to the District Judge against the order for prosecution it had come back once more to the original suit file. The usual application for a return of the document was filed and Babu Rajendra Kumar Dutt himself went to the record room to get back the documents. Rajendra Babu himself signed a receipt for the documents on the back of the petition. He was then called away to attend to some other case and one Ali Hossain was told to instruct some other Pleader and he went and fetched M. Abdul Khaleque who took back the documents, signed receipt for them and made them over including the document the subject of the criminal case to Sonaulla.

What, therefore, the two Pleaders are charged with amounts to aiding and abetting Sonaulla in getting back this document so that he might defeat the criminal case while it was their duty to have brought to the notice of the District Judge that Sonaulla was attempting to do this.

Now it will be clear that what is alleged against these two Pleaders amounts to a charge of aiding and abetting or conspiring to commit a criminal offence, viz., causing evidence to disappear with the intention of screening the offender, an offence punishable under s. 201, Indian Penal Code. Both the Pleaders have filed statement denying that they had any knowledge that the document in question was being taken back and have supported their explanation with affidavit.

In such a case it has been held that the correct procedure to be followed is that proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act should not be taken but that if it is thought necessary to take action it should be by way of a criminal prosecution. The question has been dealt with in the case of In the matter of Chandi Charan Mitter (1) and the judgment of Mookerjee, J., may be with advantage referred to where he deals with the numerous authorities on the point and points out that summary proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act may result in grave injustice to the persons concerned. We do not think we should be justified in departing from the principles laid down in the case we have just referred to.

We think, therefore, that the order of reference should be discharged. It will be open to the authorities if they think fit to criminally prosecute the two Pleaders. On that point we express no opinion. It will, of course, be open to the Additional District Judge after any action that may be taken in the Criminal Court to take action under the Legal Practitioners Act if so advised.

Z. K. Reference discharged.

---

(1) 57 Ind. Cas. 931; 24 C. W. N. 755; 31 C. L. J. 471; 21 Cr. L. J. 691; 47 C. 1115.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 536 OF 1925.
November 9, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Sulaiman.
Qazi FARIDUDDIN—APPLICANT
versus
EMPEROR THROUGH FARIDUDDIN AND OTHERS—OPPOSITE PARTIES.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 250—Informer, whether can be directed to pay compensation—Maximum compensation, amount of.

It is open to a Magistrate under s. 250 of the Cr. P. C. to pass an order directing a person, upon whose information given to a Police Officer or to a Magistrate, the proceedings were started, to pay compensation to the accused. [p. 895, col. 2.]

Under s. 250 (2) of the Cr. P. C. all that is prohibited is that compensation to the accused or each or any of them should not exceed Rs. 100 in amount. The section does not mean that if there are a number of accused persons the total amount awarded to all of them must not exceed the maximum specified in the section. [p. 896, col. 1.]

Criminal revision from an order of the Sessions Judge, Jhansi, dated the 20th August 1925.

Mr. H. Cecil Desanges, for the Applicant.

Mr. Saila Nath Mukerji, for the Opposite Parties.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application in revision from an order directing the complainant to pay compensation of Rs. 100 each to three accused and Rs. 20 to the fourth accused.

The applicant filed a complaint under s. 380 of the Indian Penal Code in the Court of a First Class Magistrate. The Magistrate did not treat this application as a mere information under s. 190 (c) and did not proceed as required by s. 191. He treated it as a complaint and sent this complaint to the Police for enquiry under s. 202. When the Police investigated the case, they came to the conclusion that the case was true but they did not merely send up a report in favour of the complainant but dealt with the case under ss. 454 and 411 and added one more accused, Muhammad Idris in the list. The prosecution evidence was tendered and several witnesses were examined. It appears that the Magistrate allowed the present applicant to engage a Vakil to look after the case and he also made him to take part in the conduct of the proceedings and in fact allowed him to file several applications from time to time. In the course of his order ultimately discharging the accused persons the Magistrate has treated the applicant as a complainant and not a mere informer. The Vakil engaged by the applicant was acting in conjunction with the Prosecuting Inspector. On the 13th of July 1925 after the evidence of the witnesses mentioned in the list sent up by the Police was closed a further application was made for summoning more witnesses which was not allowed and a second application made by the complainant that a previous Sub-Inspector should be examined was considered unnecessary. After arguments were heard as to whether a charge should or should not be made the Court postponed the case till the next day. On the 14th July 1925 the applicant presented an application before the Magistrate under s. 526 intimating to him that the case should be adjourned in order to give him an opportunity to apply for a transfer. At this stage the Magistrate took the view that the case was proceeding on a charge sheet submitted by the Police after enquiry and the present applicant was not the complainant. He asked the Prosecuting Inspector whether he wanted an adjournment or not and after the Prosecuting Inspector had stated that he did not want to apply for transfer the learned Magistrate did not grant the application. After this the accused persons were discharged and the order directing compensation to be paid was passed.

The present applicant went before the Sessions Judge in appeal, but he declined to interfere.

No final order dismissing the complaint originally filed by the complainant has been passed separately by the Magistrate, but every one seems to have understood that that complaint has been dismissed.

There seems to have been some confusion in the procedure in view of the fact that a complaint which had been treated as such by the Court was pending and the Police also sent up a charge sheet.

If the applicant was really the complainant in the proceedings as he has been described in the judgment, then his application for adjournment was bound to be granted even though it was made at the last moment. It is, however, not necessary in this case to decide definitely whether the applicant was in the position of a complainant so as to make s. 526 (8) applicable. The legality of the order discharging the accused is not in question in this revision.

Even if the applicant was not the complainant, it was open to the Magistrate under s. 250 of the Cr. P. C. to pass an order directing him to pay compensation as such an order can be passed against a person upon whose complaint or information given to a Police Officer or to a Magistrate the proceedings have been started. The accused, therefore, cannot get rid of the order merely because he was a mere informer and not a real complainant.

On the merits of the case, however, it seems that the findings of the Magistrate amount to this:—the complainant alleged that a number of utensils had been taken away from his house by Muhammad Idris along with other goods which belonged to him and that they were recovered subsequently from the house of Muhammad Idris. The case for the defence seems to be that some of these utensils belonged originally to the complainant but about two years ago he had given them to the mother of Muhammad Idris who handed them over to the latter. The learned Magistrate has pointed out that litigation has been going on for a number of years between the complainant and Muhammad Idris. He has also remarked 'so a sort of civil dispute does exist between the two over the subject of this case.' Then it is not to be forgotten that Idris had voluntarily given up all but one utensil and the complainant had not shown that all these belonged to him. The findings of the Magistrate themselves are not very clear. If really there was some dispute of a civil nature about these utensils then the case might not have been wholly groundless and frivolous. The learned Magistrate has certainly disbelieved the prosecution witnesses who were eight in number but has no where recorded a distinct finding that there was no trouble on the day when the occurrence is alleged to have taken place nor is there any clear finding that the accused did not enter the complainant's house. Under the circumstances I am of opinion that this was not a fit case in which compensation should have been ordered in the criminal proceedings. The accused persons have a remedy to sue for damages for malicious prosecution if they make out a case in the Civil Court.

The last point urged on behalf of the applicant was that the order directing Rs. 100 to be paid to each of the three accused and Rs. 20 to the 4th accused was in contravention of the provisions of s. 250 (2). I do not agree with this contention. Under that section all that is prohibited is that compensation to the accused or each of them where there are more than one or any of them should not exceed Rs. 100 in amount. The section does not mean that if there are a number of accused persons the total amount awarded to all of them must not exceed the maximum. In the view which I have taken of the facts of this case it is not necessary to discuss this last point in detail.

I accordingly allow this revision and set aside the order calling upon the complainant to pay compensation. In case any compensation has been paid it should be refunded.

Z. K. Revision allowed.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 480 OF 1925.

January 27, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ross and Mr. Justice Kulwant Sahay.

BENGALI GOPE—PETITIONER

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 190 (2), 201, 203, 509 (a)—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss 211, 302—Complaint of murder—Second Class Magistrate, whether competent to take cognizance—Procedure—Complainant charged with offence under s. 211, legality of.

Section 509 (a) of the Cr. P. C. saves the proceedings before a Magistrate taken on a complaint of which cognizance is taken without authority; but this will not have the effect of making the complainant liable for prosecution for a false complaint by reason of the Magistrate's having taken cognizance of it without power to do so.

A complaint that certain persons had committed the offence of murder was made to a Second Class Magistrate who sent the complaint to the Police for enquiry and on their reporting the case to be false dismissed the complaint under s. 203, Cr. P. C., without even examining the complainant on oath and then himself complained against the latter under s. 211 of the Penal Code:

Held, (1) that the Magistrate was not competent to take cognizance of the complaint and the proper procedure for him to adopt was that laid down in s 201, Cr. P. C., which required him to return the complaint for presentation to the proper Court with an endorsement to that effect;

(2) that the proceedings before the Magistrate were void ab initio and that the Magistrate had, therefore, no jurisdiction to make a complaint against the complainant for an offence under s. 211 of the Penal Code.

Mr. G. P. Das, for the Petitioner.

Mr. H. L. Nandkeolyar, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Ross, J.—The petitioner has been committed to the Court of Session for trial on a charge of having presented a false complaint before the Sub-Deputy Magistrate of Dinapore. The offence alleged in the complaint was the offence of murder.

The contention on behalf of the petitioner is that the Sub Deputy Magistrate, who exercised second class powers only had no authority to take cognizance of the complaint; and that all the proceedings before him were without jurisdiction.

It appears that by an order of the District Magistrate of Patna, the Sub-Deputy Magistrate of Dinapore is authorised to entertain complaints during the absence of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate. The power to make such an order is conferred by s. 190 cl. (2) and is exerciseable with regard to cases which the Subordinate Magistrate is competent to try or to commit for trial. Section 37 and the Fourth Schedule of the Code, which also deals with this matter, must be read with s. 190 and there is nothing in these provisions to extend powers which the District Magistrate can confer. As the complaint made to the Sub-Deputy Magistrate was a complaint that certain persons were guilty of murder he was not competent to take cognizance of it: and the proper procedure for him to adopt was that laid down in s. 201 which requires him to return the complaint for presentation to the proper Court with an endorsement to that effect. Instead of doing that he sent the complaint to the Police for enquiry and on their reporting the case to be false he dismissed the complaint under s. 203 without ever having examined the complainant on oath, and then himself complained against him. The orders were throughout irregular and without jurisdiction. Nor are they protected by s. 509 (a). That section saves proceedings before a Magistrate taken on a complaint of which cognizance is taken without authority; but this will not have the effect of making the complainant liable for prosecution for a false complaint by reason of the Magistrate's having taken cognizance of it without power to do so.

In my opinion these proceedings were void ab initio; and there is no basis in law for the present prosecution. I would, therefore, quash the commitment under s. 213 of the Code and direct that the petitioner be discharged.

Kulwant Sahay, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Rule made absolute.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION NO. 464 OF 1925.

November 5, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sulaiman.

RAM NATH—ACCUSED—APPLICANT

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 171D, 171F—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 196, 403—Election—Abetment of false personation, what constitutes—Sanction to prosecute, absence of—Acquittal for want of sanction—Subsequent trial after obtaining sanction, whether barred.

In the absence of a sanction by the Local Government a Court is not competent to try an accused person for an offence under s. 171F of the Penal Code. Where, therefore, an accused person who is charged with an offence under s. 171F is acquitted on the ground of want of sanction, such an acquittal does not bar a subsequent trial for the same offence after the necessary sanction is obtained. [p. 898, cols. 1 & 2.]

The expression "abets the voting by any person in any such way" in s. 171F of the Penal Code means abetment of voting at an election in the name of another person living at that date, or in a fictitious name, or a second time. [p. 899, col. 1.]

Where a candidate at an election who is not aware of the fact that a person who professes to be a particular voter is not that voter and that he is falsely personating such voter, attests his voting slip but does not profess to do so on his personal knowledge and the polling officer is aware that the candidate is not attesting on personal knowledge, the candidate cannot be held guilty under s. 171F of the Penal Code of intentionally aiding the commission of an offence as defined under s. 171D of the Code. [ibid.]

Criminal revision from an order of the Sessions Judge, Muttra, dated the 2nd July 1925.

Messrs. P. L. Banerji and S. C. Das, for the Applicant.

The Assistant Government Advocate, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—This is a revision from a conviction of the applicant under s. 171F of the Indian Penal Code. The applicant was a candidate at a Municipal election held at Muttra in March 1923. A person named Hari Shanker was a voter on the electoral roll but he was not living at Muttra. Some person, who has not yet been traced by the Police, came forward at the time of the election and professed to be Hari Shanker and put his thumb mark on the voting slip. The voting slip was attested by the applicant, Ram Nath, the candidate himself. After Ram Nath was elected his election was contested before the Commissioner who set aside the election and directed the prosecution of Ram Nath under ss. 419 and 465 read with s. 109 of the Indian Penal Code, that is to say, cheating and abetment of forgery. Ram Nath was convicted by a First Class Magistrate and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment. On appeal the Sessions Judge acquitted him of the offence under s. 419 but maintained his conviction under s. 465 read with s. 109. Ram Nath came up in revision to this Court and Mr. Justice Mukerji set aside his conviction under s. 465 read with s. 109 also. His judgment is reported as Ram Nath v. Emperor (1). Mukerji, J., came to the conclusion that the Legislature had specifically provided for such an offence under s. 171F of the Indian Penal Code and that even if the offence could fall under s. 465/109 of the Indian Penal Code it was not open to the Criminal Court to try the offender under either of the two sections. In his opinion where there are two provisions, one specific and the other general, the specific provision ought to be applied in preference to the general one. He accordingly held that the conviction of the applicant under s. 465 read with s. 109 could not stand. He then proceeded to examine the evidence and came to the conclusion that inasmuch as Ram Nath was not aware that Hari Shanker was personated, he had no guilty knowledge and could not be said to have abetted the forgery. At page 1111* the learned Judge culled from the statements of the poling officer and his assistant passages showing that the candidate without knowing the illiterate voters used to ascertain from his men about the voters and then put his signatures on the voting slips. He accordingly held that even on the facts no charge of abetment of the offence under s. 465 had been established.

It seems to me that it would have been more proper if no further prosecution of the accused had been started. No doubt Mukerji, J., held that for want of a proper sanction the conviction could not stand inasmuch as no sanction of the Local Government for prosecution under s. 171F had been obtained. Nevertheless he also went into the facts and expressed the view that when Ram Nath was not aware of the false personation no offence has been committed.

The Local Government subsequently granted sanction to prosecute Ram Nath under s. 171F of having intentionally abetted the false personation at the election. The Trying Magistrate has convicted him and that conviction has been upheld by the Sessions Judge.

---

(1) 84 Ind. Cas. 714; 22 A. L. J. 1106; L. R. 6 A. 25 Cr.; 26 Cr. L. J. 362; A. I. R. 1925 All. 230; 47 A. 268.

*Page of 22 A. L. J.—[Ed.]

The first question to consider is whether a second trial is legal. The applicant was first tried on the same facts under s. 465 read with s. 109 and has been acquitted. He is now being tried on the same facts under another section, viz., s. 171F, on the ground that the Local Government has sanctioned the prosecution.

Section 403 (4) provides that a person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged. The question to consider, therefore, is whether it can be said that the Court which tried the accused first was not competent to try the offence with which he is now charged. The answer to this question depends on whether it can be said that the Court is not competent to try an accused for an offence in which sanction is necessary and no sanction has been obtained. It is not necessary for me to go to other High Courts which have taken a different view on this matter In at least two cases arising under the old Act two learned Judges of this Court expressed the view that where a previous prosecution had failed on the ground that sanction had not been obtained a subsequent prosecution was not illegal. I may refer to the cases of Emperor v Jiwan (2) and Mohan Lal v. Emperor (3). It is to be noted that both these cases were cases where sanction under s. 195 had not been obtained and in spite of the fact that under s. 537 (b) of the old Code an absence of sanction was a mere irregularity which could be cured the learned Judges held that a second prosecution was not illegal. It is, however, not necessary for me in this case to go to that length. The sanction in the present case was required by s. 196 of the Code and that section was not specifically mentioned even in s. 537 of the old Code and is not mentioned in s. 537 of the new Code. I am, therefore, not prepared to hold that an absence of a sanction from the Local Government makes the trial merely irregular and not illegal. That being so, it must be held that the First Court was not competent to try the accused for an offence under s. 171F inasmuch as no sanction of the Local Government had been obtained by that date.

Coming now to the merits of the case, the first objection raised on behalf of the applicant is that even if the second prosecution is not illegal the view expressed by Mukerji, J., should be accepted as a ruling. It is, however, to be pointed out that in this new prosecution the witnesses have been examined afresh and, therefore, any finding on that evidence cannot now be accepted as final. The evidence, however, is much the same. The polling officer, Babu Keshab Deo, in his statement has distinctly stated that before attesting the voting slip, Babu Ram Nath used to enquire from the voter and his own workers who the man was and after having ascertained the fact he used to attest the slip. Rule 43 (3) of the Municipal Election Rules requires that where a voter is illiterate he shall affix his mark or thumb impression thereto and any mark so made shall be attested by any candidate or his agent who may be able to recognise the voter or by the returning officer or one of his assistants. It is obvious that the intention is that the person who attests the sheet should be one who recognises the voter as being the right person. If the polling officer had not been aware of the fact that Ram Nath was identifying voters not on his personal knowledge then it might have been urged with force that it was the duty of Ram Nath to disclose the fact that he did not recognise the voters to the polling officer and that if in fact he concealed his ignorance from the polling officer and professed to identify the voters before him, he did by wilful misrepresentation or by wilful concealment of a material fact which he was bound to disclose, voluntarily cause or procure or attempt to cause or procure a thing to be done. Provision is made for such cases in explanation 1 to s. 107 which was not stated before the learned Judge in the case on the previous occasion. In this particular case, however, the polling officer was fully aware of the circumstances under which

---

(2) 27 Ind. Cas. 208; 37 A. 107; 13 A. L. J. 4; 16 Cr. L. J. 144.

(3) 64 Ind. Cas. 142; 19 A. L. J. 813; 22 Cr. L. J. 750

Ram Nath was putting his signatures on the voting slips. The polling officer saw that when voters came to vote, Ram Nath did not know them and he used to enquire about their names and parentage from the voters themselves and from his own workers and agents and it was on the assurance given to him by his workers and agents that he used to attest the voting slips. This obviously was an irregularity and a breach of the Municipal Election Rules, but for this breach to be committed the polling officer himself was partly responsible. When, however, the officer was fully aware that the attestation by the accused was not necessarily based on his personal recognition of the voters, can it be said that he abetted a false personation? The officer certainly was in no way deceived by the attestation nor did the accused intend to deceive him intentionally. The learned Assistant Government Advocate has argued before me that s. 171D which contains the definition of the offence makes a mere abetment of the offence by any person in the way mentioned an offence, and that it is not necessary that the person abetting should have an actual knowledge of the fact that the voter was voting in the name of another person. But the expression 'abets the voting by any person in any such way' must mean the abetment of the voting at an election in the name of another person living at that date, or in a fictitious name, or a second time. Abetment is defined in s. 107 of the Indian Penal Code Admittedly the first and the second portions of the section are not applicable. The third can only be applicable if the aiding was intentional. When, therefore, Ram Nath was not aware of the fact that the person who professed to be Hari Shanker was not Hari Shanker and that he was falsely personating him and that when he did not profess to attest his voting slip on his personal knowledge and when the polling officer also was aware of the fact that Ram Nath was not attesting on personal knowledge; it is very difficult to hold that Ram Nath was guilty of intentionally aiding the commission of an offence as defined in s. 171D. The conduct of Ram Nath was highly reprehensible and improper. His action was contrary to the Municipal Rules and might have vitiated the election on that ground also. I have, however, not to consider the case from this point of view. In my opinion, on the admitted facts, no offence of abetment, that is intentional aiding of false personation, was committed by the accused. I accordingly allow this application and setting aside the conviction and the sentence order that the accused be acquitted. The fine if paid should be refunded.

Z. K. Application allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 219 OF 1925.

August 27, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Findlay, Officiating J. C.

WAMANRAO—APPLICANT

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 124—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439—State document—Rejection by Court—Interlocutory order—Revision.

It is under very rare and exceptional circumstances that the Judicial Commissioner's Court would interfere on the revisional side with an interlocutory order of a Magistrate rejecting a piece of documentary evidence. [p. 900, col. 1.]

Choa Lal Dass v. Anant Pershad Misser, 25 C. 233; 13 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 157, relied on.

Krishnarao v. Emperor, 73 Ind. Cas. 335; 6 N. L. J. 119; 24 Cr. L. J. 591; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 47, distinguished.

It is incumbent upon a Court to prevent the disclosure of State documents in proceedings before it. No sound distinction can be drawn between the duty of the Judge when objection is taken by the responsible officer of the Crown, or by the party, or when, no objection being taken by anyone, it becomes apparent to him that a rule of public policy prevents the disclosure of the documents or information sought. [p. 900, col. 2.]

Appeal against an order of the Magistrate, First Class, Nagpur, dated the 19th of August 1925.

Mr M. R. Bobde. for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT.—The grounds of the present application for revision are set forth sufficiently clearly in the application itself. It would appear that during the trial of a criminal case under s 325, Indian Penal Code, against the applicant and another accused in the Court of the Assistant Commissioner and First Class Magistrate, Nagpur, a certain document was produced by the Pleader for the defence in the course of the examination of a prosecution witness. The Magistrate, after the witness had admitted that the document in question bore his signature found that it appeared to be part of an unpublished official record relating to an affair of State. He accordingly after consulting the District Magistrate, Deputy Commissioner, declined to allow the document to be produced and confiscated it. It is particularly noticeable that the Counsel, who had produced it, refused to make any statement as to the circumstances under which the document had come into his possession. I am, therefore, asked to revise the connected order of the Magistrate, dated the 19th August 1925 and to admit this document in evidence.

In the first place, I would point out that it would be under very rare and exceptional circumstances that this Court would interfere on the revisional side in connection with an interlocutory order such as that we are concerned with. The circumstances of the decision in Krishnarao v. Emperor (1), decided by Batten, J. C, were wholly different. There it was obvious, and so it was then indeed admitted by the Standing Counsel for the Crown, that there was no element of dishonesty involved in a case purporting to be one of criminal breach of trust. Here the facts and circumstances are wholly different and the case quoted is quite inapposite. Here we have, at the best for the applicant, a piece of documentary evidence rejected by the Magistrate on grounds which may or may not be sound, but this matter can, in the event of a conviction and of an appeal, be agitated afresh. It would lead to an impossible state of affairs if this Court were to interfere on the revisional side with each and every order of a Magistrate of the kind we are considering, even if that order were an improper and illegal one.

I fully concur with the principles laid down by Banerjee and Wilkins, JJ., in Chou Lal Dass v. Anant Pershad Misser (2). It is highly undesirable that this Court should, on any or every pretext, interfere with proceedings in the subordinate Courts unless on very exceptional grounds. On the contrary, however, an effort should be made to allow the proceedings in these Courts to take their natural course. It would only, therefore, be in very exceptional circumstances that this Court would interfere in a matter like the present one.

Coming to the merits of the application, these seem to me to be non-existent Here we have a document which, not only the Magistrate but the District Magistrate, and Deputy Commissioner as well, believed to be one which has been improperly produced before the Magistrate as containing a communication between public officials in the discharge of their public duties. The document, on the material before me, would prima facie appear to be a document of State, and under s. 124, of the Evidence Act, no public officer can be compelled to disclose it. The fact that this document came from the custody of the Pleader for the applicant and that this Pleader has apparently declined to disclose the method by which, or the circumstances under which, the document came into his possession, can surely not better the position of the applicant in this connection.

For my own part I fully concur with the dictum of Wills, J., in Hennessy v. Wright (3) which is as follows:—

"I think the above cases abundantly shew that no sound distinction can be drawn between the duty of the Judge when objection is taken by the responsible officer of the Crown, or by the party, or when, no objection being taken by anyone, it becomes apparent to him that a rule of public policy prevents the disclosure of the documents or information sought."

Here, the Magistrate, after having obtained the sanction of his superior officer on the point, came to the conclusion that a rule of public policy made it incumbent upon him to prevent the disclosure of the said document. His action in the matter, therefore, assuming the document, as I must do, to be a document of the State, was undoubtedly correct and the Magistrate would have failed in his duty if he had done otherwise than he did.

I see no cause at all for interference and dismiss the application without notice to the Crown.

N. H. Application dismissed.

---

(1) 73 Ind. Cas. 335; 6 N. L. J. 119; 24 Cr. L. J. 591; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 47.

(2) 25 C. 233; 13 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 157.

(3) (1888) 21 Q. B. D. 509 at p. 521; 57 L. J. Q. B. 530; 59 L. T. 323; 53 J. P. 52.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 855 OF 1925.

January 12, 1926.

Present:—Sir Shadi Lal, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Addison.

RANNUN—ACCUSED—APPELLANT

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Interpretation of Statutes—General Statute v. particular Statute—Repeal, constructive—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 27—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 162, 237—Evidence Act v. Cr. P. C.—Relative scope of s. 27, Evidence Act and s. 162, Cr. P. C.—Circumstantial evidence—Inference of guilt—Motive, value of—Accused, producing body of deceased—Offence—Charge under s. 302, Penal Code—Conviction under s. 201, Penal Code.

It is a cardinal rule of interpretation that a general Statute is to be construed as not repealing a particular one. [p. 902, col. 2.]

A repeal by implication is only effected when the provisions of a later enactment are so inconsistent with or repugnant to the provisions of an earlier one, that the two cannot stand together. [p. 902, col. 1.]

The Evidence Act is a separate Statute dealing with an important branch of law and its provisions are independent of the rules of procedure contained in the Cr. P. C., and must have full scope unless it is clearly proved that they have been repealed or altered by another Statute. [p. 901, col. 2: p. 902, col. 1.]

Section 162, Cr. P. C., applies to the statements of persons examined as witnesses by the Police in the course of investigation and not to the statement of an accused person and does not override or modify the provisions of s. 27 of the Evidence Act. [p. 902, col. 2.]

In order to justify the inference of guilt, on circumstantial evidence the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt. [p. 903, col. 1.]

Motive for a crime while it is always a satisfactory circumstance of corroboration when there is convincing evidence to prove the guilt of an accused person can never supply the want of reliable evidence, direct or circumstantial, of the commission of the crime with which he is charged. [p 902, col 2.]

Where the sole evidence against an accused is that in consequence of information supplied by him the body of a murdered person was recovered from his field he cannot be convicted under s. 302, Penal Code, but he can be convicted of an offence under s. 201 of the same Code [p. 903, col. 1.]

A person charged with an offence of murder can be convicted under s. 201, Penal Code, without a further charge being made against him under that section. Such a conviction is warranted by s. 237, Cr. P. C. [ibid.]

Appeal against an order of the Sessions Judge Ludhiana, dated the 19th August 1925.

Mr C. L. Gulati, for the Appellant.

Mr. Desraj Sawhney, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—On or about the 6th March 1925, one Harya, a Jat of the village Todarpur in the District of Ludhiana, disappeared from his house, and it was not until the 6th April 1925, that his corpse was disinterred from the field of the appellant Rannun. The Sessions Judge of Ludhiana has convicted Rannun of the murder of Harya, and has sentenced him under s. 302, Indian Penal Code, to suffer the penalty of death. The medical evidence shows that Harya's death was due to asphyxia caused by strangulation, and the question for determination is whether the murder was committed by the prisoner Rannun.

Now, there is no eye-witness of the affair and the conviction rests on the following pieces of evidence:

(1) On the 6th April 1925, the prisoner stated to the Police that he had buried the body of Harya in his own field.

(2) In consequence of the information supplied by him the body was recovered from the field.

(3) A cloth called daula was found on the corpse, and a weaver Sher Muhammad deposes that he made the daula in question with another daula for the prisoner's brother Santu, who too was tried for the murder, but has been acquitted by the learned Sessions Judge.

It appears that Santu himself subsequently produced from his house another daula which has been identified by Sher Muhammad as one of the pair manufactured by him. The circumstance that a daula belonging to Santu was found on the corpse does not, in our opinion, materially advance the case for the prosecution so far as the guilt of the prisoner is concerned.

The learned Counsel for the appellant, while conceding that the confessional statement made by his client which led to the discovery of the body, is admissible under s. 27 of the Evidence Act, contends that s. 162 of the Cr. P. C. prohibits the use of the statement in an enquiry or trial in respect of the offence which was under investigation at the time when the statement was made to the Police Officer. Our attention has been invited to the language of the section which, it is urged, forbids the use of a statement made by "any person" to a Police Officer in the course of an investigation, and it is argued that the words "any person" include an accused person. This contention, if accepted, would virtually repeal s 27 of the Evidence Act, and we do not think that such result was ever intended by the Legislature. The Evidence Act is a separate Statute dealing with an important branch of law, and its provisions are independent of the rules of procedure contained in the Cr. P. C., and must have full scope unless it is clearly proved that they have been repealed or altered by another Statute. It must be remembered that s. 27 of the Evidence Act embodies a very important rule of evidence applicable to criminal cases, and one would expect that a repeal or alteration of that rule involving such far reaching consequences would be carried out not by a mere implication, but by an express provision to that effect. "It is in the least degree improbable that the Legislature would overthrow fundamental principles, infringe rights, or depart from the general system of law, without expressing its intention with irresistible clearness, and to give any such effect to general words, simply because they have that meaning when used either in their widest, their usual or their natural sense, would be to give them a meaning other than that which was actually intended. General words and phrases, therefore, however, wide and comprehensive they may be, in their literal sense, must, usually, be construed as being limited to the actual objects of the Act, and as not altering the law beyond." Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, 6th Edition, page 149. In wiew of this principle it was held in England in the case R. v. Harrald (1) that the enactment which gave a vote for the election of Town Councillors to every "person" of full age who had occupied a house for a certain time, and provided that the words importing the masculine gender would include females for all purposes relating to the right to vote, was intended, having regard to the general scope of the Act, to remove only that disability which was founded on sex, but not to affect that which was the result of marriage as well as sex, and, therefore, not to give the right of voting to married women.

As observed by Smith, J., in Kutner v. Phillips (2), a repeal by implication is only effected when the provisions of a later enactment are so inconsistent with, or repugnant to the provisions of an earlier one, that the two cannot stand together, in which case the maxim "leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant" applies. Unless two Acts are so plainly repugnant to each other, that effect cannot be given to both at the same time, a repeal will not be implied. The language of every enactment must be construed, as far as possible, in accordance with the terms of every other Statute which it does not in express terms modify or repeal. The law, therefore, will not allow the revocation or alteration of a Statute by construction when the words may be capable of proper operation without it.

Moreover, it is obvious that, while s. 27 of the Evidence Act is confined in its operation to an incriminating statement made by an accused person in Police custody, s. 162 of the Cr. P. C. contains a general provision embracing all statements made by persons examined during the Police investigation; and it is a cardinal rule of interpretation that a general Statute is to be construed as not repealing a particular one, that is, one directad to a special object or a special class of objects. "Now if anything be certain," observes Lord Selborne in Seward v. The Vera Cruz (3), "it is this, that where there are genernal words in a later Act capable of reasonable and sensible application without extending them to subjects specially dealt with by earlier legislation, you are not to hold that earlier and special legislation indirectly repealed, altered, or derogated from merely by force of such general words, without any indication of a particular intention to do so."

Having regard to the above rules of interpretation we are of opinion that s. 162 of the Cr. P. C. applies to the statements of persons examined as witnesses by the Police in the course of an investigation, and not to the statement of an accused person; and that it does not everride or modify the provisions of s. 27 of the Evidence Act. We must, therefore, hold that the prosecution can rely, not only upon the discovery of the corpse in the field of the prisoner, but also upon the statement made by him in consequence of which that discovery was made. There is also some evidence bearing upon the motive for the murder. But motive for a crime while it is always a satisfactory circumstance of corroboration when there is convincing evidence to prove the guilt of an accused person, can never supply the want of reliable evidence, direct or circumstantial, of the commission of the crime with which he is charged. Now, the question is whether the two pieces of evidence mentioned above necessarily point to the conclusion that the appellant committed the murder. The fundamental rule by which the effect of circumstantial evidence is to be estimated is well established. In order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused, and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt. Can we say that these facts are incapable of explanation upon any hypothesis other than that the prisoner committed the murder? It seems to us that, while they certainly prove that he made away with the evidence of the murder by concealing the body, they do not necessarily suggest the inference that he himself committed the murder. He cannot, therefore, be convicted under s. 302, Penal Code; but he is clearly guilty of an offence described in s. 201, Penal Code. It is true that he was not charged with the commission of the latter offence but, as laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Begu v. Emperor (4), a person charged with an offence of murder can be convicted under s. 201, Penal Code, without a further charge being made against him under that section, and that such a conviction is warranted by s. 237 of the Cr. P. C.

---

(1) (1872) 7 Q. B. 361; 41 L. J. Q. B. 173; 26 L. T. 616; 20 W. R. 328.

(2) (1891) 2 Q. B. 267; 60 L. J. Q. B. 505; 64 L. T. 628; 39 W. R. 526; 56, J. P. 54.

(3) (1885) 10 A. C. 59; 54 L. J. P. 9; 49 J. P. 324; Asp. M. C. 386; 33 W. R. 477; 52 L. T. 474.

We accordingly accept the appeal, so far as to alter the conviction under s. 302, Indian Penal Code, to one under s. 201 and setting aside the sentence of death we direct that the prisoner shall suffer rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years.

R. L. Appeal partly accepted.

(4) 88 Ind. Cas. 3; A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 130; 48 M. L. J. 643; 2 O. W. N. 447; 41 C. L. J. 437; 27 Bom. L. R. 707; 3 Pat. L. R. 95 Cr.; 6 L. 226; 23 A. L. J. 636; (1925) M. W. N. 418; 26 Cr. L. J. 1059; 7 L. L. J. 324 (P. C.).

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION APPLICATION No. 21 OF 1925.

October 20, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Rupchand Bilaram, A. J. C.

M. H. CROWDER—APPLICANT

versus

L. A. MORRISON—OPPONENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 200, 201, 202, 203—Preliminary inquiry—Magistrate, duty of—Procedure—Accused, whether can be called upon to show cause.

The procedure which a Magistrate is required to adopt on a complaint being lodged before him is laid down by ss. 200 to 203 of the Cr. P. C. Section 200 of the Code makes it incumbent on a Magistrate to examine the complainant forthwith at sufficient length to satisfy himself as to his veracity and as to any points on which the complaint is silent. If the result of such examination is that he finds no prima facie reason to distrust the complaint and he is satisfied that the facts alleged before him constitute a criminal offence, it is incumbent on him to issue process forthwith. If, on the other hand, he distrusts the complaint altogether or comes to the conclusion that no offence is made out, it is equally his duty to dismiss the complaint. It is only in a case where he distrusts the complainant, but his distrust is not sufficiently strong to warrant him to act upon it, that it is open to him to postpone the issue of process pending further inquiry as contemplated by s. 202, Cr. P. C., provided he records his reasons in writing for adopting this intermediate course. [p. 905, col. 1.]

Baidya Nath Singh v. Muspratt, 14 C. 141; 11 Ind. Jur. 226; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 93, relied upon.

The procedure of calling upon an accused person to render an explanation to enable the Magistrate to decide if he should issue process is undesirable. It is not fair to the accused that he should be called upon to state his defence before the prosecution have laid all their cards on the table. Though there is no obligation on him either to appear or to render an explanation in the preliminary inquiry, a refusal or failure on his part to attend in answer to a rule nisi issued by a Magistrate is likely to prejudice the mind of the Magistrate and a compliance therewith to expose him to serious risks. [p. 905, col. 2.]

Balai Lal Mookerjee v. Pashupati Chatterjee, 35 Ind. Cas. 828; 21 C. W. N. 127; 17 Cr. L. J. 396; 25 C. L. J. 606 and Chandi Charan Mitra v. Manindra Chandra Roy Chowdhury, 72 Ind. Cas. 173; 27 C. W. N. 196; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 198; 36 C. L. J. 414; 24 Cr. L. J. 333, relied upon.

In determining whether he should exercise his criminal jurisdiction, a Magistrate should apply his mind to see if there is "prima facie evidence for the alleged offender to answer" irrespective of what the motive of the complainant was. [p. 907, col. 1.]

R. v. Adamson, (1876) 1 Q. B. D. 201 at p. 206; 45 L. J. M. C. 46; 33 L. T. 840; 24 W. R. 250 and In the matter of the petition of Ganesh Narayan Sathe, 13 B. 590 at p. 598; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 391, relied upon.

Application to revise an order of the City Magistrate, Karachi, dated the 20th July 1925.

Mr. Motiram Idanmal, for the Applicant.

Mr. Tahilram Maniram, for the Opponent.

Mr. Parsram Tilaram, for the Crown.

ORDER.—This is a Rule calling upon the accused Morrison and the Crown to show cause why the order passed by the learned City Magistrate of Karachi on July 20, 1925, dismissing the complaint filed by the applicant Crowder should not be set aside and a further inquiry ordered.

The complainant has described himself as the Director of a private Limited Company carrying on business in the name of Messrs. W. Crowder & Co., Ld., having its head office at Bombay and a branch office here. It is said that its share capital is chiefly owned by the Crowder family group. The Managing Agents of this Company are said to be Messrs. W. Crowder & Co, a firm bearing the same name consisting of a few individuals who form a private partnership, and are not to be mixed up with the Company.

The complainants' case is that the accused was a paid servant of the Managing Agents and in charge of their business at Karachi upto the year 1920, when he was admitted as their partner and was to be paid in addition to his salary a certain commission on the net profit of the local business of the Company, such commission being payable only in such of the years in which there was a profit, and that during the years 1922 to 1924, the accused had committed criminal breach of trust by misappropriating large sums of money belonging to the Company to his own use. The complaint which is full of details refers to the means employed by the accused to misappropriate such large sums of money without detection and to the cause which led to the detection of his crime. Briefly stated, the means employed by the accused was to open an account in the name of the Company with the National Bank of India Ld., Karachi, though the official bankers of the Company were different. The opening of the account enabled the accused to cash cheques made payable to the Company and have them credited in this account and then to draw upon it for his private purposes. The payments made into this account and moneys drawn from it are said not to have been entered in the official account books of the Company, and the whole affair kept secret in every way from the head office. The fact that the local branch made no profit during the years 1922 to 1924 is said to have created a suspicion in the mind of the complainant, who sent down at first one Warren Smith from Bombay to look into the matter. The business of the Company consisted inter alia of looking after the interests of another cognate private Company owned by the same family group called the Crowder Engineering Works Ld., and of certain export agencies, one of which is referred to as The Jallo Resin & Turpentine Factory Ld., Lahore, or The Jallo Company. It is said that within four days of Smiths' taking in hand the inspection of the accounts of the Engineering Works, the account books and vouchers of that concern were destroyed by a mysterious fire in the afternoon of Saturday November 24, 1924, with the result that the complainant's suspicions being confirmed, he came down personally to investigate into the matter leading to the services of Morrison being dispensed with, the detection of the frauds complained of and the institution of the present criminal proceedings before the learned City Magistrate.

The complaint was instituted on April 8, 1925 and on that day the learned City Magistrate, after recording the most formal examination of the complainant ordered notice to issue to the accused to show cause why process should not be issued against him. Though the defalcations complained of amounted to about one lac and thirty thousand rupees, the inquiry was limited to the following items:—

1.	Rs.	9,000-0-0	dated	5-3-1924.
2.	„	5,500 0-0	„	18-11 1924.
3.	„	3,227 14-6	„	30-12-1924.
4.	„	9,711-0-0	„	28-11 1924.
5.	„	6,180-15-0	„	30-12-1924.
6.	„	25,000-0-0	„	4-12-1924.
7.	„	1,624-2 0	„	1-1925.
8.	„	41,000-0-0	„	1-1925.

Except the first item, the other items forming the crux of the investigation were all said to have been appropriated by the accused to his own use about the time when his management of the business was being scrutinized.

After a protracted inquiry lasting for about three months, and without examining the complainant further, or examining any of his witnesses, the learned City Magistrate passed the order complained of, and in doing so, he has mainly relied on the explanation tendered to him on behalf of the accused. The hearing of this rule has been considerably delayed as within five days of the order of dismissal of the complaint, the accused left British India and has not upto now returned. My brother Raymond dispensed with personal service of the notice on the accused and the rule was set down for hearing on September 4, 1925. In view of the cable sent by the accused asking for one month's adjournment to enable him to appear and/or engage Counsel, I postponed the hearing of the case to October 14, 1925. An application was made to move this Court on its High Court Side to order fresh personal service on the accused, but was dismissed by Kennedy, J. C., and Tyabji, A. J. C. on September 21, 1925. Mr. Tahilram has again asked for a further adjournment on the ground that the accused was not able to secure a return passage and had not sent down the necessary papers. The impossibility of the accused to secure a passage is a matter of considerable doubt and his failure to send down the necessary papers and instructions is inexplicable. I have refused the adjournment and have proceeded with the case.

The learned Pleader for the complainant has attacked the order of the learned Magistrate on a two-fold ground: firstly, that the whole procedure of the learned Magistrate is extremely irregular and wrong, and secondly, that the conclusions arrived at by the learned Magistrate as to facts are not only based on no legal evidence, but are not even warranted by the assumptions of fact which were neither admitted nor proved.

The learned Pleader for the opponent has confined his arguments to the first ground. He has pleaded his inability to meet the second ground in the absence of the necessary papers and instructions. I am of opinion that both the grounds are well-founded. The learned Assistant Public Prosecutor has franky admitted that he is unable to say any thing in support of the first ground. The procedure which a Magistrate is required to adopt on a complaint being lodged before him is laid down by ss. 200 to 203 of the Cr. P. C. Section 200 of the Code makes it incumbent on a Magistrate to examine the complainant forthwith at sufficient length to satisfy himself as to his veracity, and as to any points on which the complaint is silent. If the result of such examination is that he finds no prima facie reason to distrust the complaint and he is satisfied that the facts alleged before him constitute a criminal offence, it is incumbent on him to issue process forthwith. If, on the other hand, he distrusts the complaint altogether or comes to the conclusion that no offence is made out, it is equally his duty to dismiss the complaint. It is only in a case where he distrusts the complainant, but his distrust is not sufficiently strong to warrant him to act upon it, that it is open to him to postpone the issue of process pending further inquiry as contemplated by s. 202, Cr. P. C., provided he records his reasons in writing for adopting this intermediate course: Baidya Nath Singh v. Nuiparatt (1). The complaint filed in the present case indubitably disclosed facts which, if true, amounted to a criminal offence If the learned Magistrate doubted the bona fides of the complainant, it was incumbent on him to examine the complainant at some length to test his veracity, and to ascertain if his statements had a substantial foundation. If such examination created a doubt or distrust in his mind as to the bona fides of the complaint, it was his duty to record his reasons for postponing the issue of process till further inquiry. He has done neither; and, therefore, there are no data for the higher Court to hold that his action in postponing the issue of process was justified.

The preliminary inquiry held by the learned Magistrate is equally not one contemplated by s. 202, Cr. P. C. No attempt was made to examine the complainant and his witnesses in the light of any information supplied to him by the accused; even the request of the complainant to examine Mr. Hoshang, one of the principal prosecution witnesses, on whose evidence a good deal depended, was not acceded to. The inquiry was limited to explanations and counter-explanations by the learned Pleaders of both sides, to certain documents being filed and commented upon, and to an important document which is not now before this Court, said by the complainants' Pleader to have been the written explanation of the accused, and by the accused's Pleader as rough notes of his arguments. The procedure of calling upon an accused person to render an explanation to enable the Magistrate to decide if he should issue process, has been condemned on several occasions. It is not fair to the accused that he should be called upon to state his defence before the prosecution have laid all their cards on the table. Though there is no obligation on him ~~either~~ to appear or to render an explanation in the preliminary inquiry a refusal or failure on his part to attend in answer to a rule nisi issued by a Magistrate, is likely to prejudice the mind of the Magistrate and a compliance therewith to expose him to serious risks, as is fairly illustrated by the present case. The very first item complained of was a sum of Rs. 9,000 drawn by the accused from the

---

(1) 14 C. 141; 11 Ind. Jur. 226; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 93.

National Bank account. The explanation of the accused offered on his behalf at the inception of the inquiry was that he had drawn it to pay on behalf of the Company certain dastoori commissions or bribes to secure contracts for the Company. The prosecution was, however, able to place materials on the record to show that the specific sum drawn from this account was repaid to the Company to wipe off the indebtedness of the accused to the Company for certain past overdrawals for his personal use which he was being pressed to repay, and that no part of it could possibly have been paid as dastoori. A second explanation was offered on behalf of the accused and which prevailed with the learned Magistrate. How far the second explanation is true, or will be adhered to by the accused after all the prosecution evidence is recorded, or will be accepted by the Magistrate who tries the case, is another matter. But it cannot possibly be denied that the first explanation is likely to raise an adverse inferance against him.

In Balai Lal Mookerjee v. Pashupati Chatterjee (2) Sanderson, C. J., observed as follows:—

"The second irregularity which is relied upon was that the learned Magistrate did not confine himself to the evidence of the complainant and the report which was made by the Police Officer, but that he allowed the accused to be represented by a learned Pleader and to address him to argue the points which arose in the case and to put in a detailed statement of the points and the facts upon which the defence relied.

"To my mind, this procedure is quite inconsistent with the scheme of this legislation: I do not understand how the accused person ever goes before the Magistrate has made up his mind to issue process. The Magistrate is directed by the Statute to inquire into the case in certain specified ways, he is to decide whether process ought to issue, and then if he thinks that process ought to issue, he should direct process to issue. Then the accused person appears and if he has got a defence, his defence is investigated as well as the case for the prosecution. That being so, it appears to me that the learned Magistrate has not acted in this case in accordance with the procedure which is laid down by the Criminal Procedure Code".

In Chandi Charan Mitra v. Manindra Chandra Roy Chowdhury (3) the learned Chief Justice after referring to and reemphasizing the aforesaid observations, expressed a hope that the two judgments delivered by him would be brought to the notice of the Magistrates, and that they would in this respect observe the plain provisions of the law, and thereby prevent unnecessary waste of time which is likely to result by their action being challenged in a superior Court. I respectfully endorse every word of what has been said by his Lordship and express the same hope that the Magistrates in this Province would likewise adhere to the rules laid down by the Legislature for their guidance.

The order of dismissal passed by the learned Magistrate is not only based on certain assertions of fact which were neither admitted nor proved, but on a misconception of the very nature of the complaint. Evidently it was urged on behalf of the accused that a separate account with the National Bank was opened by him in connection with a building which Mr. Hoshang was constructing as offices of the Company and that certain moneys paid by him for purposes of construction were credited in this account. It was further urged on his behalf that the Company had no capital of their own at Karachi, and that they traded on the moneys of Mr. Hoshang and the Jallo Company. Both these statements were accepted by the learned Magistrate as true. Mr. Hoshang was one of the witnesses for the prosecution, and it was unfair to the complainant that he should not have been allowed to examine Mr. Hoshang or afforded an opportunity of refuting both these statements if they were being relied on for throwing out his complaint. The reasoning of the learned Magistrate that as the moneys paid into this account came either from Mr. Hoshang or from the Jallo Company, and as neither of them had complained against the accused "there was nothing dishonest in the accused transferring the amount from it to his personal account so long as he does not deny his liability to account for the money" does not appeal to me as sound. If Mr. Hoshang and the Jallo Company had given credit to the Company, it was the Company's money which was drawn out of the account. The learned

---

(2) 35 Ind. Cas. 828; 21 C. W. N. 127; 17 Cr. L. J. 396; 25 C. L. J. 606.

(3) 72 Ind. Cas. 173; 27 C. W. N. 196; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 198; 36 C. L. J. 414; 24 Cr. L. J. 333.

Magistrate seems to have been informed by the accused that a civil suit had been filed by him which was pending and that this complaint was a counterblast to that suit. He has been considerably influenced by what he believed to be the motive underlying the complaint. In the concluding part of his judgment he has stated that in his opinion the whole complaint was a dispute between partners about accounts, and that he, therefore, declined to allow them to settle it in a Criminal Court.

The information supplied to the learned Magistrate about the pending civil litigation does not seem to be supported by any document filed in the case and it is not certain if the civil suit was not a counterblast to the complaint. The complainant, no doubt, occupied a dual position of the Director of the Company and a partner of the accused in the firm of the managing agents. The complaint filed by him was on behalf of the Company and not by him as a partner. And even if it was a complaint filed by him as partner of the accused, there was nothing in law to prevent him from taking a criminal action against the accused, if he was entitled to both the civil and the criminal remedy. In determining whether he should exercise his criminal jurisdiction, the learned Magistrate should have applied his mind to see if there was "prima facie evidence for the alleged offender to answer" irrespective of what the motive of the complainant was: see the observations of Field, J., in the R. v. Adamson (4) referred to with approval by Sargent, C. J. in In the matter of the petition of Ganesh Narayan Sathe (5).

As I am ordering a further inquiry into the matter I do not propose to deal with the specific items referred to in the order, as any observations made by me are likely to affect the mind of the Trying Magistrate. All that is necessary for me to say is that I have carefully considered the order of the learned Magistrate, and I am not at all satisfied that the complaint was one which deserved such summary dismissal.

One further point which requires special mention is that the written explanation or notes of arguments of the accused's Pleader which evidently formed the basis of the learned Magistrate's order, is not now on the record. The notes were handed over to the learned Magistrate in open Court on July 6. A copy of these notes was applied for by the complainant on July 9. He was not able to get it, and the explanation offered by the learned Assistant Public Prosecutor on behalf of the Magistrate is, that these notes were not treated by the learned Magistrate as part of the record, and were not preserved. Though I accept the explanation of the learned Magistrate that the notes were not preserved by him under the belief that they did not form part of his record, I must express my disapproval of his action. It was open to the learned Magistrate not to accept notes of arguments of the learned Pleader for the accused, but if they were accepted by him, they should, in my opinion, have formed part of his record, and should not have been destroyed till the time for challenging his order in a higher Court had expired.

I set aside the order of the learned Magistrate, and in the circumstances of the case I direct the District Magistrate, Karachi, to hold a further inquiry either by himself or by a Magistrate subordinate to him other than the learned City Magistrate. I further direct that in view of the fact that the complaint is over six months old by now, and the offence complained of is of a serious nature, the inquiry should be conducted with as much expedition as possible.

P. B. A.
Z. K. Order set aside.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

Criminal Revision No. 895 of 1925.
November 26, 1925.
Present :—Sir Lancelot Sanderson, Kt., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir George Rankin, Kt.

BENI MADHAB SAPUI and another—
Petitioners
versus
JADU NATH SAPUI and others—
Opposite Party.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 69, 70, 71, 133, 134 (1)—Nuisance—Conditional order—Service of notice—Procedure.

The procedure for service of summons which is provided by s. 71 of the Cr. P. C. cannot be made use of unless service in the manner mentioned in ss 69 and 70 cannot be effected by the exercise of due diligence. [p. 908, col. 2.]

Where the report of a peon shows that service cannot be effected in the manner provided by s. 69, but it does not show that service cannot be effected in the manner provided by s. 70, the peon is not justified in effecting service in the manner provided by s. 71. [p. 908, col. 2.]

---

(4) (1876) 1 Q. B. D. 201 at p. 206; 45 L. J. M. C. 46; 33 L. T. 840; 24 W. R. 250.

(5) 13 B. 590 at p. 598; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 391.

A return of service of notice of a conditional order made under s 133 of the Cr. P. C. showed that the person to be served was not found in his house and that two copies of the notice were affixed to the door of the house:

Held, that there being nothing to show that service could not be effected in the manner provided by s. 70 of the Code, the service effected in the manner provided by s. 71 was not sufficient. [ibid.]

Criminal revision against an order of the Additional District Magistrate, Alipur, dated the 18th September 1925, affirming that of the Magistrate, Alipur, dated the 27th June 1925.

Babu Satindra Nath Mukerji, for the Petitioners.

Babu Suresh Chunder Taluqdar, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

Sanderson, C. J.—This is a Rule calling upon the District Magistrate and the opposite party to show cause why the order complained of should not be set aside on ground No. 1 of the petition and also on the facts stated in para. 9.

The order complained of was an order made by a Deputy Magistrate of Alipore by which the petitioners were directed to remove an alleged obstruction from a certain waterway or canal.

Ground No. 1 was as follows: "That the learned Additional District Magistrate was wrong in holding that the notice of the conditional order under s. 133, Cr. P. C., was legally served upon the petitioners and that ss. 134 (1) and 71, Cr. P. C., render such service valid." The facts stated in para. 9 of the petition were that there was no personal service upon the petitioners nor was there any proclamation as prescribed by law.

The point upon which the learned Vakil, who appeared for the petitioners relied, is not that which was stated in para. 9 of the petition; but, in my judgment, he is entitled to rely upon it having regard to the terms appearing in ground No. 1.

A return of the service of the notice of the conditional order, was made by the peon and it was to the effect that the petitioners were not found in their house and that two copies of the notice were hung up on the sadar door of their house.

The Magistrate in his explanation given in answer to the Rule said: "This service is legal according to s. 134 (1) read with s. 71, Cr. P. C."

Section 134 (1) of the Code provides: "The order shall if practicable, be served on the person against whom it is made, in manner herein provided for service of a summons."

In order to ascertain the manner in which the summons may be served it is necessary to refer to ss. 69, 70 and 71. Section 69 provides, "The summons shall, if practicable, be served personally on the person summoned, by delivering or tendering to him one of the duplicates of the summons." Section 70 provides, "Where the person summoned cannot by the exercise of due diligence be found, the summons may be served by leaving one of the duplicates for him with some adult male member of his family" (then there are provisions with regard to the persons signing a receipt therefor). Then s. 71 says: "If service in the manner mentioned in ss. 69 and 70 cannot by the exercise of due diligence be effected, the serving officer shall affix one of the duplicates of the summons to some conspicuous part of the house or homestead in which the person summoned ordinarily resides; and thereupon the summons shall be deemed to have been duly served."

It is plain that the procedure, which is provided by s. 71, cannot be made use of unless service in the manner mentioned in ss. 69 and 70 cannot be effected by the exercise of due diligence.

It was admitted by the learned Vakil, who appeared to show cause, that the return of the peon was defective. The return of the peon showed that service could not be effected in the manner provided by s. 69 but it did not show that service could not be effected in the manner provided by s. 70. Consequently in my judgment it was not proved that service of the notice of the conditional order had been duly effected; in other words, it was not proved that the order which is referred to in s. 134 (1) had been served in the manner provided for service of summons.

The Magistrate seems to have thought that if service of the notice was effected in the manner provided by s. 71, regardless of the question whether it could be served in the manner provided by s. 69 or by s 70, that would be sufficient. In my judgment, that conclusion is not correct, and I am of opinion that the service of the notice of the conditional order was defective

The question remains whether this Rule should be made absolute. The learned Vakil who appeared for the opposite party argued that the petitioners had not alleged that there were any adult members living in the house upon whom the notice could have been served. It seems to me that it is not necessary for them to allege that they were entitled to rely upon the argument that the return of service was defective.

It appears that in some previous proceedings relating to the same matter, the petitioners had appeared and had succeeded in getting the order made in those proceedings set aside. There is, therefore, no reason for assuming that the petitioners were willing to allow the present proceedings to go by default.

For these reasons, in my judgment, this Rule should be made absolute and the order absolute could be set aside. The conditional order will remain: the order absolute being set aside on the ground that service of the notice of the conditional order had not been duly and properly made.

Rankin, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Rule made absolute.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION NO. 318 OF 1926.
April 23, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Martineau.
EMPEROR—PETITIONER
versus
CHHOTU—ACCUSED—RESPONDENT.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 411—Stolen ornament found in house occupied by accused and his mother—Offence.

Where an ornament called kangni stolen in a burglary is found by the Police in a jar of chillies in a house occupied by the accused and his mother and there is nothing to show that he put it there or knew that it was there, an offence under s. 411, Penal Code, has not been established. [p. 910, col. 2.]

Case reported by the Sessions Judge, Delhi.

FACTS.—It is admitted that a serious burglary occurred at the house of Gugan (P. W. No. 2), during the night of the 24th-25th November, 1924 when a considerable quantity of clothing and jewelry was stolen. On the 17th January 1925, a house occupied by Chhotu accused and his mother Musammat Mankaur was searched by the Police, and it is alleged that a silver kangni which was identified by the complainant as part of the stolen property, was recovered from an earthen pitcher containing chillies in which it had been concealed. Chhotu and his mother were challaned by the Police under s 457, Indian Penal Code. The Magistrate has acquitted Musammat Mankaur but has convicted Chhotu under s. 411, Indian Penal Code, holding it as proved that the kangni is a portion of the stolen property and was recovered from Chhotu's possession.

GROUNDS.—For reasons which I am unable to appreciate the Honorary Magistrate has sentenced Chottu to a fine of Rs. 20 only. If Chhottu's guilt is open to doubt, as is contended by his Counsel whom I have heard in revision, he is entitled to an acquittal. If, however, his guilt is proved whether under s. 457 or s. 411, Indian Penal Code, (he was charged in the alternative), a sentence of Rs. 20 is wholly inadequate. The Public Prosecutor who in view of the peculiar circumstances of the case, was called upon by me to appear has argued in support of the conviction and has formally asked for enhancement of sentence.

In any case the sentence of Rs. 20 fine cannot possibly be allowed to stand. In forwarding the case to the High Court, for orders, it is unnecessary for me to deal with facts in detail. I will confine myself to dealing briefly with the arguments advanced on behalf of the petitioner by his Counsel.

I must observe in the first instance that the position taken by accused's Counsel before me in argument was substantially different from the allegation apparently made before the lower Court. The accused then though denying that the kangni had been found in his house, adduced evidence intended apparently to show that the kangni recovered did belong to him, or to his relatives; and this was the trend of the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses. In revision his Counsel has argued that the kangni had no connection with the accused at all, he has not seriously attacked the evidence proving that the kangni is a portion of the stolen property, he has confined himself to trying to show that the (kangni recovered as is now admitted during the search) was placed in the house by accused's enemies (of whom there are many owing to party faction in the village) a fraud which he argues was facilitated by alleged irregular procedure on the part of the Police in searching the house.

The circumstance that the First Information Report though mentioning some of the stolen property does not specifically mention a kangni or the names of the thieves, is immaterial because the First Information Report was made by a person who admittedly had no personal knowledge of the facts of the burglary.

I see no force in the plea that there was any irregularity on the part of the Police in conducting the search. The search was arranged by Sub-Inspector Chiranji Lal (P. W. No. 7) and Inspector Milchem (P. W. No. 9) both of whom were present. It was actually made by Chandgi, constable (P. W. No. 8) and Devi Dat lambardar (D. W. No. 15). It is stated definitely and unequivocally by the Inspector, Sub-Inspector and the constable that the person of the searchers were searched in the presence of the accused before they entered the house, and that the kangni was found concealed in a pitcher of chillies inside a room. An element of doubt has been introduced by the statements of Devi Dat lambardar, who, having, apparently been won over by the accused now denies, (1) that he and his companions were searched before entering accused's house; (2) that the kangni was found concealed in the pitcher. He asserts that it was picked up from the floor by the constable Chandgi and he implies that the constable introduced it himself. It is to be noted that Devi Dat lambardar made no such allegation to the Inspector of Police at the time of search, and his equivocal statement now should, in my view, be disregarded, I would hold it proved that the kangni was found in the house of the accused concealed in a pitcher of chillies.

There is ample evidence that the kangni belongs, as alleged, to the complainant and this evidence has not been attacked in arguments by accused's Counsel.

The house from which it was recovered admittedly belongs to the accused and his mother (acquitted), and there is no evidence that any other persons usually live in the house or were living in the house at the time. The accused's elder brother, (said to be a graduate), is stated to have a share in the family property, but it is not alleged that he was living in the house at the time, though it appears that he came down during the investigation of the case.

The defence evidence deals mostly with the alleged respectability of accused and his family. So far as it deals with the facts it is clearly worthless.

Finally, though not mentioned in the grounds of revision, Counsel urged the plea that the trial had been vitiated by an infringement of the provisions of s. 256, Cr. P. C. The Magistrate called on the accused to name the prosecution witnesses required for cross-examination immediately after framing the charge without the statutory interval. This was an irregularity which in my view does not vitiate the trial because the accused was obviously not prejudiced. He was through out represented by Counsel, and when questioned asked that all the prosecution witnesses should be re-called, and all were in fact re-called for an adjourned date, obviously therefore, the failure to allow the required interval made absolutely no difference to the course of the trial. The latest authority on this point, [viz., Phuman Singh v. Emperor (1)] indicates that under such circumstances the irregularity should be held curable under s. 537, Cr. P. C.

It is proved, in my opinion, that the accused was found in possession of stolen property shortly after the theft; and having regard to the manifestly contradictory and unsatisfactory explanations offered by the accused which are hardly consistent with the possibility of his innocence, the conviction should be in my view affirmed, and the sentence enhanced.

I forward the case, accordingly, to the High Court for decision.

Mr. Shamair Chand, for the Respondont.

ORDER.—The learned Sessions Judge has sent this case up for the enhancement of the sentence of fine imposed on Chhotu for an offence under s. 411, Indian Penal Code. It appears to me, however, that the conviction should be set aside.

The finding is that an ornament called a kangni, stolen in a burglary committed on the 24th November 1924, was found by the Police on the 17th January following in a jar of chillies in a house occupied by Chhotu and his mother Mankaur. There is, however, nothing to show that Chhotu put the kangni in the jar or knew that it was there. A kangni is an ornament worn by women, and it is quite likely that Mankaur may have received it from the thieves and hidden it in the jar without her son knowing anything about it.

I must accordingly set aside the conviction and sentence and acquit Chhotu.

The fine, if paid, will be refunded.

R. L. Conviction set aside.

---

(1) 89 Ind. Cas. 518; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 339; 26 Cr. L. J. 1158; 7 L. L. J. 114.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL MISCELLANEOUS PETITION No. 48 OF 1926.

April 30, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Jai Lal.

DHARI MAL—ACCUSED—PETITIONER

versus

EMPEROR THROUGH RAJ RAM—COMPLAINANT—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 526 (e)—Complaint dismissed in default—Fresh complaint in another Court—Transfer to Court dismissing original complaint.

Where a case has been dismissed in default by a particular Magistrate, a fresh complaint based on the same facts should be transferred to the same Magistrate for trial.

Petition for transfer of the case from the Court of the City Magistrate, Hoshiarpur, to some other Court of competent jurisdiction.

Mr. Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Petitioner.

ORDER.—On the 23rd January 1926 one Raja Ram filed a complaint under s. 323/504, Indian Penal Code, against the petitioner in the Court of the City Magistrate, Khan Sahib Mian Hakim Din, of Hoshiarpur, who transferred it to Sardar Gurdial Singh, Magistrate First Class. On the 28th January this complaint was dismissed as the complainant did not appear. The accused was present with his Counsel on that date. Later on the same day Raja Ram filed another complaint in the Court of Sardar Gurdial Singh on the same allegations and under the same sections. Sardar Gurdial Singh returned this complaint to be presented to the City Magistrate. The City Magistrate took cognizance of the case and issued processes for the appearance of the accused, the petitioner. On the date of hearing an application was presented on behalf of the accused that the case may be sent to Sardar Gurdial Singh for trial, as the previous one had been dismissed by him. This petition was dismissed with the remarks by Mian Hakim Din, the City Magistrate, that the case being of special importance it was necessary that he should himself hear it.

This is a petition by the accused for transfer of the case from the Court of Mian Hakim Din. Several allegations are made in support of the petition from which an inference is sought to be drawn that the accused has reasonable grounds to apprehend that he will not receive justice in the Court of Mian Hakim Din. I have examined the explanation of Mian Hakim Din, and am satisfied that there is no ground for the petitioner to entertain an apprehension that he will not get a fair trial in his Court. At the same time I consider that as the case was originally transferred for trial to Sardar Gurdial Singh and was once dismissed by him for default, it is desirable that the fresh complaint based on the same facts should be sent to him for trial. Under s. 526 (e) I order that the case be transferred from the Court of Mian Hakim Din, City Magistrate of Hoshiarpur, to that of Sardar Gurdial Singh, Magistrate First Class, Hoshiarpur.

R. L. Case transferred.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 166 OF 1926.

March 23, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Daniels.

RAMMU—ACCUSED—APPLICANT

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 342—Non-compliance with provisions—Absence of prejudice—Effect.

An omission to comply fully with the provisions of s. 342, Cr. P. C., does not vitiate the trial unless the accused has been prejudiced. [p. 912, col. 1.]

Bechu Chaube v. Emperor, 71 Ind. Cas. 115; 45 A. 124; 20 A. L. J. 874; A. I. R. 1923 All. 81; 24 Cr. L. J. 67, Mohiuddin v. Emperor, 86 Ind. Cas. 459; 4 Pat. 488; 6 P. L. T. 154; (1925) Pat. 112; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 414; 3 Pat. L. R. 110 Cr.; 26 Cr. L. J. 811 and Nga Hla U v. Emperor, 89 Ind. Cas 312; 3 R. 139; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 258; 26 Cr. L. J. 1336, referred to.

Criminal revision from an order of the Sessions Judge, Muttra, dated the 24th of November 1925.

Mr. Akhtar Husain Khan, for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT.—I think it would be absurd to re-open a petty case in which the accused has been fined Rs. 20 and in which it is not even suggested that he has been in any way prejudiced merely because some prosecution witnesses were examined after the accused's statement was taken. The Court appears to have examined two witnesses for the prosecution, then taken the statement of the accused and then framed a charge. This is what appears from the order-sheet, though it is pointed out that in the heading of the witnesses' evidence which is not written by the Court but in the hand-writing of a clerk the date of the second witness in given as 14th. The accused made a full statement of this case. On the charge being framed he did not desire to re-call any of the prosecution witnesses. A further prosecution witness appears to have been called on a subsequent date. I adhere to the view taken by this Court in Bechu Chaube v. Emperor (1) and by me in several subsequent cases as well as by the Patna and Rangoon High Courts in Mohiuddin v. Emperor (2) and Nga Hla U v. Emperor (3) respectively that an omission to comply fully with the provisions of s. 342 does not vitiate the trial unless the accused has been prejudiced. As there has been no prejudice in this case I reject the application.

R. L. Application rejected.

---

(1) 71 Ind. Cas. 115; 45 A. 124; 20 A. L. J. 874; A. I. R. 1923 All 81; 24 Cr. L. J. 67.

(2) 86 Ind. Cas. 459; 4 Pat. 488; 6 P. L. T. 154; (1925) Pat. 112; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 414; 3 Pat. L. R. 110 Cr.; 26 Cr. L. J. 811.

(3) 89 Ind. Cas. 312; 3 R. 139; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 258; 26 Cr. L. J. 1336.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 157 OF 1926.

April 30, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Addison.

KURA AND ANOTHER—ACCUSED—APPELLANT

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 256—Prosecution witnesses coming from Native State—Accused, whether can be asked forthwith about cross-examination.

The fact that the prosecution witnesses come from a Native State and it would take a long time to again secure their attendance, is a sufficient reason under s. 256, Cr. P. C., for requiring the accused to state forthwith whether he wishes to cross-examine any of the witnesses.

Appeal from an order of the Magistrate First Class, exercising enhanced powers under s. 30, Cr. P. C., Ludhiana, dated the 21st December 1925.

Mr. Bishen Narain, for the Appellant.

Mr. C. L. Mathur, for the Government Advocate, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Mohamda has been convicted under s. 457/75, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment, while Kura has been sentenced under s. 457, Indian Penal Code, for the same offence to two years' rigorous imprisonment. Mohamda has appealed through Jail and Kura through Counsel.

The house of Sampuran Singh of village Malmazra, District Ludhiana, was broken into and a camel stolen on the night of the 18th-19th March 1925. The offence was reported next day at the Police Station and it was mentioned that Mohamda and a companion of his who was not named, were suspected as they had been coming before this to the house of one Hardit Singh. Both the appellants were seen some two or three days later riding the camel by Mehr Singh and Natha Singh. They asked the appellants whose camel it was and received the reply that it was their own. These witnesses then pointed out that they knew it to be the property of Sampuran Singh whereupon the reply made by Mohamda was that he had bought it from Sampuran Singh through Hardit Singh. The camel was actually caught in the possession of the two appellants in Patiala State territory on the 26th March 1925. One Sant Ram saw them on it and chased them as he knew the camel. He was struck a blow with a lathi and the appellants rode off pursued by Man Singh and Arjan who caught the camel. The two appellants, however, succeeded in getting off it and running away and were caught by Ude Singh and Bir Singh. All these facts have been satisfactorily established.

It was argued on behalf of Kura that he might have been an innocent companion of Mohamda. On the facts established, however, it must be held that both had stolen the camel.

It was next argued on his behalf that the procedure laid down in s. 256 of the Cr. P. C. had not been followed. This is not correct. The Magistrate did ask the appellants forthwith whether they wished to cross-examine any of the prosecution witnesses but he did do so for an excellent reason, namely, because the witnesses had come from Patiala State and it would have taken long time to have again secured their attendance.

The appellants produced no evidence in their defence and gave no explanation worthy of mention. I have no hesitation in maintaining the conviction of both the appellants.

Kura, however, is a first offender and it should be presumed that he was led by Mohamda. That being the case the sentence passed upon him is much too severe. I accept his appeal to the extent of reducing the sentence to nine months' rigorous imprisonment. I dismiss the appeal of Mohamda.

N. H. Appeal partly dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST APPELLATE ORDER No. 101 OF 1924.

February 2, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Wallace.

GODAN NAMBUDRIPAD—APPELLANT

versus

KRISHNAN NAMBUDRIPAD AND OTHERS—PETITIONERS—RESPONDENTS.

Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act (I of 1900), s. 6 (3)—Re-valuation of improvements, method of - Commissioner, duty of—Burden of proof.

On an application for re-valuation under s. 6 (3) of the Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act the valuation of the improvements as embodied in the original decree cannot be disturbed and must be accepted. The Commissioner on such re-valuation has to consider (1) if any and what compensation is to be given for new improvements subsequent to the date up to which compensation for improvements has been adjudged in the decree and (2) whether any improvement, which has already been adjudged has to be re-valued, in consequence of some change in its condition since the adjudication of it in the first decree. It is not his business to make a valuation de novo. The starting point of the second valuation is the point where the first was left off, and on the tenant rests the onus of putting before the Commissioner evidence on which he has to make his decision. [p. 913, col. 2.]

Appeal against an order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Ottapalam, dated the 6th of December 1923, in A. S. No. 57 of 1922, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif, Alatur, in E. P. No. 946 of 1921 in O. S. No. 282 of 1916.

Mr. D. A. Krishna Warier, for the Appellant.

Messrs. S. Ranganatha Iyer and A. V. Krishna Menon, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal against the order of the lower Appellate Court declining to give effect to a re-valuation held under s. 6 (3) of the Malabar Tenants Improvements Act. The decree of the first Court was passed on 18th February 1918. For the purpose of the suit there had been a valuation of the "improvements" by a Commissioner in 1916. The suit went up on appeal and second appeal and the second appeal decree was passed on 16th November 1920. On an application for re-valuation under s. 6 (3) of the Act a second Commissioner was sent in September 1921 and he reported his valuation of the improvements.. This valuation both the lower Courts have declined to accept and appellant appeals.

The method followed by the second Commissioner apparently was not to value how much the property had improved since the first valuation in 1916, but how much it had improved since the date of the kanom, i. e., as if he was carrying out a first valuation and not a re-valuation. As his total figure is much larger than the figure of the first Commissioner, appellant claims compensation at that figure. Needless to say if the second figure had been less than the first, appellant would have claimed contrary. This indicates that his line of reasoning is wrong. The first figure is already embodied in the final decree and cannot be disturbed, and must be accepted so far as it goes. That is, the duty of the second Commissioner was to accept it as the compensation payable up to the date up to which the final decree said compensation had been fixed and decreed and consider whether, after that date there had been further improvements which would entitle the kanomdar to further compensation. This principle is enunciated in a case reported as Kunhammad Kutti v. Panchara Alleema (1) and seems to me to follow clearly from the wording of s. 6 (3) of the Act. As I understand the section, the Commissioner has to consider (1) if any and what compensation is to be given for new improvements subsequent to the date up to which compensation for improvements has been adjudged in the decree, and (2) whether any improvement, which has already been adjudged, has to be re-valued, in consequence of some change in its condition since the adjudication of it in the first decree. It is not his business to make a valuation de novo. The starting point of the second valuation is the point where the first was left off, and on the appellant rests the onus of putting before the Commissioner evidence on which he has to make his decision.

The method of the Commissioner was, therefore, wrong. But I am not prepared to direct a fresh re-valuation, as it is clear that his error was due to the laches of appellant. His Kariasthan, P. W. No. 3 who accompanied the Commissioner, does not appear to have furnished him with any copy of the first valuation and to have taken any steps to see that it was furnished to him. The original valuation was not produced even at the hearing of this application before the Court of first instance. It was clearly appellants' duty to see that the second Commissioner was provided with information as to each item for valuation as to its condition at the time of first valuation and its value as adjudicated by the final decree. Vague evidence, which is all that is now given, that some trees have increased in growth is of no use. Other trees have probably disappeared altogether and some new ones may have grown up. Appellant has not even examined either of the Commissioners. Appellant in this faild to supply the necessary information to enable the re-valuation to be properly conducted by the Commissioner and tested by the Courts. I do not subscribe to all the reasons given by the lower Appellate Court for rejecting the re-valuation, such as, e. g., that no compensation is permissible for trees of spontaneous growth. But even so, appellant has failed to adduce evidence to justify the award of any additional compensation. I decline to interfere and dismiss this appeal with costs.

---

(1) 33 Ind. Cas. 746; 30 M. L. J. 203.

V. N. V.
Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 233 AND 243 OF 1925.

December 22, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Misra.

Musammat SHEO BHAGU—DEFENDANT —APPELLANT.

versus

Musammat JANKI MISTRESS OF BHAGWAN DIN BAQQAL—PLAINTIFF —RESPONDENT.

Custom—Right of privacy—Right, whether attached to property.

It is settled law in the United Provinces that there is a customary right of privacy existing in them and that a substantial interference with such a right would afford a person, whose such right has been invaded, a good cause of action. This right is not only personal but attaches to the property in respect of which that right is claimed [p. 915, col. 1.]

Gokal Prasad v. Radho, 10 A. 358; A. W. N. (1888) 135; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 241, Abdul Rahman v D. Emile, 16 A. 69; A. W. N. (1893) 217; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 45, Abdul Rahman v. Bhagwan Das, 29 A. 582; 4 A. L. J. 445: A. W. N. (1907) 183, Jamiluddin v. Abdul Majid, 28 Ind. Cas. 671; 13 A. L. J 361 and Lala Bhagwan Das v. Shahzada Mirza Masud Quader, 7 O. C. 126, referred to.

Appeal against the judgment and decree of the Subordinate Judge, Sitapur, dated the 30th of January 1925, upholding that of the Munsif, Sitapur, dated the 3rd of October 1924.

Mr. N. C. Dutt, for the Appellant.

Mr. Hardhianchandra, for the Respondent.

ORDER.—These two appeals arise out of a suit brought by the plaintiff, Musammat Janki, against the defendant, Musammat Subhaga, for closing up of certain water spouts and sky lights opened by the defendant in a wall of her house built in February 1923. The suit was brought in July 1924 in the Court of the Munsif, Sitapur. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant's house was adjacent to that occupied by her, and that at the above mentioned time, i. e., February 1923, the defendant opened in the newly built wall of her house certain water spouts and sky-lights, the effect of which was that the water from her house flowed on to the courtyard of her (plaintiff's) house, and that her privacy was affected thereby. The defence was to the effect that the water spouts and the sky-lights complained of had been in existence for a long time since before the construction of the house occupied by the plaintiff, and that, therefore, she had no right to have either of them closed up. On the day when issues were struck the learned Pleader for the defendant confined his defence only to this point and did not raise any question regarding the existence of any easement raised in the case. It was further contended that the plaintiff being merely a mortgagee of the house occupied by her, she was not competent to maintain the suit.

The two issues, therefore, which were framed by the learned Munsif for trial related to the following points:—

(1) The plaintiff's right to maintain the present suit.

(2) The length of time during which the water spouts and the sky-lights had been in existence.

The Trial Court, the Munsif of Sitapur, on evidence produced in the case, held that the plaintiff was competent to maintain the suit and that the water spouts and the sky-lights complained of, were not old but had been put up by the defendant only in 1923, when she built the new wall of her house by making it pucca in place of the old one which was kochcha. The learned Munisf, therefore, decreed the plaintiff's claim in so far as it related to the water spouts, and directed the defendant to take steps that the water through them may not pour into the plaintiff's courtyard. In regard to the sky-lights he, however, found that it was not established that they in any way invaded the right of privacy of the plaintiff, and consequently on that finding he dismissed the plaintiff's suit in respect thereof.

Both the parties appealed against the decree of the learned Munsif to the learned Subordinate Judge who, having agreed with both the findings of the former, dismissed the plaintiff's appeal as well as that of the defendant.

The parties have come up in appeal to this Court. The Appeal No. 233 of 1925 is that filed by the plaintiff, Musammat Janki.

I take up the defendant's appeal first. The finding arrived at by the lower Appellate Court in regard to the water spouts to the effect that they were not old one, but had been put up only recently about the time stated by the plaintiff in her plaint, is enough to dispose of that appeal. The finding is one of fact, and nothing has been shown to me which could induce me to distrub that finding in second appeal. The learned Counsel for the defendant-appellant asked me to admit certain additional evidence, which would go materially to effect the finding of fact arrived at by the lower Appellate Court. At this stage while the case is in second appeal I am not prepared to admit any additional evidence. No application was filed by the defendant-appellant either at the time of finding the appeal or subsequently requesting this Court to admit any additional evidence Under those circumstances I am not inclined to entertain any oral request on the part of the Counsel to admit such evidence at this stage. The defendant's appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

Regarding the plaintiff's appeal, the matter, in my opinion, has not been looked at from the correct point of view, it is settled law in the United Provinces that there is a customary right of privacy existing in them, and that a substantial interference with such a right would afford a person whose such right has been invaded, a good cause of action. The position is so clear that it was not even disputed by the Pleader who represented the defendant in the Trial Court, as will be apparent from the issues struck in the case. The only point on which the parties went to Court for trial was the exact duration during which the sky-lights and the water spouts had been in existence. It was clearly recorded in the proceedings that no question of any right of easement whether customary or otherwise was raised in the case. It is, therefore, unnecessary for me to go at length and discuss the question of existence of the customary right of privacy just referred to. If it were necessary I would only refer in support of the proposition stated above, to the rulings reported as Gokal Prasad v. Rahdo (1); Abdul Rahman v. D. Emile (2), Abdul Raman v Bhagwan Das (3 ; Jamiluddin v. Abdul Majid (4) and Lala Bhagwan Das v. Shahzada Mirza Masud Quuuar (5).

It is also established from these authorities that such a customary right of privacy is not only personal but attaches to the property in respect of which that right is claimed. It is, therefore, clear to me that the plaintiff possesses a right of privacy in respect of the house occupied by her as a mortgagee. I have not been able to follow the learned Subordinate Judge in the view stated in his judgment that the plaintiff has not succeeded in establishing that any right exists in connection with the house occupied by her because she has not been able to show that the house in dispute has been occupied for more than 20 years by pardanashin laides, nor have I been able to follow him in the view as to whether the decision of the case can in any way be affected by good or bad character of the plaintiff in the present case. In my opinion it is clearly established from the evidence on the record that the house occupied by the plaintiff is a residential house in which respectable Hindus of the locality have constantly been living, and if for some time the house has not been occupied by pardanashin ladies, the right of privacy enjoyed by the owner of the house could not in any way be affected by that circumstance.

The only point, therefore, on which the decision of this case turns is the sole question whether the sky-lights opened by the defendant, Musammat Subhaga, have been put up at such a height that they would look over the courtyard of the plaintiff's house, and thereby affect her right of privacy. There is no clear finding of the lower Appellate Court on that point. The learned Subordinate Judge has looked at the case from an entirely erroneous point of view, and I cannot accept his finding in second appeal. I asked the parties in the course of arguments to point out to me as to whether there was satisfactory evidence on the record to show that the sky-light constructed by the defendant really invaded the plaintiff's witness No. 8, Sheo Shankar. It was elicited from him in cross-examination that the sky-lights were at a height of about one and a half yard from the floor. It is stated by the learned Pleader for the defendant that that statement alone would not be sufficient to decide the point in favour of the plaintiff. It is quite possible that although the sky-lights may be at such height from the floor of the room as stated above, yet they may be at a position from which the apartments of the plaintiff's house or her courtyard may not be looked on. I am, therefore, compelled to send down an issue for trial to the learned Subordinate Judge to the following effect:—

---

(1) 10 A. 358; A. W. N. (1888) 135; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 241.

(2) 16 A. 69; A. W. N. (1893) 217; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 45.

(3) 29 A. 582; 4 A. L. J. 445; A. W. N. (1907) 183.

(4) 28 Ind. Cas. 674; 13 A. L. J. 361.

(5) 7 O. C. 126.

Are the sky-lights constructed by the defendant, placed at such a height so as to affect the privacy of the plaintiff's house.

In order to decide this issue I would direct the learned Subordinate Judge to appoint a Commissioner who can go to the spot and report as to the exact situation and position of these sky-lights. No further oral evidence will be recorded in the case. If necessary the learned Subordinate Judge will examine the Commissioner in regard to this matter. The finding should be returned to this Court within two months from this date. Ten days will be allowed to the parties for filing objections, the time being counted from the date when the finding is notified to them by the lower Appellate Court.

G. H. Order accordingly.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE RANGOON HIGH COURT.

January 28, 1926.

Present:—Viscount Dunedin,

Mr. Ameer Ali and Sir Arthur Channell.

MAUNG KYI OH AND ANOTHER—APPELLANTS

versus

MA THET PON—RESPONDENT.

Privy Council Appeal—High Court, judgment of—Mis-statement of fact—Review—Appeal—Witness, demeanour of—Rejection of testimony—Appellate Court, when would interfere.

If a High Court in its judgment makes an absolute mis-statement of fact in a perfectly plain question, it is the duty of the person aggrieved to go to that Court and say "your judgment is vitiated by an obvious error on a pure question of fact" and to ask it to correct the mistake. If this remedy is not availed, the Privy Council will not go behind it. [p. 917, col. 2.]

A Court of first instance sees a witness and can, therefore, better judge his demeanour than a Court of Appeal; and, therefore, the rejection by the former Court of the testimony of a witness is not disturbed in a Court of Appeal. But if such rejection is based on the inherent probabilities of the story told by the witness, then it is open to the Appellate Court to consider the inherent probabilities of the story and come to a different conclusion. [p. 918, col. 1.]

Mr. E. B. Raikes, for the Appellants.

Mr. Gerard S. Sanders and Prince Fateh Singh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Viscount Dunedin.—The lands, the contention as to which is the matter of this suit, belonged originally to one U Laik, who died somewhere about the year 1893. He left the land burdened with a mortgage. U Laik was survived by a large family; to most of the family there is no reason that any particular reference should be made, but the youngest daughter married U Bauk. That lady died and U Bauk married again. The lady had before her death a daughter called Ma Thet Pon, and Ma Thet Pon is the plaintiff in the present suit. After her death and his second marriage U Bauk had certain children, and one of them and her husband are the administrators of U Bauk's estate and are the first two defendants in the present suit. In the year 1909 there was brought a redemption suit to redeem the land from the mortgage with which they had been encumbered by U Laik during his life. What happened in that redemption suit was that the money which was paid into the Court to effect the redemption was paid in by the hand of U Bauk. The decree for redemption decreed the land in the name of the heirs of U Laik but there is a controversy as to whether U Bauk immediately entered into possession or whether the heirs entered into possession. At any rate U Bauk was eventually in possession, whether as agent or on his own account as has been said, is a matter of controversy and at the time of the institution of this suit U Bauk was in possession. The suit as instituted by Ma Thet Pon is in right of her mother, Ma Saw Ma, and, as such, as heir of U Laik. She avers, and a certain agreement has been referred to in the judgment of the High Court and put in before this Board which bears out her averment, that the other heirs, that is to say, the elder brothers and sisters of her mother, Ma Saw Ma, had agreed to renounce their rights upon certain terms. She says that, first of all, she is the heir, and, secondly, that it was her money which effected the redemption, although the actual hand that paid the money into Court was that of her father, U Bauk. The defendants, who are the administrators of U Bauk, say that U Bauk himself was an heir, in right of his first wife, and it was his own money which he paid for the redemption. It is apparent that one of the crucial facts in this matter is, was U Bauk an heir of U Laik or not? Their Lordships recognise that in a case from a District Court in Burma pleadings, and, indeed the whole conduct of the case, can scarcely be scrutinised with the strictness with which a case would be scrutinised in this country. That allowances must be made is abundantly clear from the history of the proceedings in this case, because it is apparent when the pleadings are looked at that really both the plaintiff and the defendants floundered as to their real case, and that the Court quite rightly took upon itself to straighten out the whole matter and try to discover what the real question between the parties was.

As their Lordships have already said, one crucial fact is, was U Bauk an heir or was he not? That depended necessarily upon whether his first wife, Ma Saw Ma, survived or did not survive her father. If she did not survive her father, then U Bauk had no status as an heir at all, if she did survive her father then the Burmese Law is that. U Bauk, being the surviving husband of a person who ex hypothesi is the then surviving daughter, is treated as one of the heirs of the father. Their Lordships cannot say that the matter is altogether satisfactory in this respect, but it is the fact that the High Court setting forth the family of U Laik in the very next sentence say that his family comprised a daughter, Ma Saw Ma, who predeceased him, and then they go on to say that in the redemption suit U Bauk with another person were unnecessarily made plaintiffs since their respective spouses had died before they were within reach of the inheritance. It has been very properly argued by Mr. Raikes that there is no real proof of this statement, and he has also called the attention of their Lordships to the fact that in the redemption suit and indeed in this plaint it was alleged by the plaintiff that when U Laike died he was succeeded by his children, among whom Ma Saw Ma is mentioned as one. Notwithstanding that, their Lordships feel that, when there is a distinct statement by the High Court that U Laik's daughter, who was U Bauk's wife, had predeceased him, they cannot go behind that statement. The High Court was in possession of facts which are not before their Lordships; they certainly had before them whatever admissions Counsel may have made in the course of the case, and their Lordships feel that if a judgment was given out in which there was an absolute mis-statement of fact on a perfectly plain question, it would have been the duty of the person aggrieved to have gone to the High Court and said: "Your judgment is vitiated by an obvious error on a pure question of fact"; and to have attempted at any rate before the High Court to put it right.

There is another matter also: It is quite clear that, taking a strict view of the law, if the defendants showed that this statement was completely wrong, they went a long way towards winning the case and, therefore, in the ordinary and proper conduct of the case it would have been one of the things that one would have supposed the defendants' Counsel would have tried, before all other things, to bring out, that U Bauk had real possession as an heir. When one comes to the depositions of the witnesses in the case and the other documentary evidence, there is really nothing on which an actual determination can be founded. There are certain calculations, based upon a calculation as to age, on which one may come to certain conclusions; but there is nothing positive in the material before their Lordships on which they can come to a conclusion as to the proper date.

In those circumstances, their Lordships feel that they are really bound to take the fact as stated by the High Court that U Laik's daughter had predeceased him. If that is so, then U Bauk was not an heir, and it is in the complexion of that fact that he was not an heir that the rest of the evidence must be looked at. U Bauk was then, so to speak, a volunteer. It is equally possible that U Bauk redeemed the mortgage with his own money or with money which was given him by Ma Thet Pon, and here, of course, there is the actual testimony that was given about the advance of the money by Ma Thet Pon. U Bank is dead, and so unfortunately their Lordships cannot have his evidence; but not only does Ma Thet Pon depose quite clearly that she gave the money but there is also the testimony of one other witness. It is quite true that the learned Judge of first instance disregarded that testimony, and, if he had based his judgment upon the matter upon the demeanour of the witness and said that he thought from her demeanour that she was lying, or that the corroboratory witness was lying, it would be another instance of what has so often been said, that a Judge who sees the witness is in a better position than a Court of Appeal, which does not but that is scarcely what the learned Judge of first instance said. He did not seem to go so much upon the demeanour of the witness as upon what may be called the inherent probabilities of the story; the inherent probabilities of the story are taken up by the High Court and their Lordships can only say that they think the High Court has commented on those inherent probabilities in a way that commends itself to their Lordships' judgment.

Upon the whole matter, therefore, their Lordships do not think that a case has been made out to disturb the judgment of the High Court. That, after all, is a question for a Court of Appeal always, and it is especially a question for a Court of Appeal such as their Lordships' Board, which is a long way from the place and without any knowledge of the local circumstances.

Their Lordships will, therefore, humbly advise His Majesty that this appeal should be dismissed with costs.

S. D. Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellants:—Messrs. Sanderson, Lee & Co.

Solicitors for the Respondent:—Messrs. Bramall & Bramal.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION No. [illegible]-B OF 1925.
July 27, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Findlay, Officiating J. C.
Musammat SUNDARBAI—APPLICANT
versus
GOPAL SINGH—PLAINTIFF—
NON-APPLICANT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 10—Suit by widow for declaration of invalidity of adoption, dismissal of—Suit for possession by adopted son—Reversioner of adoptive father, whether can be impleaded as party.

The widows of a deceased Hindu instituted a suit against the plaintiff for a declaration that his adoption by their deceased husband was invalid. This suit was dismissed and the plaintiff then instituted a suit against the widows for recovery of possession of the property of his adoptive father. During the pendency of the suit, a reversioner of the deceased made an application to be impleaded as a party to the suit:

Held, that the suit being merely one for possession consequential upon the dismissal of the declaratory suit brought by the widows, it was not proper to implead the reversioner as a party to the suit, inasmuch as such a course would totally change the frame and scope of the suit and would render it necessary again to re-open the question of the validity or invalidity of the plaintiff's adoption which had already been settled as between him and the widows. [p. 919, col. 2.]

Application for revision of an order of the Subordinate Judge, Yeotmal, dated the 25th November 1924, in Civil Suit No. 14 of 1922.

FACTS.—The present non-applicant plaintiff has brought the present suit for the possession of the whole property in suit of his adopted father, Madhosingh, from Musammat Gangabai and Kamla, widows of the deceased Madhosingh as he has been declared to be validly adopted by defendant No. 1 to her deceased husband in C. S. No. 133 of 1920 instituted by the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 in this Court to obtain a declaration that his adoption is invalid. The suit was dismissed on the finding that the defendant now plaintiff in this suit was validly adopted by the defendant No. 1 in pursuance of a direction left by her deceased husband Madhosingh. The finding and decree of the lower Court has been upheld in the first and second appeal. The question of valid adoption is thus conclusive between the parties to the present suit. The present applicant is admitted to be a daughter of the deceased Madhosingh by defendant No. 1, Gangabai. She has now applied for being impleaded in this suit as a defendant alleging that she has got a reversionary interest in the suit property and that she was not aware of the present suit till now. It is also alleged that she has attained majority very recently. She is said to be a necessary and proper party to avail the multiplicity of suits and as she is substantially interested in the subject-matter in suit. For the plaintiff non-applicant the application is stoutly opposed on the ground that the applicant has no reversionary interest in the suit property being a resident of Central Provinces and even if she may have any she has no present interest therein during the lifetime of the widows, the defendants. That the question of adoption being finally decided the addition of the applicant in this suit is not necessary for determination of the question of possession involved in present suit. That her addition would increase complication as the question of adoption will have to be gone into. The question thus that presents for solution is whether the applicant Musammat Sundarbai is a necessary and proper party to the suit.

Mr. M B. Kinkhede, R. B., and Mr. R. N. Padhye, for the Applicant.

Mr. A. V. Khare, for the Non-Applicant.

ORDER.—The plaintiff, Musammat Sundarbai, has filed the present application in revision against an order under O. I, r. 10, C. P. C., passed by the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, Yeotmal, in Civil Suit No. 141 of 1922, refusing to make her a party in the suit. The plaintiff-non-applicant, Gopal Singh, in the said suit claimed possession of the property of his adoptive father Madho Singh, and the defendants are the widows of the latter. These defendants had in a previous suit claimed a declaration that Gopal Singh's adoption was invalid, but that suit was dismissed. As between the widows and Gopal Singh, therefore, the question of the validity of Gopal Singh's adoption is already settled, and the suit we are concerned with may be described as a consequential one brought by the adopted son for possession of the property.

The Subordinate Judge refused to make the present applicant a party on the ground that in the present suit no question of title is involved but only that of possession. He further pointed out that the present applicant is only a reversionary heir and that a right to sue for the alleged reversion will only arise when it opens out on the death of the widows.

In this Court on behalf of the applicant the decisions in Rao Lal Singh v. Rani Bhagoti (1) and Rajaratnam Aiyar v. Valasyasundaram Aiyar (2) are relied upon. Neither of these decisions is, as a matter of fact, helpful. In the C. P. L. R case quoted the question of adoption was in issue in the original trial of the suit, and the co-defendant alleged in effect that his right as a mortgagee would be prejudiced, if not entirely destroyed, were he not made a party. In the Madras case quoted the question of the validity of adoption was also at stake. It is perfectly clear that the present applicant, if she had so chosen, might have joined as a plaintiff in the previous suit by the widows for a declaration that the adoption of Gopal Singh was invalid But it seems to me that it is utterly impossible to hold, even giving the very broadest interpretation to the phrase in r. 10 (2) of O. I, C. P. C. (in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the question involved in the suit) that the applicant is a necessary party. The present applicant has only, in effect, a contingent interest which may arise in the future. It may never arise at all should she pre-decease the widows. While allowing to the fullest extent for the desirability of the enforcing of the principle of avoiding a multiplicity of suits, it seems to me utterly impossible to extend r. 10 (2) of O. I to a degree which would allow of the present applicant being made a defendant in the suit. If the applicant chose to go to the Court as a plaintiff in a separate suit, the utmost she could obtain either against the widows or against Gopal Singh would be a declaration that in the future she might be entitled to come in as a reversionary heir. It seems to me utterly impossible to hold in the circumstances of the present case, the question of the validity of Gopal Singh's adoption having already been determined as against the widows, that the applicant will be in any way prejudiced by being excluded from the present suit. The truth is that her inclusion in the suit would totally change the frame and scope thereof and would render it necessary again to re-open the question of the validity or invalidity of the adoption as between the applicant and Gopal Singh. The present suit is merely one for posses sion between Gopal Singh and the two widows, and it seems to me that by no stretch of imagination can the applicant be held to be a necessary party thereto.

---

(1) 2 C. P L. R. 236.

(2) 72 Ind. Cas. 156; 44 M. L. J. 322; 17 L. W. 329 A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 521.

The finding of the lower Court is, therefore, undoubtedly correct and the present application is dismissed. The applicant must bear the non-applicant's costs. I fix Rs. 25 as Pleader's fees.

Z. K. Application dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

Appeals from Appellate Order No. 317 of 1923 and from Appellate Decree No. 232 of 1925.
June 12, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Cuming and Mr. Justice Chakravarti.
RAHIMUDDI MEAJI—Plaintiff—Appellant
versus
Srimati AMINA BIBI alias KALI BIBI and others—Defendants—Respondents.

*Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 49, 182—Under-*raiyati of homestead and nal land—Lease, expiry of—Ejectment suit, maintainability of.

Defendant was holding an under-raiyati of homestead and also of nal land and a tank under a registered lease the term of which had expired. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of possession after service of notice under s. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act:

Held, that s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable to the case and that the suit was maintainable. [p. 921, col. 1.]

Appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge, Second Court, Tipperah, dated the 17th May 1923, modifying that of the Munsif, Second Court at Chandpur, dated the 26th February 1923, and appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Tipperah, dated the 17th September 1924, affirming that of the Munsif, Second Court at Chandpur, dated the 21st January 1924.

Babu Nagendra Chandra Chowdhury, for the Appellant in No. 317.

Babus Biraj Mohan Majumdar and Probodh Chandra Kar, for the Respondents.

Babu Probodh Chandra Kar, for the Appellant in No. 232.

Babu Nagendra Chandra Chowdhury, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Chakravarti, J.—This appeal is by the plaintiff and arises out of a suit brought by him for ejectment of an under-raiyat after service of a notice under s. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and after the expiry of a lease executed by the under-raiyat. The under-raiyati consisted of a plot of homestead land and also of some nal land and a tank as has been found by the Subordinate Judge. The defence of the defendant was that he was a settled raiyati of the village of lands which he held under a different landlord. Therefore, he contended that under the provisions of s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act he could not be ejected from the lands in suit so far as they form part of his homestead. The Court of first instance gave a decree to the plaintiff, but on appeal the learned Subordinate Judge has remanded this case to the Court of first instance for the determination of the question as to what are the precise limits of the homestead in the view that the defendant is protected from ejectment so far as the homestead lands are concerned, although he is not so protected as regards the nal lands and the tank which form part of the under-raiyati.

Now, in this second appeal it has been contended by the Vakil for the appellant that the learned Subordinate Judge was in error that the under-raiyati could be divided into homestead portion and agricultural portion; and then apply the provisions of s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The learned Vakil further contended that the case, relied on by the lower Appellate Court as an authority in support of his decision, does not apply to the present case. The case referred to is the case of Krishna Kanta Ghosh v. Jadu Kasya (1). I think the contention is well-founded. It has been found as I have already stated that the defendant's under-raiyati which he took from the plaintiff rightly consisted of homestead and also of nal land and a tank. Therefore, the question arises: Are the provisions of s. 182 applicable to the facts of this case. Now s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act says this: "When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom or usage, and subject to local custom or usage". But the provisions of this Act are applicable to lands held by a raiyati. Now, in the case cited it appears that the homestead was held to which the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act apply and was not a part of an under-raiyati to which the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act were already applicable.

---

(1) 28 Ind. Cas. 839; 21 C. L. J. 475; 19 C. W. N. 914.

The learned Vakil for the respondents has not drawn our attention to any case where the provisions of s. 182 have been applied to the case of a homestead to which the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act did already apply. If the provisions of s. 182 did already apply to the homestead then the provisions of s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act need not be invoked for the purpose of the application of the provisions of s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. We think, therefore, the present case is distinguishable from the case cited before us and we think, therefore, the plaintiff was entitled to eject the defendant under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act because the defendant was holding an under-raiyati under a registered lease the term of which had expired and the suit was brought for recovery of possession of the lands covered by the under-raiyati lease after the expiration of the term of the lease.

The result, therefore, is that this appeal is allowed with costs for all the Courts and the order of remand set aside and the decree of the first Court restored.

I assess the hearing fee at two gold mohurs.

Second Appeal No. 232 is by the defendant against the final decree made by the lower Appellate Court after the Trial Court had decided the case according to the remand against which Appeal No. 317 was perferred which I have already dealt with. It appears that there was an appeal by the plaintiff against the decree made by the Trial Court. The learned Subordinate Judge disregarding the previous remand order, decreed the whole suit of the plaintiff and on appeal by the defendant the learned Subordinate Judge not only refused to give relief to the defendant-appellants but set aside the order in effect made by his predecessor and gave a decree to the plaintiff for possession of the entire land. The defendants have appealed against that decree.

The appeal by the defendants is technically allowable because the learned Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to set aside the order made by his predecessor-in-office and gave a decree to the plaintiff against the order of the remand. However, as I have held in the appeal against the order of remand that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for the entire land the decree, though erroneous, has given right relief to the plaintiff.

The result, therefore, is that we affirm the decree made by the Subordinate Judge; but we allow no costs of that appeal to the respondent. Each party will bear his own costs.

Cuming, J.—I agree.

Z. K. M. A. No. 317 allowed: S. A. No. 232 dismissed.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 50 AND 51 OF 1926.

February 19, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Hasan.

KESHO PRASAD AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

GAYA BUX SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Co-sharers—Joint land—Exclusive occupation by one—Partition—Joint possession.

Where one of the co-sharers exclusively occupies land which he holds in common with the rest of the co-sharers, the remedy of the other co-sharers is by means of partition. A suit for joint possession is not maintainable.

Midnapur Zamindary Company Limited v. Naresh Narayan Roy, 80 Ind. Cas. 827; 51 C. 631; A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 144; 26 Bom. L. R. 651; 47 M. L. J. 23; 35 M. L. T. 169; (1924) M. W. N. 723; 29 C. W. N. 34; 20 L. W. 770; 51 I. A. 293; L. R. 5 A. (P. C.) 137; 23 A. L. J. 76; 3 Pat. L. R. 193; 6 P. L. T. 750 (P. C.), followed.

Appeal against a decree and judgment of the Additional Sessions Judge, Hardoi, dated the 4th November 1925, reversing that of the Munsif, Sandila at Hardoi, dated the 21st October 1924.

Mr. Harnarain Das, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—These appeals are by the plaintiffs in a suit for possession of a house No. 135 (compound No. 246) in village Chamka, Pargana Gondwa, District Hardoi. The relief prayed for was actual possession over the house in suit. The Trial Court gave a decree for joint formal possession and refused to give the relief of actual possession. Both sides appealed from the decree of the Trial Court.

The learned Additional Subordinate Judge of Hardoi accepted the defendants' appeal and dismissed the appeal of the plaintiffs with the result that the plaintiffs' suit was dismissed altogether. Hence these two appeals.

The chief defendant to the suit is Koili Singh. The plaintiffs and Koili Singh and some other defendants are co sharers of the village and the house in question lies in the abadi portion of the village. It was a riyaya's house and was formerly occupied by the widow of one Ram Charan, who vacated it some time ago. The defence was that on the house falling vacant Koili Singh occupied it in the right of a co-sharer of the village and also with the consent of the plaintiffs. The lower Appellate Court has found that the occupation by Koili Singh of the house in question was made with the consent of the plaintiffs and on his right to occupy it, the lower Court is of opinion that being a co-sharer he was justified in taking possession of the house and the plaintiffs' remedy lay in a suit for partition.

I agree with the Court below. As remarked by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Midnapur Zemindary Company Limited v. Naresh Narayan Roy (1) "when co-sharers cannot agree as to how any lands held by them in common may be used, the remedy of any co-sharer who objects to the exclusive use by another co sharer of lands held in common is to obtain partition of the lands." This pronouncement of their Lordships of the Privy Council is referred to by the learned Additional Subordinate Judge in his judgment. There is no substance in these appeals. They are dismissed.

Appeals dismissed.

N. H.

(1) 80 Ind. Cas. 827; 51 C. 631; A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 144, 26 Bom. L. R. 651; 47 M. L. J. 23; 35 M. L. T. 169; (1924) M. W. N. 723; 29 C. W. N. 34; 20 L. W. 770; 51 I. A. 293; L. R. 5 A. (P. C.) 137; 23 A. J. 76; 3 Pat. L. R. 193; 6 P. L. T. 750 (P. C.).

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION SECOND APPEAL NO. 918 OF 1925.

March 8, 1926.

Present:—Mr Justice Kanhaiya Lal
and Mr. Justice Ashworth.

RADHA KANT SHUKUL—DECREE-HOLDER
—APPELLANT
versus
BUTAI MISIR AND OTHERS—
OPPOSITE PARTIES—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 7—Decree obtained by joint Hindu family—Manager, whether can give discharge—Execution of decree—Minor member—Limitation.

The manager of a joint Hindu family can give a valid discharge in respect of a decree on his own behalf and on that of a minor brother and the latter cannot, therefore, take advantage of the provisions of s. 7 of the Limitation Act for the purpose of executing the decree.

Execution second appeal against a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Ballia, dated the 20th December 1924.

Mr. K. Varma, for the Appellant.

Mr. Baleshwari Prasad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal of a decree-holder. The facts are as follows:—One Jagesh Miser executed a simple mortgage in favour of one Har Har Nath. This Har Har Nath was not only the father of the present appellant, Radha Kant, but he was manager of a joint Hindu family which consisted of himself and of an uncle and a cousin of his own. He had also another son, Radha Govind, besides the present appellant, Radha Kant. Radha Govind is the elder of the two sons. It is common ground in this appeal that the execution of the decree obtained on the mortgage on 9th April, 1921 is time barred unless Radha Kant appellant can take advantage of the fact that he was a minor up to March, 1923. Both the lower Courts dismissed the application as time barred. The lower Appellate Court has held that the appellant cannot take advantage of s. 7 of the Limitation Act, because his elder brother Radha Govind who was admitted by him to be manager of the family to which he and that brother belonged could have given a discharge.

In this appeal it is contended that Radha Govind could not alone have given a discharge in respect of the whole mortgage debt, because the other relatives of the father, Har Har Nath, in whose favour the mortgage was originally executed had separated and consequently these members would separately have had to sign any deed of discharge. There appears to us to be no force in this argument. At any rate, Radha Govind could have given a discharge on behalf of Radha Kant, the minor, and this is all that is required by s. 7 of the Limitation Act. It was held by a Bench of this Court in Rati Ram v. Niadar (1) that the manager of a joint Hindu family, being member of a joint Hindu family, could give a valid discharge on his own behalf and on that of a minor brother. Accordingly, we dismiss this appeal with costs including fees on the higher scale.

(1) 49 Ind. Cas. 990; 17 A. L. J 649; 41 A. 435.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION SUIT No. 1127 OF 1920; APPEAL No. 49 OF 1920.

December 5, 1924.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

RATANJI DORABJI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

KISANDAS TRIBHOVANDAS AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Landlord and tenant—Lease—Covenant providing for assignment subject to consent of landlord—Consent withheld unreasonably, effect of.

Plaintiff obtained a lease of a piece of land from the defendants which contained a covenant that the demised premises and the buildings erected thereon should not be assigned without the consent in writing of the defendants, but that such consent would not be unreasonably withheld in the case of a respectable and responsible person. Plaintiff erected certain buildings on the land demised and entered into an agreement with a tenant to take the buildings on rent. Defendants, however, withheld their consent and plaintiff thereupon filed a suit for a declaration that the refusal of the defendants to consent to the assignment was unreasonable and that the plaintiff was entitled to assign the lease without their consent. It was found that the proposed tenant was a respectable and responsible person and that the defendants had withheld their consent owing to the fact that there had been a dispute between them and the proposed tenant with regard to another letting:

Held, that the refusal of the defendants to consent to the assignment was unreasonable and that the plaintiff was entitled to the declaration sought for by him.

Appeal from the order of Mr. Justice Marten, dated August 28, 1920.

FACTS.—Plaintiff took on lease a piece of land from the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, one of the conditions being, not to sub-let the leased property to anyone without the consent in writing of the landlords obtained previously, such consent, however, not to be unreasonably withheld in the case of a respectable and responsible person. Subsequently the plaintiff entered into an agreement with certain persons and asked for the consent of the landlords who refused it on the ground that the proposed sub-tenants were not desirable tenants, that they were troublesome and allowed the rent to fall into arrears for long periods. To meet the objections of the defendants the sub-tenants offered to deposit with them six months' rent in advance and to allow this sum to remain with them as a deposit during the pendency of the lease and also to pay the rent regularly every month. The landlords rejected this offer as well. The plaintiff thereupon brought a suit for a declaration that the refusal of the defendants was improper and the lease was liable to be assigned without their consent. The defendants urged that the proposed assignees had allowed the rent of some other buildings, rented by them from the defendants, to fall into arrears. The Trial Court decreed the suit holding that the proposed assignees were respectable and responsible persons that a reasonable person would have no apprehension from them as to the regular payment of rent, and would have taken into considerations their offer of the advance payment of rent by way of security, and that the refusal of the defendants was due to their differences with the proposed sub-tenants on some other letting. The defendants appealed.

Mr. Engineer (with him Mr. Bahadurji), for the Appellant.

Mr. Munshi (with him Mr. Kanga), Advocate-General, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—We think that the learned Judge in the Court below was right in holding that the defendants' consent to the proposed assignment of the lease had been unreasonably withheld, the ground being that there had been a dispute between the landlord and the tenant with regard to another letting. The learned Judge has found as a fact that there was a genuine dispute between the parties, that there was not a determination on the part of the tenant to decline to pay rent, but an objection to pay until the particulars of the tenancy had been definitely ascertained, which was not done till 19.9. The appeal, therefore, must be dismissed with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 305-B OF 1924.

March 24, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Kinkhede, A. J. C.

DAYARAM AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS NOS. 1 AND 2—APPELLANTS

versus

DEORAO AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—DEFENDANT No. 3—RESPONDENTS

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 60 (4)—License—Execution of permanent works—Revocability—Intention of parties—Estoppel—Principle, whether applicable to licensor's heirs.

Where a license has been acted upon and cost has been incurred in executing works of a permanent character, the license is not revocable unless the power of revocation is expressly reserved or the terms of the grant limit the license as to its duration. [p. 925, col. 2]

The presence of a covenant in the agreement executed by the licensee that the agreement shall be binding on his estate and the heirs is an indication of the intention of the parties that a heritable grant was to be made. [ibid.]

The principle of estoppel where applicable as against the licensor is equally applicable as against his heirs. [p. 926, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the Additional District Judge, Amraoti, dated the 27th September 1924, in Civil Appeal No. 162 of 1924.

Messrs. Atmaram Bhagwant, S. A. Ghadgay and D. T. Mangalmurti, for the Appellants

Mr. R. R. Jaywant, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—One Vithoba, the father of plaintiff owned a site of a ghanwad in ruins in Mouza Maholi, Taluq Daryapur. In the year 1904 he granted that site together with the walls in ruins to one Gowardhan Ramlal Marwadi, the father of defendant No. 1, with permission to put the same in habitable condition and to afterwards use it as a dwelling house. The grantee executed a karar chitti dated the 24th May 1904, Ex. P. 1, in favour of the grantor Vithoba. It contained the following covenants and stipulations:—

"The site...belongs to you. You have given the same to me for dwelling purposes and I have got the same repaired. And the day on which I shall go away from this site, I shall remove my superstructure only and shall deliver into your possession the walls in ruins including your site. The day on which I shall go away from there I shall have left no right to the site and the walls. I have executed this karar chitti of my free will and consent. It is binding on my heirs and estate."

The original grantor Vithoba and the original grantee Gowardhan died respectively four and six years before suit. The grantor's son has sued the grantee's son on the 4th August 1923 for recovering possession of the site after removal of the superstructure on the ground that though the license had come to an end in 1919 by death and the defendant No. 1 was asked by notice to quit, he declined to do so. Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 who occupy the premises for and on behalf of the 1st defendant have also been impleaded as parties.

The defendant No. 1 contended that as the karar chitti binds the estate and the heirs of the parties thereto plaintiff had no right to sue; that as the deceased Gowardhan had to spend Rs. 1,000 in constructing a permanent structure upon the site in suit, the plaintiff could not recover the site so long as the superstructure lasts and is standing thereon; that although Gowardhan died about six years prior to the suit neither the plaintiff's father nor the plaintiff ever called upon the defendant No. 1 to vacate the site; that they kept quiet all along and even when four years ago the defendant No. 1 made certain additions at the cost of Rs. 100 and also when about three years ago, raised a new wall at the cost of Rs. 50 and retiled the roof at a cost of Rs. 175. None of them having objected to this, it is contended that the plaintiff was estopped from maintaining this claim; that in any case, the plaintiff must be deemed to have granted to the defendant No. 1 an implied license to occupy the site, and to have his superstructure standing thereon and that plaintiff cannot create a new cause of action by serving a notice just three months before suit. In the event of the Court, however, holding that the plaintiff has a right to call upon the defendant to vacate the site, Rs. 500 may be awarded to the latter as cost of reconstruction of the house after the removal of the superstructure.

The plaintiff in reply urged that as the original grantor and the grantee were dead the license came to an end and that the defendants became mere trespassers and further that the building not being worth more than Rs. 100 he was willing to pay Rs. 100 as compensation to the defendant No. 1 on eviction.

The Court of the first instance held that the license in question was a personal one, and came to an end on the death of the licensor and licensee, and that it was neither transferable nor heritable. It refused to draw the conclusion that after the determination of the said license any fresh license was granted by implication by the plaintiff to the defendant No. 1. Holding that there was no estoppel as against the plaintiff it decreed the claim but made Rs. 25 payable to the defendant No. 1 by way of compensation reserving him also the liberty to remove the superstructure which was held to be Rs. 150 in value.

Against this decree the defendant appealed to the Additional District Judge, Amraoti, who following the last sentence in the ruling of Karelal v. Badri Prasad (1) treated the defendant No. 1 as a trespasser and upheld the decision of the lower Court, but extended the time granted for the removal of the superstructure to four months.

The defendants have now come up in second appeal. It is contended on their behalf that the license granted to them as per Ex. P-1 was erroneously treated as personal and liable to termination on the death of the licensor and licensee, and that although the Indian Easement Act not being in force in Berar only the principles underlying that Act were rightly held applicable, the lower Courts failed to apply the principle of estoppel which underlies s. 60 (b) thereof in particular; and that on a proper interpretation of the karar chitti Ex. P-1 the grant evidenced by it enured for the benefit of the heirs of the grantee and he was not liable to be called upon to vacate the site, and in view of the plaintiff's conduct in delaying the suit, six years after the licensee's and four years after the licensor's death, it is contended that a permission to continue the license should have been implied, and that he could not be compelled to remove the superstructure at the sweet will of the grantor's heir and further that only right of re-entry if any which it might give plaintiff was when the grantee or his heir would voluntarily leave or abandon the premises as a place of their abode.

The case has been argued with great ability on both sides. Just as before the extension of the Transfer of Property Act to the Bombay Presidency the principles underlying the provisions of that Act were treated as applicable to transactions arising in those territories, similarly the Courts below were right in holding that the principles underlying the Easement Act would be applicable to Berar where that Act is not in force. But the question is whether the lower Courts have given full effect to the principle of estoppel which underlies s. 60 (b) of the Easements Act in the present case. The principle is well stated in Peacock's Law of Easement, pages 675 and 676 (3rd Edition):—

"A mere license is irrevocable when the licensee, acting upon the license, has executed a work of a permanent character and incurred expenses in so doing....In cases falling within this rule, if the licensor desires to be able to revoke he must expressly reserve the right when he grants the license, or limit it as to duration."

This shows that if the license has been acted upon and considerable cost has been incurred in executing works of a permanent character the license is not revocable, unless the power of revocation is expressly reserved or the terms of the grant limit the license as to its duration.

I have read the license (Ex. P-1) very carefully and nothing that is contained in the operative part thereof leads me to infer any intention on the part of the grantor to expressly reserve the power of revoking it at his own pleasure, or to limit it as to its duration, or even to give to the grantor a right of re-entry contingent on the death of the grantee. On the contrary the terms of the license as I read them clearly give the licensee an absolute right to retain possession as long as he pleased and technically leaves it to his option to choose whether he should leave the premises or not; and gives to the licensor no right, to command the licensee to vacate the premises earlier, or, to effect a right of re-entry even before any voluntary abandonment by the licensee or his heirs of the premises in question. Even the construction of a kachcha hut by the licensee was treated as a work of permanent character which made the license irrevocable in some of the following cases: Nasir-ul-zaman Khan v. Azimullah (2), Bhaddar v. Khair-ud-din Husain (3), Madhusudan Das v. Bissuji (4) (decided by Mittra, A. J. C., on 23rd September 1918), Vithaldas Marwari v. Goma (5) and Amjad Khan v. Shafiuddin (6). The presence of the covenant in the karar chitti that it shall be binding on the estate and the heirs of the grantee leads me to think that a heritable grant was intended to be made. This coupled with the further circumstance that the grantee acting on the license executed a work of a permanent character on the site, clearly makes it irrevocable.

---

(1) 68 Ind. Cas. 107; 18 N. L. R. 76; A. I. R. 1922 Nag. 162.

(2) 28 A. 741; 3 A. L. J. 765; A. W. N. (1906) 216.

(3) 29 A. 133 at p. 137; 3 A. L. J. 760; A. W. N. (1906) 305.

(4) 48 Ind. Cas. 723.

(5) 79 Ind. Cas. 173; 20 N. L. R. 60; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 254.

(6) 78 Ind Cas. 215; A. I. R. 1925 All. 203.

There is also much force in the contention raised by the appellants that the purpose of the license which was the reconstruction of the dilapidated walls into a residential house on the site was accomplished and that the license was, therefore, irrevocable. It is also arguable that it was not of the essence of the grant that any particular individual alone should occupy it till his death and his heirs should not, so as to make it personal and limited to the life of the grantee. I fail to see why on principle an heir of the licensor should be in a more advantageous position than the licensor himself. If the principle of estopple is applicable to the licensor, as I think it applies, it should apply with equal force to his heir also. I am not, therefore, prepared to uphold the decision of the Courts below that the license was personal and determined by the death of the grantor and the grantee.

Apart from any other question the long silence and delay in filing the present suit for nearly six years after the death of the grantee and four years after the death of the grantor is in itself a strong circumstance for non-suiting the plaintiff in this case. From his silence it could legitimately be inferred that he did not stir in the matter because he treated the license as heritable and still in force and binding as between the descendants of the parties to the original grant and, therefore, not revocable. Under such circumstances it can fairly be presumed that the plaintiff had decided to waive or abandon his right if any to re-enter upon the site, or at any rate he must be deemed to have impliedly granted a fresh license as it were to the defendant No. 1 to occupy the site. In face of such conduct he cannot give himself a new cause of action by serving a notice just three months before suit. The defendant No. 1 is not a trespasser and is not liable to be ejected from the premises.

The appeal is allowed and the suit is dismissed with costs throughout to be paid by the plaintiff. Pleader' fee in this Court will be Rs. 25.

G. R. D. Appeal allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL No. 308 OF 1923.
June 5, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway.
ALLAH JAWAYA AND ANOTHER—PETITIONERS—APPELLANTS
versus
LAJPAT RAI AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 10—Assignment pendente lite*—Application for substitution by assignee—Delay in making application—Discretion of Court.*

Rule 10 of O. XXII of the C. P. C. leaves a discretion to the Court to recognize or refuse to recognize an assignment made pendente lite.

Where the factum of an assignment is disputed and an application by the alleged assignee to be brought on the record is made several months after the date of the alleged assignment, the Court may properly refuse to recognize the assignment.

Appeal from the order of the Senior Sub-Judge, Shahpur, dated 12th December 1922.

Mr. Behari Lal and Dr. Nand Lal, for the Petitioners.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Respondents.

ORDER.—On the 8th of January 1921 certain lands were sold by Lajpat Rai, son of Buta Ram to Ganga Ram and others for a sum of Rs. 2[illegible],833 5-6 One Sahib Ditta Mal, claiming to be entitled to pre-empt on the ground of relationship with the vendor, instituted a suit for possession by pre-emption and on the 12th of December 1922 a decree was passed in his favour directing that he be given possession of the land, etc., in suit on condition of his paying a sum of Rs. 15.198 10-6 for the vendees on or before the 11th of February 1923. On the 1st of February 1923 an appeal was filed in the High Court against that decree by Sahib Ditta Mal asking for a reduction of the amount payable. This was admitted as a first appeal on the 5th of February 1923.

On the 30th of May 1924 an application under O. XXII, r. 3 of the C. P. C., was filed by Mr. Mukand Lal Puri on behalf of Ram Asra and two others in which it was alleged that Sahib Ditta Mal, appellant, had died some three months previously and that the applicants were his sons and, as such, his legal heirs and representatives. It was prayed that the applicants be brought on the record as appellants. This application was not in proper form and was returned to the applicants by the office on the 30th of May 1924. On the 7th of March 1925 the application was re filed by Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, who on the same date, also filed an application purporting to be under

O. XXII, rr. 10 and 11 of the C. P. C., on behalf of Allah Jawaya and Rukan. In this application it was alleged that after the appeal had been admitted to a hearing Sahib Ditta Mal had assigned his rights in the appeal to the applicants and that as the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal were not prosecuting the appeal properly they (the applicants) should be allowed to continue the appeal as provided for in r. 10 of O. XXII of the C. P. C. The application on behalf of the sons of the deceased was granted by me on the 27th of March 1925 subject to all just exceptions. In regard to the application on behalf of the alleged assignees I directed that notice should issue to the respondents and appellants, who were then the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal. On behalf of the respondents Mr. Nanak Chand has objected to the assignment on the ground that there was no valid assignment, and further that a pre-emption decree was not capable of assignment. He has also filed an application to the effect that inasmuch as the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal had not been brought on to this record within the time prescribed by law the appeal had abated. On behalf of the appellants, that is to say the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal, Dr. Nand Lal, while claiming that his clients were properly on the record, strongly objected to the recognition of the alleged assignment. He has contended that in the first place the document said to be a deed of assignment was merely an agreement to assign, and that, in certain proceedings instituted by Allah Jawaya and his companions, this fact had been admitted by them. Secondly he contended that even if the deed of assignment be construed to be a completed sale this Court should not recognize it for purposes of r. 10, O. XXII, C. P. C, inasmuch as the present application is a belated one. Reliance is placed by him on the case of Harihar Prosad v. Gendi Lal (1). Finally he urged that the decree being a pre-emption decree was not capable of being assigned, basing his contention on the case of Mehr Khan v. Ghulam Rasul (2). On the other hand, Mr. Behari Lal, who has appeared for Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, has contended that the assignment is valid and was a completed one and that the application was not really a belated one inasmuch as the assignees were under the impression that the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal were prosecuting the appeal properly.

There are two questions of importance which have to be dealt with, namely, (1) whether there was any assignment; and (2) whether the appeal has abated owing to the fact that the application on behalf of the sons of the appellant was made after the period prescribed by law.

So far as the first question is concerned, in my judgment the application of the alleged assignees should be dismissed. Firstly the factum of the assignment is disputed and the fact that the present application was made months after the assignment was alleged to have been made is one that cannot be ignored. Finally as I read r. 10 of O. XXII of the C. P. C. the Court has discretion, and, in the present case, I do not feel disposed to recognize the assignment. As to what actually passed between the applicants' Counsel and his clients I am not concerned; but it is worthy of note that Mr. Mukand Lal Puri filed applications on behalf of the sons of Sahib Ditta Mal as well as on behalf of the alleged assignees. In these circumstances I dismiss the application on behalf of the assignee with costs.

The second question is one which goes to the root of the appeal and which I think should be decided by a Division Bench. I, therefore, direct that the appeal itself be placed before a Division Bench at a very early date and at the hearing a decision will be arrived at as to whether the appeal has or has not abated. In the meantime the printing of the record should be stayed.

Z. K.   Application dismissed.

---

(1) 43 Ind. Cas. 811.

(2) 64 Ind. Cas. 191; 2 L. 282; 3 L. L. J. 553; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 300.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 127 OF 1925.

March 20, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Raza.

LACHMI NARAIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat NAZEER FATIMA—PLAINTIFF
—RESPONDENT.

Fraud—Fraudulent transaction—Burden of proof—Decree—Sale of property of person not party to decree, effect of.

The burden of proving the fraudulent nature of a transaction lies ordinarily on the person who seeks to impeach it, and the question is always one of fact. [p. 928, col. 2.]

Persons who are not parties to a decree are not bound by it and, therefore, a sale in execution of a decree does not operate to pass the property of any person who is not bound by the decree. [p. 929, col. 1.]

The Court has no jurisdiction to sell the property of persons who are not parties to the proceedings or properly represented on the record. As against such persons decrees and sales would be a nullity and might be disregarded without any proceedings being taken to set them aside. [ibid.]

Appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Hardoi, dated the 27th November 1924, reversing that of the Munsif, Hardoi, dated the 11th December 1922.

Mr. Ishri Prasad, for the Appellant.

Mr. Mohammad Ayub, for Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiff for possession of No. 1528, measuring 17 biswas, situate in Pihani, District Hardoi and for Rs. 72 mesne profits.

The facts of this case so far as it is necessary to state them for the purpose of disposing of this appeal, are as follows:—

The plaintiff is the wife of the defendant No. 3. The defendant No. 3 executed a deed of gift in favour of the plaintiff, in lieu of dower, in respect of certain properties including the property in suit on the 23rd December 1901. Sadho Ram (defendant No. 2) obtained a money-decree against the defendant No. 3 and sold the plot in suit in execution of his decree on the 21st July 1909. The plaintiff was no party to the suit or the execution proceedings. The plot in suit was purchased by the defendant No. 1 at the auction-sale, which was confirmed on the 28th August 1909. The warrant for delivery of possession (dakhal dehani) was issued, on the application of the defendant No. 1 the auction-purchaser on the 21st February 1910.

The plaintiff brought the present suit on the 20th February 1922 alleging that the plot in suit was owned and possessed by her and that she was wrongfully dispossessed therefrom on the 21st February 1910.

The claim was resisted by the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, on various grounds.

The suit was dismissed by the first Court; but the plaintiff's appeal was allowed by the learned Additional Subordinate Judge, Hardoi, on the 27th November 1924. She got a decree for the plot in suit and also for Rs. 36 as mesne profits. The contesting defendant Nos. 1 and 2 have now come to this Court in second appeal. In my opinion there is no force in this appeal.

The learned Additional Subordinate Judge has found that the deed of gift dated the 23rd December 1901 is genuine and valid, that the transfer was not fraudulent or fictitious that the plaintiff got possession of the gifted property including the property in suit by virtue of the said deed, that she remained in possession of the plot in suit till the date of "dakhal dehani" mentioned above and that the defendant No. 1, the auction-purchaser, never got possession of the plot before the 21st February 1910. These findings are findings of fact based upon admissible evidence and cannot be impugned in second appeal. The burden of proving the fraudulent nature of a transaction lies ordinarily on the persons who seeks to impeach it. The question whether a particular transaction is bona fide or fraudulent is always a question of fact. So far as I see, the learned Additional Subordinate Judge has considered the whole evidence on record very carefully. I have no hesitation in accepting his findings about the plaintiff's title and possession.

The appellant's learned Counsel has argued with reference to Arts. 142 and 144 and also Arts. 11 and 12 of the Limitation Act, that the suit is barred by time. I am not prepared to accept his contention. When it has been found that the plaintiff got possession of the plot in suit by virtue of a valid deed and remained in possession thereof till the date of dakhal dehani mentioned above it must be held that the suit is not barred by Arts. 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act. She was in rightful possession of the property within limitation and though there was delay in bringing the suit, the suit was filed within limitation. No inference as to the falsity of the plaintiff's suit can be drawn from the mere fact that it was brought just within the period of limitation. Article 11 of the Limitation Act does not apply to the present case. The plaintiff filed no objection under O. XXI, r. 58, Sch. I, C. P. C., and no order was passed against her in the execution proceedings after due inquiry under O. XXI, r. 61, Sch. I, C. P. C. Under these circumstances it cannot be held that the suit falls within Art. 11 of the Limitation Act.

Article 12 also does not apply. The decree which Sadho Ram had obtained against the defendant No. 3 was a decree for contribution on the basis of a decree for arrears of revenue. It was a decree for money passed in a suit to which the plaintiff was no party. It is also not established that the original decree was for arrears of revenue in respect of the plot in suit. Under these circumstances it cannot be held that the sale in question was really for arrears of revenue. I have already observed that the plaintiff was no party to the suit in which the decree was passed. Persons who are not parties to a decree are not bound by it and ordinarily, therefore, a sale in execution of a decree does not operate to pass the property of any person who is not bound by the decree. A Court has no jurisdiction to sell the property of persons who are not parties to the proceedings or properly represented on the record. As against such persons decrees and sales would be a nullity and might be disregarded without any proceedings being taken to set them aside; see Khiarajmal v. Daim (1) and Jadu Nath Singh v. Afzal Khanam (2). It was not, therefore, necessary for the plaintiff to sue for setting aside the sale.

In my opinion the learned Subordinate Judge was perfectly right in decreeing the plaintiff's claim. I can find no ground for interference and dismiss the appeal with costs. The decree of the lower Appellate Court is confirmed in all respects.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 32 C. 296; 9 C. W. N. 201; 2 A. L. J. 71; 7 Bom. L. R. 1; 1 C. L. J. 584; 32 I. A. 23; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 734 (P. C.).

(2) 57 Ind. Cas. 526; 8 O. L. J. 191; 7 O. L. J. 362; 2 U. P. L. R. (O.) 118.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

Civil Rule No. 770-S of 1924
in
S. A. No. 741 of 1922.
November 24, 1924.
Present:—Justice Sir Ewart Greaves, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Chakravarti.
KRISHNA MOHAN GHOSH—Appellant—Petitioner
versus
SURAPATI BANERJI and others—
Respondents—Opposite Party.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, rr. 4, 9—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5, Sch. I, Art. 177—Appeal—Death of respondent—Abatement of appeal—Application to set aside abatement—Ignorance of law, whether sufficient excuse for delay.

During the pendency of an appeal one of the respondents died and no application was made within time to bring his legal representatives on the record. In an application to set aside the abatement the appellant urged that he was an ignorant milkman and was not aware that he was required to make an application for substitution of the legal representatives of the deceased respondent:

Held, that there was sufficient cause to set aside the abatement.

FACTS.—In this case one of the respondents had died during the pendency of the appeal; the appellant knew of it, but he was an ignorant milkman, and did not know that it was necessary for him to bring the fact to the notice of the Court and that it was his duty to apply for the substitution of the legal representatives of the deceased within a prescribed period. After the period of limitation he put in application for the setting aside of the abatement and the substitution of the legal representatives, and pleaded ignorance of law under the above-mentioned conditions.

Babu Hiralal Chakravarti, for the Petitioner.

Babu Hemendra Chandra Sen, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—We think that under the circumstances of the case the delay was bona fide and sufficient cause has been shown within the provisions of s. 5 of the Limitation Act.

We accordingly make the Rule absolute. Costs one gold mohur will be costs in the cause.

Z. K. Rule made absolute.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

Civil Appeals Nos. 1314 and 1315 of 1922.
November 11, 1925.
Present:—Justice Sir B. K. Mullick, Kt.,
and Mr. Justice Kulwant Sahay.
Thakurji Sri JUGAL SARKAR and others
—Plaintiffs—Appellants
versus
RAJ MANGAL PRASAD and others—
Defendants—Respondents.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 26—Water rights—Riparian owners—Higher owner, whether can appropriate whole water of stream—Prescription—Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 17, applicability of—Pleadings and proof, variance between—Appeal, second—Finding of fact.

Every right peaceably enjoyed as an easement, and as of right without interruption for the prescribed period becomes absolute and indefeasible after the expiry of such period. [p. 931, col. 2.]

For ordinary purposes such as drinking and watering cattle, a higher riparian owner is entitled to appropriate, if necessary, the whole of the water of the stream; but for extraordinary purposes, such as the irrigation of his fields, he is entitled only to take so much as will not reasonably diminish the volume of water in the stream. [p. 930, col. 2.

It is open, however, to a higher riparian owner to establish that he has been in possession from time immemorial of the right to appropriate the whole of the water of the stream for extraordinary purposes. [p. 931, col. 1.]

Section 17 of the Easements Act is intended to apply to rights in the nature of profits a prendre which do not include a right to water. [p. 931, col. 2.]

A party cannot be allowed to plead inconsistent facts or to give proof at variance with his pleadings. [ibid.]

The High Court ought not to interfere in second appeal with a finding of fact so long as there is some evidence to support it, but a finding arrived at without evidence is bad and is not binding upon the High Court. [p. 932, col. 2.]

Appeals from the decrees of the Sub-Judge, Muzaffarpur, dated the 22nd June 1922.

Messrs. P. C. Manuk, J. P. Singh and Bhagwan Prasad, for the Appellants.

Messrs. S. N. Mullick, L. K. Jha and S. Saran, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Mullick, J.—The plaintiffs in this litigation allege that a water-course called the Mangrooha river, which flows past the villages of Madanpur, Azamgarh, Bacharpur and Manik Chauk from north to south is a natural stream and that the plaintiffs who are the residents of Bacharpur have from time immemorial obstructed it by a bundh or dam measuring 107 feet in length, 31 feet in breadth and 11 feet in height and that the defendants who are residents of Manik Chauk and Azamgarh have caused injury to them by cutting it. The plaintiffs accordingly ask: (1) for a declaration that the defendants are not entitled to cut the dam; (2) for a declaration that the plaintiffs are entitled to maintain and repair the dam; and (3) that the defendants should be restrained by injunction from interfering with the right of the plaintiffs to maintain and repair and from doing any acts harmful to them.

The Munsif found that the water-course in question was not a natural stream. He also found that the plaintiffs had established that from time immemorial the dam in dispute of the dimensions claimed had been maintained by them for the irrigation of their fields. He accordingly decreed the suit.

In appeal the Subordinate Judge differed on all points. He held that the water-course was a flowing river and that the defendants, the residents of Manik Chauk, had a right to use the water to the same extent as the plaintiffs and that the plaintiffs had no right to maintain a dam of the dimensions claimed for the purposes of irrigation so as to diminish the supply to which the defendants are entitled. He found that in fact the dam in question completely deprived the defendants from any water at all.

Against this judgment the plaintiffs prefer the present second appeals.

Now the first question for decision is whether the water-course is or is not a natural stream. The Munsif has found that the bed of the water-course has been ploughed up and cultivated in several places and that there are already two dams existing to the north, one at Madanpur and the other at Majhaulia. Evidence was given by the plaintiffs to show that the water-course was fed by rain-water and apparently the view taken by the Munsif was that whatever may have been the original condition of the water-course the channel at present consists of a series of pools which are filled with water only during the rains and to which the law of natural streams does not apply.

Now the Subordinate Judge has made a very inadequate examination of the evidence upon this point. He does not consider the grounds given by the Munsif for holding that no connected channel exists. Apparently the learned Subordinate Judge thinks that as the water-course is called a nadi it must be a natural stream. In my opinion there has been an error of procedure in the trial of this issue, and the plaintiffs are entitled to a fuller examination of the evidence before the finding of the Munsif can be set aside.

The next point is whether assuming that this is a natural stream the plaintiffs have established a right to obstruct it to the injury of the defendants. Now the law on the subject in this Province is well-settled. For ordinary purposes such as drinking and watering cattle the plaintiffs are entitled to appropriate if necessary the whole of the water; but for extraordinary purposes such as the irrigation of their fields they are entitled only to take so much as will not reasonably disminish the volume of water in the river. The plaintiffs, however, contend that they are entitled either by twenty years' user as of right or by prescription to appropriate the whole of the water for irrigation purposes. The defendants contend that such an absolute right cannot be acquired either as an easement or in any other way. The learned Subordinate Judge accepts this view and relies on White v. White (1). In my opinion the learned Subordinate Judge has taken an erroneous view of the decision in this case. There the higher proprietor claimed the right to appropriate as much water as he required for his mill on the ground that the Crown had given him a grant of the whole water in the river, and the learned Judge held that such a grant was repugnant to the ordinary law of rivers and could not be conceived and that the proprietor had established the user of only 1,200 cubic feet of water per minute and that his claim to a prescriptive right to more than 6,000 cubic feet per minute or to as much water as he liked had failed. Lord Robertson in his judgment expressly points out that the rule of prescription is tantum praescriptum quantum possessum It was nowhere held in that case that if a higher proprietor establishes that he has been in possession from time immemorial of the right to appropriate the whole of the water the law will not sanction his title to do so. So it has been held in Wright v. Howard (2), Mason v. Hill (3), Debi Pershad Singh v. Joynath Singh (4) and Belbhadar Pershad Singh v. Sheikh Barkat Ali (5). On the other hand it is contended on behalf of the defendants that the Indian Easements Act, though not applicable in this Province, may be regarded for the purpose of ascertaining the general or common law principle applicable. Section 17 of the Indian Easements Act declares that a right which would tend to a total destruction of the subject of the right, or of the property on which, if the acquisition were made, liability would be imposed, cannot be acquired by prescription, and it is argued that the upper proprietor cannot be allowed to convert the river into a pond and thereby destroy the flowing stream. Here the right to appropriate the water is a negative easement appurtenant to the land of the upper proprietor and the water, though diverted, is not destroyed. Section 17 of the Easements Act is intended to apply not to such rights but to rights in the nature of profits a prendre which do not include a right to water. I do not think, therefore, that the principle of that section is applicable to this case.

The law applicable here is either s. 26 of the Indian Limitation Act of 1908 or the general law of prescription. Under that law every right peaceably enjoyed as an easement, and as of right without interruption for the prescriptive period becomes absolute and indefeasible after the expiry of such period. The plaintiffs are, therefore, entitled to succeed if they can prove enjoyment as alleged for the necessary period.

Apart from this question of law which, in my opinion, has been wrongly decided by the learned Subordinate Judge there is a further difficulty in the way of the respondents. Before the Munsif the parties went to trial on the issue whether the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain a dam of the dimensions described in the plaint. The defendants made a categorical denial to the effect that no dam of any kind had ever existed at this place. The Munsif disbelieved the evidence that no bundh had existed and he found that the evidence as to dimensions was unrebutted. On appeal the respondents shifted their ground and induced the learned Subordinate Judge to adopt a middle course, namely, that the plaintiffs had proved a right to maintain a "bundh," but that they had not proved that the bundh should be 107 feet long, 31 feet wide and 11 feet high. The learned Subordinate Judge states that the defendants allege that in 1321 the length as well as the height was altered by the plaintiffs so as to completely obstruct the water flowing down to their village. We have been unable to find any authority for this statement. There is nothing in the written statement or the depositions to support this finding. Apart from the objection that a party cannot be allowed to plead inconsistent facts, or to give proof at variance with his pleading, it is clear that there is nothing in the evidence produced by the defendants upon which this inconsistent finding can be based. The learned Subordinate Judge was, no doubt, competent to come to such a finding from the plaintiffs' own evidence, but on this point the evidence is one sided and unrebutted as the Munsif puts it. Again the learned Subordinate Judge's statement that there is no evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs to prove that the bundh, as it exists at present, existed from before 1326, is quite contrary to the evidence recorded. It is true that one witness, P. W. No. 2, states that the bundh was 160 feet long, 31 feet wide and 11 feet high. It is explained by the appellants here that "160" was a mistake for "107" the two words in hindi to express these lengths being very similar. Be that as it may, there was plenty of o her evidence to the effect that the disputed bundh is the one which has existed from time immemorial. The learned Subordinate Judge has committed a mistake of record in saying that no such evidence existed.

---

(1) (1906) A. C. 72; 75 L. J. P. C 14; 94 L. T. 65.

(2) (1823) 57 E R. 76; 1 Sim. & St. 190; 1 L. J. (o. s.) Ch. 94; 24 R. R. 169.

(3) (1882) 110 E. R. 114; 3 B. & Ad. 304; 1 L. J. K. B. 107; 39 R. R. 354.

(4) 24 C. 865; 24 I. A. 60; 7 M. L. J. 120; 1 C. W. N. 401; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 200; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1245 (P. C.).

(5) 11 C. W. N. 85; 4 C. L. J. 370.

The other evidence upon which the Subordinate Judge has relied consists of certain documents filed by the defendants to show that in a dispute between the villagers of Madanpur and Manik Chauk before an Assistant Settlement Officer it was agreed that a diversion made by the Madanpur villagers from a point north of the Madanpur bundh should not be kept completely closed by means of a dam erected by the Madanpur villagers, and that for a certain number of days the water in this diversion should be allowed to flow so as to go down south to Manik Chauk. The learned Subordinate Judge infers from this that the bundh at Bacharpur could not have been 160 feet long, 31 feet wide and 11 feet high. It was found in that case that there was a "bundh" of some kind at Bacharpur and the learned Judge infers from the conduct of the Manik Chauk villagers that the bundh could not have been high or long enough to obstruct the whole of the water. Before coming to this finding we had to find that the diversion brought the water back into the channel above the Bacharpur bundh and that at the time of the Magistrate's order the Manik Chauk people got their water over or through this bundh. There is no such finding by the learned Subordinate Judge and the inference does not follow that because the diversion through Madanpur was allowed to be kept open for a certain number of days for the benefit of Manik Chauk, therefore, the bundh at Bacharpur could not have been of the dimensions alleged in the plaint. The plaintiffs, on the other hand, assert that the water did not come back to the river but found its way to Manik Chauk if at all over the fields of Madanpur. The learned Subordinate Judge has, therefore, committed an error of law in drawing the inference.

Further the plaintiffs are entitled again to object that the defendants ought not to be allowed to give proof inconsistent with their pleading.

It is no doubt true that this Court ought not to interfere in second appeal with a finding of fact so long as there is some evidence to support it, but here it would seem that the learned Subordinate Judge has arrived at his findings without evidence and that the trial is bad. It is also not clear to what extent he has been affected by his erroneous view as to the rights of a lower proprietor against a higher proprietor.

The result is that, in our opinion, the appeals must succeed and the decree of the learned Subordinate Judge must be set aside. He will re-hear the appeals according to law but the parties will not be entitled to adduce any further evidence. As no objection was taken to the competency of the defendants to adduce evidence to show that a dam of different dimensions has been maintained by the plaintiffs the Subordinate Judge will be entitled to consider all the evidence adduced but he will, of course, also take into consideration the inconsistency between pleading and proof as a factor in determining the weight to be attached to such evidence. There being no materials for giving the plaintiffs relief in respect of any bundh of smaller dimensions their suit must either be decreed in full or dismissed.

Costs will abide the result.

Kulwant Sahay, J.—I agree.

Z. K. Case remanded.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 41 AND 52 OF 1924.

March 4, 1926.

Present:—Sir Louis Stuart, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Raza.

Thakurain GAYA KUNWAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
GAURI NATH KAKAJEE—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Hindu Law—Co-widows—Partition, effect of—Alienation by one widow, whether binding upon co-widow, Where the widows of a separated Hindu governed by the Mitakshara Law succeed as co-heirs to the estate of their deceased husband, a partition of the estate between them can in no circumstances have the effect of destroying the right of survivorship, and whatever may be the authority, under a friendly arrangement, of each widow to enjoy the usufruct of a separate portion of the estate, there is no right of alienation by one widow alone, which will bind the other widow after her death. It is the right of each of the co-widows to enjoy her deceased husband's property by partition inter se, and she can assign her share to any one she chooses and if she has already obtained her share by partition, she can alienate that share; but in either case the assignment or alienation cannot take effect or have validity beyond her lifetime. It is good as long as she lives, and on her death, her interest in the property ceases and the share goes to the surviving co-widow. [p. 936, col. 2; p. 938, col. 1; p. 939, col. 1.]

First appeal against a judgment and decree of the Additional Sub-Judge, Hardoi, dated the 29th April 1924.

Messrs. Niamat Ullah and Makund Behari Lal, for the Appellant.

Messrs. A. P. Sen, Haider Husein, Bisheshwar Nath Srivastava and Sheo Shankar Nath, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Thakur Laiq Singh was a substantial zemindar, who resided in Mandauli in the Sandila Tahsil of the Hardoi District. He owned seven entire villages and shares in others. On the 1st July, 1880, he executed in favour of Babu Har Nath and Babu Gauri Nath of Lucknow a registered deed of mortgage for a consideration of Rs. 23,000 under the terms of which he agreed to place the mortgagees in possession of certain property in order that they might satisfy the interest on the consideration out of the usufruct. On the 8th August, 1883, he executed a registered deed of further charge on the same property in favour of the same persons for a consideration of Rs. 5,000. He died on the 13th August, 1885, having failed to deliver possession over the said property to the mortgagees. He had had sons born to him but they had predeceased him. He left surviving a senior widow Umrao Kunwar and a junior widow Gaya Kunwar. The latter was at the time of her husband's death about 19 years of age. He also left surviving certain daughters from his elder wife. On the 3rd January, 1886, a deed which purported to be a deed of mortgage was prepared, and signed by Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar. This deed is Ex. A-6. It purported to be for consideration of Rs. 9,400, Rs. 3,200 of which was stated to be in lieu of a portion of the interest due upon the two deeds executed by the deceased Laiq Singh. The remainder was stated to be in respect of the amounts due on simple bonds executed by Laiq Singh and certain small cash items, a portion of which was stated to have been for the benefit of Laiq Singh. Although this bond was signed by both widows, it was never given effect to as a transfer of the property for it was not registered. It is common ground that Gaya Kunwar after having signed it refused to register it. She stated in the evidence which she gave in the suit, against the decree in which these appeals are preferred, that her signature was obtained under a misapprehension. Be that as it may, it is clear that the document A-6 in no way operated as a transfer of the property left by Laiq Singh. At the time of Laiq Singh's death his two widows were living together and it is in evidence that they continued to live together for about a year. They separated some time in 1886. Relations had then clearly become very strained between them, and from the time of their separation their relations were never again friendly.

After their separation on the 29th of March, 1887, Umrao Kunwar executed a deed of mortgage in favour of Har Nath and Gauri Nath for a consideration of Rs. 18,367. This is a registered deed Ex. A-7. The consideration was very largely for the satisfaction of the interest due on the deed of mortgage and the deed of further charge executed by Laiq Singh and the amount which was stated to be due on A-6, though there were other items entered.

The strained relations between the two widows culminated very shortly after this deed had been executed in the institution of a suit against Gaya Kunwar by a boy, who alleged himself to have been adopted by Umrao Kunwar on the 19th of January 1887 under authority possessed under an alleged custom of the family and also under an alleged authorisation of Laiq Singh. This boy Debi Bakhsh was under the guardianship of Umrao Kunwar, and it is perfectly clear from the proceedings, that Umrao Kunwar was putting the boy forward, and was responsible for the institution of the suit. The object of the suit was clearly to deprive Gaya Kunwar of all rights to the estate and to confine her to a bare maintenance. This suit was instituted on the 25th April, 1887. It was dismissed on the 14th November, 1887. The judgment of dismissal is Ex. 41. The judgment of dismissal found that Umrao Kunwar had no authority to adopt a son and that, as a matter of fact, there had never been an adoption. An appeal was filed to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner which was dismissed by a decree dated 22nd March, 1889. A copy of this decree is Ex. A-371. In the meanwhile Har Nath and Gauri Nath had instituted on the 11th October, 1887, a suit on the basis of the mortgage-deed of 1st July, 1880, and the deed of further charge of 8th August, 1883, against Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar jointly, and in this suit an amicable arrangement was arrived at, which was given effect to under a decree of the Court dated 19th December, 1887. The particulars of this amicable arrangement will be found in A-9, Ex. 4 and A-10. It was as follows:—

The plaintiffs agreed to divide the responsibility for meeting their claims between Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar. Umrao Kunwar agreed to be responsible for discharging the sum of Rs. 15,983-6-0 in the following manner. She had at that time obtained sole possession of a half share in the village of Sikrauri and a half share in the village Janwar with hamlets. She agreed to transfer the possession of this property to Har Nath and Gauri Nath in order that they might enjoy the usufruct and re-pay themselves out of this usufruct both the principal sum of Rs. 15,983 6-0 and interest which was to be calculated according to the conditions laid down in the deed of mortgage executed by Laiq Singh on the 1st of July 1880. This obligation was upon Umrao Kunwar alone, and Gaya Kunwar had no part in this liability, or the method of satisfying the amount Gaya Kunwar on her own behalf agreed to pay Rs. 17,777 to Har Nath and Gauri Nath in cash, on the condition that when she paid this money she was to be held under no further liability in respect of the deeds of 1st July, 1880, and 8th August, 1883.

It appears that at this time, under some sort of private arrangement Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar had each taken separate possession of cerain portions of the property left by Laiq Singh. There had, however, then been no partition through the Revenue Courts, or any recognition of this arrangement in writing.

On the 23rd December, 1887, Umrao Kunwar executed a deed (A-16) in favour of Har Nath and Gauri Nath for a consideration of Rs. 3,000. It is to be noted that Rs. 1,411-15-0 out of the consideration were to be paid to Gaya Kunwar, who had satisfied the whole of a decree in favour of a man called Lallu Chaubey in respect of a debt of Laiq Singh. On the 20th of January, 1888, Gaya Kunwar executed a deed of mortgage in favour of Surat Singh. This is Ex. A-46. The consideration of this deed was Rs. 22,000 and under it she mortgaged a half share in the village of Mandauli with hamlets and the whole of the village of Janwar with hamlets, stating that the shares were in her exclusive proprietary possession and occupation without any co-parcenership by virtue of inheritance from her husband. Later in 1888 Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar proceeded to partition Laiq Singh's property through the Revenue Courts. The proceedings will be found in Exs. A-372, A-373, A-367 and A-374. The order confirming the partition was passed on the 25th June, 1888 and the partition took effect from the 1st July, 1888. The Deputy Commissioner carried out a partition by assigning separate villages to each lady except in one instance. He refers in his order to the separate indebtedness of the two ladies stating that Umrao Kunwar was very much indebted. He also found that Gaya Kunwar had mortgaged her share in Janwar and Sikrauri to Surat Singh and Udai Nath, and that Umrao Kunwar had mortgaged her share to Har Nath and Gauri Nath, and he commented that the parties had settled amongst themselves that after the properties had been divided by lots in a case, where the property had been encumbered by one party and had fallen into the share of the other party, it was the duty of the party who had encumbered the property to satisfy the encumbrances and hand it over free from liability to the party in whose share it had fallen.

In the year 1889 Har Nath and Gauri Nath applied in execution to obtain possession of the half share of Sikrauri, which Umrao Kunwar had agreed to hand over to them. These proceedings commenced on 16th September, 1889 and went on over subsequent dates. They will be found in A-11. The agent of Har Nath and Gauri Nath stated that Gaya Kunwar had paid up the full amount due from her. Gaya Kunwar's agent said that under the partition Sikrauri had fallen to the share of Gaya Kunwar. Possession of Sikrauri could not be given. The decree-holders' agent pointed out that Gaya Kunwar had mortgaged half of Janwar which had fallen to the share of Umrao Kunwar at partition. Gaya Kunwar's agent replied that his employer recognised this fact and was going to alter the deed that she had executed in favour of Surat Singh mortgaging half Sikrauri and half Janwar into a deed mortgaging half Sikrauri and half Maroli, and that in these circumstances it would meet the case if Har Nath and Gauri Nath took possession of the whole of Janwar in order to satisfy their claim against Umrao Kunwar. The parties agreed to this and Janwar passed into the hands of Har Nath and Gauri Nath, in order that they might satisfy themselves from the usufruct the amount which Umrao Kunwar had made herself liable to pay under the compromise decree of 19th December 1887.

On the 20th January, 1888, Gaya Kunwar executed a second registered deed for Rs. 26,620 (Ex. A-42) in favour of Surat Singh to satisfy the deed which she had previously executed in his favour. She did this to carry out the arrangements mentioned above. Under this deed she mortgaged with possession the whole of Sikrauri and half of Mandauli. In this deed she stated that she was the full proprietor of the villages without the co-parcenership of any one, and that her name stood entered in the Government papers after partition and that she was in all respects in possession and enjoyment of these villages On 8th February, 1890, Umrao Kunwar executed a simple mortgage-deed for Rs. 4,700 in favour of Har Nath and Gauri Nath mainly in respect of expenses that she had incurred in her litigation with Gaya Kunwar.

On the 28th April, 1891, Umrao Kunwar executed a registered deed of mortgage (A-19) for Rs. 38,000 in satisfaction of the amount due on A-7, the amount due on A-18 (the deed of 8th February, 1890) the portion of the interest due under the compromise of 19th December, 1887—for she had not put Har Nath and Gauri Nath in immediate possession—and other items. Under this deed she mortgaged with possession Janwar, Mandauli, Madna Khera and Tikra Khurd. On the 23rd August, 1891, she executed a deed of further charge for Rs. 1,200 on account of money for her own use. This is a registered deed A-34. Under this deed possession of the villages was not to be given at once and interest accumulated. Possession not having been given, a suit was brought in 1904. The judgment is A-25 dated 25th November, 1904, and possession over these villages was obtained in 1905 as will be seen from Ex. 31 (order in mutation). The order is dated 2nd November, 1905.

Umrao Kunwar died in December 1908.

The present suit was filed by Gaya Kunwar on the 16th November, 1920, against Gauri Nath, who represented the deceased Har Nath also, on the following allegations. Gaya Kunwar asserted that she and Umrao Kunwar had, as the co-widows of Laiq Singh, succeeded jointly to his estate upon his death, that on the death of Umrao Kunwar in December, 1908, nearly 12 years before the date of the suit, she had by survivorship acquired a widow's estate under the Mitakshara Law in the whole property, that the village of Janwar had passed under the compromise of 18th December, 1887, from Umrao Kunwar to the defendant's predecessors-in-interest. that the amount due from Umrao Kunwar had long since been satisfied out of the usufruct, and that she, therefore, demanded restoration of possession over their village claiming as the holder of the whole widow's estate by survivorship on the ground that under Umrao Kunwar's action the amount due had been satisfied. So far she would appear from the pleadings to have professed to represent Umrao Kunwar.

But in the 9th and 10th paragraphs of her plaint she takes a position which is very difficult to understand. She refers to the mortgage A-19 of the 28th April, 1891, which was executed by Umrao Kunwar, and these are the words which she uses in respect of that mortgage :—

"That the defendant being afraid of losing Janwar from his possession soon got a fictitious collusive possessory mortgage-deed executed by Musammat Umrao Kunwar on the 28th of April 1891 in lieu of Rs. 33,000 with respect to the villages Janwar, Madna Khera, Tikra Khurd and Mandauli detailed in the list hereto attached and acquired possession over the villages in suit.

"That neither Umrao Kunwar was under the necessity of borrowing money, nor was any debt contracted for any valid necessity. The plaintiff is not bound by the aforesaid mortgage-deed in any way and she is entitled to get possession over the villages in suit and their profit after the death of Thakurain Umrao Kunwar." In these paragraphs she did not take the position which she took subsequently to the effect that Umrao Kunwar had no power to transfer any of the property without her consent. She did not take the position that she repudiated the transfer, as she was not bound by it and that the defendants had obtained no title under that transfer. She took the position that she was the representative of Umrao Kunwar, but that she refused to be bound by Umrao Kunwer's disposition because the deed was fictitious and collusive and executed without necessity. Here the first difficulty arose out of careless pleadings. This difficulty is considerably enhanced by the next plea which she takes up. After having stated that she refused to be bound by Umrao Kunwar's action she continues that if, by any change, a portion of the consideration of A-9 had been for legal necessity—it apparently being assumed here that the deed was neither fictitious nor collusive the plaintiff was ready to redeem the mortgage. Then followed the relief claimed. We have had great difficulty in understanding what was claimed but we are now satisfied by the learned Counsel for Gaya Kunwar that the plaintiff meant to ask for a finding that she was in no way bound by any of the acts of Umrao Kunwar and was, therefore, entitled to possession over the four villages in question on the ground that Umrao Kunwar had no right to transfer them without her consent, and she wishes the Court to consider the defendant a trespasser. It is to be noted that in this relief she did not ask for mesne profits. In the next three reliefs sought she takes the alternative position, that if the transfers have been good transfers, and she is bound by them she has a right to redeem the mortgages, that accounts should be taken, that such balance should be paid by her as is found to be due by her, and that such balance should be paid to her as the account showed due to her.

It is further necessary to note that in her subsequent replication in para. 41 she did take the position that transfers by Umrao Kunwar were not made with her knowledge, information, or consent.

The learned Subordinate Judge appears to have had considerable difficulty in appreciating the points in dispute and in disposing of them. He is not, we think, to be blamed in his difficulty, for the nature of the pleadings and the manner in which the case was presented to him left much to be desired. We have had the advantage of having the appeal argued by competent Counsel, who thoroughly understood the position and have helped us to a very great degree. We do not think that he had the same advantages. He has arrived at a decision which has satisfied neither party. He has held, that Gaya Kunwar is bound by Umrao Kunwar's transfers in so far as those transfers were for legal necessity, and according to this view he has awarded Gaya Kunwar a decree for the redemption of the village on payment of a sum of Rs. 91,435-9-7. Against this decision Gaya Kunwar has appealed in Appeal No. 41 of 1924 and desires in this appeal not only that she should receive the property back free of charge, but that she should receive an unspecified sum which she considers will be a large sum upon a re-taking of accounts between the parties. She is ready to pay the Court-fee upon anything extra awarded to her. Gauri Nath, on the other hand, has filed Appeal No. 52 of 1924 in which he claims 2 lakhs and 15 thousand in addition to the amount already awarded to him.

We shall proceed first to state the law, as we consider it to be, which will bind the parties in this suit. The law in question is the law regulating transfers by one of several widows of a separate Hindu governed by the Mitakshara Law, when such widows have succeeded as co-heirs to the estate of their deceased husband.

The law on the subject was first considered authoritative in 1867, when the Judicial Committee decided the appeal of Bhugwandeen Doobey v. Myna Baee (1). This appeal arose out of a suit brought by Myna Baee the widow of one Dina Nath, a Hindu inhabitant of Benares, who had died separate, and whose estate was governed by the Mitakshara Law against a person to whom the senior widow, who had since died, had devised her portion of the estate. In this case Dina Nath had left a senior widow Doola Baee, and a junior widow Myne Baee. Disputes having arisen between these two ladies, a Judge had made an order under Act XIX of 1841, by which he had assigned each a moiety in the estate. Their Lordships had to consider in this case, whether, according to the Mitakshara Law, a Hindu widow was competent to dispose, by Will or deed of gift, of either moveable or immoveable property inherited from her husband to the prejudice of the next heir.

---

(1) 11 M. I. A. 487; 9 W. R. P. C. 23; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 124; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 327; 20 E. R. 184.

They decided that she was not competent so to dispose. They further had to decide whether one of two Hindu widows, taking as full heirs to their husband, is in a more favourable position than that of a person claiming as the next heir of the husband in succession to a single heir deceased. They further had to decide whether the division made by the Judge, to which reference has already been made, enlarged the power of Doola Baee to dispose of the property or affected the right of Myna Baee to question the disposition. They decided that the estate of two widows who take their husband's property by such inheritance is one estate, and that the right of survivorship is so strong, that the survivor takes the whole property to the exclusion even of daughters of the deceased widow. Such widows are, therefore, in the strictest sense co-parceners, and between undivided co-parceners there can be no alienation by one without the consent of the other. And they further decided, that such partition as was effected by the order of the Judge under Act XIX of 1841, would have no effect in giving Doola Baee any power of disposition over her share which she would not otherwise have had. Without deciding whether the Judge had made this order in the suit on his own initiative or on the application of either widow, and deciding that he had no jurisdiction to determine questions of title and could only deal with the right to possession, they found that it was difficult to see how any partition could enlarge either widow's estate so as to give her a disposition, which she would not otherwise have had against the next heirs of her husband.

The question as to what partition was possible between the two such widows was not definitely settled by this authority. It is decided by a later authority.

That authority will be found in Gajapathi Nilamani v. Gajapathi Radhamani (2) which was decided by their Lordships in 1877. The decision will be found in Gajapathi Nilamani v. Gajapathi Radhamani (2). This was a suit from Madras It should be stated first, that the provisions of the Mitakshara Law as governing the parties in that suit are the same as the Mitakshara Law governing the parties in the present suit. The headnote says that "according to the Mitakshara Law...two or more lawful wives take a joint estate for life in their husband's property, with rights of survivorship and equal beneficial enjoyment. Although widows so taking have no right to enforce an absolute partition of the joint estate between them, they have power to arrange for separate enjoyment of their shares, their respective rights by survivorship and otherwise remaining unaffected". The case had arisen this way: Nilamani and Radhamani were the widows of a certain Gopinadha. Nilamani was the senior widow, Radhamani was the junior widow. Nilamani had denied that Radhamani had any rights in her late husband's estate. The Madras High Court had found that Radhamani had such rights and Nilamani came in appeal to their Lordships of the Judicial Committee. Their Lordships had to decide whether Radhamani had any rights; if so, what were those rights; if, the rights were capable of partition and whether it was within their power to put Radhamani in separate enjoyment of those rights. They concurred with the decision of the High Court of Madras to the effect that two or more lawfully married wives take a joint estate for life in their husband's property with rights of survivorship and equally beneficial enjoyment, and after referring to and concurring with the authority, which we have just quoted in Bhugwandeen Doobey v. Myna Baee (1) they laid down that widows taking a joint interest in the inheritance of their husband have no right to enforce an absolute partition of the joint estate between them. But they went on to say, that a case could be made out entitling one of several widows to the relief of separate possession of a portion of the inheritance, and they agreed with the finding of the High Court to the effect that such relief can and ought to be granted, when from the nature or situation of the property, and the conduct of the co-widows or co-widow it appeared to be the only proper and effectual mode of securing the enjoyment of her distinct right to an equal share of the benefits of the estate. They concurred with a previous authority, that there was no objection to a transaction which was merely an arrangement for separate possession and enjoyment, leaving the title to each share unaffected, although the widows nevertheless remained co-parceners, with a right of survivorship with them, and there could be no alienation by one without the consent of the other. It appears to us to follow from the rule of law laid down herein, that a partition between widows can in no circumstances have the effect of defeating the right of survivorship, and that whatever be the authority under a friendly arrangement of each widow to enjoy the usufruct of a separate portion of the estate, there can be no right of alienation by a co-widow alone, which will bind the other co-widow after her death.

---

(2) 4 I. A. 212; 1 M. 290; 1 Ind. Jur. 589; 1 C. L. R. 97; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 753; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 355; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 193 (P. C.).

The final decision of their Lordships to which we would refer in this connection is in a matter in which Nilamani and Radhamani were concerned, which came up many years later. We refer to the appeal [Jagapati Radhamani Garu v. Maharani Sri Pusapati Alakajeswari (3).] It appears that Nilamani had made two mortgages in 1874. She died on the 1st August, 1882. Radhamani refused to be bound by the disposition of Nilamani. Their Lordships say at page 189*:

"The High Court upon appeal reversed the judgment and decree of the District Judge, and gave a decree against the defendant for the amount found due upon the mortgages. As to Radhamani's consent not having been obtained, they said it would have been impossible for Nilamani to have obtained Radhamani's assent to any arrangement which she might have proposed at a time when they were in litigation, and that the moneys borrowed were for Radhamani's benefit, and that she was bound by the mortgages.

"It by no means follows that if it had been necessary to borrow money to save the estate of the two widows from sale for arrears of revenue, Radhamani would have refused to consent to mortgage the joint interest of the widows for a sum sufficient to discharge those arrears, notwithstanding the widows were at enmity, and actually engaged in litigation with each other respecting the estate.

"At any rate an application was not made to Radhamani for her consent, and without such an application it is impossible to hold, even if that would be sufficient, that Nilamani was under such a necessity of borrowing money without Radhamani's consent for the preservation of the estate that a mortgage by Nilamani alone would be binding upon Radhamani's interest in the event of her survival.

"But there was a very good reason why Nilamani did not apply to Radhamani for her consent. The mortgages were in 1874, whereas it appears that down to the year 1877 Nilamani was contending that Radhamani as junior widow took no interest in the estate, but was merely entitled to maintenance: Gajapati Nilamani v. Gajapati Radhamani (2). It was not determined until 1877 that Radhamani had a joint interest in the estate. If Nilamani had applied to Radhamani to join in the mortgages she would have impliedly admitted that Radhamani had a joint interest.

"It may be assumed for the present judgment, without deciding the point, that there was a sufficient necessity for borrowing money to pay the Government revenue, or even for the payment of Nilamani's debt; but that necessity did not render a mortgage by one widow binding upon the joint estate which had descended from their deceased husband so as to affect the interest of the surviving widow: Bhugwandeen Doobey v. Myna Baee (1). But, irrespectively of these considerations, it appears clear to their Lordships that the mortgages were not so framed as to bind the estate in the hands of Radhamani, as the surviving widow after the death of Nilamani. Many of the stipulations in the mortgages were personal to Nilamani, and they cannot be held to have been binding or intended to be binding upon Radhamani or her interest in the event of her surviving. Their Lordships are, therefore, of opinion that the mortgages were not binding upon Radhamani, and that the decree of the High Court ought to be reversed, with costs in that Court, and the decree of the District Judge affirmed."

This last decision again lays down the necessity of consent by the co-widow to validate a transfer that will affect the estate after the death of the transferor. It further lays down the very important principle that, even when the consideration for the transfer has been a legal necessity of the estate, the transfer is nevertheless invalid in absence of such consent. It would appear to us from the study of the decision, that the consent which their Lordships had in mind was an explicit consent and not an implied consent. There have been no further authoritative pronouncements on the point. The law has been well-summarized in a head-note in Hari Narayan Jog v. Vitai (4). "It is the right of each of the co-widows to enjoy her deceased husband's property by partition inter se, both under the Mitakshara and the Mayukha. She can, therefore, assign her share to anyone she chooses; and if she has already obtained her share by partition, she can alienate that share. But in either case the assignment or alienation cannot take effect or have a validity beyond her lifetime. It is good as long as she lives; and, on her death, her interest in the property ceases and the share goes to the surviving co-widow or co-widows as the case may be."

---

(3) 19 I. A. 184; 16 M. 1; 17 Ind. Jur. 36; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 1; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 709 (P. C.).

*Page of 19 I. A.—[Ed.]

This is the law which we have to apply to the facts of the case. Upon the face of it, the transfer of the village Janwar which was made by Umrao Kunwar under the compromise of the 19th December 1887 and the subsequent transfers of the village Janwar and the three other villages which were made by Ex. A-19 on the 28th April 1891 can have no effect after her death, and Gaya Kunwar has a right to repudiate them, to treat the defendant as a trespasser, and obtain possession over the four villages in question on the ground that the transfers by Umrao Kunwar were only good for Umrao Kunwar's lifetime, unless it can be established that Gaya Kunwar consented to those transfers. It is not suggested by the learned Counsel for the respondent, who has argued the case with great ability and fairness, that there was anything of the nature of explicit consent. Gaya Kunwar was examined on commission as a witness in the original suit, and it was nowhere suggested by the defendant in his cross-examination of Gaya Kunwar that she had ever consented explicitly to either of those transactions. It is true that she was a party to the compromise, in which the offer of Umrao Kunwar to make a transfer is contained, but she nowhere consented to that offer. She herself was making an independent offer. In respect of the subsequent transaction of 1891 there can be no suggestion that she ever consented explicitly. It is sufficient to note that the relations between Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar after the end of 1886 were such as to render it unlikely to a degree that one would ever consent to any arrangement made by the other. The learned Counsel for the respondent has argued, however, that the circumstances of the case are such as would justify this Court in holding that there was an implied consent by Gaya Kunwar to these transfers which is established by the evidence of her conduct. He further argued that her methods of dealing with the property which had been left in her individual management were such as rendered it impossible for her to plead that Umrao Kunwar was not entitled to make the tranfers which she had made.

Before we proceed to discuss the arguments of the learned Counsel for the respondent on the latter points and the evidence on which they are based, it is necessary to touch upon the method, in which the plaintiff's case was presented to the Trial Court in respect of the transfer of Janwar by Umrao Kunwar in accordance with the offer made by her in the compromise of 19th December 1887. Nowhere in the pleading did the plaintiff ever ratify that transfer in explicit terms. She never stated, that she consented to Umrao Kunwar making the transfer in question. In this particular instance it was necessary to obtain an exact statement in respect to a consent, for the transfer of Janwar under this arrangement was not necessarily a transfer which would have had effect after the lifetime of Umrao Kunwar. It is in fact the case for the plaintiff that, if the profits of Janwar had been correctly calculated, the obligation created against Umrao Kunwar would have ceased to exist before the latter's death. The plaintiff, however, was permitted in the course of the trial in the Trial Court to take up an extraordinary position to the following effect. Having satisfied herself that if she ratified Umrao Kunwar's action in the matter there would be a substantial profit accruing to her after the accounts were taken in respect of the transaction in question, she proceeded to set up the position that that transaction should stand (although she never suggested that she consented to it) in order that she might be permitted to recover the balance of profit which, she said, should have accrued if the accounts had been prepared properly. It is clear enough to us that if the accounts had been taken properly, there is at any rate no balance due to the defendant-respondent in respect of Umrao Kunwar's accepted offer contained in the compromise of the 19th December, 1887, and it is quite possible that the defendant-respondent has gained more under that transaction than the amount which he agreed to accept in the compromise. We do not understand, how the learned Subordinate Judge arrived at the figures contained in List A which is appended to his decree. We have discovered many errors in those figures, and the amount of realizations from Janwar in those figures do not correspond with the amount of realizations from Janwar given in the Commissioner's report which the learned Subordinate Judge accepted. The realizations from Janwar in the Commissioner's report are considerably greater than those given in the Appendix. But it appeared to us that it was impossible for the plaintiff-appellant, not only in view of her own pleading but in view of the ordinary rules of pleading, in absence of clear and final proof of consent to Umrao Kunwar's action in the matter, to ratify a transaction by Umrao Kunwar which she considered to be to her own advantage. No difficulty arises now, for the learned Counsel for the plaintiff-appellant, who has, in his arguments before us, shown admirable reasonableness and every desire to rectify any omissions and errors that have occurred in the Court below, has agreed to withdraw all claims for extra profits in the event of a decision that Gaya Kunwar did not consent to or ratified the transfer made by Umrao Kunwar in the course of the proceedings of 19th December, 1887. He does not assert now that Gaya Kunwar ever ratified this transfer or consented thereto. We have already noted that there is nothing in the compromise to show such ratification or consent by Gaya Kunwar. It is to be noted from A-9 that although the two compromises are contained on one paper they are made perfectly separately. Th first compromise is stated to be between Har Nath and Gauri Nath plaintiffs and Gaya Kunwar, and the second compromise is stated to be between the same plaintiffs and Umrao Kunwar.

---

(4) 31 B. 560; 9 Bom. L. R. 1049.

We shall now examine the evidence upon which the learned Counsel for the respondent relies in support of his argument that Gaya Kunwar consented to these transfers. We have already touched upon some of the evidence. In the first place it is common ground that, even before the partition through the Revenue Court, which came into effect from the 1st July, 1888, the two ladies had from the end of 1886 onwards, as a matter of mutual arrangement, taken separate portions of the estate into their individual management and we have already noted that in A-46, which was executed on the 20th January, 1888, Gaya Kunwar made a transfer in favour of Surat Singh in which she stated that Mandauli and Janwar were in her exclusive proprietary possession and occupation without any co-parcenership. In the partition through the Revenue Court both Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar were putting themselves forward as independent of one another. That much is clear. Each was claiming the right to transfer her own share without objection by the other and the same position was taken up on the proceedings in execution of the compromise decree which are detailed in A-81. Here Hazari Lal, Gaya Kunwar's agent, referred to past transfers by Gaya Kunwar and future transfers which he proposed to make. In the transfer which was made by A-42 on the 21st October, 1889, by Gaya Kunwar to Surat Singh we have again a clear statement by the lady of complete rights over the villages of Manduali and Sikrauri. We have further the fact that she received Rs. 1,411-15-0 from Umrao Kunwar, which had formed part of the consideration of the deed executed by Umrao Kunwar in A-16 on the 23rd December, 1887, and was thus taking to herself something which Umrao Kunwar had obtained by transfer. Certain passages in her evidence have been dwelt on by the learned Counsel. At o. p. 667 she admitted having signed the abortive deed on the 3rd June, 1886, (Ex. A-6) but that circumstance goes for nothing. All that she admits here is that she was ready to agree to a transfer by Umrao Kunwar and herself at a time when they were friendly, but that later on she withdrew her consent and the transfer never took place. She admitted later on that she had paid money in settlement of her husband's debts. She admitted frankly at o. p. 667 that she made transfers without taking the permission of Umrao Kunwar and that Umrao Kunwar made transfers without taking her permission. But this evidence taken together does not, in our opinion, establish such a consent by Gaya Kunwar to the transfers by Umrao Kunwar which she now attacks as to make them binding upon the estate, which has now come to her by survivorship. We find that there was no suggestion on the part of the respondent in his pleadings that Gaya Kunwar had consented to these transfers

No issue was framed upon the point and the framing of the second issue would almost go to show that the parties agreed that there had been no consent. That issue is as follows:—

"Were the said mortgages made for a legal necessity and for payment of antecedent debts? Are they for that reason binding on the plaintiff, even though they were not made with her consent?

The most that this evidence can establish is that Umrao Kunwar and Gaya Kunwar each acted independently of one another in making transfers. Each asserted a right, which was not possessed, to deal absolutely with the property in her separate possession. It is to be noted that each had a right to make transfers of the property in her separate possession provided that the transfer did not have effect after her own lifetime. The circumstance that neither objected to a transfer made by the other cannot, in our opinion, be construed to mean more than that neither objected to the other making a transfer, provided that transfer did not affect her own interests in the event of her succeeding to the estate by survivorship. It would not be correct, we think, to draw an inference from these facts that the failure to object by either lady could imply that she consented to a transfer by the other which would have the effect after the lifetime of the transferor. When we are asked to decide that a transaction is ratified by implied consent, it is necessary for us to exclude the possibility of there having been a consent which did not carry the matter up to ratifying an alienation which would defeat the consenter's right to succeed by survivorship. Here it is necessary to have something more than generalities. Knowledge of the effect of what the person alleged to be consenting was doing and an intelligent intention to consent to such an effect must be further shown; and we find an absolute absence of evidence which would justify us in drawing a conclusion that Gaya Kunwar consented to the transfers in question.

Much time was spent by the lower Court in deciding which items that formed consideration of the transfer were justified or were not justified by the legal necessity of the estate. We do not propose to touch upon these points for, as we read the law, the question of legal necessity does not enter into the matter. There having been no consent by Gaya Kunwar, the transfers made by Umrao Kunwar have no effect after the death of the latter lady. For the above reasons we accept the Appeal No. 41 of 1924 and pass a decree for possession of the villages, Janwar, Mandauli, Madna Khera and Tikra Khurd in favour of Gaya Kunwar. This is all the relief which the plaintiff will obtain. She did not ask in her plaint for mesne profits and we see no reason at this stage to allow any extension to enable her to add this relief to the relief which she originally sought. No question of accounting can arise. If the transfers by Umrao Kunwar had been held valid against Gaya Kunwar, she would have had to pay a very large sum of money in order to obtain possession of the villages. She is not entitled to any extension of relief outside what she actually claimed and she actually claimed either the possession of these villages without accounting or, if she failed to obtain possession, then the taking of an account. It did not appear to have occurred to her that she had a claim for mesne profits, and we see no reason why she should be allowed to insert a claim for mesne profits at this stage. Gauri Nath will pay his own costs and those of Gaya Kunwar in both Courts. We consider that Gaya Kunwar has succeeded absolutely in respect of the relief 14 (a), the remaining being alternative reliefs. As a consequence we dismiss Appeal No. 52 of 1924. Gauri Nath will pay his own costs and those of Gaya Kunwar in that appeal.

Appeal No. 41 accepted.
Z. K. Appeal No. 52 dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 133 OF 1924.
February 17, 1926.
Present :—Mr. Findlay, Officiating J. C.
WAMANRAO AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS —APPELLANTS
versus
SHRAWAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS —RESPONDENTS.

C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920), ss. 12, 13—Occupancy holding—Surrender to co-sharer—Joint possession by lambardar, suit for—Contribution, whether can be claimed by co-sharer—Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 90—"Properly incurred", meaning of.

A transfer of an occupancy holding is not ab initio void but only voidable, as it can be avoided by certain specified persons mentioned in s. 13 of the C. P. Tenancy Act. [p. 943, col. 2.]

A lambardar can, therefore, obtain joint possession of land acquired under a surrender by a co-sharer from an occupancy tenant only on making contribution towards the cost of acquisition incurred by the latter: [p. 942, col. 2.]

Moolchand v. Chittoo, 5 Ind. Cas. 431; 6 N. L. R. 12 and Ramdayal v. Gulabia Bai, 4 N. L. R. 120, followed.

The words "properly incurred" in s. 90 of the Trusts Act mean "reasonably and suitably incurred". [p. 944, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Nagpur, dated the 18th December 1923, in Civil Appeal No. 133 of 1923.

Mr. M. B. Kinkhede, R. B., for the Appellants.

Mr. J. C. Ghosh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The original plaintiff Santosh Rao was the lambardar of patti No. 2 of Mouza Khandala. Occupancy field No. 345 in that patti was held by one Kashideo and others who executed a deed of surrender in respect of it on 11th April 1921 in favour of the defendants Shrawan and Ghusajee and placed them in possession. The consideration for the surrender was said to be Rs. 1,500. No. 2 patti is a 6-anna one and is held as follows :—

	Rs.	a.	p.
Plaintiff	0	1	0
Defendants Nos. 1 and 2	0	2	0
Ragho and Nago	0	1	0
Maroti	0	1	0
Paikoo and others	0	1	0

The defence was that plaintiff had consented to the surrender and a further pleading was offered that, in any event, plaintiff could only be entitled to possession if he contributed proportionately to the cost of acquisition. The Munsif, Katol, on the issues which arose on these and connected pleadings of the parties, came to the following findings :—

(a) that the original tenants had surrendered the field to the defendants on 11th April 1921 for Rs. 1,000;

(b) that plaintiff and the other co-sharers had not consented to the surrender;

(c) that, as the surrender was not to the entire proprietary body, it was in reality a sale in contravention of the Tenancy Law and plaintiff could not be called on for contribution.

A decree for joint possession was accordingly passed in favour of plaintiff as lambardar to the extent of the remaining 4-anna share out of the 6-anna patti in question. In arriving at the decision he did the Munsif—so far as the question of contribution was concerned—relied on the decision of Prideaux, A. J. C. in Second Civil Appeal No. 210 of 1920 (Ex. P-1.)

The defendants appealed to the Court of the District Judge, Nagpur, and the most vital question involved in that appeal was that of contribution. Plaintiff did not appeal from the decision of the Munsif which disallowed his claim for exculusive possession ; hence he was rightly deemed to have accepted the position that defendants were not trespassers and that he was only entitled to claim joint-possession to the extent of the 4-anna share. Incidentally, the District Judge confirmed the finding of fact arrived at by the Munsif that the consideration of the surrender was Rs. 1,000 only to which he added Rs. 14-0-6 on account of registration and connected charges. The learned District Judge, after considering the decision of Prideaux, A. J. C., quoted above, referred to the case of Ramdayal v. Gulabia Bai (1) and pointed out that, where some of the members of a proprietary body accept and others reject such a transfer, it cannot be avoided and the latter can only claim joint possession by contributing their share of the cost of acquisition. He held that although registration of the so-called deed of surrender was invalid it would be contrary to equity to allow plaintiff joint possession without contribution. The lower Appellate Court accordingly gave a decree for joint possession in favour of plaintiff to the extent of his one anna share subject to payment by him of one sixth of the cost of acquisition [cf. Moolchand v. Chittoo (2) .]

The representatives of the plaintiff now deceased have come up on second appeal against this decision. As regards the question of contribution the decision of Bose, A. J. C. in the case of Moolchand v. Chittoo (2) last quoted was attacked as inapplicable to the facts of this case on the ground that s. 90 of the Trusts Act of 1882 is only to be enforced where the expenses have been "properly incurred." Here it is urged the expenses of acquisition were improperly incurred with the express object of defeating the provisions of the Tenancy Law. It is urged also that the consideration in question was unlawful within the meaning of s. 23 of the Contract Act as the object was to defeat the provisions of the Tenancy Law. Reliance has in this connection been placed on the decision of Prideaux, A. J. C. in Second Civil Appeal No. 210 of 1920 and on Moti Chand v. Ikram-ullah-Khan (3) and Mir Dad Khan v. Ramzan Khan (4). The actual point of Tenancy Law involved in these two Allahabad cases was, however, different and they are not peculiarly apposite to the decision in this one. I have been, however, referred to the Bench decision of Baker, J. C., and Prideaux, A. J. C., in Zingoba v. Kautikabai (5) a year or more after the District Judge had delivered the judgment now under consideration. In that case the learned Judges held that a transfer such as we are concerned with here was an illegal one intended to evade the provisions of the Tenancy Law and, being so forbidden by law, that contribution should not be allowed.

---

(1) 4 N. L. R. 120.

(2) 5 Ind. Cas. 431; 6 N. L. R. 12.

With all respect I find myself unable to concur in this decision. It seems to me that a transfer like the present, cannot be regarded as one ab initio void under s. 23 of the Indian Contract Act in view of the special law applicable to the transaction. Under s. 13 of the Tenancy Act of 1920, the nearest heir or the landlord could have applied to the Revenue Officer for possession. From any point of view the transfer was not one ab initio void but only a voidable one. If the element of voidness as compared with voidableness entered into the transaction it arose only between the defendants and the original tenant: the element of voidableness entered into it as between the transferee and the heirs or the landlord only to the extent laid down in the Tenancy Act. If the transfer were to be considered void ab initio, the apposite provisions of the Tenancy Act relating to its avoidance, would have been of an entirely different nature from what they are. In both the Allahabad cases quoted above the position was entirely different: the plaintiffs therein were endeavouring to enforce mortgages and connected agreements the very object and raison d'etre of which was to defeat certain provisions of the Agra Tenancy Act relating to the non-transferability of sir and khudkasht lands. Here the tenant under ss. 12 and 13 of the Tenancy Act is not entirely debarred from transferring his right: he can only do so in certain specified ways under s. 12 (1): if he does transfer the right in any other way, the heirs and the landlord have a special remedy provided in the Revenue Courts for recovering possession. From this point of view I am of opinion that it is incorrect to regard the consideration of a transfer such as we are concerned with here as necessarily an illegal one within the meaning of s. 23, Indian Contract Act, and therefore, void ab initio. The special law applicable under the Tenancy Act lays down that the transaction can only be avoided by certain specified persons and, this being so, I do not think it is open to the appellants to urge that the transaction was one void ab initio a position which their argument necessarily implies.

A great deal of stress has been laid on behalf of the appellants on the fact that the registration of the razinama (D.-1) was in effect a fraud and deceit practised on the Registration Officer in view of the provision of s. 12, sub-s. (4), Tenancy Act. The latter provision was obviously an extra safeguard introduced to prevent or discourage as far as possible improper transfers: it is an incidental provision, so to speak, while the real nature of the transaction as well as the extent to which it can be avoided are laid down in s. 13 of the Tenancy Act. From this point of view I am with all due diffidence unable to accept the decisions of Prideaux, A. J. C. in Second Appeal No. 210 of 1920 and of Baker, J. C. and Prideaux, A. J. C., in Zingoba v. Kautikabai (5). These decisions proceed largely on what may be termed the utilitarian argument, viz., that registration of such documents is forbidden by law and the connected transaction should be, therefore, regarded as illegal ab initio. As I have shown, however, the latter proposition cannot accurately be postulated of the transaction in view of its exact legal nature as laid down in the specific provisions of the Tenancy Act applicable. The incidental argument offered in this case that the document (D-1) being inadmissible in evidence as improperly registered there has been no proof in any case of the consideration having passed need not detain me as there is sufficient independent evidence on record regarding the payment of consideration and in any event the document would be admissible in evidence for a collateral purpose such as we are concerned with where the question involved is whether plaintiff should be allowed to share in the possession obtained by the defendants under the razinama without contribution to the costs of acquisition incurred by the latter.

---

(3) 39 Ind. Cas. 454; 39 A. 173; 15 A. L. J. 150; 5 L. W. 388; 21 M. L. T. 267; 32 M. L. J. 383; 21 C. W. N. 616; 19 Bom. L. R. 433; 26 C. L. J. 24; (1917) M. W. N. 453; 44 I. A. 54 (P. C.).

(4) 44 Ind. Cas. 988; 40 A. 449; 16 A. L. J. 329.

(5) 93 Ind. Cas. 106.

There is another aspect of this matter which deserves consideration. In Zingoba v. Kautikabai (5) Baker, J. C., and Prideaux, A. J. C., remarked as follows :—

> "We think that devices to avade the Tenancy Law should as far as possible be checked and that when a tenant is induced to part with his land to a fractional co-sharer and not to the lambardar, the land thus becoming khudkasht of the whole proprietary body, the purchasing co-sharer should not be allowed to claim compensation from his other co-sharers because he obtained possession by a device intended to defeat the Tenancy Law; and that unless the proper mode of procedure, viz., a surrender to the lambardar, is followed, other co-sharers can claim a share according to their share in the village without the payment of compensation."

The desirability of effecting such an object as this is obvious but the question is whether under the law as it stands at present such an object can be attained. I have already given my reason for holding that as the Tenancy Law stands at present this is not so.

Now how do the equities stand in a case like the present. The lambardar did not attack the transfer with the special weapon the Tenancy Act put ready to his hands. He has chosen to sue in the Civil Court and while nominally impeaching the transfer as illegal he, in reality, founds his case upon and claims proportionate possession from the defendants without paying his share of the cost of acquisition. In other words, he is attempting to obtain free in this suit what in any ordinary circumstances he would have to pay for. The principle "he who seeks equity must do equity" is surely, therefore, applicable here. [cf. Moolchand v. Chittoo (2).] I am not at all impressed by the contention that the cost of acquisition could not be said to be costs "properly incurred" within the meaning of s. 90 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. The costs were bona fide and reasonable ones: what was wrong was that the transaction was carried out by a single co-sharer and not by the landlord as such: the words "properly incurred" obviously mean "reasonably and suitably incurred". I am, therefore, of opinion that the decision in Moolchand v. Chittoo (2) is fully applicable in the present case.

It only remains to deal with the argument that the plaintiffs should be allowed to recover joint possession of the 4-anna share instead of the one-anna share he Santosh Rao held himself. The recent Land Revenue Act now includes a definition of lambardar but in doing so it only crystallised what was already the accepted position of such a functionary. I cannot see any reason for holding that the principle laid down in this connection in Ramdayal v. Gulabia Bai (1) is inapplicable here and I cannot see any reason for holding that the plaintiffs are entitled to recover possession up to the extent of the 4 anna share when there is nothing to show their father has brought this suit with the concurrence and consent of the remaining co-sharers included in the said share.

The appeal accordingly fails and is dismissed. Appellants must pay the respondent's costs in the lower Courts as already ordered.

G. R. D. Appeal dismissed.
Z. K.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 217 OF 1924.
March 5, 1926.
Present :—Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal
and Mr. Justice Boys.

PARTAP NARAIN SINGH AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
RAM KUMAR SINGH AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Separation—Separate acquisitions—Burden of proof.

Where a party comes into Court claiming a share in a certain property, it lies upon him to establish the foundation of his case, viz., that the property was Hindu joint family property, to which he as a surviving member is entitled.

The presumption of jointness of a Hindu family does not arise where it appears that before the suit there has been a division of the family property or a separation in the family all the members of which are living separately, though the date of the separation is unknown. [p. 945, col. 2; p. 946, col. 1.]

Where a family is admitted to be separate on the date of the suit, it is on a party who alleges that certain acquisitions were made at a time when the family was joint to prove that they were so made. [p 945, col. 2; p. 956, col. 1.]

A separation in mess and worship may be due to various causes and yet the family may continue joint in estate. In other cases separation may take place and yet partition of the family property may be postponed. [p. 947, col. 1.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Benares, dated the 5th November 1923.

Dr. M. L. Agarwala and Mr. Baleshwari Prasad, for the Appellants.

Mr. Haribans Sahai, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The dispute in this case relates to some shares in certain pattis of the village Kartarpur, and the complaint of the plaintiffs is that in the course of a partition proceeding, instituted by Lachhman Das for the partition of his share of the said village followed by certain intermediate applications made by Ram Kumar Singh and Mahip Singh for the partition of, what they described, as their share therein, an order was passed by the partition officer in his capacity as Assistant Collector on the report of the patwari of the village, directing the correction of certain entries in the khewat in a manner prejudicial to the rights of the plaintiffs. The facts of the case are somewhat complicated, and we had some difficulty in getting the right facts in consequence of the manner in which the case was presented to us. We give the facts as stated to us, or as far as they could be ascertained from the papers laid before us for consideration.

The plaintiffs and the defendant Jadunandan Singh are the descendants of one Salhant Singh. The defendant Ram Kumar Singh is the son of Mahip Singh and the nephew of Mata Din, both of whom form a branch of the family from another branch of which Salhant Singh was descended. The allegation of the plaintiffs was that they and their predecessor Salhant Singh were separate from Mahip Singh and Mata Din and also from Ram Kumar Singh, the present contesting defendant. Ram Kumar Singh, however, asserted that he and his father Mahip Singh and also his uncle Mata Din lived jointly with Salhant Singh and his descendants up to 1325F. The dispute between the parties centred round certain acquisitions which had been made in the name of Salhant Singh in 1865, 1866, 1869 and 1894. There was also a dispute about certain property acquired in the names of the plaintiffs in 1901. By an order of the Assistant Collector passed on the 26th September 22 in the mutation proceeding, instituted on the report of the patwari above referred to, both branches were recorded as owners of the property purchased in the name of Salhant Singh.

The Trial Court found in a judgment which itself is not free from inconsistencies that the family was separate in mess and some cultivation, but in other respects it was joint. It proceeded to observe that while it could hardly be described as a joint family, it was equally difficult to say that it was a separate family, and the conclusion at which it ultimately arrived was that it was a mixture of both, and that the separation would be deemed to have taken place in 1325 F. It further found that the plaintiffs had no cause of action against Mahabir and that s. 233 (k) of the U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901) barred the claim.

The lower Appellate Court examined the evidence produced by the parties and came to the conclusion that, though the evidence was not so clear as it might be, the learned Subordinate Judge was right in holding that the family was not proved to have separated before 1325 F. In arriving at that finding it placed the burden of proof on the plaintiffs to establish that they had made the acquisitions while the family was separate; and since its finding was that a separation before 1325 F had not been proved, it necessarily upheld the finding of the Trial Court that the acquisitions must be presumed to have been made from the joint funds.

It is obvious that the burden of proof was erroneously laid on the plaintiffs, for the allegation of both the parties was that the family was separate on the date of the suit. The question which the Courts below had to determine really related to the status of the family at the time when the acquisitions were made; and it is manifest that if the family was admitted to be separate on the date of the suit, it was on the party that alleged that the acquisitions were made at a time when the family was joint, to prove that they were so made. In Bannoo v. Kashee Ram (1) their Lordships of the Privy Council observed: "Where a party comes into Court claiming a share in a certain property, it lies upon him to establish the foundation of his case, namely that the property was joint property, to which he as a surviving member was entitled. The presumption of jointness does not arise where it appears that before the suit there has been a division of the family property or a separation in the family, all the members of which were living separately, though the date of the separation might be unknown."

---

(1) 3 C. 315; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 781; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 490; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 49; 2 Ind. Jur. 151; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 788 (P. C.).

In Bala Bux v. Rukhmabai (2) it was held that if a person claimed to be entitled to a certain property on the death of one of the members of the family, another member of which had admittedly separated himself much earlier, and no agreement by the other members to remain united or to re-unite, had been proved, the ordinary presumption that a Hindu family was presumed to be joint could no longer be availed of to establish a right to that property, and it was the duty of the person claiming that right to establish the state of jointness necessary to make his claim successful.

The presumption of jointness having been destroyed by the admission that the family was separate on the date of the suit, it is for the party, which alleges separation or jointness on a particular date, to entitle him to a particular right, to establish the state of things which would give him that right.

On behalf of the defendants-respondents reliance is placed on the decision in Ram Ghulam Singh v. Ram Behari Singh (3) and that of Bhagwani Kunwar v. Mohan Singh (4). But in those cases an attempt was made to establish that the family was joint when the right to sue accrued, and the evidence went to show that there had been separation, though the actual date of separation was not ascertainable. In the present case the allegation of the defendants was that a separation had taken place in 1325 F and that of the plaintiffs was that it had taken place much earlier. The acquisitions made between 1865 and 1894 were made in the name of Salhant Singh and that in 1901 in the names of the plaintiffs, and inasmuch as the presumption of jointness was destroyed by the admission that there had been a separation prior to the suit, it was for the defendants to establish that the family was joint when these purchases were made, or that the purchases had been made from the joint family funds.

As the lower Appellate Court appears to have been largely influenced in arriving at its finding by the question of burden of proof, which was incorrectly thrown on the plaintiffs who had an ostensible title in the disputed property by virtue of the purchases which had been made in their names or in the name of their ancestor, it is difficult to act on that finding; and the only course open to us is either to send the case back to the lower Court for proper findings on the evidence adduced, or to go into the evidence ourselves and to record a finding after hearing the parties. This litigation has been going on since 1923, and affects materially a partition proceeding now pending in the Revenue Court, and we have considered it consequently desirable that we should examine the evidence ourselves and come to a finding on the main question upon which the determination of the title of either of the two contending parties must clearly rest. We have had the assistance of the learned Counsel for the parties in going through the evidence and we agree with the lower Appellate Court that some weight must be attached to the opinion of the Trial Court which had an opportunity of seeing the witnesses, and was in a better position to judge by their demeanour which side was speaking the truth. The Trial Court relies very largely on the evidence of one Babu Sankata Prasad, who was a school-master, employed in the village in the year 1901-02. This gentleman has since been practising as a Pleader and is not connected with either party, and it can hardly be disputed that he had an intimate acquaintance with the real state of affairs, because, he used to be supplied food by the family, and he was working in a school maintained in the house of the parties, of which Ramgulam Singh, one of the plaintiffs-appellants, was the manager. The witness lives at present in a village a mile off from the village in dispute, but at the time when he was employed in the school he lived in the school premises and his statement is that though the parties messed separately and also cultivated some land separately, they had a joint management and a joint staff for the collection of rents and also a joint cultivation of 8 or 10 ploughs. He further states that the collection of rents was made jointly, that Ramgulam was a leading member of the family, and that from the collections made the expenses connected with the marriage and funeral ceremonies etc. of the whole family were defrayed and the stable expenses were also paid from the joint fund. In other words, though each party messed separately and paid for its messing expenses from that portion of the land which was allotted to it for cultivation, all other expenses in connection with the management of the family property, the cultivation of the joint land, and the marriage and funeral ceremonies were jointly incurred from the common fund. It not infrequently happens that where a family outgrows the conveniences at its disposal or some of the members have to go for their living or work elsewhere, the messing becomes temporarily separate, but for all other purposes the income of the entire family, or of the family property, remains in the joint stock to meet all common expenses. As observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Suraj Narain v. Iqbal Narain (5) a separation in mess and worship may be due to various causes and yet the family may continue joint in estate. In other cases a separation may take place and yet a partition of the family property may be postponed. That was not, however, the condition of this family at the time. There was a joint cultivation but a portion of the land was set apart for separate cultivation to meet the separate messing expenses of some of its members or in other words to obviate inconveniences due to the growth or bifurcation of the family into several branches. The rest of the cultivation continued to be joint. The entire property was managed by a joint staff paid from a common fund. The collections made by the manager, Ramghulam Singh, were kept in a joint stock, and the marriage and funeral ceremonies of the entire family were met from that fund.

---

(2) 30 C. 725; 7 C. W. N. 642; 5 Bom. L. R. 469; 30 I. A. 130; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 470 (P. C).

(3) 18 A. 90; A. W. N. (1895) 234; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 765.

(4) 88 Ind. Cas. 385; 23 A. L. J. 589; A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 132; 49 M. L. J. 55; (1925) M. W. N. 421; 41 C. L. J. 591; 22 L. W. 211; 29 C. W. N. 1037 (P. C).

If there were any doubt about the status of the family in 1901-1902, it is removed by the dastur dehi of the village Madasia, wherein it was stated that no division of properties was made between the co-sharers because the members of the family lived jointly. Both the Trial Court and the lower Appellate Court have referred to the above document as establishing beyond doubt that the family was joint in 1901 and at no stage of the case it was ever disputed that the mahal and the dastur dehi relied on did not belong to the family, or that the contending parties were not co-sharers therein. In fact the khewat of mahal Ramghulam Rai, also known as Ramghulam Singh, of the village Madasia is also on the record; and we have no hesitation in finding that up to 1901, at all events, the family was joint, though, for the sake of convenience, some of the members were messing separately, and met their expenses from some land, which had been allotted to each of them for their cultivation. This dastur dehi was verified in 1906. Reading it with the evidence of Babu Sankata Prasad we can safely carry the period of jointness up to 1902, that is beyond the dates when the acquisitions in question were made.

On behalf of the plaintiffs-appellants our attention has been invited to the statement of Ramghulam Singh in a proceeding instituted by him under s. 145 of the Cr. P. C. against Fateh Bahadur Singh and others in 1921, wherein Ram Kumar Singh is said to have stated that he had separated from the plaintiffs at the time of the settlement, which took place in 1882, and the case of the present plaintiffs is said to have then been that the property then in dispute, namely, the village Uttargaon, had been acquired from the joint family fund. The deposition aforesaid was put to Ram Kumar Singh when he was examined in the present case; and the Trial Court which recorded his statement observes that the witness resiled from it. Whether he did so or not, both the parties in the present case are seeking to resile from the position which they had taken up in the criminal proceeding above referred to. Ram Kumar Singh now says that the family has continued to be joint up to 1918, while the plaintiffs choose to affirm that it had separated very long ago. Each party appears to have been anxious at the time to set up allegations which suited its case, regardless of the truth, and the Courts below have, in the face of the conflict, rightly confined their attention to the more important of such independent evidence—oral and documentary—which was forthcoming in the case, and we have done the same in arriving at the conclusion that the family was joint when the acquisitions in question were made.

That being the position, the plaintiffs and the defendant Ram Kumar Singh, who is the heir of his father Mahip Singh and his uncle Mata Din, must be treated to be the joint owners of the properties in dispute and the acquisitions must be deemed to have been made from the joint fund possessed by the family at the time. It is not disputed that the family had a nucleus of some ancestral property and some sale-deeds bear evidences of earlier loan transactions which were either credited towards or for which some money was left out of the sale consideration.

---

(5) 18 Ind. Cas. 30; 35 A. 80 at p. 88; 13 M. L. T. 194; 17 C. W. N. 333; 11 A. L. J. 172; (1913) M. W. N. 183; 17 C. L. J. 288; 24 M. L. J. 315; 15 Bom. L. R. 456; 16 O. C. 129; 40 I. A. 40 (P. C.).

It is argued on behalf of the plaintiffs that there was a decision in 1882 between the present plaintiffs on the one hand and Ram Kumar Singh on the other, which operated as res judicata, inasmuch as no title was set up by Ram Kumar Singh to any share in the property, which the plaintiffs were then claiming. It appears that in 1864 a deed of mortgage was executed by some Pandey Brahmans in favour of Salhant Singh and a suit was brought in 1882 for the recovery of the money due on that mortgage by foreclosure. Ram Kumar Singh was added in that suit as a pro forma defendant by reason of his having asserted his title to a portion of the property by a purchase said to have been made in 1865. It was found in that case that that purchase was invalid and unenforceable. Ram Kumar Singh did not set up a joint right to the mortgage-bond then in suit, but it is possible that that mortgage may have been a separate transaction entered into by Salhant Singh on his own account. The decision in that case cannot in any case affect other property or the points in controversy in the present case.

It is also urged that the Courts below had erred in holding that there was no cause of action against Mahabir. We do not know whether the name of Mahabir is recorded in the revenue papers. By the order passed in the mutation proceeding which forms the subject of complaint in the present suit, we do not find that the name of Mahabir was directed to be recorded in respect of any portion of the patti Ram Kumar Singh. He is said to have made an intermediate application for the partition of his share, but we are not aware that any entry was made when the order complained of was passed which is really prejudicial to the rights of the plaintiffs. The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 20 OF 1925.
March 17, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Findlay, Officiating J. C.
GUNAJI AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
RAMCHANDRA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Alienation by father—After-born son, when may impeach.

If there be an alienation invalidly made by a Hindu father where a son was either born or in gremio matris, the rights of any after-born son attach thereto and the latter is entitled to challenge the validity of the transaction. [p. 949, col. 1.]

Hurodoot Narain Singh v. Beer Narain Singh, 11 W. R. 480 and Sabapathi v. Somasundaram, 16 M. 76; 2 M. L. J. 244; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 760, followed.

Appeal against a decree of the Additional District Judge, Nagpur, dated the 22nd November 1924, in Civil Appeal No. 74 of 1924.

Mr. A. V. Wazalwar, for the Appellants.
Mr. K. K. Gandhe, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs-appellants Gunaji and Kashinath, sons of Ramchandra, sued their father and defendant No. 2, Chirkut in the Court of the Second Subordinate Judge, Second Class, Nagpur, for the setting aside of the decree obtained by Chirkut in Civil Suit No. 124 of 1922 for sale of three-fourths of the family house in satisfaction of a mortgage, dated 13th December 1911, executed by Ramchandra, his mother Savitri and brother Damu. The allegation was that the guardian ad litem, Ramchandra, acted fraudulently against the interests of the minor sons, that the mortgage was not for legal necessity and that the shares of the minor were not involved.

The Judge of the First Court gave no finding on the question of legal necessity and practically decided the suit on the ground that the minors were not born on the date on which the mortgage-deed was executed. The Subordinate Judge apparently missed the point that it would have been sufficient if either of the minors had on the said date been in gremio matris.

The plaintiffs appealed to the Court of the Additional District Judge who held that there had been a failure to prove that Gunaji was born on 9th May 1912, or that he was in gremio matris on the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed.

The finding of fact of the Additional

District Judge is, however, a vague and unsatisfactory one. It is difficult to make out from his judgment whether he believed or not that the Municipal entry (P. 2) showing a son as born to one Ramchandra Nago on 9th May 1912, referred or not to a son of the present defendant-respondent No. 1. The parties were entitled to a definite finding on this point. Apart from this, however, the Additional District Judge went on to say as follows:—

"Even assuming that respondent Ramchandra was referred to in the entry, it should have been shown that the particular son, to whom the entry related, was alive and that he was Gunaji."

I am unable to see why this position should have been postulated by the Additional District Judge. If there was an alienation invalidly made by the father, when a son was either born or in gremio matris, the rights of any after-born son would attach thereto and the plaintiffs in this capacity, even if neither of them was the son supposed to have been born or in gremio matris on the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed, would be entitled to challenge the validity of the transaction: cf. Hurodoot Narain Singh v Beer Narain Singh (1) and Sobharam Teli v. Makdu (2), as well as Sabapathi v. Somasundaram (3). Baker, O. J. C., in Man Singh v. Karan Singh (4), has fully considered the legal incidents applicable in a case like the present. He therein pointed out that a son cannot object to alienations validly made by his father before he was born or begotten, but if the alienation was made by a father without necessity and without the consent of a son then living, it would be invalid not only against him but also against any son born before he had ratified the transaction.

I am of opinion, therefore, that this case has been unsatisfactorily dealt with and that the suit must go back to the Court of first instance for re-trial. The Subordinate Judge has, first of all, to decide whether any son was born to Ramchandra or was in gremio matris on the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed in question. Incidently, he will have to find whether, if there was any such son, he was either of the plaintiffs, or, if, not, whether a previous son had been born to Ramchandra and had died. There are various other questions in the suit relating to legal necessity, fraud and the like which require decision, and it is impossible in the present state of the case to decide the suit on the merits.

Both the judgments and decrees of the lower Courts are accordingly reversed and the suit is remanded for re-trial to the Court of first instance with directions to re admit it under its original number in the register of civil suits and to proceed to determine it on the merits with advertance to the above remarks. The costs incurred in this Court and in the lower Courts will follow the event. There will be no certificate for refund of Court-fees.

G. R. D. Suit remanded.

---

(1) 11 W. R. 480.
(2) 12 C. P. L. R. 63 at p. 65.
(3) 16 M. 76; 2 M. L. J. 244; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 760.
(4) 78 Ind. Cas. 260; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 200.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 487 OF 1926.
April 7, 1926
Present:—Mr Justice Sulaiman.
MOHAMED SHER KHAN AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
CHAMMAN KHAN AND ANOTHER—
PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, cl. 41—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 102—Suit for contribution by co-judgment-debtor—Second appeal.

A suit by a co-judgment-debtor to recover by way of contribution a share of the decretal amount paid by him is a suit of the nature of a Small Cause and not one falling under cl. 41, Sch. II, of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and, therefore, no second appeal is competent in such case where the value of the suit is less than Rs. 500.

Roshan Lal v. Ram Lal, 4 A. L. J. 543; A. W. N. (1907) 230 and Ant Ram v. Mithan Lal, 45 Ind. Cas. 560; 40 A. 135; 16 A. L. J. 44, distinguished.

Second appeal against a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Badaun, dated the 11th December 1925.

Mr. Harnandan Prasad, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought to recover by way of contribution a share of the decretal amount paid by the plaintiff. The decree was a joint decree for damages against the defendants. The amount claimed was less than Rs. 500. In my opinion no second appeal lies to the High Court. The suit was obviously one of a Small Cause Court nature, and a second appeal is barred. The learned Vakil for the appellants relies on cl. 41 of Schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. That clause obviously applies to suits for contributions brought by a sharer in joint property in respect of the payment made by him of money due from a co-sharer. This is not the case here. The parties are not sharers in any joint property at all. They are co-judgment-debtors jointly liable to pay the amount of the decree. I may refer to Roshan Lal v. Ram Lal (1) and Ant Ram v. Mithan Lal (2).

It is lastly urged that this appeal should be treated as a revision. Assuming for the sake of argument that the lower Appellate Court has made a mistake on a point of law (which is by no means clear), the case does not fall under s. 115, C. P. C. The Court had the jurisdiction to hear the appeal and to dispose of it; whether it has done so rightly or wrongly is immaterial. It has committed no irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction. The appeal is accordingly dismissed under O. XLI, r. 11, C. P. C.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

---

(1) 4 A. L. J. 543; A. W. N. (1907) 230.

(2) 45 Ind. Cas. 560; 40 A. 135; 16 A. L. J. 44.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 983 OF 1923.

January 8, 1926.

Present:—Justice Sir Charles Gordon Spencer, KT.

SURYADEVAR MAHALAKSHAMMA —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
VENNAM NAGAYYA AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Widow, alienation by—Necessity—Purchase of other properties—Benefit of estate.

If the parties who have to support an alienation made by a Hindu widow can show that the estate has been improved by selling immoveable property and buying other lands of equal or greater value and more convenient for cultivation and management, the Court will not set aside such a transaction. [p. 957, col. 1.]

In re Krishnasawmi Doss, 13 Ind. Cas. 648; (1912) M. W. N. 167; 11 M. L. T. 182, and Ramsumran Prasad v. Shyam Kumari, 69 Ind. Cas 71; 49 I. A. 342 at p. 346; 31 M. L. T. 200; 3 P. L. T. 749; A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 356; 1 Pat. 741; 16 L. W. 956; 21 A. L. J. 18; 9 O. & A. L. R. 175; 27 C. W. N. 269; 37 C. L J. 356; 44 M. L. J. 751; 25 Bom. L. R. 634 (P. C.), followed.

Second appeal against a decree of the District Court, Guntur, in A. S. No. 157 of 1922, preferred against a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Tenali, in O. S. No. 794 of 1920.

Mr. G. Lakshmanna, for the Appellant.

Mr. Ch. Raghava Rao, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an idle suit and an idle appeal. The plaintiff, who was the daughter of the last male-holder, brought this suit to set aside an alienation made by her mother on the 24th February 1900 of immoveable property which belonged to her deceased father and to recover the same. At the trial it came out that the land in question was sold because it was situated far away from Kollur, which was the plaintiff's mother's residence, in order to buy better land in Kollur itself. Both the District Munsif and the District Judge found that the sale was valid and binding on the plaintiff, because the lands sold were situated in an out-of-the-way village and yielded very little and because the object of the sale was, with the aid of the proceeds of the sale and some other money contributed by the plaintiff's mother, to purchase in plaintiff's name better land which was more convenient for cultivation. The suit was, therefore, dismissed.

Now it is argued in second appeal that the defendants failed to prove necessity for the sale. Reliance is placed on a decision in Ganesa Aiyur v. Amirthasami Odayar (1) in which Kumaraswami Sastri, J, observed "Families often own lands at some distance from their village and I do not think the mere fact that the lands are a few miles away would justify a Hindu father in alienating the lands." In that case the lands that were sold were within 10 miles of the 1st defendant's village. The substantial reason for the Court setting aside the alienation in that case appears from the words at page 247*. "The family was not a trading family or one carrying on money lending business and the starting of prospective money-lending transactions is no ground for alienating family properties." The starting of money-lending transactions was one of the objects with which the family property had been sold.

Then in Ganap v. Subbi (2) there is this observation of Justice Batchelor; "a widow can alienate in order to preserve the estate, but we do not think that she is entitled to alienate merely in order to improve it." In Subramania Chetty v. Chidambaram Mudali (3) Sadasiva Iyer, J., called attention to the opinion of Sundara Iyer, J., in In re Krishnasawmi Doss (4) that manifest benefit was sufficient and it was not necessary to prove necessity for an alienation made by a manager of a Hindu family for it to have a binding effect on the junior member's share. What Sundara Iyer, J., said was "it must certainly be shown that the family would not lose by parting with ancestral lands and purchasing new lands. This would necessitate the giving of evidence to show that the new lands are at least not inferior in quality and value to the old lands. It may be open to an alienee to establish reasonableness by showing that the though the new lands are not superior in value to the old lands, the family would otherwise gain by the changes." The learned Judge was inclined to substitute the question of whether the sale was a proper and reasonable act for the question whether it was necessary, in cases of alienation. This view finds support in the case decided by the Privy Council in Ramsumran Prasad v. Shyam Kumari (5). Their Lordships point out that the word "necessity" when used in this connection has a somewhat special almost technical meaning. They say that if an act of alienation of a widow is reasonable and prudent and for the interest of the estate in matters of compromise, it will fall within the powers of the holder of a Hindu woman's estate, either as being an alienation which is deemed to be induced by necessity or as being in a parallel position to an alienation induced by necessity. I am of opinion that the view taken in Ganap v. Subbi (2) as to the meaning of "necessity" and "benefit" is too narrow. If the parties who have to support an alienation mada by a widow can show that the estate has been improved by selling immoveable property and buying other lands of equal or greater value and more convenient for cultivation and management, Courts will not set aside such transactions. In Subramanya Chetty v. Ramakrishnamma (6) a case came before Devadoss, J., and myself in which a widow borrowed money and improved her husband's estate by completing an unfinished house. We held that the reversioner who had taken the benefit of the improvements made by the widow was not entitled to impeach the act of alienation by which the estate had been improved. The present case is a stronger one, because there has been no loss or encumbrance upon the estate caused by the alienation, seeing that the plaintiff's mother left the estate in possession of better lands in place of those sold away and more conveniently situated for cultivation.

---

(1) 44 Ind. Cas. 605; 23 M. L. T. 245; (1918) M. W. N. 892.

(2) 32 B. 577; 10 Bom. L. R. 927.

(3) 69 Ind. Cas. 756; 41 M. L. J. 459; 14 L. W. 495; (1921) M. W. N. 740.

*Page of 23 M. L. T.—[Ed.]

There are no merits in this second appeal. It is dismissed with costs.

V. N. V. Appeal dismissed.
Z. K.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

STAMP REFERENCE IN S. A. No. 1834 OF 1925.
February 26, 1926.
Present :—Mr. Justice Lindsay and
Mr. Justice Mukerji.
BACHHAN—PLAINTIFF
versus
THE MUNICIPAL BOARD OF MIRZAPUR
—DEFENDANT.

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s 7 iv (d)—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Injunction, suit for —Valuation—Court-fee payable.

Under the provisions of s. 8 of the Suits Valuation Act the value of a suit for an injunction for the purposes of Court-fees and of jurisdiction must be the same and Court-fee must be paid according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint. [p. 952, col. 2.]

OFFICE REPORT.—The suit giving rise to this appeal was brought for a declaration of title in respect of a certain plot of land and for an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with plaintiff's construction over the land in dispute. He valued the suit at Rs. 1,100 the value of the plot in suit and at Rs. 10 the value of the injunction prayed for (vide paper No. 105 C on the record and para 7 of the plaint). The Court-fees paid on the plaint was Rs. 20 only which is too little. According to a ruling of this Hon'ble Court reported as Jogeshara v. Durga Prashad Singh (1) the injunction claimed is a consequential relief and consequently the suit falls within the purview of s. 7 cl. iv para. (c) of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) and is liable to be charged with an ad valorem Court-fee calculated at Rs. 1,100 which comes to Rs. 107-8-0 according to the schedule of Court-fees in force at the time when the suit was instituted. Rupees 20 having already been paid there is a deficiency of Rs. 87-8 payable by the plaintiff-appellant for the Court of first instance.

---

(4) 13 Ind. Cas. 618; (1912) M. W. N. 167; 11 M. L. T. 182.

(5) 69 Ind. Cas. 71; 49 I. A. 342 at p. 346; 31 M. L. T. 200; 3 P. L. T. 749; A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 356; 1 Pat. 741; 16 L. W. 956; 21 A. L. J. 18; 9 O. & A. L. R. 175; 27 C. W. N. 269; 37 C. L. J. 356; 44 M. L. J. 751; 25 Bom. L. R. 634 (P. C.).

(6) 84 Ind. Cas. 868; 20 L. W. 627; (1924) M. W. N 794; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 403.

(1) 24 Ind. Cas. 679; 36 A. 500; 12 A. L J 844.

His claim having been dismissed by the first Court the plaintiff-appellant moved the lower Appellate Court in appeal valuing his appeal at Rs. 1,100 and paying a Court-fee of Rs. 20 only. The memorandum of appeal to that Court for the reason set forth above and according to the schedule of Court-fee then in force should have borne a Court-fee of Rs. 85 out of which Rs. 20 have already been paid. There is, therefore, a deficiency of Rs. 65 payable by the plaintiff-appellant for the lower Appellate Court.

The lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal with costs. The plaintiff-appellant then preferred this second appeal and again valued at Rs. 1,100 and paid Rs. 10 only as Court-fee. As shown above and with reference to the grounds of appeal taken in the memorandum of appeal to this Court as well as the relief sought by the appeal he should have paid here a Court-fee of Rs. 85 while he has paid Rs. 10 only. There is, therefore, a deficiency of Rs. 75 payable by the plaintiff-appellant for this Court.

The result is that the deficiency payable by the plaintiff-appellant for all the three Courts is Rs. 227-8.

OBJECTION.—I take exception to the stamp report and shall file objections in writing if necessary. If the matter is put up before the Court, I shall address the Court orally.

Dr. K. N. Katju, for the Appellant.

Mr. Sankar Saran, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—We have heard the Counsel for the plaintiff-appellant in this case in connection with the Office Report dated the 17th of February 1926 regarding the deficiency in the Court-fee in all three Courts. According to the Office Report there is a deficiency of Rs. 227-8 payable by the plaintiff-appellant.

In our opinion the Office Report is correct. The suit was brought for the purpose of obtaining a declaration of title regarding a certain piece of land in Mirzapur and for the declaratory relief a Court-fee of Rs. 10 was paid. Further relief was sought in that the plaintiff asked the Court to issue a perpetual injunction restraining the Municipal Board of Mirzapur from interfering in any way with the construction of a chabutra which the plaintiff desired to erect on the land in question.

In para. 7 of the plaint we find the following "For purposes of jurisdiction the value of the thing claimed is Rs. 1,100 and for payment of Court-fee it is Rs. 10 in respect of declaration and Rs. 10 for the issue of an injunction."

As regards the relief by way of declaration there can be no dispute. As regards the Court-fee payable for relief by way of an injunction that is regulated by s. 7 iv (d) of the Court Fees Act, which lays down that in a suit to obtain an injunction the Court-fee shall be paid according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint or memorandum of appeal.

We have to read this along with s. 8 of the Suits Valuation Act, Act VII of 1887, according to which in suits of the class we are now considering the value as determinable for the computation of Court fees and the value for purposes of jurisdiction shall be the same. In this case for purposes of jurisdiction, the plaintiff valued what he calls, the "thing claimed" at Rs. 1,100 and consequently the suit was instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge. It seems to us, therefore, that having regard to the provisions of the two sections just mentioned the plaintiff was bound to pay a Court-fee for relief by way of injunction on the valuation of Rs. 1,100 and that is what the office has reported.

We, therefore, direct that this appeal be not heard until the plaintiff-appellant has made good the deficiency reported by the office. Of course, the appellant is at liberty, if he desires to avoid the payment of the deficiency reported in respect of this Court, to amend his plaint and memorandum of appeal. We give the plaintiff an opportunity to do so. We allow a month for making good the deficiency.

Z. K. Order accordingly.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

DIVORCE CASE NO. 1 OF 1926.

March 2, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ashworth.

ROBERT HENRY LEADON—APPLICANT

versus

ETHEL MAY LEADON AND ANOTHER—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), ss. 3 (1), 10—Oudh Chief Court, whether has original jurisdiction to entertain petition for divorce—Residence within jurisdiction, nature of —Interpretation of Statutes.

Where an Act says that a person may present a petition to a particular Court, it must be inferred that it means that the Court shall have power to entertain and decide the petition. [p. 953, col. 2.]

Generally a qualifying word in a Statute must be made to qualify the word nearest to it. [p. 954, col. 1.]

Under s. 10 of the Divorce Act the Oudh Chief Court has original jurisdiction in matters of divorce under the Act. [p. 953, col. 2.]

The word 'together' in s. 3 (1) of the Divorce Act governs only the word 'resided' and not the word 'reside'. Where a petitioner and respondent both reside within the jurisdiction of a Court, even though they did not reside together within the jurisdiction of such Court, the Court has jurisdiction to entertain a petition for divorce. [p. 954, col. 1.]

Application for dissolution of marriage with damages instituted on the 1st February 1926 disposed of by Mr. Justice Ashworth, dated the 2nd March 1926.

Messrs. F. Carlton and H. K. Ghosh, for the Applicant.

Mr. St. George Jackson, for Mr. J. H. Thompson, Opposite Party.

Mr. Motilal Saksena, for Mrs. E. M. Leadon, Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—In this case Robert Henry Leadon petitions for the dissolution of his marriage with Ethel May Leadon on the ground of her misconduct. The misconduct alleged is that she lived in open adultery in Wazirganj, Lucknow, for the period of almost two months, June and July 1925, with John Hope Thompson, co-respondent, and on divers occasions with other unknown persons committed adultery. The defence consisted in a denial of misconduct, and in the averment of such misconduct on the part of the petitioner himself as would make it improper for him to obtain a decree, even if he could prove his allegations against the respondent and co-respondent. John Hope Thompson was made co-respondent in this case.

The following issues were framed by the Court:—

1. Has this Court original jurisdiction in respect of divorce?
2. If so, has it local jurisdiction in a case where the husband and wife, as admitted in the plaint, last resided together in a place outside the Province of Oudh?
3. Did the respondent, Ethel May Leadon, in June and July 1925 live in open adultery with the co-respondent, John Hope Thompson?
4. Has the petitioner since March 1923 been guilty of misconduct with a Mrs. Cole and should he, on that account, be refused a divorce?
5. What damages, if any, should the petitioner be awarded against the alleged co-respondent, John Hope Thompson?
6. What should be the order as to costs?

As to Issue No. 1 the argument put forward by the co-respondent's Counsel was that the jurisdiction of High Courts in respect of divorce is conferred by s. 4 of the Indian Divorce Act, IV of 1869. That section only continues the jurisdiction already possessed by High Courts at the date when the Act came into force. It is common ground that at one time the Judicial Commissioner was the District Judge, within the meaning of the definition of this expression in s. 3 (2) of the Act, but that subsequently the District Judge of the particular district where the case was brought was substituted for the Judicial Commissioner as District Judge within the meaning of the expression "District Judge." Up to the time then when the Oudh Chief Court Act, IV of 1925, brought into existence the Chief Court of Oudh, the original and appellate jurisdiction in respect of divorce proceedings was vested in the Allahabad High Court, and not in the Judicial Commissioner's Court. If s. 4 were, therefore, the only section that conferred powers of original jurisdiction in divorce proceedings on High Courts, the Chief Court of Oudh would not possess such jurisdiction. It is, however, plain that s. 10 and not s. 4 is the section which confers jurisdiction on High Courts generally. This section begins "Any husband may present a petition to the District Court or to the High Court, etc.," Section 4 merely applies to High Courts which, before the Divorce Act came into force, had jurisdiction. If s. 4 were omitted, s. 10 would suffice to confer on all High Courts powers of original jurisdiction because where an Act says that a person may present a petition to a particular Court it must be inferred that it means that the Court shall have power to entertain and decide the petition.

As to Issue No. 2, the present place of residence of the petitioner must be held to be Rae Bareli, where he was posted two years ago as a Reserve Inspector, and where he is still posted, and where he maintains a bungalow with his furniture therein. It is equally true that the respondent has resided for a year at Lucknow. Both parties must, therefore, be deemed to reside within the local limits of the Chief Court of Oudh. It has been urged that the expression "within the local limits of.........whose jurisdiction under this Act the husband and wife reside or last resided together," which occurs in s. 3 (1) of the Divorce Act, should be so construed as to make the word "together" qualify not only the word "resided" but also the words "resided together." This question came before a Single Judge of the Bombay High Court, Borgonha v. Borgonha (1). It was held that the word "together" does not govern the word "reside" in the section. In this case Durand v. Durand (2) was followed, which was a decision of three Judges in Calcutta, and a previous two Judges decision of the Bombay High Court, Xavier v. Xavier (3), was not followed. The matter again came up before a Full Bench of the Punjab Chief Court, and there two Judges held that the word "together" does not govern the word "reside." Some doubts on the matter were expressed by Mr. Justice Rattigan. The preponderance of opinion appears, therefore, to be in favour of making the word "together" govern only the word "resided." The general rule is that a qualifying word shall be deemed to qualify the word nearest to it. For this reason I adopt the view for which there is the greater authority, and decide that the fact of the petitioner and respondent both residing within the jurisdiction of this Court, even though they did not reside together, is sufficient to give this Court jurisdiction.

As to Issue No. 3, the chief witness is a man named Makhi Lal, who is at present cook of the Sergeant's Mess at the Police Lines. He has to admit that the petitioner's brother actually hands him over his wages at present. His story is that about July 1925, when he was in the service of the co respondent, Thompson, he was sent by Thompson to the respondent to cook for her in Wazirganj where she lived alone. He never spent the night there, but says that he saw the co-respondent using the one bed in the bedroom in the day-time. This man's evidence is worth little. It is unlikely that he ever saw the respondent and co-respondent occupying the bed in the day-time. There are many other things in his evidence which make it open to grave suspicion. The other two witnesses are neighbours at Wazirganj of the respondent. They identify not the co respondent, but the co-respondent's brother as a person who used to visit and stay the night with the respondent. The evidence of Mohammad Raza, who is a drill master on Rs. 35 a month, is too vague to be relied upon, while that of Syed Mohammad Jaffar, a clerk in the Travelling Ticket Examiner's section of the Railway, is not convincing. The petitioner's case was that the respondent lived in open adultery for two months with the co-respondent. If this were the case, there should have been better evidence available. The respondent admits that while living at Wazirganj, the co-respondent, Thompson, used to visit her occasionally in the day-time, but that he merely visited her as an acquaintance. I am not convinced that this is not truth. The petitioner is very anxious to get a divorce as is proved by his having already brought an abortive petition at Allahabad. Anyway, the evidence produced in this case is insufficient to convince me that there has been the misconduct alleged against the respondent.

As to issue No. 4, it is unnecessary to decide this issue, but it may be said that there is no evidence of any value to prove the petitioner's misconduct with a Mrs. Cole.

Issue No. 5 does not arise now.

As to Issue No. 6, the petition is rejected with costs to the co-respondent. For the respondent Mr. Moti Lal Saksena appeared and stated during arguments that he had not been paid any fee but that a reasonable fee might be allowed him. I should have been disposed to allow him a fee if the rules permitted. The rules made under s. 27 of the Legal Practitioners Act, XVIII of 1879, by the late Judicial Commissioner assert forth in para. 272 of the Oudh Civil Digest. These rules were applicable not only to the subordinate Courts but also to the Judicial Commissioner's Court. Until new rules are framed these rules apply to the Oudh Chief Court. They do not confer on the Chief Court of Oudh a power to allow any fee where no certificate has been signed Accordingly no fee can be allowed to the respondent.

Z. K. Petition rejected.

---

(1) 59 Ind. Cas. 931; 44 B. 924; 22 Bom. L. R 361.
(2) 14 W. R. 416.
(3) (1892) P. J. 153.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 54 AND 80 OF 1922.
July 31, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Odgers and
Mr. Justice Madhavan Nair.

A. RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
KANAGASABAPATHY CHETTIAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863), s. 14—Temple Committee—Breach of trust—Trustee, appointment of—Undischarged insolvent removed from Government service, whether can be appointed.

An insolvent ought not to be appointed to a position of trust since a necessitous man is more likely to be tempted to misappropriate trust funds than one who is wealthy and besides a man who has not shown prudence in managing his own affairs is not likely to be successful in managing those of other people. [p. 958, col. 1.]

Where persons in a fiduciary capacity make an improper choice of a person to fill an office of trust, they must be held to have been guilty of a breach of trust and it would be wholly wrong to say that after all the choice was not improper because it has turned out that no material damage has been done to the institution through the improper appointment. [ibid.]

Where the members of a Devasthanam Committee under the Religious Endowments Act appointed to the trusteeship of a temple with an annual income of about 2 lakhs of rupees a retired Government servant who was an undischarged insolvent and had been removed from Government service before the age limit without a pension for flagrant violation of the Government rules regarding the conduct of public servants:

Held, that in the matter of the choice of the trustee, the members were guilty of a breach of trust in that they had not done their duty or acted reasonably in the interests of the institution of which they were in charge and they were accordingly liable to be removed by Court under s. 14 of the Act. [p. 959, col. 2.]

Appeals against a decree of the District Court, Madura, in O. S. No. 1 of 1921.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar, T. Nallasivam Pillai and C. S. Venkatachariar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. T. R. Venkataramasastri and K. V. Krishnaswami Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Odgers, J.—In the former of these appeals defendants Nos. 2 and 4 are the appellants but Mr. T. Rangachariar informed us that he is only instructed to appear for the 4th defendant and we have consequently heard no argument on behalf of the 2nd defendant. In A. S. No. 80, 5th defendant is the appellant and appears by Mr. C. S. Venkatachariar. The suits were brought by certain worshippers in the temple of Sri Sri Minakshi Sundareswaral and other connected temples comprised in what is commonly known as the "Madura, etc., Devasthanams." In the suit to which A. S. No. 54 relates, the principal prayer was for removing the defendants from their respective offices. A. S. No. 80 is an appeal from the same decree by one of the defendants (defendant No. 5) in that suit. It is of some importance to describe the defendant. First defendant is one Kuppuswami Mudaliar, the manager of the Sri Minakshi Sundareswaral temple. The other defendants are or were members of the Committee of the said temple. The second defendant A. Ramanathan Chettiar, as has been stated, does not appear to argue before us. Third defendant, C. Sambasiva Mudaliar, gave evidence in the case as D. W. No. 1 to which evidence more particular reference will be made by and by and at the end of a lengthy cross-examination tendered his resignation to the Judge so that he has now ceased to be a member of the Committee. Fourth defendant is one Tirugnana Sambanda Pandara Sannadhi whose conduct will be in question in considering the subject-matter of this appeal. Fifth defendant is one A. Rangaswami Aiyar, who, I understand, is a leading Vakil in Madura and has held the position of Public Prosecutor and Government Pleader. The 6th defendant is K. V. Subramania Aiyar who is, as a matter of fact, dead and has been exonerated by the learned District Judge who tried the suit. The District Judge has ordered the removal of defendants Nos. 2, 4 and 5. As stated, 2nd defendant does not appear before us to urge his appeal. We are, therefore, concerned only with the cases of defendants Nos. 4 and 5. The grounds on which the 4th defendant has been removed from his office are two: (1) that he took part in appointing one T. Minakshisundaram Pillai as trustee of the institution at the end of the year 1920 and (2) that he was responsible directly or indirectly for the non-performance or imperfect performance of the Chithrai festival in the plaint temple in April 1921. With regard to the 5th defendant the only charge against him is No. 1 above, namely, that he voted for T. Minakshisundaram Pillai as trustee of the temple. It will, therefore, be convenient to proceed to investigate the appeal in the first instance by taking the first charge which is common to both the 4th and 5th defendants. Fourth defendant was selected to the Temple Committee in 1919, and the 5th defendant in 1911 and the first point at which it is necessary to take up the matter is September 1920 when, in answer to the advertisement for a joint manager, a telegram Ex. CCCI was received by the Temple Committee from Minakshisundaram Pillai on the 20th of that month. The original idea seems to have been to associate a joint manager with Chockalingam Chettiar, who was the manager at that time. There was apparently some inclination on the part of the Committee to get rid of Chockalingam Chetti, because in letter Ex. CVI dated 25th September, Minakshisundaram Pillai, applied for the post of manager which had not yet been notified as vacant, but Chockalingam Chetti, resigned on the 27th September, and it was then incumbent upon the Committee to appoint a new manager. They had two meetings on the 3rd and 5th October, 1920 to consider this question, but apparently it was then resolved merely to call for further applications for the post, and we are told that as many as 37 applicants applied and on the 17th October, the Committee again met to consider the applications. The proceedings are contained in Ex. XI, in which we see the names of the applicants for this post. It is quite evident that this question of appointing a manager was made a communal question. D. W. No. 1 frankly says that he wanted to appoint a Non-Brahmin Manager. So did the 4th defendant and at the meeting of the 17th October he was not for appointing anybody but Minakshisundaram Pillai. Again the witness points out that in nearly all the resolutions passed by the Committee there has been this controversy and that he has joined defendants Nos. 2 and 4 against defendants Nos. 5 and 6 because they are Non-Brahmins. The attitude of defendants Nos. 5 and 6 throughout was that they did not want a Non-Brahmin Manager. It will be observed that three members of the Committee, defendants Nos. 2 to 4, were Non-Brahmins whereas defendants Nos. 5 and 6 were Brahmins. The Non-Brahmin majority defeated at least 5 candidates proposed by one or other of the Brahmin members. A good deal of discussion has arisen as to who exactly proposed the name of Minckshisundaram Pillai. Third defendant as D. W. No. 1 was the only witness for the defendants Nos. 2 to 4 and his evidence has been characterized by the Judge as truthful though in many cases what he said was to his own detriment. It appears to me, therefore, that we must accept the opinion of the Judge who saw and heard the witness give his evidence. He says that he thinks that the 4th defendant must have proposed Minakshisundaram Pillai and that the 5th defendant approved his nomination. The only members of the Committee to whom Minakshisundaram Pillai was known at the time were defendants Nos. 5 and 6. Sixth defendant may be immediately dismissed from consideration as he voted against the appointment. Third defendant (D. W. No. 1) says that though he first met him (Minakshisundaram) at the 5th defendant's house, the latter did not recommend him until the meeting of the 17th October. The 5th defendant knew Minakshisundaram Pillai previously as they were both ardent theosophists. It does not seem to me to matter as to whether Minakshisundaram Pillai was actually proposed by the 4th defendant or 5th defendant. We know that he was elected by a majority of 4 to 1 of the Committee (i. e.,) that the 5th defendant, though a Brahmin, apparently convinced that none of the Brahmin candidates had any chance, eventually voted for his fellow theosophist. It may be somewhat reasonably asked what the objection is to the nomination and election of this man Minakshisundaram Pillai. The objection to him may be summed up. He had been for 23 years a Tahsildar in Government service and he left that service before the age limit without a pension and he was further at the time of his election an undischarged insolvent. In these circumstances, we are asked to say whether those who voted for this man exercised their discretion as reasonable business-men charged with the duty of protecting an institution whose yearly revenues, we are told, amount to about to two lacs of rupees. Much argument has been expended on the reasons or possible reasons why Minakshisundaram Pillai left Government service. In an affidavit filed by himself in O. S. No. 63 of 1921 he says he was "removed" from Government service for "flagrant violation of the rules regulating the conduct of Government servants." D. W. No. 1 states that Minakshisundaram Pillai never placed any credentials before the Committee; that when the 4th defendant met Minkshisundaram Pillai, in the 5th defendant's house about the 23rd or 24th September, 1920, he then learnt that he was an undischarged insolvent and that he had been a Government servant. The witness says:—

"I thought from what was said that papers should be gone into so as to how his Government service determined."

There seems to be no doubt that Minakshisundaram Pillai had told the Committee or, at any rate let it be known, that he had been adjudicated insolvent and had been a Government servant. D. W. No. 1 says that Minakshisundaram Pillai showed him (the witness) some printed papers. From these papers the witness says he found that his services were dispensed with and he was not dismissed. The papers shown to him did not appear to be final and he took Minakshisundaram Pillai on trust as to the truth of the printed papers without his producing any official communication. Minakshisundaram Pillai, held office for about a month and a half. As early as 23rd October, 1920, a petition by worshippers was addressed to the Temple Committee pointing out the disabilities under which Minakshisundaram Pillai laboured and protesting against his appointment. The petition further asked for a full and responsible statement on the points raised and on the 9th December 1920, Ex. A, points out that the previous petition remained unanswered that the petitioners understand that the resignation of Minakshisundaram Pillai, was due to the fact that the Official Receiver attached the greater part of his salary and the petitioners, therefore, ask that in filling up the vacancy the proceedings of the Committee shall be in public.

With regard to the 5th defendant it is contended that though he voted for Minakshisundaram Pillai he insisted that certain conditions should be fulfilled which, it is said, would protect the institution. Those conditions were that he should only hold the office for 5 years, that he should furnish security for Rs. 10,000 and that he should file a scheme suit as soon as possible. Although the 4th defendant had not the courage to go into the box the 5th defendant did so as D. W. No. 2. He says that he agreed to support defendants Nos. 2 to 4 over Minakshisundaram Pillai's appointment if they would agree to his (5th defendant's) conditions as he did not want to encourage any internal animosity such as was rife at about that time. Apparently the idea of the 5th defendant as stated was that in the scheme there would be a provision against the manager's post being held by an insolvent so that if Minakshisundaram Pillai did not get his discharge within a short time he would ipso facto cease to be manager. Fifth defendant admits that he had known Minakshisundaram Pillai as a theosophist for 5 to 10 years and that he received from Dr. Annie Besant a letter of recommendation to him which, however, neither he nor, I imagine, anybody else could describe as strong. Fifth defendant says that from subsequent events he is prepared to ascribe improper motives to defendants Nos. 2 and 4 in appointing Minakshisundaram Pillai. His whole excuse is in a word that Minakshisundaram Pillai would have been appointed in any case by Non-Brahmin majority on the Committee and that knowing that, he (the witness) thought it was better that he should be appointed on the conditions laid down by him. The latter admits that with regard to his retirement from service he was shown one paper and he did not pay any real attention to it nor did he call for any more papers on this subject or on the matter of his insolvency. The witness adds:—

"I did not want to make further enquiries as in my then view he was not a suitable candidate even for the joint-manager's post. A fortiori I thought him unfit to be manager. I regarded him as not suitable until 17th October, 1920. I thought his appointment against the interests of the Devasthanam under normal conditions. When I changed it was because the evil was one that could not be avoided and which I wished to minimise as far as possible."

It is difficult to see how if Minakshisundaram Pillai was not a suitable person to be appointed the conditions have made any material difference. To begin with it is doubtful whether it is within the powers of a Committee under the Act of 1863 to appoint a trustee for a limited term. Secondly, it seems very doubtful if the security said to have been furnished by the sons of Minakshisundaram Pillai was of any real value. No Committee member seems to have considered it his duty to really investigate the matter. The only enquiry made by the 5th defendant as to the value of the properties was at the meeting of the 17th October by asking the members, which of course amounts to nothing at all. Again it is very difficult to see how the manager could have been forced to bring a scheme suit and it is surely improbable that he would have done so voluntarily considering that one of the terms was that no insolvent was to hold the post. In my opinion, the conditions sought to be imposed were entirely illusory and were put in because the Committee, as a body, were aware that the appointment of Minakshisundaram Pillai was entirely improper and in order that they might be able to meet objectors with some form of guarantee. It is of course perfectly clear in law that an insolvent ought not to be appointed to a position of trust of this sort. In Zemindar of Kalahasti v. Ganapathi Iyer (1) Abdur Rahim and Burn, J., observe as follows:—

"We think that the observation of Jessel, Master of Rolls in In re Barker's Trusts (2) affords a proper guidance to the Court in cases of this character: 'a necessitous man is more likely to be tempted to misappropriate trust funds than one who is wealthy and besides a man who has not shown prudence in managing his own affairs is not likely to be successful in managing those of other people.'"

I cannot hold that either of these Committee members, defendants Nos. 4 and 5, did their duty or acted reasonably in the interests of the institution of which they were Committee members in giving their vote for this man Minakshisundaram Pillai. It is said that, as a matter of fact, no loss has occurred to the Devasthanam through this appointment. It seems to me that, that is entirely a perverted way of regarding the matter. If an improper choice is made by a person in a fiduciary capacity it seems to be wholly wrong to say that after all the choice was not improper because as it turns out that no material damage has been done to the institution through the improper appointment. Even so this is apparently not certain. Minakshisundaram Pillai resigned on the 9th December, 1920 asking it as a condition of his resignation that his security bond should be cancelled. This was accepted by the Committee and the security bond was returned to him on that very day. D. W. No. 1 says:—

"We had seen the accounts at that time which gave us no room to suspect defalcation or warrant us in keeping the security bond alive."

But later on he says:

"The Devasthanam had a complicated system of accounts. They are hard to understand without the help of trained professional auditors. Without such assistance it will be hard to find out any irregularity. The Committee had no such assistance when it looked into the accounts."

The witness also states that the resolution to cancel the security bond was in his opinion premature. He further adds that by the cancelling of Minakshisundaram Pillai's security bond he considers that the interests of the Devasthanam have suffered because of his having expended or drawn sums which he should not have expended or drawn for which the Devasthanam may be held liable. Fifth defendant as D. W. No. 2 states that the accounts of Minakshisundaram Pillai's management have not so far been audited. Therefore, it appears to me, that these two persons, defendants Nos. 4 and 5 by voting for the appointment of this undischarged insolvent Tahsildar who had, in his own words, been removed from Government service for a flagrant breach of the rules regulating the conduct of Government servants of which we have no details had acted improperly and that men who can lend themselves to an appointment of this sort are entirely unfitted to carry out the responsible duties with which they were entrusted. This is possibly more so in the case of a man of the world like the 5th defendant than in the case of the former. But in neither case can I find any excuse or palliation for their conduct. In the case of the 4th defendant, there is, as I stated at the outset, a further charge which I propose to treat very shortly. I have stated that Minakshisundaram Pillai resigned on the 9th December, 1920. The 1st defendant, Kuppuswami Mudali, was then appointed manager. He apparently was a weak individual who was easily swayed by the Committee. A matter which was investigated at some length, by the District Judge and which has in fact been the subject of more than one proceeding in this Court is the undue interference with the trustees by the Committee of this Devasthanam. I do not proceed with this matter as the learned District Judge has decided that it is not sufficient to warrant the removal of any Committee member on this ground. But the events immediately preceding the suit and which no doubt gave rise to disputes in the institution are that soon after the appointment of Kuppusami Mudaliar, namely, on the 30th December, 1920, the 2nd defendant complained that the pipers were not carrying out their duties in the temple properly (Ex. DDD). The Bhattars had apparently for some time been in the habit of engaging the services of the pipers on private occasions in their own houses and this had increased to such an extent as to detract them from their proper piping services in the temple. The Committee then passed a resolution on the complaint of the 2nd defendant that a written permission should be taken by the pipers before they are engaged in these private festivals. The trouble seems further to have increased by an alleged insult to the 2nd defendant of which he complained in Ex. LXVI on the 20th January 1921, and he accuses the Bhattars with want of respect to himself. This came up on the 23rd January, 1921, Ex. XIII, in which the two Brahmin members thought that the matter might be recorded and the others thought that the matter should be referred to the manager for disposal. This state of things seems to have gone on—we are left without any details—till the approach of the Chithrai festival in April when owing to the strike of the Bhattars and the attempt to bring in substitutes to carry on the festival resulted in something like an open riot within the temple, so much so that an application had to be made to the Town Magistrate under s. 144, Cr. P. C. A Nadar Magistrate arrived with European Police Sergeant wearing boots and various incidents offensive to the scruples of the worshippers appear to have taken place. The learned Judge finds that defendants Nos. 2 to 4 not only kept aloof in this crisis but threw obstacles in the way of things being properly done. In a word these three defendants never showed their face at all. Fourth defendant is said to have been found in the 5th defendant's house and the excuse they have is that they were all in danger of their lives. The learned Judge has examined the evidence very carefully as to this charge in which only the 4th defendant is concerned, and I am not prepared to say that he is wrong. But I think we possibly have not the whole history of this quarrel between the Bhattars and the manager and the Committee before us. The Bhattars, no doubt, imagined themselves to be in an impregnable position from the fact that they hold an hereditary office and are in fact the one permanent element in the temple staff. It was undoubtedly the duty of the Committee and the manager the latter having a primary duty, to see that the worship at the Chithrai festival was properly carried out and it is probably enough to say that if a manager and the Committee permit a state of things to arise such as had arisen in this temple shortly before and during the Chithrai festival, it is proof positive that they are unfit to hold the management of the Institution. I prefer, however, to rest my judgment principally on the first ground which is common to both the defendants, thought it must not be supposed that I am in any way differing from the finding of the learned District Judge on the second ground. Both the appellants appeal to us that we should refrain from delivering judgment and that they might both be allowed to resign. Speaking for myself, I must say that they have made such an application too late and it would have come from them with far better grace if, after they had seen how matters went before the District Judge when they heard the admissions made not only by the 3rd defendant but by one of themselves in the witness-box they had then applied to withdraw. It is difficult to appreciate the state of mind of men who after a long and patient enquiry are so determined to cling to this office in which they have been found, and rightly in my judgment found, to have failed in their duty. Both these appeals must be dismissed with costs.

---

(1) 48 Ind. Cas. 897; (1918) M. W. N. 555.

(2) (1876) 1 Ch. D. 43; 45 L. J. Ch. 52; 24 W. R. 264.

Madhavan Nair, J.—I agree and have nothing to add.

V. N. V.   Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 556 OF 1922.
March 17, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Harrison and Mr. Justice Jai Lal.
Musammat BHURI AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
Musammat ASGHARI BEGAM alias
NAWAB JAN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Muhammadan Law—Dower—Claim based on contract—Customary dower, whether can be decreed Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r.

O. XLII—Appeal from decree in cross-appeal—Decree requisite for second appeal—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Second appeal—First Court judgment, delay in preparation of—Extension of time.

A party appealing from a decree passed against him in appeal need only file the decree made in his appeal and his failure to file the decree made in cross-appeal will not bar his appeal from being proceeded with.

Muhammad Din v. Zeb-un-nisa, 77 Ind. Cas. 541; 3 L. 215; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 390 and Bhan Singh v. Gokal Chand, 53 Ind. Cas. 137; 1 L. 83, not followed.

Ghansham Singh v. Bhola Singh, 74 Ind. Cas. 411; 45 A. 506; 21 A. L. J. 465; A. I. R. 1923 All. 490, referred to.

Jogal Kishore v. Chammo, 85 P. R. 1905; 151 P. L. R. 1905; 105 P. W. R. 1905, followed.

Where a copy of the judgment of the first Court is applied for within limitation but is not filed in time with memorandum of appeal owing to inordinate delay in its preparation, the appellant will be given the benefit of s. 5, Limitation Act.

In a suit for dower if the plaintiff bases her claim on a contract between the parties at the time of her marriage but fails to establish the amount claimed, the only amount which the Court can allow is the amount which the defendant either admits or agrees to pay and no decree for customary dower can be passed.

Fazl Khan v. Karam Begam, 27 Ind. Cas. 113; 105 P. R. 1914; 241 P. L. R. 1915, followed.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dated the 9th November 1921, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, Delhi, dated the 29th March 1921.

Lala Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. Obedulla, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this appeal a preliminary objection is taken by the respondent relying on Muhammad Din v. Zeb-un-nisa (1) and Bhan Singh v. Gokal Chand (2). The facts are that the plaintiff brought a suit claiming Rs. 5,000 as her dower, and a sum of Rs. 3,000 was decreed by the Trial Court. Both parties appealed and the result of the two appeals was that the order of the Trial Court was maintained and both appeals were dismissed.

The co-widow of the plaintiff's husband and her co-defendants have presented this second appeal accompanied by a copy of the decree in which her own appeal to the District Judge was dismissed. No copy of the decree dismissing the cross-appeal was presented, although one had been obtained. No copy of the judgment of the Trial Court accompanied the memorandum of appeal. Both these omissions were pointed out to the appellants who put in both the required copies after the period of limitation had expired. According to the view taken in Muhammad Din v. Zeb-un-nisa (1) and Bhan Singh v. Gokal Chand (2) the decree against which an appeal has not been preferred and which does not accompany the memorandum stand a good and, therefore, the appeal proper cannot proceed, as at the best the only possible result would be that one and the same decree would at the same time be set aside by this Court and remain good in virtue of the operation of the law of res judicata. Counsel for the appellants has referred us not only to Ghansham Singh v. Bhola Singh (3) a recent Full Bench ruling of the Allahabad High Court but also to Jogal Kishore v. Chammo (4) which apparently was not referred to at the time the cases reported as Bhan Singh v. Gokal Chand (2) and Muhammad Din v. Zen-un-nisa (1) were argued. We consider ourselves bound by the decision of the Full Bench of this Court and we, therefore, overrule the objection that the appeal is defective because of the failure to attach a copy of the decree in the cross-appeal.

So far as the copy of the first Court's judgment is concerned, we see that an application for a copy was made on the 7th of February within limitation and it was only because of inordinate delay in the preparation of this copy that the appellants were unable to present it with the memorandum. Under the circumstances we extend time under s. 5 of the Limitation Act and allow the appeal to proceed.

On the merits the point urged by the appellants rests on the clear authority, namely, Fazl Khan v. Karam Begam (5). The plaintiff in this case claimed a dower as fixed between the parties at the time of her marriage. The finding throughout by both the Trial and the Appellate Courts has been that no sum was fixed and the amount allowed; Rs. 3,000 was allowed as being a suitable amount, having regard to the history and position of the family. It is laid down in the clearest possible terms in Fazl Khan v. Karam Begam (5) that where these are the findings the only amount of dower which the Court can allow is the amount which the defendant admits or agrees to pay. The plaintiff has wholly failed to establish the position taken up in the plaint and no question of custom having been raised the Court was not competent to decide the matter on these grounds.

---

(1) 77 Ind. Cas 541; 3 L. 215; A. I. R. 1925 Lah 390.

(2) 53 Ind. Cas. 137; 1 L. 83.

(3) 74 Ind. Cas. 411; 45 A. 506; 21 A. L. J. 465; A I. R. 1923 All. 490.

(4) 85 P. R. 1905; 151 P. L R. 1905; 105 P. W. R 1905.

(5) 27 Ind. Cas. 113; 105 P. R. 1914; 241 P. L. R. 1915.

We, therefore, accept this appeal and allow only Rs. 32 the amount admitted by the defendants. We dismiss the remainder of the plaintiff's claim. The legal position was apparently not understood until the parties reached this Court and was certainly not put before the District Judge. This being so, we order the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

R. L. Appeal accepted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 176 OF 1925.

December 14, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Dalal and Mr. Justice Boys.

Sahu NAND LAL SARAN—OBJECTOR—APPELLANT

versus

Sahu DHARAM KIRTI SARAN—DECREE-HOLDER—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 11, 48—Award not operative—Decree, whether executable—Executability of decree, decision as to, in previous application—Res judicata—Decree of Original Court appealed from—Limitation, starting point of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182—Decree partly joint and partly several—Execution application—Execution of costs in execution.

Where in an award a sum is noted as due by one party to another but without any direction that the party so liable should pay it to the other, the decree based upon such award cannot be said to be executable. [p. 962, col. 1.]

But where once in execution proceedings of such a decree it is decided that the decree is executable, the decision operates as res judicata in a subsequent application. [p. 962, col. 2.]

Where an appellate decree either affirms, modifies or reverses the decree of the Trial Court, the period of limitation will begin to run under s. 48, C. P. C., from the date of the decree of the Appellate Court. [ibid.]

Ram Churn Bysack v. Luckhee Kant Bornick, 16 W. R. F. B. 1; 7 B. L. R. 704, referred to.

But where an appeal is dismissed as not being competent, there is no decree by the Appellate Court and the limitation would run from the date of the decree of the Trial Court. [ibid.]

Muhammad Razi v. Karbalai Bibi, 5 Ind. Cas. 473; 32 A. 136; 7 A. L. J. 58, and Rup Narain v. Sheo Prakash, 61 Ind. Cas. 129; 19 A. L. J. 159; 43 A. 405, distinguished.

Abdul Majid v. Jawahir Lal, 23 Ind. Cas. 649; 36 A. 350; 12 A. L. J. 624; 16 Bom. L. R. 395; 18 C. W. N. 963; 19 C. L. J. 626; 27 M. L. J. 17; (1914) M. W. N. 485; 16 M. L. T. 44; 1 L. W. 483 (P. C.) and Sachindra Nath Roy v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 74 Ind. Cas. 660; 48 I. A. 335; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 57; 30 M. L. T. 96; 24 Bom. L. R. 659; (1922) M. W. N. 338; 26 C. W. N. 858; A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 187; 49 C. 203 (P. C.) relied on.

Where a decree is jointly passed against all the defendants in one matter and severally against different defendants with respect to other matters, the first portion of the Explanation to Art. 182, Limitation Act, shall apply to decrees passed severally and the second portion to the decree or decrees passed jointly. [p. 965, col. 1.]

Subramanya Chettiar v. Alagappa Chettiar, 30 M. 268; 2 M. L. T. 189, distinguished.

Application for execution of costs incidental to the execution proceedings is not an application for the execution of the original decree or any part of it and, therefore, does not save limitation. [p. 965, col. 2.]

Appu Rao v. Ramakrishna Chettiar, 24 M. 672, relied on.

Execution first appeal from a decree of the First Subordinate, Judge, Moradabad, dated the 24th March 1925.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Messrs. Surendra Nath Sen, K. N. Katju and Narain Prasad Asthana, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Iqbal Ahmad and Durga Prasad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from an order by the Subordinate Judge of Moradabad in execution proceedings. The decree which was sought to be executed was passed on the basis of an award on 18th May, 1909. The present application for execution was filed on the 17th November 1924. In the lower Court the judgment-debtor Sahu Nand Lal Saran objected to the execution of the decree on the following grounds:—

1. That twelve years had expired since the date of the decree sought to be executed, so the application was barred under the provisions of s. 48 (a) of the C. P. C.

2. That if for any reason there was no such bar, then the application was barred by the period of three years fixed under Art. 182 (2) of the Limitation Act because no step-in-aid of execution of this particular decree had been taken within three years of 17th November 1924.

3. That the decree was not capable of execution on the ground that there was no operative order in the decree for the recovery of the sum claimed by the decree-holder.

The lower Court held that there was no bar under s. 48 because the period of limitation would be calculated not from the date of the decree but from the date of the dismissal of an appeal from that decree on 18th, November 1912; that there had been a step taken by the decree-holder against another judgment-debtor for recovery of certain costs by an application in execution which saved limitation as against the present judgment-debtor-objector and that though there was no operative order in the decree of 18th May 1909 for the payment of the sum claimed by the decree-holder from the judgment-debtor, this defence was barred to the present judgment-debtor by the rules of res judicata.

The last point may be disposed of first. The award dealt with the business of the firm of Sahu Radha Kishen whose descendants were parties to the suit for partition. In the award, while making up the accounts of the karkhana (business concern) of Gokul Prasad, Brij Bhukan Saran and Sibta Prasad, the arbitrator has taken into account in favour of Dharam Kirti Saran and Sibta Prasad a sum of Rs. 12,046-2-3 payable to them by the Rampur business in which the present judgment-debtor Nand Lal Saran was a partner (see page 171 of the printed paper-book, F. A. No. 21 of 1911, District Moradabad filed on 18th January, 1911). Though this sum has been noted as due to Dharam Kirti Saran and Sibta Prasad, there is no direction in the award that the firm carrying on business in Rampur was liable to pay this sum to Dharam Kirti Saran and Sibta Prasad. No direction was given by the arbitrator as regards this sum of money because in an earlier portion of the award (page 152 of the same printed book) an order was recorded by the arbitrator as part of the decree in the following terms :—

> " Out of the properties which were admittedly held jointly by all the members of the family of Sahu Radha Kishen the kothi hundi (i. e. the hundi business) at Rampur and the immoveable property in the said state are not partible by the Civil Courts situate in British India".

It is clear, therefore, that the arbitrator was of opinion that he had no jurisdiction to pass any orders regarding this sum of Rs. 12,046-2-3. Sahu Dharam Kirti Saran, however, applied for recovery of his half share of this money by an execution application which was Execution Case No. 308 of 1924. Nand Lal Saran objected to this application but his objection was dismissed on 11th October 1915 on the ground that he and the other judgment-debtors were managers of the Rampur kothi and bound to pay the decree-holders' share of this sum of Rs. 12,000 and odd. That order is final and the judgment-debtor cannot be permitted to re-open the question in a subsequent execution proceeding. If not otherwise barred, the applicant Dharam Kirti Saran would be entitled to recover his half share of this sum of money.

We shall next consider the question of limitation under s. 48 of the C. P. C. The proposition of law was accepted by the appellant's learned Counsel that where an appellate decree either affirms, modifies or reverses the decree of the Trial Court, the period of limitation will begin from the date of the decree of the Appellate Court. As observed in Ram Churn Bysack v. Luckhee Kant Bornick (1). "If the decree of the lower Court is reversed by the Appellate Court, it is absolutely dead and gone; if, on the other hand, it is affirmed by the Appellate Court, it is equally dead and gone, though in a different way, namely, by being merged in the decree of the superior Court, which takes its place for all intents and purposes. Both the decrees cannot exist simultaneously."

The question for our consideration will, therefore, be whether the order of this Court of 18th November, 1912, amounted to a decree so as to put an end to the decree of the Trial Court of 18th May, 1909. As we have already noticed, the decree of the Trial Court was passed on the basis of an award from which no appeal is allowed by law. A so-called appeal was filed by Sahu Sibta Prasad and prosecuted after his death by his son Sahu Param Kirti Saran minor under the guardianship of his mother. A Bench of this Court held that no appeal lay to this Court, because the award being a legally valid one and the decree being in accordance with the award, no appeal could be preferred from that decree. The Court, therefore, dismissed the so-called appeal without entering into the merits of the case. In our opinion such an order is not a decree affirming the decree of the Trial Court and, therefore, there was no appellate decree, in which the decree of the Trial Court could merge. The rulings cited on behalf of the respondent do not cover this particular point. No case was cited to us in which the period of limitation was counted from the date of the dismissal of a so-called appeal in a case where no appeal lay under the law. In Muhammad Razi v. Karbalai

---

(1) 16 W. R. F. B. 1; 7 B. L. R. 704.

Bibi (2), the appeal, when it was filed, was a proper appeal, but subsequently on the death of the appellant no action was taken by his successor to be brought on the record and so the appeal abated and was dismissed. In that case an appeal did lie and the dispute between the parties was determined by the Appellate Court. The decree of the Trial Court, therefore, would be merged in such a decree of the Appellate Court. The next ruling cited, on behalf of the respondent was in the case of Rup Narain v. Sheo Prakash (3). On reading the judgment of the learned Judges the first impression would be that no appeal lay in that case and the appellant had come to that Court merely to get certain words in the judgment deleted for his personal satisfaction. When we examined the records of the appeal (Ex. F. A. No. 50 of 1907), we found that the appellant had a right of appeal and did appeal in the ordinary way against the decree of the Trial Court, but he had no real objection to the decree itself; the Court below had given him what he had asked for, a decree absolute for sale; his real objection was that certain words appearing in the judgment, but not appearing in the decree, suggesting that the appellant-decree-holder should give time to the judgment debtor might at some subsequent date be given effect to in a sense adverse to his interests; and under colour of appealing from that decree he was really appealing against a suggestion made only in the judgment. But, though it was held that an appeal did not lie against the words used in the judgment, an appeal did lie against the decree, was properly preferred and was disposed of in the ordinary way by a finding that the decree-holder had really got all for which he asked. A Bench of this Court decided that those words did not form part of the decree and were not operative and that the appellant was in no danger of any loss, if such words were maintained in the judgment. This Court further declared that if at a subsequent date the rights of the appellant were prejudiced, he would have an opportunity of appealing to this Court from that fresh order. In such a case, it will not be correct to say that the appeal was barred by any provision of law.

Decree means (s. 2 (2), C. P. C.) "the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit." In the case before us this Court held that it had no jurisdiction to give any formal expression of an adjudication determining the rights of the parties, because no appeal lay to this Court under the law.

In Abdul Majid v. Jawahir Lal (4) their Lordships of the Privy Council had to consider a case where an appeal to the Privy Council was dismissed for want of prosecution. They held that the period of limitation in such a case commenced from the date of the decree of the High Court and not from the date of the order in Council dismissing the appeal. They observed: "The order dismissing the appeal for want of prosecution did not deal judicially with the matter of the suit and could in no sense be regarded as an order adopting or confirming the decision appealed from. It merely recognised authoritatively that the appellant had not complied with the conditions under which the appeal was open to him, and that, therefore, he was in the same position as if he had not appealed at all."

These words were repeated by their Lordships in a subsequent case Sachindra Nath Roy v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (5). In our opinion the case before us is stronger because in the Privy Council case an appeal did lie and had been properly preferred, while in the present case the proceedings not only did not terminate in an order dealing judicially with the matter in suit; but, as no appeal lay at all, could not under any circumstances whatever have so terminated. We hold, therefore, that where it has been held that no appeal lay, the order disposing of the so-called appeal will not amount to a decree. The converse proposition, though it is not necessary for us to decide this, would also seem to be in conformity with the spirit of s. 2, with the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council and with Indian Judicial Authority, viz., where an appeal lay and that appeal was disposed of by an order, that order will amount to a decree except as in the case dealt with by their Lordships of the Privy Council (a case of dismissal for default) and in other special cases where it is expressly declared by s. 2 that the order shall not amount to a decree. We are, therefore, of opinion that in the present case the period of 12 years should be counted from the date of the original decree, i e., 18th May, 1909, and not from the date of the dismissal of the so-called appeal here on 18th November 1912. The respondent's present application for execution is, therefore, beyond time.

---

(2) 5 Ind. Cas. 473; 32 A. 136; 7 A. L. J. 58.

(3) 61 Ind. Cas. 129; 19 A. L. J. 159; 43 A. 405.

(4) 23 Ind. Cas. 649; 36 A. 350; 12 A. L. J. 624; 16 Bom. L. R. 395; 18 C. W. N. 963; 19 C. L. J. 626; 27 M. L. J. 17; (1914) M. W. N. 485; 16 M. L. T. 44; 1 L. W. 483 (P. C.).

(5) 74 Ind. Cas. 660; 48 I. A. 335; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 57; 30 M. L. T. 96; 24 Bom. L. R. 659; (1922) M. W. N. 338; 26 C. W. N. 858; A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 187; 49 C. 203 (P. C.).

The execution case, which according to the decree-holder-respondents saves limitation, is Case No. 233 of 1921, in which the application was filed on the 3rd March, 1922. The present application is filed within three years of the date of that application, which was filed by Dharam Kirti Saran for withdrawal of money deposited by Sahu Param Kirti Saran in Court. The amount sought to be recovered and which was deposited consisted of costs, which were awarded to Dharam Kirti Saran against this particular judgment-debtor Param Kirti Saran during execution proceedings in the Trial Court, and in the High Court. Dharam Kirti Saran had applied for execution of a portion of the decree of 1909, in which he was decreed a sum of Rs. 51,000 odd against the deceased father of Param Kirti Saran. Param Kirti Saran objected and his objection was dismissed. The Execution Court ordered on 8th March, 1916 (Execution Case No. 308 of 1914 and Miscellaneous Case No. 127 of 1916) that Param Kirti Saran judgment-debtor shall pay Rs. 418-8-0 to the decree-holder Dharam Kirti Saran on account of the costs incurred in the application of objection. Param Kirti Saran appealed from this order. His appeal was dismissed, and he was made liable to pay costs Rs. 262. These were the two items of costs of which recovery was desired by an application of 30th August, 1921, in the Execution Department. The question is whether this step in execution of a decree against one of several judgment-debtors saved limitation as against the present judgment-debtor, who was not a party to the previous execution proceeding. If it does not, the application of 3rd March, 1922, for withdrawal of this money from Court will not save limitation. Explanation I to Art. 182 of the First Schedule of the Limitation Act lays down (second para):—

"Where the decree or order has been passed severally against more persons than one, distinguishing portions of the subject-matter as payable or deliverable by each, the application shall take effect against only such of the said persons or their representatives as it may be made against. But, where the decree or order has been passed jointly against more persons than one, the application, if made against any one or more of them, or against his or their representatives, shall take effect against them all." It was argued on behalf of the appellant that the first portion of this rule will apply to the present case. The alleged facts, on which this argument was based, are not correct in our opinion. The appellant's case was that there was no portion of the decree passed against all the defendants jointly in favour of Dharam Kirti Saran, that the decree was passed severally and Nand Lal Saran was not interested in the portion of the decree passed in favour of Dharam Kirti Saran against Sibta Prasad. We find in the award cl. (19) that certain properties were allotted to Dharam Kirti Saran as against all the defendants of this suit. The decree passed on this award decreed this property, which was joint up to the institution of the suit, in favour of Dharam Kirti Saran against all the defendants It is not the fact, therefore, that no portion of the decree was passed jointly against all the defendants. The case before us does not appear to be specifically provided for in the explanation where a portion of the decree is jointly passed against all the defendants and there are other portions of the decree passed severally against different defendants. The question will be whether such a decree will fall within the first portion of the explanation or the second or whether such a decree will be governed by the first part of the explanation as regards the several decrees and by the second portion of the explanation as regards the joint decrees. The opinion of the Madras High Court is that where any portion of the decree is joint the case will fall within the second part of the explanation. This was laid down by a Bench of the Madras High Court in Subramanya Chettiar v. Alagappa Chettiar (6). According to the learned Judges the second part of the paragraph should be read literally, i. e. the words "where the decree or order has been passed jointly against more persons than one." The reasoning does not appear to us to be convincing. If the first portion is read literally—"where the decree or order has been passed severally" it may be argued with equal reason that such a case must be governed by the first part of the explanation. The principle appears to us to be that when A, B and C are jointly liable and the decree-holder is attempting to recover the decretal amount from one of them he should not be barred from recovering it from the rest if he fails to recover it from that particular judgment debtor. He exercises due diligence in recovering the amount decreed to him and it will be no fault of his if he does not find the particular judgment-debtor of sufficient substance to pay up the entire decree. In such a case it will be equitable to direct that steps taken in aid of execution against one of the joint judgment-debtors should save limitation as against the others. It is also obvious that when a joint decree is passed the decree-holder cannot execute it at one and the same time against them all separately for the same amount. The case is different when certain portions of a decree are jointly passed and others severally passed against more persons than one. While the decree-holder is executing the joint portion of the decree against one of the joint judgment-debtors there is nothing to prevent him from executing the other portions of the decree against the several judgment-debtors who are liable thereunder. It would be expected of a diligent decree-holder that he should do so. We think, therefore, that where a decree is jointly passed against all the defendants in one matter and severally against different defendants with respect to other matters, the first portion of the explanation should apply to decrees passed severally and the second portion to the decree or decrees passed jointly. We find ourselves unable to agree with the opinion of the Madras High Court. We have not been referred to any rulings on the subject of any other High Court during the arguments. We hold that the application is barred by the three years' limitation.

---

(6) 30 M. 268; 2 M. L. T. 189.

From another point of view also the application will be so barred. The three years' period is to be counted in terms of Art. 182, cl. (5):—

"Where an application for execution has been made the date of applying in accordance with law to the proper Court for execution or to take some step-in-aid of execution of the decree, the step-in-aid of execution which would save limitation is the step taken in execution of that particular decree which is sought to be executed subsequently". In the present case the step taken was to withdraw costs of execution proceedings and those costs were not costs in the suit. Those costs were not of the suit because they were not incurred in execution proceedings but were incurred by a particular objector who objected to a certain execution proceeding. That decree for costs was a separate decree against a particular objector. The execution application for recovery of such costs was not an execution application of the original decree. The learned Subordinate Judge has explained away this difficulty by holding that the application in execution by Dharam Kirti Saran for recovery of Rs. 51,000 and odd and the objection of Sahu Param Kirti Saran to the payment of that amount were proceedings in suit between the preliminary decree and the final decree. According to the lower Court the order for payment dated the 8th March 1916 was really a final decree for the payment of Rs. 51,000 and odd and the costs incurred in obtaining that decree were costs in the suit. If this view be accepted the decree of 1908 will be taken to be a preliminary decree and there would be several final decrees on foot thereof. The present judgment-debtor was not a party to the final decree of 8th March 1916, so any steps taken in execution of that decree cannot save limitation against the present judgment-debtor. Our view that application for execution of costs incidental to the execution proceedings was not an application for the execution of the original decree or any part of it is supported by a Bench ruling of the Madras High Court in Appu Rao v. Rama Krishna Chettiar (7).

In the result we decree the appeal and dismiss the execution application of Dharam Kirti Saran with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

---

(7) 24 M. 672.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL MISCELLANEOUS PETITION
No. 1057 OF 1925.
February 3, 1926.
Present:—Justice Sir William Phillips, KT.,
and Mr. Justice Krishnan.
SRILASRI VYTHILINGA DESIKA
PANDARA SANNATHI—PETITIONER
versus
AURUMUGHA THAMBIRAN AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 109 (c), 110, O. XLV, rr. 2, 3, 8—Order of remand setting aside abatement of suit, whether final—Leave under s. 109 (c), grant of.

Where in a suit under s. 92, C. P. C, for removal of a trustee and for framing of a scheme, the trustee died and the Court of first instance held that the suit had thereby abated but the High Court on appeal set aside the abatement in so far as the prayer for scheme was concerned, and remanded the case to the lower Court for disposal according to law:—

Held, that the order in appeal was not a final one within the meaning of s. 110, C. P. C., nor was the case a fit one for granting special leave under s. 109, C. P. C.

An order is only final if it finally disposes of the rights of the parties.

Radha Kishan v. Collector of Jaunpur, 23 A. 220; 28 I. A. 28; 5 C. W. N. 153; 11 M. L. J. 65; 3 Bom. L. R. 78; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 800 (P. C.), Firm of Ram Chand-Manjumal v. Firm of Goverdhan Das-Vishindas Ratanchand, 56 Ind. Cas. 302; 47 C. 918; 24 C. W. N. 721; 18 A. L. J. 591; 22 Bom. L. R. 606; 39 M. L. J. 27; 12 L. W. 150; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 94; (1920) M. W. N. 407; 28 M. L. T. 87; 47 I. A. 124; 14 S. L. R. 191 (P. C.), Mukarram Ali Khan v. Spinner, 86 Ind. Cas. 161; 47 A. 335; 23 A. L. J. 12; L. R. 6 A. 175 Civ.; A. I. R. 1925 All. 263 and Sultan Singh v. Murli Dhar, 80 Ind. Cas. 366; 5 L. 329; 6 L. L. J. 210; A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 571; 1 L. C. 100, relied on.

Petition presented under ss. 109 (c) and 110 and O. XLV, rr. 2, 3 and 8 of the C. P. C. praying that the High Court will be pleased to grant a certificate enabling the petitioner herein to appeal to His Majesty in Council against the judgment and decree of the High Court in Appeal No. 43 of 1921, preferred against a decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Kumbakonam, in O. S. No. 71 of 1918.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar, A. Srirangachari and R. Gopalachari, for the Petitioner.

Messrs. S. Srinivasa Iyengar, K. S. Jayarama Iyer, and V. N. Venkata Varadachari, for the Respondents.

ORDER.—In this case the Subordinate Judge held that the suit abated on the ground of the death of the defendant, the suit being one for the removal of the defendant from his alleged trusteeship and for framing a scheme for the suit mutt. In appeal here it was held that so far as the removal of the alleged trustee was concerned, the suit must abate on the death of that trustee, but in so far as the suit was for the framing of a scheme, the suit did not abate and could be continued against the succeeding trustee. An application has now been made for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council against the order of this Court and the question with which we are now concerned is whether this is a final order within the meaning of s. 109. The petitioner relies upon two cases: Meghraj v. Bidyabati Koer (1) and Lachmi Narain Marwari v. Bal Makund Marwari (2). The first of these two cases is distinguished from the prior case reported in Krishna Chandra Ghosh v. Maharaja Ram Narain Singh (3) on the ground that in the latter case the decree of the Court did not finally terminate the trial between the parties but left it open to the plaintiff to enforce his rights if any in a fresh suit. This remark would apply equally well to the facts of the present case and, therefore, even if the decision in Meghraj v. Bidyabati Koer (1) is correct in law, it is not applicable to the case before us. The case reported as Lachmi Narain Marwari v. Bal Makund Marwari (2) differentiates the Privy Council decision in Radha Kishan v. Collector of Jaunpur (4) not so much on what is actually decided in the latter, but on an inference drawn from the Privy Council judgment as to what would have been the decision if the facts had been different. It must, however, be observed that both the cases relied on by appellant appear to be opposed to the decisions of the Privy Council, the latest of which is Firm of Ram Chand Manjumal v. Firm of Goverdhan Das-Vishin das Ratanchand (5). There it was held that an order is only final if it finally disposes of the rights of the parties. These decisions have been discussed and followed by the High Courts of Allahabad and Lahore [vide Mukarram Ali Khan v. Skinner (6) and Sultan Singh v. Murli Dhar (7).] In the present case there has been no adjudication as to the right of the parties. So far as the petitioner is concerned there has been no trial and no adjudication. The question as between him and the plaintiffs is as to whether a scheme should or should not be framed and on that point there has been no adjudication at all and consequently the order of remand cannot be deemed to be a final order. The contention urged before us is that under the decree of the Subordinate Judge the petitioner obtained some sort of right, i. e., that that particular suit should not proceed, and that that right has been taken away by the order of this Court. This is true but the right has not been taken away finally; it has been merely suspended pending further proceedings, and consequently the order taking it away temporarily cannot be said to dispose finally of that right, there being no final order by this Court. The leave to appeal must, therefore, be refused on the ground that the order of this Court is not a final order within the meaning of s. 109, C. P. C.

---

(1) 28 Ind Cas. 567; 21 C. L. J. 279.

(2) 60 Ind. Cas. 479; 6 P. L. J. 116; 2 P. L. T. 155.

(3) 21 Ind. Cas. 430; 18 C. L. J. 124.

(4) 23 A. 220; 28 I. A. 28; 5 C W. N. 153; 11 M. L. J. 65; 3 Bom. L. R. 78; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 800 (P. C.).

(5) 56 Ind. Cas. 302; 47 C. 918; 24 C. W. N 721; 18 A. L. J. 591; 22 Bom. L. R. 606; 39 M. L. J. 27; 12 L. W. 150; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 94; (1920) M. W. N. 407; 28 M. L. T. 87; 47 I. A. 124; 14 S. L. R. 191 (P. C.).

(6) 86 Ind. Cas. 161; 47 A. 335; 23 A. L. J. 12; L. R. 6 A. 175 Civ.; A. I. R. 1925 All. 263.

It is further contended that special leave should be given as it is a fit case for appeal but we must refuse the application. If the allegations in the plaint are correct it is certainly desirable that the matter should be enquired into and that a scheme should be framed; consequently there does not appear to be good reason for the grant of special leave. The petition is dismissed with costs.

V. N. V. Petition dismissed.

---

(7) 80 Ind. Cas. 366; 5 L. 329; 6 L. L. J. 240; A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 571; 1 L. C. 100.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORIGINAL DECREE No. 82 OF 1924.

December 18, 1925.

Present :—Justice Sir Hugh Walmsley, KT., and Mr. Justice Chakravarti.

BRAHMOPADA BHATTACHARJEE alias CHAKRAVARTI AND OTHERS— PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAI MOHAN HALDAR AND OTHERS— RESPONDENTS.

Document, construction of—Disposition of property—Will or gift.

The Court must not construe an instrument prepared by a layman without legal assistance, where the question is as to whether it was intended to operate as a Will or as a transfer inter vivos, with too great nicety, or assign too much weight to the exact words the writer uses for a transfer of the property, as if he were accurately weighing the difference between a testamentary instrument and one operating inter vivos. In such a case not only the words actually used in the deed should be considered, but also the circumstances should be taken into consideration, and the matter ought to be broadly looked at. [p. 968, cols. 1 & 2.]

Thakur Ishri Singh v. Thakur Baldeo Singh, 10 C. 792; 11 I. A. 135; 8 Ind. Jur. 331; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 528; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 79; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S) 531 (P. C.) and Udai Raj Singh v. Bhagwan Bakhsh Singh, 6 Ind. Cas. 279; 32 A. 227; 7 A. L. J. 274; (1910) M. W. N. 110; 11 C. L. J. 387; 14 C. W. N. 641; 7 M. L. T. 410; 12 Bom. L. R. 409; 20 M. L. T. 458; 13 O. C. 172; 37 I. A. 46 (P. C.), relied on.

Appeal against a decree of the Second Additional District Judge, 24-Perganas, dated the 21st of January 1924.

Babus Hiralal Chakravarti, Shyama Das Battacharjee, for the Appellants.

Mr. A. C. Gupta, Babus Radhika Ranjan Guha, Satis Chandra Sinha, Santi Kumar Roy Chaudhury, and Shib Chandra Palit, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Chakravarti, J.—This appeal arises out of an application for Probate of the Will of one Judhistir Haldar dated the 21st January, 1913 and is on behalf of the petitioners who propounded the Will against the order of the District Judge of the twenty-four Perganas, dated the 21st January, 1924 by which the petition for Probate was refused. The application for Probate which was made by four out of the five executors named in the Will was opposed by the daughters of the testator Judhistir, by the sons of one of the daughters and also by one of his sons-in-law. The objectors, amongst other matters, stated that the instrument propounded by the petitioners was not a Will on the face of it; and an issue was raised as to whether the document propounded was a Will at all. This issue was tried as a preliminary issue and the learned District Judge without going into the evidence and deciding the other issues which arose in the case found in favour of the objectors on this issue and dismissed the application for Probate. Hence their appeal.

The only question which arises before us in this case for consideration is whether the document alleged to have been executed by Judhistir Mandal was a testamentary deed or a deed of transfer inter vivos as was held by the learned District Judge. The learned Judge really based his judgment, to use his own words, on this ground: "It is true that he", that is Judhistir, "thought that he was nearing the end and he wished to make a disposition of his properties; but by the deed he declared that the dedication was to take effect from the date he executed the deed and he appointed himself the first shebait. He fixed the manner of succession to the office of the Shebait. No doubt there are certain legacies to be paid after his death by the executors; but such a provision is in conflict with his dedication to the idol". The learned Advocate for the respondents has also relied upon this argument in support of the decision of the Court below.

Now, the true rule to be followed in considering a deed in cases like this was laid down by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the case of Thakur Ishri Singh v. Thakur Baldeo Singh (1) and also in the case of Udai Raj Singh v. Bhagwan Bakhsh Singh (2). In the first mentioned case, their Lordships, after discussing the provisions of the deed at page 801* stated as follows: "Mr. Woodroffe in his argument relied very strongly upon the use of the word 'assign' and upon the reservation of a life-interest to the donor. No doubt both those circumstances tend towards the conclusion to which Mr. Woodroffe wished to lead their Lordships, but they are by no means conclusive. If they had been the words of an English conveyancer preparing an English instrument, they would have afforded a very strong argument: but the instrument was prepared by Lal Sunder, and we must not construe with too great nicety, or assign too much weight to the exact words that he uses for a transfer of property, as if he were accurately weighing the difference between a testamentary instrument and one operating inter vivos. We must remember that Wills are comparatively new in any part of India, and are of more recent introduction in Oudh in respect of this class of property. So with respect to the reservation of a life-interest. The Will being not a very familiar instrument to the people who prepare it or who sign it, the testator often does express a great anxiety that he shall not be considered to have parted with anything in his lifetime, and their Lordships have seen here instruments, which most unquestionably were Wills, and intended to operate as such, in which nevertheless there have been expressions upon the face of them intimating that the testator intends to remain the owner of his property until he dies". In the latter case, their Lordships following the same principle stated that in a case like this not only the words actually used in the deed should be considered but also the circumstances should be taken into consideration and the matter ought to be broadly looked at. Now, bearing those principles in mind, let us see what are the circumstances here in the present case. Judhistir was apparently an old man and was apprehending imminent death. He was anxious that there should be rules laid down for the disposition of his properties after his death. In the circumstances as he himself stated that there was in his mind an apprehension of his imminent death, it was not possible that he would either enjoy the property or use it in a particular way. The learned Judge, as I have already pointed out, states that there are conditions in the deed which are clearly testamentary. The sole question, therefore, is "Was the whole object of the deed frustrated by the use of the words upon which the learned Judge has relied?" Applying the principles laid down in the cases referred to, I think it was not. Judhistir was a substantial cultivator living in the interior of the district. He had no legal help in drawing up the instrument. It appears from the clause in the deed relied upon by the District Judge and also by the learned Advocate for the respondents that the anxiety of the testator was that after his death there might be dispute as to the future disposition of his properties and, therefore, he thought—though erroneously no doubt that, unless he used those words, future dispostion of his properties would be in danger. Clearly, those words were not used for the purpose of making any inter vivos disposition which would come into operation during his lifetime and they should not, in my opinion, be read as tending to frustrate his very object. It is not a question of mere construing the words used in the deed; but it is a question whether, under the circumstances of the case, we can read these words as used with any other object than that of strengthening the disposition as by a Will. On the whole taking

(1) 10 C. 792; 11 I. A. 135; 8 Ind. Jur. 331; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 528; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 79; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. s.) 531 (P. C.).

(2) 6 Ind. Cas. 279; 32 A. 227; 7 A. L. J. 274; (1910) M. W. N. 110; 11 C. L. J. 387; 14 C. W. N. 641; 7 M. L. T. 410; 12 Bom. L. R. 409; 20 M. L. T. 458; 13 O. C. 172; 37 I. A. 46 (P. C.).

---

*Page of 10 C.—[Ed.]

a broad view of the matter, I think the testator was really laying down rules for the disposition of his properties after his death and not making any immediate disposition of the same. There are other circumstances which also lend support to this view. The deed was not drawn up on a stamped paper as it would have been if it was a deed of dedication. Throughout the deed is spoken of as a Will. It appointed executors and it was registered as a Will. Therefore, there can be no doubt as to what the object of the executant of the document was. Bearing that in mind, I do not think that the use of the word "dedication" should be given effect to in the sense in which it is ordinarily used in the same way as their Lordships of the Judicial Committee refused to give effect to the word "assign" which was clearly used in the deeds which their Lordships had to consider in one of the cases cited. On these grounds, I think that the view taken by the learned District Judge of the nature of the instrument was not correct. In my opinion the decree of the lower Court should be set aside and the case should be sent back to that Court for trial of the other issues raised. The appellants are entitled to their costs in this appeal—the hearing fee being assessed at three gold mohurs. The costs incurred by the parties in the lower Court as well as those to be incurred at the fresh trial will abide the result.

Walmsley, J.—I agree.

N. H. Appeal allowed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 173 OF 1924.

April 14, 1925.

Present :—Sir Norman Macleod, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Coyajee.

AJITSING MANIBHAI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

GRUNNING & CO.—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXX, rr. 1, 3, 6—Partnership, suit against—Title of suit—Written statements, separate, whether can be filed.

Under O. XXX, r. 1, C. P. C., any two or more persons being liable as partners and carrying on business in British India may be sued in the name of the firm. In such a suit an individual partner may also be sued personally along with the firm. It is not, however, correct to sue persons as partners in the name of the firm by a partner or manager. [p. 969, col. 2.]

Under O. XXX, r. 6, C. P. C., where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm they must appear individually in their own names but all subsequent proceedings will nevertheless continue in the name of the firm. In such a case, each partner can put in a separate written statement, but each written statement is the written statement of the firm. It is only when a partner is sued personally along with the firm that he may put in a personal defence. [p. 970, cols. 1 & 2.)

First appeal from a decision of the Joint First Class Subordinate Judge at Ahmedabad, in Suit No. 1039 of 1922.

Mr. G. N. Thakor (with him Mr. R. J. Thakor), for the Appellants.

Messrs. Little & Co. and S. S. Patkar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Macleod, C. J.—The plaintiffs are a firm carrying on business in cotton in Liverpool.

They have filed this suit through their constituted attorney in the Court of the First Class Subordinate Judge at Ahmedabad against the firm of Chandrasing M. Jesingbhai by its partners and managers (1) Ajitsing Manibhai, (2) Chandrasing Manibhai, a minor by his next friend, to recover damages amounting to Rs. 13,870-4-0 and interest and the costs of a Solicitor's bill. In the first place it must be noted that the title of the plaint is not correct. Under O. XXX, r. 1 any two or more persons being liable as partners and carrying on business in British India may be sued in the name of the firm. In such a case the proper title of the defendant is: "A B a firm carrying on business in partnership," See Appendix A to the C. P. C., (2) "Description of parties in particular cases." Rule 3 provides for the manner of service of the summons where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm and r. 6 provides for the manner of appearance of such persons. An individual partner may be sued personally along with the firm: Taylor v. Collier (1). It is not, therefore, correct to sue persons as partners in the name of the firm by a partner or manager and the proper title of the defendants in the suit should have been:—

"Defendant No. 1. Chandrasing M. Jeisingbhai a firm.

Defendant No. 2 Ajitsing Manibhai a partner in the firm.

Defendant No. 3 Chandrasing Manibhai a partner in the firm."

It does not appear from the way in which the plaint is drafted whether there are three defendants or only one, the firm of Chandrasing M. Jesingbhai.

---

(1) (1882) 30 W. R. 701; 51 L. J. Ch. 853.

Although the written statement is headed " Plaintiff. The Grunning Company.

versus

Defendant. Chandrasing Manibhai, a firm".

it is signed by Ajitsing Manibhai for himself and as guardian of the minor Chandrasing Manibhai.

Paragraph 2 states " the suit filed by the plaintiffs against us the defendant. No. 1 and the minor defendant No. 2 is false."

Paragraph 3 states that Ajitsing was only doing the work of management of the firm and was neither a partner nor a proprietor, the plaintiffs had no right to file a suit against him personally or against the person of defendant No. 2. Therefore the suit could not be maintained.

The further defences in the written statement may be summarised as follows :—

Although the plaintiffs stated that they had purchased 100 bales American Cotton January delivery 1921 on behalf of defendants, defendants did not accept the contract as it was received late and even before it was signed plaintiffs asked for margin. Plaintiffs should have closed the transaction. when the market began to go down. If margin was not given the plaintiffs could not leave the transaction outstanding. Damages could only be claimed according to the rate prevailing on the day on which the rates began to go down.

The provisions of O. XXX are very complicated and technical, and are seldom sufficiently studied by practitioners in the Subordinate Courts. A summons under O. XXX, r. 3, shall be served either upon any one or more partners, or at the principal place at which the business is carried on within British India upon any person having at the time of service the control or management of the partnership business there.

It seems that the summons in this case was served on Ajitsing, so that was good service on the firm, since whether he was a partner or not, he admits that he was the manager.

Under O. XXX, r. 6, where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, they shall appear individually in their own names but all subsequent proceedings shall nevertheless continue in the name of the firm.

It is not easy to observe the provisions of this somewhat incongruous rule.

Each partner has to appear individually, each partner can put in a separate written statement but each written statement is the written statement of the firm. It is only when a person is sued personally along with the firm that he may put in a personal defence.

In this case there is no written statement of the firm, though it may be said that the defences raised in the written statement of Ajitsing were the same defences as would have been raised in a written statement by the firm.

In this state of the record, the Judge should have drawn the plaintiffs' attention to the provisions of O. XXX, r. 8.

Ajitsing was protesting that he was not a partner. Plaintiffs could disregard the appearance under protest altogether and have the summons served as provided by r. 3, or they could contend that the person served was a partner at the time the cause of action accrued, and apply on that basis either to have the appearance entered struck out, or to have the denial of partnership struck out of the appearance.

None of these courses was chosen by the plaintiffs. The suit proceeded as if the firm had been duly served, as well as the individuals alleged to be partners.

Issues Nos. 1 to 10 were raisad on the merits. The answer to issue No. 11 ' Are the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 liable under the contract' was ' The defendant firm are liable.'

The answer to issue No. 12 ' Are defendants Nos. 1 and 2 personally liable under the plaintiffs' claims' was 'Defendant No. 1 is liable.'

A decree accordingly was passed against the firm of Chandrasing M. Jeshingbhai and against Ajitsing as one of its partners. The firm and Ajitsing appealed and appeared by the same Counsel.

The principal grounds of appeal were: —

1. That the Subordinate Judge had erred in holding that Ajitsing was a partner instead of holding that his mother was the sole proprietor of the firm.
2. That he had erred in not holding that there was no agreement.
3. That he had erred in not holding if there was a valid agreement that the plaintiff should have re-sold the goods at a much earlier date.

4. That the loss actually suffered had not been proved.

Not a single objection was raised with regard to the service of the summons or the frame of the pleadings.

It would not then be equitable for this Court in the circumstances of the case to do more than we have done in pointing out the defects of the procedure in the lower Court, since the merits of the case have in no way been affected thereby.

We accept then the fact that a decree has been passed against the firm and against Ajitsing personally, and that both the firm and Ajitsing have appealed against that decree.

[His Lordship after discussing other points on the merits passed the following order:—] I think the plaintiffs are entitled to succeed, but they are not entitled to interest on the claim before the date of the suit, nor can they recover the amount of their Solicitors' costs before suit. There will, therefore, be a decree for Rs. 13,870 with interest at six per cent. from the date of the suit until judgment with costs in both Courts in proportion, with interest on judgment at six per cent.

Coyajee, J.—[Only the portion of his Lordship's judgment relevant for the purpose of this report is given below:—] While the arguments were proceeding, the learned Chief Justice called the attention of the parties to the defect in the pleadings. A reference to the plaint and the written statement in this case shows that not much regard was paid to the rules which regulate suits against firms (O. XXX, C. P. C., 1908). The parties themselves, however, apparently felt no embarrassment on that account. In a suit against a firm, it is permissible to the plaintiff to make one or more partners defendants in conjunction with the firm. In the plaint in this case Ajitsing is described both as the manager of the firm and a partner. He accepted service of the summons; he signed and put in the one written statement in the case; he also signed the vakalatnama which accompanied it. Some of the issues framed in the suit related to the merits of the plaintiffs' claim; but there were others which had reference personally to Ajitsing and Chandrasing. In these circumstances, the decree of the lower Court cannot be disturbed merely on account of this defect unless it affected the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court; and it is not contended that any of those results has followed in this case (s. 99, C. P. C.)

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 89 OF 1925.

April 1, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.

Seth KISHANLAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BAPU AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73—Contract for payment of money—Breach—Damages—Method of assessment—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 35, scope of—"Court rate of interest", meaning of—Court, whether bound to award 6 per cent. per annum.

In ascertaining under s. 73 of the Contract Act the loss or damage caused by a breach of contract for the payment of money all that is to be done is to find out the rate of interest that the person to whom it ought to have been paid, would have got on it in the ordinary way, if it had been paid. The rate or amount of interest which was originally promised and that promised in case the original promise was broken come in only as a guide in ascertaining what rate of interest ought to have been paid and as a maximum. [p. 971, col. 2; p. 972, col. 1.]

There is no such thing as a "Court rate of interest". What is usually so called is merely the maximum rate which the Court may order to be paid on the costs under s. 35 of the C. P. C. [p. 972, col. 2.]

The rate of 6 per cent. per annum may in some cases be the appropriate rate of interest to allow for damages, though the fact that it is the rate mentioned in s. 35, Civ. P. C., does not make it so. [ibid.]

Appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Chhindwara, dated the 23rd March 1925, in Civil Suit No. 22 of 1921.

Mr. M. R. Bobde, for the Appellant.

Mr. N. R. Alekar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—There is probably no matter into which more totally unnecessary complications are imported than the matter of interest for a debt which was not paid according to the promise. In this case one party paid the other a sum of Rs. 2,400. In consideration of that payment the other party promised to pay Rs. 750 eight months later and three further sums of Rs. 750 one, two and three years after that. No such payment at all was made, and the first party became entitled to compensation for the breach of contract.

Now there is no contract in respect of which it is easier to estimate in terms of money under s. 73 of the Contract Act the loss or damage caused by a breach of it than a contract for the payment of money. All that has to be ascertained is the rate of interest that the person to whom it ought to have been paid, would have got on it in the ordinary way if it had been paid. The other two factors, the amount of the money and the length of time it has been wrongfully retained, we already have in every case. The other matters, the rate or amount of interest which was originally promised and that promised in case the original promise was broken, come in only as a guide in ascertaining what rate of interest ought to be paid and as a maximum. Except for that we are not concerned with the original contract.

The original contract was for the fairly quick payment of the Rs. 2,400 with compound interest at a rate that is almost exactly 11.1 per cent. per annum. That is the equivalent of regular payment of Rs. 750 on the four dates fixed. Still more was promised if the payments were not made punctually, but we need not consider that, because the plaintiff has asked for much less. In the circumstances of this case then it is quite clear that the plaintiff would have been properly and sufficiently compensated for the failure to pay him Rs. 750 in 1908 and each of the three following years by being paid Rs. 2,400 and compound interest thereon at 12 per cent. per annum from the date on which he paid that amount to the other party. A good deal has been said in this Court about simple interest and compound interest. They are not two kinds of interest; the only difference between them is that one paid regularly and the other is not.

The amount claimed as due at the institution of the suit on the 9th of December, 1921 was Rs. 7,410. The amount payable as damages on that date if the calculation is made with interest at no more than 9 per cent. per annum is Rs. 7,836 9 0. It is clear then that the plaintiff was entitled to be paid the amount he claimed on that day. Similarly the amount due on the decree, the 23rd of April, 1925, if interest is calculated at 9 per cent. was Rs. 9,380-8-0, but the plaintiff claims only Rs. 8,796 12-0.

The learned District Judge has given damages in the shape of interest at a number of different rates in a way that could not possibly convey any idea to him or to anybody else of whether the result gives the plaintiff proper compensation or not. The labour expended in deciding whether "proportionate prospective interest" (whatever that may mean) should be awarded or not and when the first default occurred and when the whole sum became due was entirely wasted. It has to be pointed out also that the amount due ought to have been calculated up to the end of the period allowed for redemption, and not only up to the date of the decree, and further that there is no such thing as a "Court rate" of interest. What is usually so called is merely the maximum rate which the Court may order to be paid on the costs under s. 35 of the C. P. C. A rate of 6 per cent. per annum may in some cases be the appropriate rate of interest to allow for damages, though in these Provinces the cases in which it is not too low are few, but the fact that it is the rate mentioned in s. 35 does not make it so.

The result of the complicated account made in the lower Court was that the amount due on the date of the decree was Rs. 6,984. That is equivalent to giving the plaintiff interest at a rate per cent. that exceeds six by a small fraction. The way in which the plaintiff arrived at the sum he claimed in the plaint is only a little less complicated and gives him much less than he thought he was claiming. He obviously intended to claim compound interest at something more than 12 per cent. per annum. What he has claimed is simple interest at 17$\frac{3}{8}$ per cent. per annum for the first twenty months and then compound interest at 12 per cent. for twelve years on Rs. 95 less than was due to him at the beginning of them. The result is a claim for a sum that gives him interest all through at a shade less than 9 per cent. How he worked out the sum of Rs. 8,796-12-0 which he claims in appeal to have been due on the date of the decree I have been unable to discover and the learned Pleader who appeared for him cannot explain. It is, however, less than the amount that ought to have been decreed on that day, which would have been Rs. 9,380-8-0 if interest had been calculated all through at 9 per cent. only.

The amount to be decreed as due on the 23rd of April 1925 is, therefore, Rs. 8,796-12-0. The plaintiff has asked for interest at 12 per cent. per annum, as indeed he did or thought he was doing all along. He is clearly entitled to it, though through want of clear thinking he has asked for a sum as due on the date of the decree which gives him interest at a lower rate. That is, however, no reason for giving him the lower rate after the decree. Interest will, therefore, run at 12 per cent. per annum from the date of the decree to the date now to be fixed as the end of the period allowed for redemption. That date will be the 23rd of June next. The amount due on that day for principal and interest on the mortgage will be Rs. 10,049-6-0. It may be mentioned that interest at 9 per cent. all the way through would have given the plaintiff Rs. 10,453 by that date. The defendants must pay all the costs in both Courts, the amount being added to the sum payable for principal and interest to make up the price of redemption. The decree of the lower Court will be modified accordingly.

G. R. D. Decree modified.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION NO. 196 OF 1925.

January 27, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Misra and Mr. Justice Raza.

SURAJPAL SINGH—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

DEOKALI—PLAINTIFF—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Practice—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Conditional acceptance—Condition not fulfilled—Death of applicant—Order maintaining decree, effect of—Fresh order.

Where, on an application to set aside an ex parte decree, the Court passes a conditional order to the effect that if the defendant pays in Court a certain sum before a certain date, the decree would be set aside, otherwise the application would stand dismissed, and no payment being made till the prescribed date, dismisses on that date the application, maintaining the decree, it is not any fresh order adverse to the defendant that is passed by the Court, but only effect is given to the previous order, and if on that date the defendant is dead, it cannot be said that any resh injurious order has been passed against a dead man. [p. 974, cols. 1 & 2.]

Debi Bakhsh Singh v. Habib Shah, 19 Ind. Cas. 526; 6 O. C. 194; 17 C. W. N. 829; 11 A. L. J. 625; 18 C. L. J. 9; 15 Bom L. R. 640; 14 M. L. T. 33; (1913) M. W. N. 566; 25 M. L. J. 148; 35 A. 331; 40 I. A. 151 (P. C.), distinguished.

Application for revision of an order of the Sub-Judge, Rae Bareli, dated the 5th August 1925.

Mr. Ali Mohammad, for the Appellant.

Mr. Bisheshwar Nath Sirivastava, for the Opposite Party.

ORDER.—This is an application for revision of an order passed by the learned Subordinate Judge of Rae Bareli, dated the 15th of August 1925. The facts of the case which gave rise to this application are as detailed below:—

The plaintiff-opposite party (Deokali) obtained an ex parte simple money decree against one Jagdamba Singh on the 16th of January, 1922. On that very date the 16th the said Jagdamba Singh applied for setting aside the decree which had been passed against him ex parte. On the 6th May, 1922, the Court passed a conditional order to the effect that if the defendant (Jagdamba Singh) deposited the sum of Rs. 60 in Court on or before the 13th July, 1922, the ex parte decree would be set aside, and in case such payment was not made within the time specified in the order, the application for setting aside the ex parte decree was to stand dismissed and the original decree maintained. After the passing of this order of 6th May, 1922, Jagdamba Singh died on the 19th June, 1922, and no payment was made either by Jagdamba Singh during his lifetime or by the applicant or any other person claiming to be his legal representative, till the 13th July, 1922. On that date the record was put up before the learned Subordinate Judge who had passed the decree and an information was communicated to him that Jagdamba Singh or his legal representative, if any, had failed to deposit the sum of Rs. 60 in accordance with the terms of the order of 6th May, 1922, the application for setting aside the ex parte decree must be deemed as dismissed, and the decree originally passed, maintained. In short, the learned Subordinate Judge gave effect to the order of the 6th May, 1922, which was the order passed in the presence of Jagdamba Singh himself. No new order of any sort whatever prejudicial to the interest of Jagdamba Singh or his legal representative was passed on 13th July, 1922.

On the 31st May, 1923, the decree-holder-opposite party, put in an application for execution asking the Court to implead the applicant, Suraj Pal, and others as legal representatives of the original judgment-debtor, Jagdamba, the deceased, and to take out execution proceedings. On this application Suraj Pal was brought on the record as a legal representative of the deceased Jagdamba by an order passed ex parte against him on the 11th of August, 1923. Subsequently on the 11th September, 1923, Suraj Pal, the applicant, raised several objections to the execution of the decree; but no objection was taken by him to the effect that the decree passed ex parte against Jagdamba Singh was invalid on the ground that the order maintaining the decree had been passed on the 13th July when Jagdamba was dead, and that his (Suraj Pal's) name had improperly been brought on the record. The Court executing the decree dismissed his objections embodied in the application of the 11th September, 1923, by his order dated the 13th October, 1923.

It has been urged before us in revision that the order passed by the learned Subordinate Judge on the 13th July, 1922, dismissing the application for setting aside the ex parte decree and maintaining the original decree was a nullity on the ground that Jagdamba Singh was not alive on that date. Reliance was placed in support of this contention on a ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council reported as Debi Bakhsh Singh v. Habib Shah (1). The argument was to the effect that because Jagdamba Singh had been dead on the 13th July, 1922, no order adverse to him should have been legally passed by the Court on that date, on the ground that adverse orders cannot be validly passed against dead persons. We do not see any force in this contention. As is stated above, the learned Subordinate Judge did not pass any fresh order on the 13th July, 1922, but only gave effect in terms to the order passed by him on the 6th May, 1922, when Jagdamba Singh was alive. The order passed on this date (6th May 1922) was admittedly a good and valid order. If Jagdamba Singh or his legal representatives wanted to take advantage of the conditional order passed on the above date it was open to them to do so. If, however, neither Jagdamba Singh nor any of his legal representatives chose to take advantage of that order and failed to deposit the money within the time fixed, the order passed on that date became operative automatically on the 13th July, 1922. It was indeed even unnecessary for the Court to have passed any order at all. It is quite incorrect to say that on the 13th July, 1922, when Jagdamba had been dead any fresh order was passed injurious to the interest of the deceased. We, therefore, hold that the rule of law laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case quoted above, does not apply to the facts of the present case and the contention of the learned Pleader for the applicant cannot be sustained.

We may also mention that in view of the facts stated in the earlier portion of our judgment, the order passed in the execution proceedings against the applicant, Suraj Pal, that he was to be brought on the record as legal representative of the deceased Jagdamba Singh, was an order which has become final as against him and he cannot thereafter be allowed to challenge the validity of the decree in the course of execution of which he had been impleaded as a legal representative of the deceased judgment-debtor, Jagdamba Singh. In our opinion in the face of this order of the Execution Court it is no more open to the applicant, Suraj Pal, to raise any objection against the validity of the ex parte decree. The orders of the 11th of August 1923, and of the 13th of October 1923 are final against him and they cannot be questioned by him any more. We, therefore, are of opinion that in face of the said orders, the present application cannot be maintained.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the order passed by the learned Subordinate Judge of Rae Bareli on the 13th July 1922 enforcing his previous order of the 6th May, 1922 was a perfectly valid order, and that there was no illegality or irregularity committed by him in the exercise of his powers.

We, therefore, dismiss this application with costs.

N. H. Application dismissed.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

March 8, 1926.

Present:—Viscount Finlay, Lord Phillimore, Lord Blanesburgh, Sir John Edge and Lord Salvesen.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL AND ANOTHER—APPELLANTS

versus

Raja JYOTI PRASHAD SINGH DEO BAHADUR AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Land tenures—Digwars or ghatwal tenures, whe-

---

(1) 19 Ind. Cas. 526; 16 O. C. 194; 17 C. W. N. 829; 11 A. L. J. 625; 18 C. L. J. 9; 15 Bom. L. R. 640; 14 M. L. T. 33; (1913) M. W. N. 566; 25 M. L. J. 148; 35 A. 331; 40 I. A. 151 (P. C.).

ther under zemindar—Burden of proof—Service tenures, kinds of—Ancient grant, interpretation of—Privy Council—Arguments urged for first time—Practice.

The Privy Council has long established it for itself as a principle of wisdom and prudence that it should be very chary of entertaining an argument which has not been sifted in the Courts below especially when the question to be decided concerns the diversified and complicated Indian Law as to tenure of land. [p. 976, cols. 1 & 2.]

Should the general words of an ancient grant be uncertain they may be fairly explained by subsequent usage. [p. 983, col. 1.]

Duke of Beaufort v Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of Swansea, (1849) 3 Ex. 413; 154 E. R. 905; 77 R. R. 677, Van Diemen's Land Co. v. Table Cape Marine Board, (1906) A. C. 92; 75 L. J. P. C. 28; 54 W. R. 498; 93 L. T. 709; 22 T. L. R. 114 and Watcham v. Attorney-General of East Africa Protectorate, (1919) A. C. 533; 87 L. J. P. C. 150; 34 T. L. R. 481; 120 L. T. 258, referred to.

The question whether certain digwars or ghatwals are or are not subordinate to the zemindar is always one of fact and the burden of proving that they are under him lies on the zemindar. [p. 978, col. 2.]

Forbes v. Meer Mahomed Tuquee, 13 M. I. A. 438; 14 W. R. P. C. 28; 5 B. L. R. 529; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 358; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 588; 20 E. R. 614, referred to.

Various forms of service tenures enumerated and defined. [p. 978, cols. 1 & 2]

Appeal from the Calcutta High Court.

Messrs. A. M. Dunne and K. Brown, for the Appellant.

Messrs. W. H. Upjohn, L. DeGruyther, J. M. Parikh, G. R. Lowndes, E. B. Raikes and G. B. McNair, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Lord Phillimore.—This suit was brought on the 3rd September, 1914, by the respondent, the Raja of Pachete against the Secretary of State for India and certain Coal and Iron Companies who are, with the Secretary of State, appellants before their Lordships' Board and other parties described as digwar ghatwals, alleging that three mouzahs known as Kendua, Parira and three-quarters of Garh Parira in the Burdwan District of Bengal were included in his zemindari, and that this being so he was the proprietor of the mineral rights under the said mouzahs, and that Secretary of State and digwars had purported to grant leases of the mineral rights to the defendant Companies, and praying that it might be declared that he was the rightful owner of the minerals and that the lessees and sub-lessees had no right to them and should be restrained by injunction from trespassing and working the minerals, and asking for damages with interest and costs.

The Secretary of State in his defence said that the plaintiff was never within 12 years in possession of the mineral rights claimed by him, and that he and the defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 5 had been for more than the said period openly and as of right in enjoyment of the minerals, and that the three mouzahs did not form part of the permanently settled estate of the plaintiff, but had been digwari chakran from before the Permanent Settlement of 1793. He further denied the plaintiff's title to the minerals. The other defendant set up similar defences.

Issues having been settled by the Subordinate Judge, the case was transferred by the District Judge to his Court in July, 1917, and heard by him on oral and documentary evidence in the months of April and May, 1918.

On the 28th May, 1918, he delivered judgment supporting all three of the defences raised, i. e., holding that the plaintiff had no title to the villages in suit, that if he had been the landowner he would not have the right to the minerals which would still be in the Crown, and that the defence of adverse possession and consequent limitation was also good.

The appeal being taken to the High Court of Judicature at Calcutta, that Court on the 24th July 1921, reversed the judgment, and while refusing the plaintiff some of the relief which he claimed, made a decree in his favour in terms following:—

"It is ordered and decreed that the plaintiff be and he is hereby entitled to a declaration that the mouzahs in dispute and described in the plaint out of which this appeal arises together with the minerals underlying them are included within his permanently settled estate, that he is the rightful owner of the minerals in the mouzahs and that none of the defendants has any right to the minerals in the mouzahs. And it is further ordered and decreed that a perpetual injunction do issue restraining the defendants from working coal or other minerals in the mouzahs."

The Secretary of State and the Companies have appealed to His Majesty in Council from this decree.

The ground upon which the High Court held that the mouzahs in dispute with the minerals underlying them were with the permanently settled estate was that they were what is called thanadari lands. Having so decided, the Judges thought that the further defence of limitation was not good, nor was the defence good that the minerals under these villages belonged to the Crown. Their Lordships will take the question of ownership first.

The learned Counsel for the respondent Rajá when it came to their turn, while accepting and supporting the reasoning of the Hight Court rested the main strength of their argument upon two other grounds, the first of which comes to be discussed in logical order before the submissions made by the appellants.

This first argument was founded upon the language of the Regulations of 1790 and 1793, which established the Decennial and Permanent Settlements of Bengal, Orissa, and Behar, Regulation VIII of 1793, sub-s. 4 speaks of the settlement being "concluded with the actual proprietors of the soil whether zemindars, talukdars or chaudhris".

Upon the strength of this and other passages in the Regulations, it was urged that the Government of the day recognised a pre-existing right in the zemindars and others and did not confer rights by the Settlement, and consequently that it was possible that lands owned by a zemindar—though not lakhiraj or thanadari—might never have been settled and yet be his property and so might descend to the successors-in-title of the original zemindar, having remained unsettled through all these years,

Whether such lands according to the argument were to be reckoned as part of a zemindari as to be treated as de hors the zemindari was not made clear.

The argument receives no support from decided cases and appears at first sight to be contrary to the teaching of the text-book but their Lordships are relieved from considering its force because it was never submitted to either of the Courts in India.

Courts of Final Appeal—whether it be the House of Lords or this Board—have long established it for themselves as a principle of wisdom and prudence that they should be very chary of entertaining an argument which has not been sifted in the Courts below; and if this be true as a general rule, it is especially true when the question to be decided concerns the diversified and complicated Indian Law as to tenure of land.

Not only is there no trace of this point having been brought before the Indian Courts; but it is apparent that the case of the respondent was rested from the beginning on other grounds, para. 2 of his plaint states that the three mouzahs in question are "included in the revenue-paying ancestral zemindari of the plaintiff known as Chakla Pachete."

The 2nd issue as suggested by the plaintiff was: "Are the Mouzahs Kendua, Parira and three-fourths of Garh Parira situate within Chakla Panchkote the premanently-settled zemindars of the plaintiff, and are they included within the said Permanent Settlement? and as actually fixed, was in the following words:

"Were the mouzahs in suit permanently settled by Government with the plaintiff's ancestors, and is the plaintiff by right of such settlement entitled to the mineral rights under the mouzahs?"

These things being so, their Lordships do not feel that they ought to give further consideration to this argument.

The argument, however, as to the kind of recognition which was given to those who were in the position of zemindari at the time of the Decennial and Permanent Settlements and the deductions to be drawn not only from the Regulations but from the despatches and minutes of those in authority is not, as will be noticed hereafter, without valuable bearing upon the question, which in their Lordships' opinion is the real question which was intended to be raised, that is, whether the three mouzahs were permanently settled with the plaintiff's ancestors and form part of the plaintiff's zemindari.

The zemindari of the Raja of Pachete is of great size and is said to extend over more than 2,000 square miles, with more than a thousand villages or mouzhas upon it. The three mouzahs in question are interlocked with the unquestioned portion of the zemindari but it is doubtful whether all three are absolutely enclosed in it. The topographical situation is such as to afford some slight presumption that the three mouzahs are part of the zemindari.

The contents of the plaintiff's estate are to be deduced from the kabuliyat given by the then Raja upon the occasion of the Permanent Settlement of his zemindari in the year 1793.

The divergence of the two Courts in India begins with the construction of this kabuliyat.

The material parts of it are as follows:—

"This kabuliyat is executed by me Maharaja Sri Sri Raghunath Narayan Deb to the effect following:—That my zemindari Pargana Punchkoti, etc., appertaining to the Province of Bengal, the paradise of the world, exclusive of Gunjes, Bazars and Hats and of the entire sayerats and mutfara (ground rents) and exclusive of all lakheraj lands whether sanadi or besanadi of that pargana, is settled with me in mokurrari as my Tahut for the term of ten years from 1197 B. S. to 1206 B. S. as per schedule below, at a jumma of sicca Rs. 52,853 (fifty-two thousand eight hundred and fifty-three) annually, i. e. at sicca Rs. 5,28,530 (five lakhs twenty-eight thousand five hundred and thirty) in the total, inclusive of all abwabs in force in the said zillah. So I agree, and give in writing that I shall pay the said amount of revenue as per separate kistibandi without excuse or variation. . . . And I shall file within the current year in the Zilla Record Room a list under my signature, showing village by village the mofussil distribution of the jumma fixed in the Sadar for my Tahut in proportion to the rentals therefrom together with the areas of talabi and betalabi lands within the four boundaries of the settled Hudda. And in future in the beginning of each year, within the first three months, I shall deliver a list of such distribution of revenue. In case of neglect or delay in this matter, I shall be answerable to the Government. I shall not without the Huzur's permission and advice make any Brahmottar, Debottar, Mahatran, Aima, Midadmas, Piran and Fakiran grants, etc.—any sort of lakheraj (tenures)—to anybody in the said pargana."

The schedule, if ever there were one, is missing. There are certain sarsikan papers of 1790 bearing the signature of the Raja, which in the opinion of the District Judge represent the list which the Raja undertook to file within the current year showing not only the mofussil distribution of the jumma but also the area of the lands whether talabi or betalabi. These sarsikan papers mention 1,197 villages. They do not contain the three mouzahs in question. They contain, however—and this is of some importance—the name of one mouzah stated to be occupied by digwars and to be paying a rent.

The three mouzahs in question in this suit have been in the occupation of the digwar ghatwals for as far back as can be traced, certainly for a period anterior to the settlement with the Raja. They may, notwithstanding, be within his zemindari; or the digwars may hold directly of the sovereign power as co-ordinate with rather than subordinate to the Raja.

In the weighty judgment prepared and delivered in 1855 on behalf of the Board by Mr. Pemberton Leigh (afterwards Lord Kingsdown) in the case of Raja Lelanund Singh Bahadoor v. Bengal Government (1), an account was given of the three classes of service tenures which are or were not uncommon in India.

The lowest class of chakran lands are those held by minor officers of the zemindar whom he appoints and with whose services he could dispense, thereupon resuming their lands for the purpose of imposing upon them suitable rent. Next in order come the thanadars, Police officials, whom in old times it was the duty of the zemindar to provide, whom he allowed to occupy their lands, either rent free or subject only to a quit rent, and in respect of whom the Government made an allowance to the zemindar to recompense him for the rent which he had lost.

By Regulation I, s. 8, cl. 4 of 1793, it was provided that the zemindars might be relieved of their Police duties; and in that case, the Government might resume the allowances or the produce of the lands, as it thought proper. In such cases, the zemindars would in turn resume the lands of their subordinate thanadars.

A higher class is that of ghatwals, some of whom, as mentioned in Lord Kingsdown's judgment, might be persons of high rank, though in other cases the position of a ghatwal might be treated as "something between that of a chowkidar and an office peon," to adopt the language of the District Judge in this case.

But whatever their dignity, these ghatwals were always of ancient date. It is said by the High Court in this case that the East India Company never treated a ghatwali tenure; and though there is some indication in the narrative in Lord Kingsdown's judgment, that there actually were creations of some ghatwali tenures in that case, no doubt the action of the East India Company was generally confined to recognition and confirmation. Digwars in this district appear to take the same position as ghatwals in other districts.

Still the question remains—were the officers of the highest class always subordinate to the zemindar, or were they sometimes co-ordinate? In the case of Raja Lelanund Singh Bahadoor v. Bengal Government (1), it was held that the Raja had made his settlement for his zemindari as a whole or block, that the ghatwali lands were included in this settlement, and that the ghatwals held of him. Indeed, it was agreed and admitted in that case that the ghatwali lands formed part of the zemindari, the holders paying a quit rent to the zemindar.

But as stated in the judgment already quoted, the nature and extent of their rights probably differed in different districts and in different families. That judgment refers to the tenures in Beerbhoom, the holders of which—though no doubt they paid a fixed rent to the zemindar—are entitled to hold their lands in perpetuity, subject to the performance of certain duties. (See Regulation XXXIX of 1814).

The classes of possible ghatwali tenures and their nature are described in much detail in the case of Kumar Satya Narain Singh v. Raja Satya Niranjan Chakravarti (2), in which the judgment of the Board was delivered by Lord Sumner in 1923, dealing with the Sonthal Parganas. He says:—

"In the Sonthal Barganas there are for practical purposes three classes of ghatwali tenures; (a) Government ghatwalis created by the ruling power; (b) Government ghatwalis, which since their creation and generally at the time of the Permanent Settlement have been included in a zemindari estate and formed into a unit in its assessment; and (c) zemindari ghatwalis, created by the zemindar or his predecessors and alienable with his consent. The second of these classes is really a branch of the first. The matter may, however, be looked at broadly. In itself, 'ghatwal' is a term meaning an office held by a particular person from time to time, who is bound to the performance of its duties, with a consideration to be enjoyed in return by the incumbent of the office. Within this meaning the utmost variety of conditions may exist. . . . The superior who appoints him, may also in the varying circumstances of the organisation of Hindustan be the ruling power over the country at large, the landholder responsible by custom for the maintenance of security and order within his estates, or simply the private person, to whom the maintenance of watchmen is, in the case of an extensive property, important enough to require the creation of a regular office."

The tenure though peculiar, because of a certain reserved power of selection, nevertheless ranks as hereditary [Durga Prashad Singh v. Trebini Singh (3)]. Colonel Dalton, Commissioner of Chota Nagpur, in a letter of 14th June, 1869, (Record, part II, page 389), gives a useful account of their origin.

While, therefore, it may well be—and in fact it is ascertained in respect of some tenures in this very case—that the digwars or ghatwals are subordinate to the zemindar, it is always a question of fact whether they are or are not subordinate; and it is upon this footing that the Courts in India and their Lordships have approached the present case.

That the burden was upon the respondent to prove that they are part of his zemindari is well settled. The case of Forbes v. Meer Muhomed Tuqueé (4), where this Board held that the disputed lands were within the geographical limit of the zemindari and yet not proved to be of it, is strong on this point (see pages 457* and 458*).

Now the point made by the District Judge is that the kabuliyat covers the whole estate of the Raja, that it refers to a list of villages and undertakes to show village by village the mofussil distribution of the jumma, that in fact the list (i.e., the sarsikan papers) does show the revenue set aside for each, and, therefore, in his view, it is not an engagement for a block but a series of engagements for the several villages which are parcel of the zemindari.

---

(1) 6 M. I. A. 101; 4 W. R. P. C. 77; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 505; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 248; 19 E. R. 38.

(2) 79 Ind. Cas 825; 54 I. A. 37 at p. 50; A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 5; 28 C. W. N. 351; 5 P. L. T. 171; 3 Pat 183 (P. C.).

(3) 48 Ind. Cas. 527; 45 I. A. 251; 24 M. L. T. 407; 28 C. L. J. 508; 9 L. W. 60; 21 Bom. L. R. 569; 46 C. 362 (P. C.).

(4) 13 M. I. A. 438; 14 W. R. P. C. 28; 5 B. L. R. 529; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 358; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 588; 20 E. R. 614.

ages of 13 M. I. A.—[Ed.]

The learned Judges in the High Court are of opinion that the engagement was for the block, and that it was only intended to enumerate the villages which paid revenue.

But the Raja had made a previous return of the bazizamin or lakhiraj lands within the zemindari, in 1771. These villages are not included in that return. Further, he undertakes in the kabuliyat to set out in his list the areas of both talabi and betalabi lands. If these mouzahs were in the zemindari they should be in some list.

Then there is a point which the High Court makes upon the description. This rests on the words: "my zemindari of Pargana Punchkoti, etc" There really seems little in this. If the word pargana is used in its more technical sense, Punchkoti must be taken as the same as Pachete; and then as his zemindari contained other parganas, they must be read as enumerated here. It is, however, quite possible that pargana is used loosely for chakla, a not very technical word which may embrace several parganas, and the "etc." may stand for the fraction or kismet of Shergarh, which is divided between three parganas. Reference upon this head may be made to Hunter's Imperial Gazetteer of India, Volume 7, page 277, under title Panchet. Incidently it may be mentioned that Hunter takes the views that all the villages in this zemindari were mentioned in one or other of the two documents.

The word "etc."—or whatever may be its Indian equilvalent—seems to give no assistance in arriving at the answer to the one question: "Is this kabuliyat an engagement for the whole block or for a number of villages set out seriatim?"

A suggestion made by the High Court was also pressed at their Lordships' Bar by Counsel for the respondent Raja was rested upon the fact that the kabuliyat apparently contemplates two documents, one to be delivered in the first year which is to show both the distribution of the revenue village by village and the areas of talabi and betalabi lands, and the other being the annual document which is to be confined to the distribution of the revenue.

The suggestion is that the sarsikan papers represent the second kind of list and, therefore, would not have any mention of lands within the zemindari which paid no revenue and might be called betalabi.

It is a possible explanation.

After the sariskan papers, the only early documents are Lala Kanji's report and the lot bundi papers of 1795, 1803 and 1807. As to these latter, the argument for the appellants is based upon the fact that when the property of the Raja was to be sold for non-payment of revenue, the Collector was directed to take a convenient unit and that there be put up for sale all the villages in the pergunnah within which the three villages in suit are supposed to be topographically situate, and that these three are not included, the Collector's return showing that he had intended to include every village in the pergunnah except certain villages already sold.

The argument is of weight, but there is again an explanation to be offered for the respondent. It is said that the sale was for the purpose of procuring money, and that these are not revenue-producing villages, and that supposing that they were as the respondent contends within the limits of the zemindari, the rights of the Raja to some possible reversion or some claim to the minerals were in those days so shadowy that they would not be thought of.

This, however, is not the view taken by either of the Courts in India. Both have thought that these villages were omitted because the Government Officers did not think that they were in the zemindari.

Now as regards Lala-Kanji's report, both sides rely upon it, but it is more valuable to the respondent than to the appellants. It appears in two forms, one abbreviated and one fuller. It was made in 1799 and has been preserved by reason of its being made the appendix to the report of Captain Hannyngton in 1841.

It is a Police Report in answer to the enquiry whether besides the digwars there were any other Police guards in Chakla Pachete—with further enquiries as to the pay of the digwars and other Police guards.

Lala-Kanji says that besides the digwars there are other guards of three classes, jagirdars, ghatwals, who are under the digwars and village chowkidars.

His report states that there were formerly 86 ghats under the digwars, and that in 23 of them the establishment was kept up and is yet in some places: that 13 were under the Raja who paid them, but that since the fixing of thanas and the Government taking from the zemindar Rs. 1,600 yearly for thana expenses, the ghatwals had been dismissed.

Then he says that there were $57\frac{3}{4}$ or $57\frac{1}{2}$ digwari villages, the rent of which was fixed in 1771 by Mr. Higginson at Rs. 5,000; but later on he proceeds to say that no rent is paid for these villages except for the one village of Kasthulia. He adds that the digwars hold their respective jagir villages in lieu of service without payment of rent, and he includes two if not three of the villages in suit, in the list appended to his report which is headed "Particulars about the jagir mouzahs of the digwars in the Pergunnah Pachete." From all this it is sought to be inferred that he treated these villages or thought Mr. Higginson treated them as within the zemindari.

On the other hand, he distinguishes the digwars from the jagirdars who paid two-thirds rent and received one-third for their service, and he speaks of the ghatwals in 13 ghats having been dismissed, which is what one would except if they held their lands from the Raja by a service tenure. Then the probability would be that those who looked after the other 23 ghats did not hold of the Raja.

Mr. Hunter, Collector, reports in 1794 that the only sum appropriated to Police establishments, is the "resumed thanadari allowance" of Rs. 1,662. Counsel for the respondent stress the word "sum," but if there were lands so appropriated, it is curious that they were not mentioned.

Further, Captain Hannyngton—to whom we owe the preservation of Lala-Kanji's report, and who wrote in August, 1841, before the Mutiny and before the great local destruction of papers which the Mutiny brought about—in giving an account of the digwari or Police lands in his district, says:—

"These lands have been held from time immemorial by a species of Police termed digwars or jagirdars or ghatwals whose tenures are feudal and hereditary. They are of two classes.

"First, the digwars with their followers the ghatwals. These held their lands in lieu of wages and absolutely rent-free. It is to be specially remarked that the digwari lands were not included in the Permanent Settlement. The digwars themselves are appointed (regard being, however, had to hereditary claims) and are liable to be dismissed by the Magistrate. On these grounds it is held that the actual property of the soil is vested in the British Government. This is not denied by either the zemindars or the digwars." In that report he mentions, incidentally, that it has been ascertained that coal mines exist in one of the digwar villages, not however being one of those in suit.

In regard to all this part of the case, it is to be remembered that under Regulation XVIII of 1805, passed for policing the jungle mahals of which Pachete was one, the zamindar was made a Police Magistrate, and as such would have a hierarchical superintendence of the digwars so far as they were required to perform Police duties and care must be taken not to confound this superintendence with what may be called feudal overlordship.

Captain Hannyngton in the same document speaks of the Raja's having made serious encroachments on the digwari lands.

Counsel for the respondent relied on this statement and suggested that as there was no evidence that these so-called encrochments had ever been set aside, they must be treated as acts of ownership and valuable assertions of title by the Raja.

But he seeks to strengthen his case, and there is force in his contention, by reference to the same Bengal Regulations of 1793 on which Counsel relied for the proposition which their Lordships have rejected as not raised in the present case.

The argument is this. The Raja or Maharajah was before cession to or conquest by the East India Company—and the argument preferred conquest to cession—a sovereign power tributary to the Great Mogul, but otherwise in possession of sovereign rights. These villages must have formed part of his territory and must be taken to have been at some very remote date granted by him to be held of himself by military service or military or Police service: Therefore, the ownership of the land was in him; and when the Government in 1792 expressed its intention of settling with the proprietors of the soil, this would mean that the Government would recognise him as proprietor of the whole area.

As already stated, there is force in this contention. But there is an opposite side. If the Raja was a sovereign, and his territory was conquered, it was conquered from him as a sovereign and not as a landowner, and it by no means follows that when, to use the Raja's own expression, "he was gradually reduced to a zamindar," it would be the intention of the Government to recognise him as landowner throughout the area of his sovereignty; and in particular when it came to lands held on military tenure by public officers, the Government might very reasonably desire that these officers should be responsible to it and be—to use the language already quoted in the judgment delivered by Lord Sumner—Government ghatwals created by the ruling power rather than Government ghatwals which as the time of the Permanent Settlement were to be included in a zamindari.

When to all this it is added that the legal status of a Raja as a tributary Prince is quite vague and uncertain, probably varying with the power and activity of the Emperor at the moment reigning at Delhi, that it is agreed that these digwars have existed from time immemorial and may be coeval with the Raja and may have been created or recognised by a soveregin power superior to both, it follows that this class of argument would merely land their Lordships in the region of speculation. The only safe course, therefore, is to see what actually has been written or done.

Much weight was attached by the High Court and by Counsel for the respondent in their arguments to the opinion of Mr. Millet in his report of 1842. He appears to have been acting as legal adviser to the Bengal Government and to have given a legal opinion upon certain materials submitted to him. He assumed certain facts for the purpose of his opinion, but his assumption only shows at best that there was at that time a general opinion among the Government officials, as there was when resumption proceedings were started in the present century, that in some shape or other the digwars were tenure holders under the Raja.

Mr. Millet's view (or the view of those who instructed Mr. Millet) is opposed to that of Captain Hannyngton and Colonel Dalton.

The other matters which were relied upon for the Raja were a return made in a mulki form in 1841, in which the then Raja included in his list of properties the villages in possession of the two digwars. There is no doubt that there are errors in this return, and the mere fact that it does not appear that the Government made a protest against it, does not come to much. Then there is the placing of these lands on the General Register of revenue-paying lands, called "the A register" after the Pargana of Shergarh was transferred into the district of Burdwan in 1871. On what grounds the Collector did this does not appear. That it would not come to the knowledge of the digwars seems pretty certain. The Collector, however, had no power to adjudicate upon title; and this matter and the payment of small sums to the Raja in some land acquisition proceedings fall into the class of instances when the Government official apparently took the opposite view to that which had been taken by Captain Hannyngton and the other earlier officers. They make some evidence against the Secretary of State but none against the other appellants.

More important perhaps is the action of the Government—though it proved abortive—in taking steps to effect a resumption of these lands as between themselves and the Raja in the years between 1904 and 1908. But except that these are more elaborate and solemn proceedings, the same observations apply to them as to other official proceedings of late date.

Against the expression of the opinion by Government officials upon which the respondent relies may be set the comparatively early opinion of Captain Hannyngton and that of Colonel Dolton.

There is no evidence except the encroachment censured by Captain Hannyngton of any act of ownership or suzerainty on the part af the Raja. He has not taken the waste land of the mouzahs. He did not choose members of the families to be the digwars, nor did he approve the choice, except during the period when he was made Daroga or head Police Officer.

If there was substantial evidence that the possession of the property had been in accordance with the respondent's contention the explanations which his Counsel have offered in respect of the sarsikan papers and the lot bundi papers might be accepted.

But the contrary has been the case. The existence of practicable mines of coal has been known since at least 1860, when as the respondent himself says in his pleading that the minerals under the village of Garh Parira were let by digwars to Mr. Erskine. There have been further leases and assignments of leases and workings in at least one of the villages off and on from that time since. A claim was made by the respondent in 1907, but he did not follow it up till he brought the present proceedings in September 1914. Presumption should not be made against but in favour of the existing state of things.

Their Lordships are, therefore, of opinion as indeed were both the Courts in India, that in the ordinary sense of the word these villages were not within the zemindari of the respondent, or to put it in another way, both Courts held that they were neither malguzari nor chowkidar chakran.

The High Court however—and this is the third point to be discussed—decided in his favour upon the theory that they were thanadari lands. Whether it is right as a matter of terminology to describe thanadari lands as being within the zemindari or outside need not be here discussed.

No doubt the holders of thanadari land stand in a certain position to the contiguous zemindar. If the lands are resumed; they are to be settled with the zemindar; and it may be that they may even be described as settled with the zemindar in a certain sense, and that there is a sort of superiority in the zemindar which might entitle him to the surface of the land in case of escheat. Whether this would give him a claim to the minerals is a further question. But for the purposes of this case their Lordships will assume that such things are possible.

But if so, the respondent is in the same difficulty in dealing with the actual facts. If the minerals should be his because they are under thanadari lands, he has been as already pointed out, backward in asserting his rights.

However, in the view of the High Court these are thanadari lands, and their Lordships must deal with this view. They got little help in this respect from Counsel for the respondent who preferred the suggestion that they were "like thanadari lands."

At first sight the view of the High Court appears contrary to the Regulations.

The Regulation of 7th December, 1792, is as follows:—

"First. The Police of this country is in future to be considered under the exclusive charge of the officers of Government who may be specially appointed to that trust. The landholders and farmers of land, who keep up establishments of thanadars and Police Officers for the preservation of the peace, are accordingly required to discharge them, and all landholders and farmers of land are prohibited entertaining such establishments in future." (Colebroke, page 168).

And s. 8, sub-s. 4 of Regulation I of 1793:—

"Fourth. The jumma of those zemindars independent talukdars and other actual proprietors of land, which is declared fixed in the foregoing articles, is to be considered entirely unconnected with and exclusive of any allowances which have been made to them in the adjustment of their jumma for keeping up thannahs or Police establishments, and also of the produce of any lands which they may have been permitted to appropriate for the same purpose: and the Governor-General in Council reserves to himself the option of resuming the whole or part of such allowances or produce of such lands according as he may think proper, in consequence of his having exonerated the proprietors of land from the charge of keeping the peace and appointed officers on the part of Government to superintend the Police of the country...."

But the learned Judges of the High Court took the view that thanadari lands though made resumable, were not always resumed. This view is a difficult one to support in the face of the observations of this Board in the cases of Raja Lelanund Sing Bahadoor v. The Bengal Government (1), Joykishen Mokerjee v. Collector of East Burdwan (5) and Ranjit Singh v. Kali Dasi Debi (6).

But a further difficulty is created by the documents in this particular case.

Mr. Leslie, the Collector, reporting in August, 1793, says that at the making of the Decennial Settlement in his district, no allowance was made for Police Officers to any of the zemindars except the Pachete Raja who got a deduction from his revenue of Rs. 1,662 for the maintenance of thanadars. Mr. Leslie proceeds to say that he has directed the Raja to discharge the thanadars employed by him at the end of the present month and to pay to the revenue Rs. 1,662, which it is known he did pay. The sum is slightly differently stated by Lala Kanji as Rs. 1,600.

If these lands were thanadari, why have they not been long ago resumed? If they had been resumed, Government would have acquired an increase of revenue from the

---

(5) 10 M. I. A. 16 at p. 44; 1 W. R. P. C. 26; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 542; 2 Sar. P. C. J 54; 19 E. R. 879.

(6) 40 Ind. Cas. 981; 44 I. A. 117 at p. 122; 21 C. W. N. 609; 32 M. L. J. 565; 15 A. L. J. 390; 25 C. L. J. 499; 19 Bom. L. R. 462; (1917) M. W. N. 459; 6 L. W. 101; 2 P. L. W. 1; 44 O. 841; 22 M. L. T. 489 (P. C.).

Raja, and the Raja would have been able to draw rent from the land.

As their Lordships have already observed in dealing with the earlier part of the case, the long established usage and possession is not reconcilable with the theory that these are thanadari lands.

In considering the effect of the kabuliyat the principles of the decisions in the Duke of Beaufort v. Mayor Aldermen and Burgesses of Swansea (7) fortified by the observations in the judgments of this Board delivered by the Earl of Halsbury in Van Diemen's Land Co. v. Table Cape Marine Board (8), and by Lord Atkinson in Watcham v. Attorney-General of East Africa Protectorate (9) may be applied, viz, that should the general words of an ancient grant be uncertain, they may be fairly explained by subsequent usage.

The result is that, in the opinion of their Lordships, these lands are not thanadari lands, and the District Judge was right on the first point to be decided, viz., whether these mauzahs were or were not within the Raja's zemindari. Having arrived at this conclusion their Lordships deem it unnecessary and inadvisable to pronounce upon the other two defences raised by the several appellants. The question whether mines and minerals belonged to landowners or to the Government is a far reaching one, on which they would be unwilling to embark without having the fullest assistance of Counsel.

In a case which came before this Board several years ago, the Japanese Government v. P. & O. Steam Navigation Company (10) two points of great public importance were raised by the decision of the Court under appeal, and their Lordships having come to the conclusion that they must advise His Majesty to reverse the decision of the Court below on the first ground, abstained from expressing any opinion on the second ground while they carefully explained that in so doing they were not to be held to have given any authority thereby to that part of the decision which they did not touch. Their Lordships would desire to be understood to be acting in the same way in the present case.

The respondent has failed to prove that he has any right to the minerals under these three villages, and the decision of the High Court must be reversed and that of the District Judge restored. This is all that their Lordships have to do. They have not to determine as between the two sets of appellants which is entitled to the mines, nor who is entitled to them.

The appeals will be allowed with costs here and below for both sets of appellants and unfortunately provision must be made for the costs of the abortive hearing in December, 1924. On that occasion, owing to the misconduct of the Solicitor then acting for the respondent, he was not represented; and it was not till after their Lordships had heard the appellants' Counsel for several days and the arguments had been concluded, that it was discovered that the absence of Counsel for the respondent at their Lordships' Bar was due to the misconduct of his Solicitor.

The case has accordingly been set down again and heard anew. As it was due to no fault of the appellants that the respondent was not represented at the first hearing, they must have the costs of their attendance at that hearing. But their Lordships think that the respondent need not be charged with the costs occasioned by his motion to restore his case to the paper and that in respect of this motion which was heard on two occasions, each party should bear his own costs. Their Lordships would humbly advise His Majesty accordingly.

R. L. Appeal allowed.

Solicitors for the Appellant:—The Solicitor India Office.

Solicitors for the Respondents:—Messrs. Downer & Johnson and Sanderson, Lee & Co.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 748 OF 1923.

September 21, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice Jackson.

PALIKANJI CHETTIAR—DEFENDANT—PETITIONER

versus

KRISHNA IYER—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXIII, rr 1, 2—Leave to withdraw suit with liberty to bring fresh suit—Formal defect, what is—Defect in substance, whether ground for granting leave.

---

(7) (1819) 3 Ex. 413; 154 E. R. 905; 77 R. R. 677.

(8) (1906) A. C. 92; 75 L. J. P. C. 28; 54 W. R. 498; 93 L. T. 709; 22 T. L. R. 114.

(9) (1919) A. C. 533; 87 L. J. P. C. 150; 34 T. L. R. 481; 120 L. T. 258.

(10) (1895) A. C. 644; L. J. P. C 107; 11 R. 493; 72 L. T. 881; 8 Asp. M. C. 50

Where a defendant has succeeded in showing that certain facts were lacking which were essential to the plaintiff's cause of action, the Court has no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C., to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.

On an application to withdraw a suit the Trial Court has only a limited jurisdiction. It is not unconditionally empowered to permit a plaintiff to withdraw his plaint under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C. If the plaint is defective the only sort of defect which attracts the rule is a formal defect, and not a defect in substance.

In permitting a plaintiff to withdraw his plaint by reason of a defect not in form but in substance the Court exercises a jurisdiction not vested in it by law.

Javvadi Chinna Venkataramayya v. Bandi Veersami, 88 Ind. Cas. 665; 21 L. W. 282; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 617, referred to.

Petition, under s. 115 of Act V of 1908 and s. 107 of the Government of India Act, praying the High Court to revise an order of the Court of the District Munsif, Periyakulam, dated the 3rd February 1923, on I. A. No. 273 of 1923, in O. S. No. 1395 of 1920.

Mr. K. Rajah Iyer, for the Petitioner.

Mr. W. S. Subrahmania Iyer, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The petitioner seeks to revise the order of the District Munsif of Periyakulam, in I. A. No. 273 of 1923, in O. S. No. 1395 of 1920.

The plaintiff sued in 1920 to set aside a sale effected by his guardian in 1895 four years before he reached his majority in 1899. In para. 8 of his plaint he has stated that his guardian informed him that she sold the property because she was deceived by plaintiff's elder brother. In para. 7 it is alleged that the sale-deed contains fraudulent conditions. There is no other mention of fraud. In his written statement the defendant contended that plaintiff having failed to file a suit within 3 years of his attaining majority is barred by limitation (para. 11). Issues were framed, the second issue being: Is the suit in time in so far as it seeks to avoid the sale? One witness was examined and then plaintiff applied under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C. to withdraw his suit with leave to institute a fresh suit. His difficulty was that he was bound to fail on the second issue. The District Munsif allowed the application because "to refuse him the liberty he asks for would be virtually to decide the question of fraud against him without an actual trial, and would work out manifest injustice". As the Munsif observes in his opening sentence there is no allegation of fraud to bring the case under s. 18 of the Limitation Act and there is no such question of fraud in the case to be decided for or against the plaintiff. It cannot be said to be manifestly unjust to decide that no fraud has been proved as required by s. 18 when no such fraud has ever been alleged. What really happened is that after the defendant had succeeded in showing that certain facts were lacking which were essential to the plaintiff's cause of action, the plaintiff said that if he was allowed to re-draft his plaint he would add these essential facts and the Munsif thought it just to allow him to try a second plaint after the first had manifestly failed. It did not occur to the Munsif how very unjust it would be to the defendant, to allow the plaintiff to take up a new ground on matters of fact in this fashion as soon as his original ground was proved untenable. The order has no merits and the only remaining question is whether this Court ought to interfere under s. 115 of the C. P. C. In these matters the Court of Trial has a limited jurisdiction. It is not unconditionally empowered to permit a plaintiff to withdraw his plaint under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C. If the plaint is defective the only sort of defect which attracts this rule is a formal defect. The other sufficient grounds in r. 1 (2) (b) do not include defects of substance, otherwise there would be no object in inserting the earlier clause. The Statute could not run (a) by reason of some defect in form (b) by reason of some defect in substance, and if that were the intention it would simply enact by reason of any defect, and if an illustration were required explaining why defects are limited to formal defects, a better case would hardly be found than that now in question. It would be intolerable if as soon as a defendant had established that on the facts pleaded the plaintiff must fail, the plaintiff were at liberty to take back his plaint and supply additional facts. A law suit would then be like one of those combats in ancient mythology where the wound as soon as it is inflicted is miraculously healed.

I must find that in permitting the plaintiff to withdraw his plaint by reason of a defect not in form but in substance the District Munsif exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law. It is finally argued that this Court should not interfere because the fresh suit which the plaintiff was unjustifiably allowed to institute has progressed to some extent. The fact that injustice is about to fructify is no argument in its favour.

As regards the legal rulings on this question I have nothing to add to my judgment in a similar case reported as Javvadi Chinna Venkataramayya v. Bandi Veersami (1).

The order of the District Munsif is set aside with costs to petitioner.

V. N. V. Order set aside.

---

(1) 88 Ind. Cas. 665; 21 L. W. 282; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 617.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 79 OF 1925.
March 12, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Misra.
BHAGWAT PRASAD—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
SHER KHAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 80—Deposition—Identity of deponent, proof of—Execution of document—Illiterate executant—Document signed by another at request of executant—Authority to sign.

Under s. 80 of the Evidence Act the presumption can be made only as to the genuineness of the statement recorded in a deposition. No presumption can be made regarding the identity of the deponent. Where, however, the document containing the deposition is a very old document, the Court can turn to the deposition itself to find out whether there is inherent evidence of the identity of the deponent. [p. 986, col. 1.]

Where an illiterate person requests another to sign a document for him and the latter signs such document with a pen touched by the former, the signature must be taken to have been made under the authority of the executant himself. [p. 986, col. 2.]

Second appeal from the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Partabgarh, in Regular Civil Appeal No. 96 of 1924, setting aside that of the Munsif, Kunda at Partabgarh, dated the 21st April 1923, in Suit No. 372 of 1922.

Mr. Radha Krishna, for the Appellant.

Mr. Motilal Saksena, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a plaintiff's appeal in a redemption suit. The suit was brought to redeem an unregistered deed of mortgage, dated the 7th July 1850, alleged to have been executed by one Ganga in favour of one Imam Bakhsh for Rs. 9. The mortgaged property consisted of plot No. 163, measuring 1 bigha, 1 biswa, 12 biswansis held in under-proprietary right, situate in village Purkhotampur, District Partabgarh. The plaintiff claimed redemption as an assignee from the heirs of the original mortgagor.

The defendants contested the suit mainly on two grounds: firstly, that the mortgage set up by the plaintiff was not genuine, and secondly, that the suit of the plaintiff was barred by limitation inasmuch as it had been brought more than 60 years after the execution of the mortgage-deed. The plaintiff contended that the suit was not barred by limitation on the ground that in the year 1883 the mortgagee had, in a statement made by him in the Revenue Court, on the 2nd June 1883, acknowledged the mortgage which had the effect of extending the period of limitation under s. 19 of the Indian Limitation Act (Act IX of 1908).

The Trial Court, the learned Munsif of Kunda, District Partabgarh, found on both the points against the defendants and decreed the plaintiff's claim.

In appeal the learned Subordinate Judge agreed with the finding of the learned Munsif regarding the genuineness of the mortgage, but took a different view in respect of the question of limitation. He held that the statement relied upon by the plaintiff had not been proved to have been made by Gambhir Khan, the mortgagee, nor had it been established that Bisheshar Dayal patwari who purported to sign the statement on behalf of Gambhir Khan, had authority on his behalf to append his signature. In short the learned Subordinate Judge refused to make the presumption under s. 90 of the Indian Evidence Act (Act I of 1872). On these findings he held that the plaintiff's suit for redemption was barred by limitation and he, therefore, accepted the defendants' appeal, set aside the decree of the learned Munsif and dismissed the plaintiff's suit.

The plaintiff has now come up to this Court in second appeal and the learned Pleader on his behalf raises two main points:—

(1) That the identity of Gambhir Khan the deponent of the statement contained in Ex. 3, had been sufficiently established from the evidence on the record and that, in any case, the statement being an old one there was inherent evidence in that statement which proved the identity of Gambhir Khan and which should not, therefore, have been rejected by the learned Subordinate Judge.

(2) That the learned Subordinate Judge was wrong in not presuming that the signature of Gambhir Khan had been made by Bisheshar Dayal patwari, under the former's authority, the contention being that the presumption as to authority should have been made inasmuch as the said authority was established from the evidence on the record.

As to the first point the law on the subject appears to me to be clear. Under s. 80 of the Indian Evidence Act (Act I of 1872) the presumption has to be made as to the genuineness of the statement recorded. No presumption, however, can be made regarding the identity of the deponent. Where the document containing the deposition of a particular person is a very old document, one can turn to the deposition itself to find out whether there is inherent evidence of the identity of the deponent. Turning to Ex. 3 I find that the statement commences with the name of Gambhir Khan, son of Imam Bakhsh, resident of Jai Singh Garh, the place where defendants reside, that being the place of residence of their ancestors. It is also admitted that Imam Bakhsh was the father of Gambhir Khan. No room is, therefore, left for doubt that the statement contained in Ex. 3 is the statement of Gambhir Khan, the ancestor of defendants-respondents. In the view which I have taken I am supported by the decision of Daniels, A. J. C. (now Mr. Justice Daniels) in the case of Sarabjit v. Mata Din (1).

Apart from this I am also of opinion that from the evidence of Ram Narain (P. W. No. 3) the identity of Gambhir Khan has been sufficiently established. The witness deposed to the effect that he had a mutation case on his father's death and had gone to Tahsil in connection with that case. Gambhir too had gone there for the purpose of his case. The witness was called in Court and there saw Gambir put in a paper before the Court after getting it signed by Bisheshar Dayal patwari, because he himself was illiterate. The learned Subordinate Judge has considered this evidence insufficient to prove the statement of Gambhir Khan contained in Ex. 3. It appears to me that all that was required to be proved was the presence of Gambhir Khan at the time when the paper containing his statement had been put by him before the Tahsildar. What appears to me to have happened was that the Tahsildar had recorded the statement of Gambhir Khan and after recording that statement handed it over to him for his signature who after getting it signed on his behalf by Bisheshar Dayal, patwari, returned it to the Tahsildar. No other paper is proved to have been handed over at the time by Gambhir Khan to the Tahsildar. It, therefore, appears to me to be quite clear that Gambhir Khan's identity in respect of the statement contained in Ex. 3 has been amply established.

As to the second point, namely, the authority of Bisheshar Dayal patwari to sign on behalf of Gambhir Khan, the above mentioned witness, Ram Narain, P. W. No. 3 clearly stated that as Gambhir Khan was illiterate, Bisheshar Dayal signed for Gambhir at his request and with the pen touched by him. This amply proves the requisite authority: vide Mirza Haidar Ali v. Raja Jang Bahadur Khan (2).

I have, therefore, come to the conclusion that the statement made, by Gambhir Khan, contained in Ex. 3 has been amply proved on the evidence on the record and it constitutes a valid acknowledgment on behalf of Gambhir Khan of his liability in respect of the property held by him as a mortgagee. The acknowledgment contained in Ex. 3 being valid, the plaintiff's claim is within limitation.

The appeal is, therefore, allowed, the decree of the lower Appellate Court set aside and the decree of the learned Munsif restored, with costs in all the three Courts.

Z. K. Appeal allowed.

---

(1) 60 Ind. Cas. 437; 7 O. L. J. 542.

(2) 6 O. C. 279.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

TESTAMENTARY AND INTESTATE JURISDICTION.

February 2, 1925.

Present:—Mr. Justice C. C. Ghose.

IN THE GOODS OF BHUBANESHWAR TRIGONAIT—DECEASED.

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s. 19-I—Hindu Law—Joint family—Survivorship—Letters of Administration, application for—Court-fee payable.

No administration need be taken out to the estate of a Hindu governed by the Mitakshara Law when the estate passes by the right of survivorship to his co-parceners, but where a grant is sought the applicant must comply with the provisions of s. 19-I of the Court Fees Act. The provisions of the section are imperative and the Court has no power to relax them.

FACTS.—A Hindu died leaving behind an undivided younger brother and two undivided sons. The joint family was governed by the Mitakshara Law. An application was made for the grant of Letters of Administration but no Court-fees in compliance with s. 19-I of the Court Fees Act were paid. However, the petitioner produced a certificate from Taxing Officer under s. 19 D of the Court Fees Act. The Registrar in Insolvency objected saying "The karta of a joint Hindu family is not a mere trustee. He is also a beneficial owner. He can transfer the whole estate for good cause and confer a good title. He can also demand a partition..............It is, therefore, submitted that no grant can be made without the provisions of s. 19-I being first complied with."

JUDGMENT.—The application cannot be granted as there is no compliance with s. 19-I of the Court Fees Act.

Z. K. Application rejected.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 149 OF 1925.

April 16, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Misra.

HORILAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BACHCHU LAL AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 100—Second appeal—Custom, whether question of fact or law—High Court's power to interfere—Custom regarding zar chaharum—Finding as to evidence being insufficient to prove custom, whether open to attack in second appeal.

The High Court in second appeal is not justified in determining whether the evidence produced in a case as to the existence of the alleged custom is or is not credible, though the High Court is competent to examine the evidence and to determine whether the evidence produced establishes a valid and binding custom. [p. 990, col. 2.]

The question whether the facts found in any given instance prove the existence of essential attributes of a custom or usage is a question of law which may be discussed in second appeal but the question whether such a state of facts has been proved by the evidence is merely a question of fact. [p. 990, col. 1.]

Where, therefore, the lower Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the documentary and oral evidence produced is sufficient to prove a custom regarding "zar chaharum," the finding of fact as to custom arrived at by the lower Appellate Court in appeal is binding on the High Court and cannot be attacked in second appeal. [p. 990, col. 2.]

Muhammad Kamil v. Imtiaz Fatima, 4 Ind. Cas. 457; 31 A. 557; 10 C. L. J. 297; 11 Bom. L. R. 1210; 14 C. W. N. 59; 19 M. L. J. 697; 13 O. C. 183; 36 I. A. 210 (P. C.), Anant Singh v. Durga Singh, 6 Ind. Cas. 787; 32 A. 363; 14 C. W. N. 770; 12 C. L. J. 36; 7 A. L. J. 704; 13 O. C. 163; 37 I. A. 191; 12 Bom. L. R. 504; 8 M. L. T. 79; (1910) M. W. N. 327; 20 M. L. T. 604 (P. C.), Kailas Chandra Dutta v. Padma Kishore Roy, 41 Ind. Cas. 959; 45 C. 285; 25 C. L. J. 613; 21 C. W. N. 972, Kumarappa Reddi v. Manavala Goundan, 44 Ind. Cas. 699; 41 M. 374; 23 M. L. T. 44; 34 M. L. J. 104; 7 L. W. 243; (1918) M. W. N. 350, Hashim Ali v. Abdul Rahman, 28 A. 698; A. W. N. (1906) 187; 3 A. L. J. 467, Rao Girraj Singh v. Lala Haragobind Sahai, 4 Ind. Cas. 304; 32 A. 125; 7 A. L. J. 36, Bai Shirinbai v. Kharshedji, 22 B. 430; 11 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 869, Pragi v. Baiju, 4 O. C. 71, Lalman v. Nand Lal, 20 Ind. Cas. 894; 17 O. C. 1 and Tilak Ram v. Sita Ram, 30 Ind. Cas. 503; 2 O. L. J. 388, relied on.

Palaniappa Chetty v. Sreemath Deivasikamony Pandara Sannadhi, 39 Ind. Cas. 722; 40 M. 709 at p. 721; 21 C. W. N. 729; 15 A. L. J. 485; 1 P. L. W. 697; 33 M. L. J. 1; 19 Bom. L. R. 567; 22 M. L. T. 1; (1917 M. W. N. 507; 26 C. L. J. 153; 6 L. W. 222; 44 I. A 147 (P. C.), distinguished.

Kakarla Abbayya v. Raja Venkata Papayya Rao, 29 M. 24; 16 M. L. J. 8, dissented from.

Second appeal against a decree and judgment of the Additional Sub-Judge, Sitapur, up-holding that of the Munsif, Biswan, District Sitapur, dated the 6th December 1924.

Messrs. Radha Krishna and Niamat Ullah, for the Appellant.

Messrs. R. B. Lal and R. N. Shukla, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal arising out of a suit for recovery of "zar chaharum" in respect of the sale of a house situate in Mohalla Tarinpur, town Sitapur. The suit was brought by the plaintiff-appellant who is the owner of the said mohalla against the defendant-respondent No. 1 who has purchased a house situate in that mohalla from defendant-respondent No. 2 under a sale-deed dated 7th May 1918.

The suit was based on a custom alleged to have been prevalent in that locality. The vendee denied the alleged custom and contended that he was not liable to the plaintiff's claim.

The learned Munsif of Biswan, District Sitapur, who tried the suit held that the custom alleged by the plaintiff had not been established and on appeal the same view was held by the learned Additional Subordinate Judge of Sitapur.

The plaintiff has now come up in second appeal to this Court and it is contended on his behalf that the evidence on the record, oral and documentary, established the custom alleged by the plaintiff. It was also argued that the finding of the lower Appellate Court on the question of custom should not be accepted, because that Court in arriving at that finding had misinterpreted and misunderstood the documentary evidence.

The documentary evidence produced by the plaintiff-appellant in support of the alleged custom consisted of the village wajib-ul-arz (Ex. 1) and fard tasdiq abadi (Ex. 2). The wajib-ul-arz is silent as to custom. It recited custom regarding inheritance and other matters but there is no mention whatever about the custom regarding "zar chaharum." The para. 9 which relates to "abadi" and "bazar" states that a separate fard (list) containing the numbers of the houses occupied by riyaya (tenants) has been prepared and that they occupy the houses in accordance with the terms mentioned in the fard. I have read that fard (Ex. 2) and I do not find any column in it specified for recording the custom. There is no doubt that there is a column intended for the purpose of recording the statement of the tenants and under that column opposite some tenants there a record that the custom had been accepted by them (rewaj manzur hai) and opposite others that it was not accepted (rewaj manzur nahin). We do not find any record in the document showing that particular rewaj was accepted by the tenants and what was not accepted by them. At one place opposite No. 18/11 in the column prescribed for the recording of the statements of the occupants we find it recorded that the occupant of the house was not willing to pay the chaharum (hamko chaharum den hangam farokht amla makan ke manzur nahin hai). It was argued from this that the custom regarding which it was recorded in the column mentioned above whether it was acceptable or not, was the custom relating to chaharum. The learned Subordinate Judge declined to draw such an inference and I agree with him.

It, therefore, appears to me that in arriving at the finding relating to the alleged custom the learned Subordinate Judge has not misconstrued the documentary evidence referred to above.

The learned Subordinate Judge then proceeded to discuss in his judgment the rest of the documentary and oral evidence. The documentary evidence consisted of certain sale-deeds produced by the witnesses examined by the plaintiff in proof of the alleged custom and the oral evidence consisted of the same and other witnesses examined to prove the said custom.

As to the sale-deeds the learned Additional Subordinate Judge remarks that no doubt in most of them there is a mention of chaharum either to the effect that it had been paid to the landlord or to the effect that it had been left either with the vendee or the vendor for payment of the landlord, but except a few payments others were not proved to have been actually made. The earliest sale-deed stating the custom was dated the 19th April, 1898 (Ex. 9) and others were of the years 1901, 1905, 1908, 1912, 1920 and 1922. The learned Subordinate Judge held that these sale-deeds were of a recent date and were insufficient to prove an ancient custom. It was also pointed out by the learned Subordinate Judge that in the year 1918 there had been a litigation in respect of haq chaharum. One Hem Singh, a co-sharer with the plaintiff in the same mohalla, had brought a suit against a tenant and the suit had been dismissed by the Subordinate Judge of Sitapur and his judgment was upheld in appeal by the District Judge of Sitapur (Ex. A-1 and A-2). In this litigation also the wajib-ul-arz and fard tasdiq were produced by the landlord but his claim was rejected on the ground that they did not contain any record of the alleged custom. As to the oral evidence produced by the plaintiff he observed that some of them have ignored the existence of the custom, some of them have deposed about it half-heartedly and only some have admitted it.

The learned Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the documentary and the oral evidence produced by the plaintiff-appellant was insufficient to prove the custom.

It was contended before me strenuously by the learned Advocate who argued the case on behalf of the appellant at great length that this finding of fact should be examined and that I should go through the whole evidence again in order to find whether the finding arrived at by the lower Appellate Court was correct or not. The argument advanced was to the effect that the question of custom should be deemed to be a mixed question of law and fact and that the High Court in second appeal should go through the whole evidence in order to find out whether the custom had been established or not. Reliance was placed upon a ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council reported as Palaniappa Chetty v. Sreemath Deivasikamony Pandara

Sannadhi (1) and upon a ruling of the Madras High Court reported as Kakarla Abbayya v. Raja Venkata Papayya Rao (2).

In my opinion the contention of the learned Advocate for the appellant cannot be accepted and a High Court cannot in second appeal be asked to go into the evidence produced in a case in order to see whether the evidence produced is sufficient to establish an alleged custom, when the lower Appellate Court has reviewed the entire evidence and came to the conclusion that the evidence produced is insufficient to establish the custom.

It has been definitely settled by the Privy Council in number of cases that a question as to the existence of an alleged custom was a question of fact. In Muhammad Kamil v. Imtiaz Fatima (3) the custom alleged in the case was a family custom under which a widow having no male issue and a daughter was excluded from inheritance. Both the Courts in India decided that the alleged family custom had not been established. Their Lordships in appeal observed (page 570*) that the existence of such a custom was a question of fact and as to this question the Courts in India had concurred in their judgment and, therefore, on this point...their Lordships saw no reason why they should not follow the usual practice of accepting the concurrent findings of fact. In Anant Singh v. Durga Singh (4) the question involved was one of custom relating to the right of a step brother in a Hindu family of Ahbaran Thakurs to share equally with a brother of a whole blood in the succession of a deceased brother. The Trial Court had found the custom to have been proved but the Court of Appeal, the late Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, took a different view and held that the custom was not proved. Their Lordships agreed with the conclusion of the Court of Appeal and remarked at page 373† that the question involved was one of fact only and their Lordships did not see any reason whatsoever to differ from the opinion of the learned Judicial Commissioner.

It is, therefore, amply clear from the two decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council quoted above that the question of custom is a question of fact. A custom, however, in order to be a valid and binding custom must be proved to be ancient and invariable and, in my opinion, it can always be argued in second appeal whether the evidence produced in the case fulfils these requirements and so far the question can be considered to be a question of law. It is one thing to say that the evidence produced in a case was not legally sufficient to prove a custom and quite the other thing to say that the evidence produced in the case which had been held by the lower Appellate Court to be insufficient to prove the custom should be held in second appeal to be sufficient to prove the same. In Palaniappa Chetty v. Sreemath Devasikamony Pandara Sannadhi (1) upon which great reliance was placed by the learned Advocate for the appellant, the question was whether a local custom authorising and empowering a shebait to alienate devatter lands, whether alienation be a benefit to the devatter estate or not, had been established and their Lordships of the Privy Council discussed the evidence and came to the conclusion that no such ancient custom had been proved to exist. It would be appropriate to quote in extenso the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council on this point. Their Lordships observed on page 721* as follows :—

> "It has, however, been pressed on behalf of the appellants that there are two findings: one by the Munsif and one by the Subordinate Judge, who agrees with him that the ancient custom relied upon has been proved and that, as that is an issue of fact, it must be accepted. No doubt two findings upon questions of pure fact must be accepted by this Board, but the questions of the existence of ancient custom are generally questions of mixed law and fact; the Judge first finding what were the things actually done in alleged pursuance of custom, and then determining whether these facts so found satisfy the requirements of the law. This latter is a question of law not fact...
>
> ....
>
> There could scarcely be a more glarin

---

(1) 39 Ind. Cas. 722; 40 M. 709 at p. 721; 21 C. W. N. 729; 15 A. L. J. 485; 1 P. L. W. 697; 33 M. L. J. 1; 19 Bom. L. R. 567; 22 M. L. T. 1; (1917) M. W. N. 507; 26 O. L. J. 154; 6 L. W. 222; 44 I. A. 147 (P. C.).

(2) 29 M. 24; 16 M. L. J. 8.

(3) 4 Ind. Cas. 457; 31 A. 557; 10 C. L. J. 297; 11 Bom. L. R. 1210; 14 C. W. N. 59; 19 M. L. J. 697; 13 O. C. 183; 36 I. A. 210 (P. C.).

(4) 6 Ind. Cas. 787; 32 A. 363; 14 C. W. N. 770; 12 C. L. J. 36; 7 A. L. J. 704; 13 O. C. 163; 37 I. A. 191; 12 Bom. L. R. 504; 8 M. L. T. 79; (1910) M. W. N. 327; 20 M. L. T. 604 (P. C.).

*Page of 31 A.—[Ed.]

†Page of 32 A.—[Ed.]

*Page of 40 M.—[Ed.]

instance of the misapplication of the word 'custom,' or a more remarkable instance of forgetfulness of essentials of a custom which modifies the ordinary law."

On the strength of the above remarks it was contended that if a High Court in appeal could be considered to be justified in going through the evidence on the record in order to find out whether the evidence produced established the necessary elements required to prove a valid and binding custom, it could also go through the evidence to find out whether the evidence produced was sufficient to prove the custom. In my opinion the position cannot be maintained. In Kailas Chandra Dutta v. Padma Kishore Roy (5) it was held by Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ., that the question whether the facts found in any given instance proved the existence of the essential attributes of a custom or usage was a question of law which might be discussed in second appeal but the question whether such a state of facts had been proved by the evidence was merely a question of fact.

On page 290* Mookerjee, J., observed as follows:—

"But, although the question of the existence of an alleged custom is a question of fact, it is conceivable that the decision may involve an error of law so as to justify the interference of the High Court in second appeal. Thus, the decision is liable to attack in second appeal on the ground that irrelevant evidence has been received or that relevant evidence has been excluded. The decision may also be successfully attacked on the ground that there is no evidence of the alleged custom, or, as it is sometimes said, that the finding as to the existence of custom is based on legally insufficient evidence. The decision may, again, be assailed on the ground that the facts found do not constitute evidence of the alleged custom. The decision may, further, be liable to attack on the ground that in the determination of the question in controversy, legal principles or tests have been erroneously applied, for instance, that the Court has not correctly appreciated the essential attributes of a custom or has overlooked the distinction between a custom and a usage. Consequently, the question whether the facts found in any given instance prove the existence of the essential attributes of a custom or usage is a question of law, which may be discussed in second appeal. Obviously, the question whether a custom is reasonable or valid, is a question of law. Subject to these qualifications it is plain that the mere question of sufficiency of the evidence adduced to establish a custom is not a ground of second appeal." I am in entire agreement with the remarks quoted above.

I am fully aware that a contrary view was taken in the Madras High Court in the case of Kakarla Abbayya v. Raja Venkata Papayya Rao (2) quoted above. I must, however, respectfully dissent from the view taken in that case. As stated above the High Court in second appeal is not justified in determining whether the evidence produced in a case as to the existence of the alleged custom is or is not credible, though the High Court is competent to examine the evidence and to determine whether the evidence produced establishes a valid and binding custom. This case, I may also observe, has been overruled by a Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court reported as Kumarappa Reddi v. Manavala Goundan (6). It has been laid down in that case that a High Court is precluded from interference in second appeal with the findings arrived at by the lower Appellate Court of actual facts from which the existence of the custom has been inferred, but the inference as to the existence of the custom and the decision as to the validity thereof, are matters of law which can be entertained by the High Court in second appeal.

The view taken by me has also been taken by the Allahabad High Court in Hashim Ali v. Abdul Rahman (7) and in Rao Girraj Singh v. Lala Haragobind Sahai (8) and by the Bombay High Court in Bai Shirinbai v. Kharshedji (9). The same view was taken by the late Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh in Pragi v. Baiju (10) and in Lalman v. Nand Lal (11) and in Tilak Ram v. Sita Ram (12).

I, therefore, hold that the finding of fact as to custom arrived at by the learned Additional Subordinate Judge in appeal is binding on this Court and the appellant is not entitled to attack it in second appeal.

---

(5) 41 Ind. Cas. 959; 45 C. 285; 25 C. L. J. 613; 21 C. W. N. 972.

*Page of 45 C.—[Ed.]

(6) 44 Ind. Cas. 699; 41 M. 374; 23 M. L. T. 44; 34 M. L. J. 104; 7 L. W. 243; (1918) M. W. N. 350.

(7) 28 A. 698; A. W. N. (1906) 187; 3 A. L. J. 467.

(8) 4 Ind. Cas. 304; 32 A. 125; 7 A. L. J. 36.

(9) 22 B. 430; 11 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 869.

(10) 4 O. C. 71.

(11) 20 Ind. Cas. 891; 17 O. C. 1.

(12) 30 Ind. Cas. 503; 2 O. L. J. 338.

I was taken through the entire evidence in the case and I should like to state that there was no evidence which was ignored by the Subordinate Judge or wrongly treated as irrelevant or rejected as inadmissible.

The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

G. H.
R. L. Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 900 OF 1922.
April 1, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr. Justice Fforde.
JAGGI MAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
ARYA RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation XVII of 1806, s. 7—Object of Regulation—Mortgage with conditional sale—Notice to foreclose—Formalities—Bengal Land (Conditional Sales) Regulation I of 1798, s. 2—Omission to mention section—Notice demanding larger sum than due—Effect.

The object of the Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation XVII of 1806 is to give a warning to the mortgagor so as to enable him by taking action under the Regulation to preserve his right to redeem. [p. 992, col. 2.]

The omission to mention s. 7 of the Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation of 1806 in the notice is not fatal to its validity if the purport of the section is given in the notice. Similarly so long as the purport of s. 2 of the Bengal Land (Conditional Sales) Regulation I of 1798 is given in the notice specific reference to it is not imperatively necessary. [p. 992, col. 1.]

The demand for a larger sum than is actually due at the time of the notice is not a defect fatal to the validity of the notice. [p. 992, col. 2.]

Barkat Rai v. Ali, 21 Ind. Cas. 643; 91 P. R. 1913; 341 P. L. R. 1913; 223 P. W. R. 1913, followed.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Hissar, dated the 31st January 1922, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Gurgaon, dated the 21st April 1921.

Lala Nawal Kishore, for the Appellant.

Mr. Shamair Chand, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—On the 29th July 1889 Hukam Chand and others since deceased mortgaged a certain nauhra or stable to Bhola Singh for Rs. 1,000. The mortgage was by way of conditional sale for a term of seven years, the condition being that if the principal, interest and costs of repairs were not paid by the end of the said seven years the transaction would be considered to be one of sale. The mortgage was with possession and possession was given to the mortgagee. Nothing was paid and on the 29th May 1919 the heirs of Bhola Singh who had died applied to the District Judge of Hissar for the issue to the surviving mortgagor Hukam Chand of a notice of foreclosure under s. 8 of Regulation XVII of 1806. Notice was issued on the 4th June 1919 and served on Hukam Chand on the 10th of that month.

Before the expiry of the year of grace on the 27th May 1920 Hukam Chand sold the equity of redemption to Jaggi Mal who, on the 7th June 1920, instituted a suit for redemption on payment of Rs. 1,360. It was claimed that the notice issued on the 4th of June 1919 was null and void and that the mortgage was a subsisting one. It was also averred in the plaint that the sum of Rs. 1,360 had been tendered to the mortgagees who had refused to receive it.

The defendants contested the suit and pleaded the validity of the notice and in the alternative claimed a sum of Rs. 3,400 as due on account of principal and interest and the costs of repairs. They also asked for interest till the date of payment.

The Trial Court held that the notice was defective—

(1) because it omitted to state that the redemption was to be effected in the manner provided for by s. 7 of Regulation XVII of 1806;

(2) because s. 7 of Regulation XVII of 1806 was not mentioned in the notice; and

(3) because s. 7 had not been correctly copied out in the notice.

The plaintiff was, therefore, granted a decree on payment of a sum of Rs. 2,180.

The plaintiff appealed against that decree objecting to the amount allowed and the defendants filed cross-objections attacking the finding as to the invalidity of the notice. The learned District Judge held that the notice was perfectly valid and dismissed the plaintiff's suit with costs throughout.

The plaintiff Jaggi Mal has now come up to this Court in second appeal through Mr. Nawal Kishore and Mr. Shamair Chand has represented the respondents.

The first point for determination is whether the notice was valid. It appears that the notice issued was in the form prescribed as No. 165. It is true that s. 7 of the Regulation was not specifically referred to in it and authorities have been cited at the Bar in which this omission has been considered a fatal defect. More recent authorities, however, have laid down that the omission to mention this section is not fatal provided the purport of the section is given in the notice. An examination of the notice shows that the purport of s. 7 is contained therein.

Again it is urged that s. 2 of Regulation I of 1798 should have been specifically referred to. In my opinion so long as the purport of that section is given in the notice specific reference to it is not imperatively necessary. Regulation I of 1798 lays down the procedure to be adopted by a borrower or mortgagor to preserve his right of redemption under deeds of bai-bilwafa or conditional sales of land. It lays down that when money is lent on bai-bilwafa or on the conditional sale of land the borrower if he desires to redeem the land by payment of the money lent upon it may, if the lender is not in possession of the land, tender or make payment of or deposit in Court the principal sum borrowed and that on such deposit the Court shall issue notice to the lender as prescribed in s. 2. A proviso to that section lays down that the borrower may deposit a sum less than the sum above referred to alleging that the sum so deposited is the total amount due to the vendor and that on such a deposit being made the Court shall receive it and issue notice as prescribed in that section. In the present case the notice issued to Hukam Chand informed him that he should pay a certain sum to the mortgagees and goes on to say, "or the balance of the sum remaining undischarged," so that it is clear that Hukam Chand was notified that he could pay into Court a lesser sum than that mentioned in the notice if he thought fit, the payment of the lesser sum being, of course, at his risk.

After a careful consideration of the Regulations in question and the notice issued I am of opinion that there is no fatal defect in the said notice and that the only error of any importance in the notice is that instead of calling upon Hukam Chand to pay a sum of Rs. 1,000 that is to say the actual sum lent under the conditional sale, he was called upon to pay a sum of Rs. 3,400 as well as to pay interest. The details of this sum of Rs. 3,400 were given in the notice. The principal amount was shown as Rs. 1, 000 interest was shown as Rs. 1,650 and the costs of repairs as Rs. 750. I am in agreement with Mr. Nawal Kishore that in this case only the item of Rs. 1,000 should have been shown as payable. The words of the notice between asterieks commencing with 'together' and concluding with 'thereon' should have been scored through and the attention of the Court is drawn to the necessity of a strict compliance with the rules for filling in the prescribed forms.

The demand for a larger sum than was actually payable at that stage cannot, however, be regarded as a fatal defect in the notice as was held in Barkat Rai v. Ali (1) by Rattigan and Scott-Smith, JJ. Mr. Nawal Kishore sought to distinguish this case by pointing out that it dealt with a mortgage without possession but it seems to me that the principle enunciated in that authority applies equally to cases of mortgages with possession. The object of the Regulation of 1806 is to give a warning to the mortgagor so as to enable him by taking action under the Regulation to preserve his right to redeem. He was specifically told in this notice that the principal sum payable was Rs. 1,000 and had he deposited that sum in Court his right to redeem would have been preserved, any dispute in regard to other amounts claimed being settled at a later stage. In my opinion, therefore, the view taken by the learned District Judge is correct and the notice in this case was valid.

I would, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 21 Ind. Cas. 613; 91 P. R. 1913; 341 P. L. R. 1913; 223 P. W. R. 1913.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO. 146
OF 1925.
March 19, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Walsh and
Mr. Justice Dalal.
RAM KISHORE SINGH AND ANOTHER—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
JAI MANGAL SINGH AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 4—Mortgage of sir-land by co-sharer to another—Resumption of possession on redemption.

Where a joint sir-holder transfers his zemindari rights by way of mortgage to his co-sharer, he is entitled on the redemption of his mortgage to recover possession of the sir land. [p. 994, cols. 1 & 2.]

Mahesh v. Hori Khan, Sel. Dec. No. 9 of 1918, distinguished.

Tameshwar Prasad v. Maharaj Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 114, followed.

First appeal from an order of the Subordinate Judge, Basti, dated the 9th of May 1925.

Mr. P. L. Banerji, for the Appellants.
Dr. K. N. Katju, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from an order of remand passed by the Appellate Court of the Subordinate Judge of Basti. Objection is not made as to the remand itself, but the appeal is in the nature of a second appeal from a finding of the lower Appellate Court on a question of law.

The plaintiffs and defendants are grandsons of two brothers and owned a certain revenue-paying property in equal shares. They also held sir land jointly in the village. In 1906 the father of the plaintiffs mortgaged his share of the zemindari property, including the sir rights, to the father of the defendants, and the mortgage has now been redeemed. The present dispute relates to actual cultivating possession of sir land previously held jointly in equal shares by the parties. Both the subordinate Courts have decided that, on redemption, the plaintiffs are not entitled to possession as cultivators and sir holders of the land which they held as sir at the time of the mortgage. The reason they give is that immediately on the zemindari property being mortgaged, the plaintiffs became ex-proprietary tenants of their share of the sir land, and as they did not enforce their possession as such ex-proprietary tenants, they lost their right to do so six months after the date of the mortgage and the other joint sir-holders became sir-holders of the entire area of land held as sir by the plaintiffs and defendants jointly at the time of the mortgage. The theory seems to be that the defendants have become sir-holders independently of the mortgage and on the redemption of the mortgage there is no sir land in their possession which they may be called upon to deliver.

Under s. 60 of the Transfer of Property Act the mortgagor has a right in the case of a usufructuary mortgage, on payment of the mortgage money at the proper time and place, to require the mortgagee to deliver possession of the property to him. The property here was the mortgaged property in the same condition in which delivery was made at the time of the mortgage, including the sir. Though sir is not detailed in the mortgage-deed, in the description of the property, the zemindari property is stated to include sir, forest and other rights. It must, therefore, be presumed that sir land was mortgaged along with the zemindari property. The defendants' contention that the plaintiffs owned no sir at the time of the mortgage has not been accepted by the subordinate Courts and it has been held against the defendants that the plaintiffs were owners of the sir land to the extent of one-half at the time of the mortgage. The only provision that s. 60 makes is that the right conferred by the section has not been extinguished by act of the parties or by order of a Court. No such act of parties or order of a Court is pleaded here. What is pleaded is that the right has been extinguished under the provisions of the revenue law. We have, therefore, to see whether this is correct, and if correct, whether the provisions of the revenue law can override the direct directions of the Statute under the Transfer of Property Act.

In our opinion the provisions of the revenue law can be so interpreted as to save the sir land of the plaintiffs under the special circumstances of this case. The plaintiffs and defendants were joint cultivators of the sir land and there can be no question of any adverse possession among co-sharers. Even accepting that the defendants became ex-proprietary tenants, an ex-proprietary tenant does not cultivate land differently from a zemindar cultivating his sir land. There was no partition of the sir land and it cannot be said that the plaintiffs lost their rights as ex-proprietary tenants simply because the sir land was cultivated by the defendants without the help of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs instead of paying rent to their co-sharers and mortgagees, cultivating the land and deriving profit therefrom, permitted the defendants to cultivate the land so that they themselves may escape the payment of rent. Some such mutual arrangement must have been arrived at between the parties. Under such circumstances the ex-proprietary tenancy rights of the plaintiffs would continue even while the defendants alone actually cultivated the sir land, and when the ex-proprietary tenant redeemed the land, he would obtain a return of the sir rights in that land. Under s. 4, cl. (12) of Act III of 1901, the provision is that if the ex-proprietary tenant re-gains his proprietary rights in the land held by him as ex-proprietary tenant, the land mentioned in the first proviso to that section shall again become his sir. Under that proviso the plaintiffs-appellants are entitled to possession of the former sir land on redemption.

The mistake we think the two Subordinate Courts have made is in thinking that after the lapse of six months from the date of the mortgage the plaintiffs lost their rights of ex-proprietary tenancy in the land in dispute even under the special circumstances of the case. As we have pointed out the defendants were not strangers but were jointly entitled to cultivate every inch of the land held jointly by the parties, and after the mortgage they continued to cultivate it, and the plaintiffs instead of paying rent for the ex-proprietary tenancy preferred to permit the defendants to cultivate the land and excuse themselves from payment of rent. Under such circumstances we are of opinion that the plaintiffs did not lose the right of ex-proprietary tenancy in the land in dispute.

We have no desire to dissent from the principle of revenue law laid down in Mahesh v. Hori Khan (1). The facts of the present case are, however, not similar. In that case the mortgagee was a stranger and in the nature of things could not acquire sir rights in the land which was held as sir by the mortgagor. At the best, the mortgagee can only be the khudkasht cultivator of the land. Under such circumstances the Board of Revenue held that if a joint sir-holder transferred his zemindari right and did not claim ex-proprietary tenancy right in his share of the sir-land, the other co-sharers who had not transferred their zemindari would be entitled to hold the entire land as sir, and the mortgagee or purchaser would not be able to eject the co-sharers, who had not made a transfer of the zemindari property, from any portion of the joint sir land. In the present case the sir-holders (co-sharers) and the mortgagees were the same persons. So the principle of law enunciated in the ruling of the Board of Revenue does not apply here. In this Court there is a decision of a Bench reported as Tameshwar Prasad v. Maharaj Singh (2) where under similar circumstances the Court held that the mortgagor on redemption of the mortgage was entitled to recover possession of sir land also even though he had relinquished his right as ex-proprietary tenant. The learned Counsel for the defendant-respondent urged that there was a distinction because the ruling was based on the Rent Act of 1882, and under the present Tenancy Act of 1901, the sir of a proprietor cannot be mortgaged with possession and the proprietor immediately on the mortgage became an ex-proprietary tenant of the sir land. The distinction, however, does not exist in the reported case because in that case ex-proprietary rights had actually arisen, been claimed and had been relinquished. The case, therefore, was one similar to the present one where under law ex-proprietary rights arose immediately on the execution of the mortgage.

In the result we amend the decree of the lower Appellate Court and direct that in the decree for redemption there shall be an order placing the plaintiffs in joint possession along with the defendants of the sir land to the extent of one-half. Otherwise the decree and order of the lower Appellate Court are maintained. Parties shall bear their own costs in this Court.

R. L. Order accordingly.
N. H.

---

(1) Sel. Dec. No. 9 of 1918.

(2) 63 Ind. Cas. 114.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

TESTAMENTARY AND INTESTATE JURISDICTION.
February 3, 1925.
Present :—Mr. Justice C. C. Ghose.
In the goods of GEORGE NASH, DECEASED.

Will—Executor—Appointment of member of firm, effect of.

Where a member of a firm is appointed an executor under a Will the appointment only applies to a person who was a member of the firm at the date of the Will and also at the date of the testator's death.

FACTS.—After the death of a testator in 1924 an application was made about three months afterwards for the Probate of his Will which was executed in 1911. By the Will the testator had appointed his son and "a member of the firm of Williamson Magor and Co.," as his executors. The application was returned by the Registrars in Insolvency on the ground that there was no affidavit showing that the applicant was a member of the firm of Williamson Magor and Co. at the date of the Will and also at the date of the testator's death.

JUDGMENT.—I agree with the Registrar in Insovency in the view he has taken.

Z. K. Application rejected.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1072 OF 1925.
April 19, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Jai Lal.
MR. AMAR SINGH AND ANOTHER—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS
versus
JAT MAL AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
CHANAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

Shamilat land—Building on portion under authority of co-sharer—Suit for ejectment by some co-sharers—Demolition of building.

A person who, either on behalf of or under the authority of one of the big proprietors and with the permission of majority of them, builds upon a portion of a shamilat land cannot be ordered to demolish such building at the instance of other co-owners, unless it is proved that the action of such person in building upon the joint land has caused a material and substantial injury such as cannot be remedied by partition of the shamilat land. [p. 996, col. 1; p. 997, col. 1.]

Jhandu Mal v. Singh Ram, 87 Ind. Cas. 123; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 380; 7 L. L. J. 139, Kalu v. Wasawa Singh, 19 P. R. 1904, Girdhari Lal v. Nand Ram, 42 Ind. Cas. 275; 98 P. L. R. 1917; 154 P. W. R. 1917, Achhar Singh v. Badhawa Singh, 11 Ind. Cas. 404; 9 P. R. 1912; 84 P. W. R. 1911 and Manji v. Ghulam Muhammad, 61 Ind. Cas. 415; 2 L. 73; 3 L. L. J. 75, distinguished.

Gajadhar Ahir v. Bhikari Lal, 27 Ind. Cas. 228; 18 C. W. N. 1011 and Kala Singh v. Kahna, 60 Ind. Cas. 531, relied on.

Second appeal from a decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, with enhanced appellate powers, Hoshiarpur, dated the 14th January 1925, modifying that of the Subordinate Judge, Fourth Class, Dasuya, District Hoshiarpur, dated the 15th October 1923.

Mr. Abdul Aziz, for the Appellants.

Mr. Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs in this case were the proprietors of a $\frac{1}{5}$th share in the village of Hajipur. The suit was instituted against defendant No. 1 Maula Bakhsh for possession of 17 marlas of shamilat land on the allegations that it belonged to the village proprietary body and that the defendant had taken illegal possession thereof without the consent of such body. The remaining proprietors in the village were impleaded as defendants on the allegation that owing to their various vocations they were unable to join the plaintiffs.

Defendant No. 15 is Mr. Amar Singh Barrister-at-Law, and a proprietor in the village. The plea of defendant No. 1 was that he was an agent of defendant No. 15 and; therefore, no suit lay against him. He also pleaded that his possession was on behalf of defendant No. 15. It was consequently alleged that the house built by defendant No. 1 really belonged to defendant No. 15. The other defendants including Mr. Amar Singh supported the plea of defendant No. 1.

The first Court granted the plaintiffs a decree for joint possession of the land in suit to the extent of two anna share therein against defendant No. 15 but left the parties to bear their own costs. The plaintiffs appealed to the Senior Sub-Judge of Hoshiarpur. Defendant No. 1 filed cross-objections as regards the order about costs and Mr. Amar Singh filed cross-objections on the merits. The Senior Sub-Judge held that Maula Bakhsh did not take possession of the land in suit a few months before the institution of the suit as alleged by the plaintiffs but that he built a kacha house thereon about $4\frac{1}{2}$ years before and that this kacha house was converted by Maula Bakhsh into a pakka building prior to the institution of the suit. He also held that the building complained of by the plaintiffs was constructed by Maula Bakhsh himself as principal and not as agent for Mr. Amar Singh. He, however, held that this was done with the consent of Mr. Amar Singh and some other proprietors. Maula Bakhsh, it appears, has constructed a flour mill worked by an oil engine on the site in dispute. The learned Judge has further held that the plaintiffs had acquiesced in the construction of the kacha house by Maula Bakhsh and the use of the site for building a house has been allowed by them and also that the mere fact that the kacha house has been re-placed by a pakka one does not give any fresh cause of action to the plaintiffs.

He remarks that there is no allegation that the erection complained of caused any special inconvenience to any of the villagers. On these findings he granted the plaintiffs a decree for ejectment of Maula Bakhsh from that part of the land in suit which was not actually covered by buildings and declared that his possession of the land which is under the buildings will be considered to be under all the proprietors. Maula Bakhsh and Mr. Amar Singh have both appealed to this Court and the plaintiffs have filed cross-objections.

Some other facts which are not stated by the learned Senior Subordinate Judge may be mentioned here (1) Mr. Amar Singh owns a 92/226ths share in the village. The entire common land is more than 150 kanals and the share of Mr. Amar Singh will be much more than the land which is actually in his possession including the land in suit.

(2) There are other houses, admittedly in the possession of Mr. Amar Singh, which adjoin the land in suit.

(3) Originally the plaintiffs had included in their suit rooms which are in possession of defendant No. 1 but which were excluded from the suit later on. It appears that they were admittedly in possession of Mr. Amar Singh before they were appropriated by Maula Bakhsh to his own use. A reference to the plan will make the position of the buildings referred to above clear.

On these facts the question is what relief, if any, should the plaintiffs be granted.

Counsel for the respondents relied upon the following authorities:—

Jhandu Mal v. Singh Ram (1) in which a sale of a part of the village common land by one kamin to another was held to be invalid and set aside.

Kalu v. Wasawa Singh (2). In this case it was held that a kamin must occupy the land given to him for the purpose for which it is granted to him and that he cannot build a mosque or a temple thereon and further that he can occupy the land for his residence so long as he plies his trade.

Girdhari Lal v. Nand Ram (3). In this case a non-proprietor denying the claim of the proprietors was held to be a trespasser and ejected as such.

All these cases are clearly distinguishable from the one before me. Defendant No. 1 is neither a kamin nor does he deny the claim of the proprietors to the land in suit.

Achhar Singh v. Badhawa Singh (4) related to village common land which had expressly been reserved for a road but was utilised for other purposes by one of the proprietors. It was held that the plaintiff proprietor need not prove any special damage in order to entitle him to relief against the offending proprietor. That case is also distinguishable because the land in suit here is not reserved for any special purpose.

Perhaps the strongest case cited on behalf of the respondent is Manji v. Ghulam Muhammad (5). That was a case in which some of the co-sharers who owned a seven anna share in the village abadi occupied the land in suit and asserted their exclusive title to it. On a suit by the owners of the remaining nine anna share it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree for joint possession of the land which was proved to be the property of all co sharers including the plaintiffs and the defendants. This case again is clearly distinguishable from the one before me because here the title of the plaintiffs to the land in suit as co-sharers in the village abadi is not denied. The only plea of the defendant is that Mr. Amar Singh, admittedly a big co-sharer in the village abadi has appropriated, or allowed the appropriation of the land in suit.

On behalf of the appellants reliance was placed on Gajadhar Ahir v. Bhikari Lal (6) where a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that a co-sharer if dissatisfied with the appropriation of the common land by another co-sharer should sue for partition of his own share. In that case, it appears that some of the defendants co sharers had appropriated a part of the joint common land and given it for cultivation to other defendants as tenants. The facts of this case are almost identical to those of the present case. In Kala Singh v. Kahna (7) a Division Bench of this Court held that when a joint owner of land without obtaining the permission of his co-owners builds upon such land, such building should not be demolished at the instance of the co-owners unless they prove that the action of the joint owner in building upon the joint land has caused them a material and substantial injury such as cannot be remedied by partition of the joint land. In that case also certain non-proprietors had occupied a large area in the village common land with the permission of proprietors who owned a one-third share in the village. The plaintiffs were owners of one-third share and on a suit being brought by them the occupying defendants were ordered to vacate such of the area which was not built upon. They were ordered to vacate this area on the ground that the total area occupied by them was large and on account of it proximity to a tank it was required by the other proprietors of the village. The case before me is much stronger from the point of view of defendant No. 1 because the area occupied is very small and it has been found that its occupation does not do any injury to the other proprietors of the village. It has already been found that he occupied the area under one of the big proprietors in the village and with the permission of a majority of the proprietors.

---

(1) 87 Ind. Cas. 123; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 380; 7 L. L. J. 139.

(2) 19 P. R. 1904.

(3) 42 Ind Cas. 275; 98 P. L. R. 1917; 154 P. W. R. 1917.

(4) 11 Ind. Cas. 404; 9 P. R. 1912; 84 P. W. R 1911.

(5) 61 Ind. Cas. 415; 2 L. 73; 3 L. L. J. 75.

(6) 27 Ind. Cas. 228; 18 C. W. N. 1011.

(7) 60 Ind. Cas. 531.

In para. 225 of Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law the entire case law on the subject is summed up from which it appears that a co-proprietor is entitled to appropriate a part of the village common land provided he does not cause material and substantial injury to other proprietors such as could not be remedied on partition of the joint land. It has not been shown in this case that the plaintiffs have suffered any substantial injury by the appropriation of the land by defendants Nos. 1 and 15. On the other hand, the finding of the learned District Judge on this point is the other way. The share of Mr. Amar Singh being much more than the land which is actually in his occupation including the land in suit I hold that the plaintiffs have no cause of complaint. I also hold following the authorities already cited that defendant No. 1 who is found to be holding the land under Mr. Amar Singh enjoys the same rights as Mr. Amar Singh with regard to the other co-proprietors. There is no question that Mr. Amar Singh could not under the circumstances be ejected from the land in suit if the appropriation thereof had been by himself personally. The authorities already cited showed that it is immaterial whether defendant No. 1 has appropriated the land on behalf of or under the authority of Mr. Amar Singh.

The learned Senior Subordinate Judge granted a decree for the ejectment of defendant No. 1 from that part of the land in suit which in his opinion was not actually covered by any buildings. I do not think there was any justification in this case for making a distinction between one part of the land in suit and the other. A reference to the plan shows that the land which is not actually covered by the buildings is enclosed by a wall and forms a sort of courtyard to the actual buildings and is, therefore, in my opinion a necessary adjunct to the buildings. Moreover the total area of the land in suit is so small that it is not right to make a distinction such as the learned Senior Subordinate Judge has made. The defendants do not deny the title of the plaintiffs. They have never done so. The case is practically of appropriation of a small area actually adjoins his existing buildings. It has been amalgamated with such buildings. I do not think under these circumstances the plaintiffs are entitled to any relief whatsoever not even to a declaration because their title has never been denied.

I would, therefore, accept this appeal and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs throughout and dismiss the cross-objections filed on behalf of the plaintiffs and I order accordingly.

R. L. Appeal accepted.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 125 OF 1923.

May 5, 1925.

Present :—Mr. Justice Suhrawardy and Mr. Justice Duval.

NARESH CHANDRA BOSE—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPELLANT

versus

KRISHNA BHABINI DASI—DECREE-HOLDER—RESPONDENT.

Interest—Decree silent as to interest—Interest, recovery of, in execution—Damages, recovery of, in separate suit.

Where a decree for maintenance is silent as to future interest, interest cannot be recovered in execution proceedings on arrears of maintenance remaining due under the decree, but it may be recovered as damages for detention of decretal amount by a separate suit. [p. 998, col. 1.]

Seth Gokul Dass-Gopal Dass v. Murli, 3 C. 602; 5 I. A. 78; 2 C. L. R. 156; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 514; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 802; 2 Ind. Jur. 329; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 967 (P. C.), followed.

Mohamaya Prosad Singh v. Ram Khelawan Singh Thakur, 15 Ind. Cas. 811; 15 C. L. J. 684, referred to.

Appeal against an order of the Subordinate Judge, 24-Parganahs, dated the 2nd March 1923.

Babu Karunamoy Ghose, for the Appellant.

Babu Abinash Chandra Ghose, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal by the judgment-debtor is directed against an order of the lower Court, dated the 2nd March 1923. The decree-holder obtained a decree in respect of maintenance due to her from the estate of the judgment-debtor's father. The decree was for a certain sum but there was no mention in it that the plaintiff was entitled to interest on the sum decreed. The lower Court on the application of the decree-holder allowed her interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the arrears from the time they fell due and has also directed the maintenance to be calculated from the 1st Chaitra 1322. The maintenance was fixed at Rs. 275 a month. The judgment-debtor had already before suit paid Rs. 200 on account of the month of Chaitra. The execution, therefore, related to Rs. 75 for that month. The appellant contends that the order of the lower Court allowing interest on the decretal amount and allowing maintenance from the beginning of the month of Chaitra is bad in law.

With regard to the first point, it is hardly necessary to examine the law on the point as it has been settled by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Seth Gokul Dass-Gopal Dass v. Murli (1). There their Lordships have said that where a decree is silent as to future interest, interest cannot be recovered by proceedings in execution of the decree, but it may be recovered as damages by a separate suit. It cannot be disputed that an Execution Court is not entitled to go behind the decree and to vary it in execution proceedings. The right of a person standing in the position of the decree-holder to recover damages on account of detention of the money to which he is entitled is fully discussed in the case of Mohamaya Prosad Singh v. Ram Khelawan Singh Thakur (2). Mookerjee, J., following certain decision of the Judicial Committee has held that where a certain sum of money is due to the plaintiff by way of malikana he is not entitled to claim interest but is entitled to claim damages in lieu of interest. The question arose in a suit. The plaintiff claimed interest on the principal money due to him as malikana. If a plaintiff is not entitled to claim interest on the sum due to him under claim similar to the decree-holder's claim even in a suit, it cannot be maintained that he is entitled to claim interest in execution proceedings. The decree-holder must pursue the proper remedy which is by bringing a suit for damages for detention of the decretal amount. This question must, therefore, be decided in favour of the appellant.

The next objection to the order of the Court below is that the decree-holder is not entitled to maintenance from the month of Chaitra. It appears from an examination of the record that the husband of the decree-holder died some time on the 28th Chaitra 1316, and presumably she is entitled to maintenance from the date of his death month by month. In the decree passed the plaintiff claimed maintenance for the period before suit as well as for future maintenance. The decree disallowed the plaintiff's prayer for maintenance before suit and granted her a decree for future maintenance at the rate of Rs. 275 a month. The suit was instituted on the 10th April 1916 (28th Chaitra 1322). According to the reading of the decree the plaintiff is entitled to maintenance from the date of the institution of the suit, namely, the 28th Chaitra 1322. She is accordingly entitled to maintenance for three days of Chaitra which will come to about Rs. 10. The order of the lower Court will, therefore, have to be modified. The decree-holder's claim for interest is disallowed and she will get her maintenance from the 28th Chaitra which we assess at Rs. 10. The appeal is accordingly allowed with costs which we assess at two gold mohurs.

R. L. Appeal allowed.

---

(1) 3 C. 602; 5 I. A. 78; 2 C. L. R. 156; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 514; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 802; 2 Ind. Jur. 329; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 967 (P. C.).

(2) 15 Ind. Cas. 911; 15 C. L. J. 684.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

First Civil Appeal No. 73 of 1925.
March 29, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.
RAMCHARAN and another—Defendants—Appellants
versus
SARWAR KHAN and another—Plaintiffs—Respondents.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73—Suit based on breach of contract and for damages—Maintainability—Tort—Person in wrongful possession—Damages for loss—Burden of proof.

In one and the same suit one defendant may be sued for breach of contract and the other for damages for wrongful detention of goods, both claims being covered by two parts of the same section of the Contract Act, i. e., s. 73. [p. 999, col. 1.]

The word "tort" does not occur in the law administered in India except in cases of actionable wrongs where the English Law has to be applied because no Indian Statute covers them. [ibid.]

After an owner who has been wrongfully dispossessed has given evidence as to the loss caused to him, it is for the defendant to prove that the loss was less than the amount claimed.

Jailalsao v. Lal Fatehsingh, 75 Ind. Cas. 826; 20 N. L. R. 826; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 117, followed.

Appeal against a decree of the Sub-Judge, First Class, Seoni, dated the 28th March 1925, in Civil Suit No. 9 of 1923.

Mr. V. Bose, for the Appellants.

Mr. W. R. Puranik, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The first ground of appeal is that the plaintiffs' suit is not maintainable in its present form inasmuch as the claim against the first defendant is based on breach of contract while that against the other two defendants is based on tort. This matter was discussed at some length in the lower Court. The answer is that the word tort does not occur in the law administered in India except in cases of actionable wrong where we have to apply the English Law because no Indian Statute covers them. I have never met such a case, and this is certainly not one; both claims are covered by the two parts of the same section of the Contract Act, s. 73.

The suggestion in the petition of appeal, that the contract came to an end eighteen months after it was made and neither party was bound to perform any part of it that was incomplete, has not been mentioned in argument. What is urged for the appellants is that they never broke the contract, that all the trees in the forest of the proper size were duly cut except about fifty which the plaintiffs said were of no use to them, and that the plaintiffs were not prevented from taking away any timber at all but did in fact take way all that was cut. The evidence that has been held in the lower Court to prove the contrary is so clear and conclusive that it would be a waste of time to discuss it any further.

There remains only the question of the amount of damages. The plaintiffs originally claimed Rs. 6,000 or as much more as might be found due to them, offering to pay the necessary Court-fees on the balance. In the lower Court they were awarded Rs. 3,200 and they have now filed a cross-objection praying that that amount should be increased to Rs. 6,000. Their claim is now definitely limited to that amount. The system on which the amount of damages has been calculated in the lower Court is certainly a possible system, but some of the necessary factors are absent, and at least one of the factors that are present, (the fact that the plaintiffs paid the defendants Rs. 3,700) has been ignored.

But there is a simpler and more certain system. The defendants retained property belonging to the plaintiffs, consisting of the timber already cut and of the trees of the proper size still standing, and if we can ascertain the value of that property at the time at which the defendants detained it, the whole question is settled very simply. In the deposition of the plaintiff Sarwar Khan taken on the 17th of September 1923 at the first hearing of this case he gave a list of all the cut and uncut timber, as far as he knew, of which he had been deprived, and the prices at which he could have sold it on the spot. Taking the lowest price given by him in each case and omitting all the timber of which he was unable to give details, the value comes to Rs. 6,400.

This statement is corroborated by a considerable body of unimpeachable evidence, and there is nothing at all to rebut it. After that evidence had been given, the only way in which the defendant could avoid a decree for at least Rs. 6,400 was by showing that the loss caused to the plaintiffs by their wrongful act in keeping the timber was less than that amount, as was explained in Jailalsao v. Lal Fatehsingh (1). That they have not even attempted to do, preferring to give a lot of false evidence to show that they were justified on various speciously subtle grounds in doing what they did, some of which proves the plaintiffs' loss to have been greater than Sarwar Khan's estimate.

---

(1) 75 Ind. Cas. 826; 20 N. L. R. 826; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 117.

The defendants' appeal will be dismissed and the plaintiffs' cross-objection will be allowed. The decree of the lower Court will be modified to a decree ordering the defendants to pay to the plaintiffs the sum of six thousand rupees, with interest thereon at 12 per cent. per annum from the 1st of April 1922 till the date of payment and all the costs incurred by them in both Courts.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.
N. H.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1983 OF 1925.
April 29, 1926.
Present :—Mr. Justice Campbell.
ISHER SINGH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
WIR SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Parties—Appellant dying without substitution in lower Appellate Court—Necessary parties in second appeal—Adverse possession—Plaintiff vendee from person without title—Open user for more than 12 years—Prescription.

Where some of the appellants die in the lower Appellate Court without their legal representatives being brought on the record, the decree of the Trial Court remains good against them even though the appeal is accepted and in a second appeal by the opposite party they are not necessary parties. [p. 1001, col. 1.]

The plaintiff had purchased the site in suit by a deed from a person who had no title to it. The deed was not registered but was attested by a lambardar of the patti. On another land purchased by the plaintiff he had constructed a house and he had been using the land in suit as an appurtenance to his house. He had enclosed it with a hedge and had been using as a carpenter's yard for more than 12 years :

Held, that the plaintiff's possession had ripened into ownership. [p. 1001, col. 2.]

Framji Cursetji v. Goculdas Madhowji, 16 B. 338; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 703, distinguished.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Sialkot, dated the 10th June 1925, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, Third Class.

Lala Hargopal, for the Appellant.

Dr. Nand Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit by one Isher Singh for possession of a small spot of land within the limits of the Narowal Municipality in the Sialkot District. The defendants were numerous owners of Patti Barsal of Narowal. The plaintiff alleged that he had been dispossessed by these persons $1\frac{1}{2}$ or $1\frac{3}{4}$ years before suit and that he was the proprietor. He claimed to be so on two grounds, firstly, that he had purchased the plot from one Wasawa Singh on the 6th of March 1909 and the other that in any case had established ownership rights against the defendants by adverse possession.

The Trial Court held that the plaintiff and one Ahmad Bakhsh had purchased from Wasawa Singh on the 6th of March 1909 a piece of ground and that the plaintiff had subsequently bought out Ahmed Bakhsh. This ground, was held by the Trial Court to have been partly in the village of Jamman and partly in Narowal Patti Barsal, and it was further found that the portion in Narowal was the plot in dispute and that Wasawa Singh was not proved to have been an owner in Narowal Patti Barsal or to have had any right to dispose of the plot in suit. The rest of the ground sold lying within the boundary of Jamman village was found to be on the north of the plaintiff's house and to be unquestionably his property so far as the defendants are concerned.

On the other point, that of adverse possession, the Trial Court upheld the plaintiff and granted him a decree. The defendants appealed to the District Judge who reversed the Trial Court's decision and dismissed the suit on the sole ground that taking the facts to be as held by the Trial Court, the plaintiff had not established adverse possession for the period during which he had held possession according to the Trial Court, namely, from the 6th of March 1909 till December 1921.

The plaintiff has come to his Court on second appeal. During the pendency of the appeal and before the hearing he submitted an application stating that two of the original defendants Mian Singh and Labhu alias Buta had been shown as appellants in the lower Appellate Court and for that reason were shown in the present appeal as respondents, whereas these two persons had in fact died before the appeal in the District Court was decided, namely, on the 24th of April 1923 and on the 5th of May 1925. The application asked that their legal representatives should be joined as respondents to this appeal, and the prayer was granted subject to all just exception. At the hearing before me the learned Counsel for the respondents has pointed out that the application for joining the legal representatives was not made within the requisite period from the alleged deaths and further said that he was not in a position to contradict the affidavit of the appellant that the death had occurred on the dates stated. In this situation the affidavit must be accepted and it must be taken that Mian Singh and Labhu died before the decision of the appeal in the District Court. There was thus no decree in their favour by the District Court and the original decree against them in the Trial Court was not reversed. Their legal representatives, therefore, are not necessary parties to the present appeal. I set aside the tentative order impleading these legal representatives and in lieu thereof direct that the names of Mian Singh and Labhu alias Buta be struck out from the list of respondents.

The facts found by the Trial Court were as follows:—The sale by Wasawa Singh of the land, including the plot in dispute, was made by deed which was attested by Mit Singh lambardar of Patti Barsal and apparently Wasawa Singh did know the exact boundary of the two villages but considered rightly or wrongly that the plot in dispute belonged to him. From the 6th of March 1909 till the 18th of December 1921 the plot in dispute was used as an approach to Ishar Singh's house and remained as such in Ishar Singh's possession. It was also enclosed by him with a thorn hedge and used as a place for carrying on his trade as carpenter. The plaintiff had bought the land as a portion of entire plot, to the other portion of which he had acquired a sound legal title, and he began to use the plot in dispute in the belief that he had legal title to it also. The defendants live within Narowal Municipality and the plot is on a main thoroughfare. It cannot be said that the plaintiffs' user was without the defendants' knowledge and in fact he has used the plot for over twelve years under a title to the knowledge of the defendants as an approach to his house.

The learned District Judge proceeded to hold that, because the plot was a vacant site, possession of it could not become adverse against the owner, and he relied on Framji Cursetji v. Goculdas Madhowji (1) and some other cases which followed that ruling. The Bombay case is a well-known one, and it concerned a small piece of land held to have been of no present use to its owner and to have been convenient in many ways to his neighbour who far more than twelve years without objection made use of it in various ways, these various ways being the erection of structures of a flimsy and temporary character consisting of a privy, sheds for live-stock and a hut for a ghariwallah. The defendant moreover admittedly had a right of passage across the part of the land for the purpose of access to the well. In these circumstances it was held that such user as that described was insufficient to give title to the land by adverse possession.

The circumstances of the present case are materially different. Here the plaintiff purchased the site by deed from a person who has been held to have had no right to sell. The deed was not registered but it was attested by a lambardar of the patti to which the land belonged. On other land purchased by the same vendee the plaintiff has constructed a house and he has been using the land in suit as an appurtenance to his house. He has enclosed it with a hedge, a fact which distinguished the case very conspicuously from the Bombay case, and he has been using it as a carpenter's yard. The place is not tucked away in a corner but lies on a main thoroughfare.

If the facts are these and if the plaintiff has held possession in this manner from March 1909 till December 1921 his possession has been adverse for that period against the defendants. Since the decision of the learned District Judge is on a purely preliminary point the appeal must go back to him for re-decision. It is of course quite possible that he may come to a different conclusion on the facts than that arrived at by the Trial Court.

The learned District Judge's judgment appears to contain in its last paragraph two findings of fact by the learned District Judge himself. One is a dissent from the Trial Court's decision that there was no other approach to the plaintiff's house except over the plot in dispute. Whether this was so or not does not appear to me to make any great difference to the question of adverse possession. The other is that the plaintiff has not proved that the defendants dispossessed him two years ago and that the defendants had been in possession for more than two years. This finding also does not effect the situation, since the suit was instituted on the 1st of

---

(1) 16 B. 338; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 703.

March 1924 and the finding of the Trial Court is that the plaintiff was in possession up to the 18th of December 1921, a date more than two years from the date of suit.

I accept the appeal and set aside the order of the learned District Judge. The case is returned to him for a fresh decision. The remand is under O. XLI, r. 23, C. P. C., and, therefore, stamp on the present appeal will be refunded. The other costs in this Court will follow the event.

R. L. Appeal accepted.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 237 OF 1925.
March 17, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Findlay, Officiating J. C.
GOVINDA AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
KRISHNAJI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Alienation—Widow, sale by—Partial necessity—Principle to be applied—Time-barred debts of husband.

In a case where the validity of a sale by a Hindu widow is in question and it is only in part supported by legal necessity, the proper principle to be applied is not whether the bulk of the sale consideration was taken for legal necessity, but whether the portion which was not taken for the said purpose was such a small fraction of the total consideration that it might reasonably be left out of account. [p. 1002, col. 2.]

Jai Narain Pande v. Bhagwan Pande, 80 Ind. Cas. 1006; 44 A. 683; 20 A. L. J. 621; A. I. R. 1922 All. 321, Sanmukh Pande v. Jagarnath Pande, 83 Ind. Cas. 838; 46 A. 531; 22 A. L. J. 417; A. I. R. 1924 All. 708; L. R. 5 A. 289 Civ. and Bhadaji v. Ganeshrao, 83 Ind. Cas. 70; 20 N. L. R. 4; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 109, followed.

If a sale has been made in order to discharge a debt the essential point involved is whether on the date of the sale there was any pressure on the widow to meet this debt. The fact of its being time-barred is not conclusive on the question of the obligation resting on the widow to discharge. [p. 1003, col. 1.]

Appeal against a decree of the Additional District Judge, Nagpur, dated the 28th February 1924, in Civil Appeal No. 80 of 1924.

Mr. M. R. Bobde, for the Appellants.

Mr. K. A. Potey, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—It is unnecessary at present to detail the main facts of this case for the simple reason that, in my opinion, it will have to go back to the lower Appellate Court for disposal. The main question involved in this appeal is whether there was legal necessity for the sale of the house by Musammat Radhabai to the defendant-respondent, Shamrao: cf. 3 D. 5. Under this sale-deed the consideration was Rs. 450, and the recitals therein contained mentioned that the consideration was required by the widow for payment of the debt of the creditor, Hirasao, who held the mortgage deed (3 D. 3). The balance was said to be required for the expenses of a pilgrimage.

The Judge of the first Court held that Rs. 198-4 0 was for legal necessity, being the amount due to the said creditor Harisao; the balance of the consideration, the Subordinate Judge held, was not for legal necessity.

The finding of the Additional District Judge is to the effect that legal necessity was proved, not only for the amount of Rs. 198 4-0 but probably also some Rs. 30 were required for the maintenance of the widow between the date of the sale and her re-marriage.

As regards the debt due to Harisao, the Additional District Judge has apparently entirely overlooked the endorsement on the mortgage-deed (3 D.-3), an endorsement, dated 14th May 1921, apparently signed by Harisao to the effect that the deed had been satisfied on 14th May 1921, long before the transaction we are concerned with occurred. On this all vital point alone the question involved would require reconsideration by the lower Appellate Court. But, apart from this, it seems to me that the Additional District Judge has approached the question of legal necessity in this case from an entirely wrong point of view. In a case like the present when the validity of such a sale is in question and when the sale is only in part supported by legal necessity, the proper principle to be applied is not whether the bulk of the sale consideration was taken for legal necessity, but whether the portion which was not taken for the said purpose was such a small fraction of the total consideration that it might reasonably be left out of account: cf Jai Narain Pande v. Bhagwan Pande (1), Sanmukh Pande v. Jagarnath Pande (2), and Bhadaji v. Ganeshrao (3). We have to determine what portion of the consideration was for legal necessity and it was the duty of the Additional District Judge to approach the case from this point of view. Instead of doing so, he has laid stress on the fact that there was another bond of Govindrao, the deceased husband of Musammat Radhabai, viz., 3-D.4. But he overlooked in this connection the fact that this debt had been payable in six months from the date of its execution and was on the date of the present sale time-barred. No doubt, the fact of its being time-barred is not conclusive on the question of the obligation resting on the widow to discharge it, but the essential point involved is whether on the date of the sale there was any pressure on the widow to meet this debt.

---

(1) 80 Ind. Cas. 1006; 44 A. 683; 20 A. L. J. 621; A. I. R. 1922 All. 321.

(2) 83 Ind Cas. 838; 46 A. 531; 22 A. L. J. 417; A. I. R. 1924 All. 708; L. R. 5 A. 289 Civ.

(3) 83 Ind. Cas. 70; 20 N. L. R. 4; A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 109.

Then, again, the Additional District Judge went somewhat astray in his remark in para. 8 of this judgment that the vendee might have had his doubts regarding the legal necessity as to the sum of Rs. 250. If this is what the Additional District Judge holds, as a matter of fact, it goes strongly against the case of the respondents. I cannot see that the Additional District Judge was entitled to go out of his way to make out a fresh case for the respondents to the effect that Radhabai was likely to have required the balance or part of the balance of the consideration for her maintenance. We have clear cut recitals in the sale-deed in question, and on this alone I think the question of legal-necessity had to be determined. In view, however, of the failure of Additional District Judge to notice that the mortgage-debt, which was said to form the main specific item of legal necessity, had apparently been satisfied long before, as well as of the fact that the Additional District Judge has approached the whole question involved from a wrong point of view, I think it is desirable that the lower Appellate Court should have an opportunity of re-trying this appeal in view of the questions of fact involved.

Lastly, I desire to add that, even if the question of legal necessity should be held against the respondents, the present seems to me a case in which the lower Appellate Court will have to consider carefully whether it should exercise its discretion in giving the present appellants the decree for specific performance which they desire. As this appeal is to be remanded for re-trial, it is open to the lower Appellate Court to re-consider all the questions of fact involved anew. There are indications on the record that the appellants entered into the agreement in suit with full knowledge that they were buying a disputed title and there are also indications that they knew of the sale in favour of the respondent No. 3. Enquiry in this connection will also be pertinent as to whether the price to be paid, viz., Rs. 325 was an adequate or inadequate one. On the other hand, in connection with the amount of the consideration received by Musammat Radhabai for her sale, a very important question arises, should the Additional District Judge hold that only half or less than half the consideration was required for legal necessity. That question is whether the needs of the moment for meeting debts bearing the character of legal necessity, could not have been adequately met by a mortgage of the property or some such arrangement rather than by an out and-out sale thereof. All these matters must now be considered by the Judge of the lower Appellate Court.

The judgment and decree appealed against are reversed and the case is remanded to the lower Appellate Court for re trial of Appeal No. 80 of 1924 with advertence to the above remarks. The costs incurred in this Court will follow the event. There will be no certificate for refund of Court-fee.

G. R. D. Case remanded.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO. 115 OF 1925.

February 3, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal and Mr. Justice Boys.

SURAJ MAL AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat CHHOTE—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. X, r. 2—Examination of person appearing on behalf of party—Statement, whether binding on party.

Any statement made by a party to a suit while being examined under O. X, r. 2, C. P. C., is binding only on the person who made the statement to the same extent as the statement made by a Pleader engaged by him may be binding on him; but a statement made by a person who merely appears to prosecute a case or to look after it on behalf of a party, not personally present or who is unable to be present, does not stand on the same footing. If the statement made by him in Court in regard to any material fact is admitted or accepted by the party concerned or his Pleader to be correct, it may help to narrow down the issues; but it is open to the party to say that the statement was not made under his instructions. [p. 1005, col. 1.]

Janki Prasad v. Arku Lal, 2 A. L. J. 777, relied on.

First appeal from an order of the Additional District Judge, Meerut, dated the 1st April 1925.

Mr. Nehal Chand, for the Appellants.

Dr. M. L. Agarwala, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff, Musammat Chhote, is the daughter of one Jhandu, who died in 1905, leaving some estate in respect of which the name of Musammat Lali was entered in the revenue papers on his death. Musammat Lali died in 1910. The allegation of the plaintiff was that she was a minor on the date of her death and that the defendants, taking advantage of her minority, got their names recorded in the revenue papers in respect of the estate left by Jhandu deceased and standing in the name of Musammat Lali, although they had no right to the same. Musammat Chotte brought this suit for possession of the said property with mesne profits, claiming to be entitled to the benefit of s. 7 of the Indian Limitation Act. She stated that she was about 20 years old on the date of the institution of the suit. The defendant-appellants contested the suit on three grounds. Their first plea was that Jhandu had left a son about a year old, who died a month later, and that the plaintiff was not the heir of the last male holder. The other ground was that the plaintiff was 32 years old on the date of the suit and that the claim was consequently barred by limitation and adverse possession for more than twelve years. The third plea was that one of the properties claimed by the plaintiff, namely, a certain gher or enclusure, did not belong to Jandhu, through whom the plaintiff claimed to derive her title.

On the date fixed for the determination of issues the plaintiff was not personally present. Her Pleader was present and was accompanied by Bhartu, the brother of her husband, who was apparently acting as a pairokar, or agent deputed to look after the suit. The Court examined Bhartu under O. X, r. 2 of the C. P. C. and asked him whether Jhandu had left a son at the time of his death; and his reply was that there was such a son in existence at the time of the death of Jhandu about a year old and that the boy had died a month after his death. The Court thereupon asked the Pleader for the plaintiff whether he agreed to accept the statement of Bhartu; and his reply was that Bhartu was the pairokar of the plaintiff and that she "should" be bound by his statement. The Court thereupon framed certain issues, which were far from exhaustive on the points raised in the defence, and dismissed the claim on the preliminary ground that the plaintiff was, on the statement of Bhartu, not an heir of Jhandu under the Mitakshara Law applicable to the case. The lower Appellate Court, however, held that since Bhartu was not a recognised agent but had merely accompanied the Pleader of the plaintiff to help him in the case, the plaintiff was not bound by his statement.

Order X, r. 2 of the C. P. C. provides that "at the first hearing of the suit, or at any subsequent hearing, any party appearing in person or present in Court, or any person able to answer any material questions relating to the suit by whom such party or his Pleader is accompanied, may be examined orally by the Court; and the Court may, if it thinks fit, put in the course of such examination questions suggested by either party." The answers given by Bhartu were not recorded on oath, but as provided by r. 3, the substance of the examination was reduced to writing by the Judge and forms part of the record.

The authority of a person accompanying a Pleader merely to prosecute a case or to look after it is necessarily limited. Such a person may not be a recognised agent within the meaning of O. III, r. 2 of the C. P. C. Bhartu had no power-of-attorney from the plaintiff, authorising him to appear and act on behalf of the plaintiff. He was only appearing as a person interested in the case by reason of his relationship with the plaintiff, who was a pardanashin lady; and whatever weight might have been attached to his statement, had it been recorded on oath as a witness present in Court or cited by a party, the answer given by such a person in answer to an enquiry made by the Court to clear up any material question arising in the case would not necessarily bind the party on whose behalf he appeared to prosecute the case. As observed in Janki Prasad v. Arku Lal (1) the aforesaid provision is intended to enable a Court to ascertain what were the questions in controversy between the parties and is not intended to be in substitution for a regular examination on oath. Any statement made by a party, while being examined under that provision, is binding only on the person who made the statement to the same extent as the statement made by a Pleader engaged by him may be binding on him; but a statement made by a person who merely appears to prosecute a case or to look after it on behalf of a party, not personally present or who is unable to be present, does not stand on the same footing. If the statement made by him in Court in regard to any material fact is admitted or accepted by the party concerned or his Pleader to be correct, it may help to narrow down the issues; but the Pleader for the plaintiff in the present case was careful enough not to commit himself definitely to what Bhartu has stated. He thought that it should bind the plaintiff, but it is open to the plaintiff to say that that statement was not made by Bhartu under her instructions. In these circumstances the decision of the Court below cannot be disturbed. The appeal is dismissed with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

---

(1) 2 A. L. J. 777.

N. H. Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL NO. 18 OF 1925.
March 22, 1925.
Present:—Sir Grimwood Mears, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Lindsay.

SAT NARAIN LAL—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR —APPELLANT
versus
GANGA JAL alias GANGA AND OTHERS —DECREE-HOLDERS—JUDGMENT-DEBTORS— RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182—Execution of decree—Execution stayed till decision of another suit—Suit decided by Trial Court—Decree-holder's duty to continue pending execution—Limitation.

Where execution proceedings are stayed till the decision of another case, no sooner the latter case is decided it is the duty of the decree-holder to take out execution proceedings notwithstanding the fact that the judgment-debtor may have in the interval filed an appeal, and if the decree-holder fails to do so within three years execution of the decree would be barred. [p. 1006, col. 1.]

Desraj Singh v. Karam Khan, 19 A. 71; A. W. N. (1896) 188; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 46 and Ruddar Singh v. Dhanpal Singh, 26 A. 156; A. W. N. (1903) 221, followed.

Madho Prasad v. Draupadi Bibi, 61 Ind. Cas. 417; 19 A. L. J. 174, referred to.

Letters Patent Appeal against a judgment of Mr. Justice Walsh in Execution Second Civil Appeal 1132 of 1924, dated the 2nd February 1925, and printed as 87 Ind. Cas. 205.

Messrs. M. S. Bajpai and Gadadhar Prasad, for the Appellant.

Mr. Mushtaq Ahmad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—We are of opinion that this appeal must be allowed, and we think that in all probability Mr. Justice Walsh would have decided this matter differently if there had been called to his attention the cases of Desraj Singh v. Karam Khan (1) and Ruddar Singh v. Dhanpal Singh (2).

Ganga Jal obtained two decrees against Sat Narain Lal, the judgment-debtor, on the 12th of May and the 11th of June 1917, respectively. They were decrees of the Bombay Court and were transferred to Jaunpur for execution. Thereupon Sat Narain Lal commenced a suit alleging that these decrees had been obtained by fraud. The judgment-debtor asked that execution proceedings should be stayed until the decision of his suit, and the Munsif, who was already in control of the execution proceedings in the Court of Jaunpur, made an order "Execution proceedings shall be stayed until decision of the regular suit." This was on the 20th February 1918. When the end of June was approaching and the Munsif was desirous of showing how expeditiously he had cleared his list, he passed the following order with regard to the application in execution, "As the regular suit is not decided the case be struck off. Costs on the judgment-debtor." This had the incidental advantage of improving the Munsif's list, but it had the disadvantage of causing a great deal of difficulty and argument in several Courts, and was not an order sanctioned by any rule.

The suit of the judgment-debtor was proceeded with and on the 9th of December 1919 it was found by the Munsif of Jaunpur that the allegations of fraud were unfounded and that the Bombay decrees were good decrees. The judgment-debtor filed an appeal and that was decided on the 30th of March 1922, again adversely to the judgment-debtor. Thirteen months after, on the 23rd of April 1923, the decree-holder applied for execution of his decree, and not unnaturally the judgment-debtor objected. The objections were repelled by the first Court. The lower Appellate Court said the objections were well-founded and that the proceedings in execution were time-barred. Mr. Justice Walsh, on the authorities presented to him, came to the conclusion that the execution proceedings were not time-barred and that Ganga Jal could enforce the decrees.

---

(1) 19 A. 71; A. W. N. (1896) 188; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 46.
(2) 26 A. 156; A. W. N. (1903) 221.

From a consideration of the authorities and especially the two we have mentioned in the earlier part of our judgment, Desraj Raj v. Karam Khan (1) and Ruddar Singh v. Dhan Pal Singh (2), we are of opinion that the matter can be disposed of without difficulty. We think that these two cases establish this proposition, namely, that if there be an obstacle opposed to the execution proceedings, as there was in this case, namely, the order that execution proceedings shall be stayed until the decision of the regular suit, as soon as that obstacle is swept away by a Court of competent jurisdiction, namely, the Trial Court, the duty again arises upon the decree-holder to take execution proceedings within three years, notwithstanding the fact that the judgment-debtor may have in the interval filed an appeal. It has been contended before us that the phrase used by the Munsif "execution proceedings shall be stayed until decision of the regular suit," meant that the stay order not only operated in the Court of first instance, but also in the lower Appellate Court, in the High Court and presumably if the case was of a nature in which it was possible to go to the Privy Council then in the Privy Council also. We do not read that order in that way at all, and we believe that the true construction of the words used by the Munsif is that execution was stayed until the suit instituted in the Munsif's Court was heard and determined, and that on the 9th of December when the decree adverse to the plaintiff was pronounced, at that very moment the bar to execution proceedings disappeared, and it was open to the decree-holder and was his duty at once to apply that the previous execution proceedings, which had been struck off on the 29th of June 1918, be restored and execution proceeded with. To that application there of course would have been opposition, and then it would have been open to whatever Court had jurisdiction to try the question of a further stay to look into all the circumstances. One of the material circumstances would have been the nature of the evidence which the plaintiff brought forward in the Court of the Munsif of Jaunpur to support his allegations of fraud and the likelihood of an appeal being successful. That is to say quite different considerations applied on the 20th of February 1918 to those which would have applied on the 9th of December 1919, and thereafter when the matter in issue between the plaintiff and the defendant had already been decided by one competent Court adversely to the plaintiff, the judgment-debtor, and a Court might very well on an objection by the judgment-debtor to the continuance of execution proceedings have made an order giving to the decree-holder full permission to execute his judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal. It has not, of course, been argued that the mere pendency of an appeal operates as a stay, but it is said that by virtue of this order of the 20th of February 1918, the stay, as we have said, continues right away through in Court after Court. We are unable to agree with that contention at all, and there has been cited to us the case of Madho Prasad v. Draupadi Bibi (3) in which although there was an injunction restraining the sale "pending the final decision of the suit," a Bench of this Court held that the injunction granted by the Appellate Court terminated, and the right to make the application accrued on the date of the dismissal of the suit by the Trial Court. Mr. Justice Piggott had very little doubt about the matter. Mr. Justice Walsh assented, but it is clear that he felt some difficulty. He does, however, say at page 179* of the report "if it were not for the presence of the word "final" in this order, and if the language had merely been 'pending the decision of the suit' I might have had no difficulty in agreeing with my learned colleague, but if my opinion had been asked, after looking at those authorities, I think I should have come to the conclusion that the use of the word 'final' by two Judges of this Court must have meant the disposal of the suit by a final unappealable order." Now in the case under consideration the word "final" does not appear at all, and we are satisfied that this case is covered, and is indistinguishable from the principles enunciated in the two cases we mentioned at the outset of our judgment.

---

(3) 61 Ind. Cas. 417; 19 A. L. J. 174.

*Page of 19 A. L. J.—[Ed.]

The position, therefore, on the 9th of December 1919 was that the bar which came into existence on the 20th of February 1918, disappeared by the decree pronounced in favour of the decree-holder and that from the 9th of December 1919 and thereafter there was no obstacle of any kind which stood in the decree-holder's way to make either a fresh application for execution or asking that the formal order which had been "struck off" might be restored.

In these circumstances we set aside the decision of the learned Judge of this Court, we restore the decision of the lower Appellate Court and we declare that the application for execution made on the 23rd of April 1923 was on that date beyond time. Having regard to the judgment-debtor having set up in the Munsif's Court at Jaunpur a case based on fraud, which failed, and having appealed unsuccessfully, we are of opinion that no order as to costs should be made in this and the connected appeal.

R. L. Order set aside.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 163 OF 1922.
March 11, 1926.
Present:—Sir Dawson Miller, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir B. K. Mullick, KT.
Kumar KAMAKHYA NARAIN SINGH, MINOR, THROUGH MR. A. M. WALTER, MANAGER, RAMGARH WARDS ESTATE —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
JAWAHIR KHAN AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS

*Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908), s. 258—Settlement entries—Suit for declaration that entries are wrong, whether maintainable—Burden of proof—Ramgarh Raj—*Jagirs and maintenance grants, nature of—Jagodih Lat, whether resumable—Bengal Decennial Settlement Regulation VIII of 1793, s. 7.

A suit for declaration in a Civil Court that a certain tenure which has been entered in the Settlement records as non-resumable is in fact resumable is not barred by the provisions of s. 258, Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. [p. 1017, col. 2.]

Jagirs and maintenance grants in Ramgarh and Chota Nagpur are resumable on the failure of the lineal male descendants of the grantee. [p. 1015, col. 1.]

Ram Narain Singh v. Chota Nagpur Banking Association, 33 Ind. Cas. 321; 43 C. 332 at p. 348, referred to.

The holders of Jagodih tenure have the status of dependent taluqdars holding under the Ramgarh Raj and are to be considered as lease-holders only within the meaning of s. 7, Bengal Decennial Settlement Regulation VIII of 1793. [p. 1016, col. 2; p. 1017, col. 1.]

Jagodih Lat is a jagir tenure held under the Ramgarh Estate and is resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of Raja Lal Khan the grantee and is not a shamilat or shikmi tenure in the sense in which the terms are used by the Revenue Officers in the Record of Rights published in 1914. [p. 1018, col. 1.]

Per Mullick, J.—Where it is admitted before the Settlement Officer that the defendants are holding land within the ambit of the zemindari of the plaintiff who is paying revenue for the same, the onus of showing the nature of their title is upon the defendants and upon a failure to show that they have a tenancy therein, the plaintiff is entitled to resume. But where the Settlement Officer holds that the defendants are owners of a non-resumable tenure, the onus is shifted upon the plaintiff to rebut the presumption created by the Record of Rights. [p. 1021, col. 1.]

Appeal from a decision of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Hazaribagh, dated the 18th April 1922.

Messrs. L. P. Pugh, S. S. Ahmad and S. M. Mullick, for the Appellant.

Messrs. S. H. Imam, C. S. Bannerji and S. N. Palit, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Miller, C. J.—The plaintiff, a minor, is the proprietor of the Ramgarh Raj suing through the manager of his estate which is under the management of the Court of Wards. He instituted the suit out of which this appeal arises claiming a declaration that the tenure ordinarily called Jagodih Lat consisting at present of 41 villages is an ordinary jagir within his zemindari and is resumable on failure of the direct male line of the grantee and that the entries in the Record of Rights, finally published in 1914, describing it as a shamilat or shikmi taluk and non-resumable are incorrect. The defendants are the present holders of the tenure and others claiming through them.

The villages comprised in Jagodih Lat form part of Pargana Chai, and this, together with many other Parganas, was settled with the plaintiff's ancestor, Raja Maninath Singh of Ramgarh, by the Permanent Settlement, and it can no longer be disputed that Jagodih is comprised within the plaintiff's zemindari.

It is the plaintiff's case that under the Moghul Emperors and for some centuries before the British acquired the Diwani of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa in 1765, the Rajas f Ramgarh were the paramount chiefs of a large tract of hilly country north of Hazaribagh including Ramgarh, Chai and Champa and many other Parganas a number of which were held under them by petty chiefs under service tenures, or jagirs, granted originally for life, but which subsequently, by custom became descendible in the direct male line of the grantee, being defeasible on failure of his lineal male descendants and that Jagodih was a tenure of this nature. He further relies upon the Permanent Settlement made by the East India Company with his ancestor, Raja Maninath Singh, and the effect of the Settlement Regulations. In addition he contends that the question now agitated was decided in a suit between the ancestors of the parties in 1793 and cannot again be re-opened.

The defendants, on the other hand, contend that the Jagodih Chiefs were independent talukdars paying not rent to the Ramgarh Raja as their overlord, but revenue through him to the Moghul Emperor, and that had they been so minded, they could have obtained a Settlement direct from the East India Company under the provisions of the Settlement Regulations, and in particular Regulation VIII of 1793, but that, notwithstanding this omission, and the fact that Jagodih was comprised in the Settlement with the plaintiff's ancestor as part of the Ramgarh Raj, they ought not to be treated as lease-holders holding under the Raja of Ramgarh, but as talukdars still paying their revenue through him, and that their estate is not resumable by the Ramgarh Raja in any event. They further contend that the villages in question were their ancestral nankar villages, that is revenue free, in which they hold absolute proprietary rights.

During the recent Survey and Settlement operations in the Hazaribagh District, the Settlement Officer directed the Jagodih tenure to be recorded in the khewats as a shamilat taluk held under the Ramgarh Raj and as non-resumable, and it was so recorded in the Record of Rights finally published in 1914. The plaintiff accordingly instituted the present suit in 1920, before the Additional Subordinate Judge of Hazaribagh claiming the declaration already mentioned. The learned Judge dismissed the suit and the plaintiff has preferred this appeal.

Two main questions arise for consideration. The first concerns the relationship existing between the Ramgarh Raja and the holder of Jagodih before the Permanent Settlement, and the second is what effect, if any, the Permanent Settlement had upon the relationship previously existing between the parties. The plaintiff's case is that for many years before the Permanent Settlement, the Ramgarh Rajas were in possession of Jagodih and the other Parganas of Chai and Champa, but from time to time granted jagirs of these Parganas, or of certain villages therein, to the Chai Chiefs whom they had reduced to subjection, and certain documents purporting to show such grants have been tendered in evidence. These documents are challenged by the defendants either as spurious or inadmissible.

It is hardly surprising that after a lapse of about a century and a half direct and conclusive documentary evidence of the grants under which the defendants' ancestors held should be difficult to obtain, and it has been necessary to investigate a number of official reports and records of contemporary transactions in order to ascertain the relationship existing between the Ramgarh Rajas and those who held interests under them in their zemindari. It is necessary to bear in mind that the hilly country round Hazaribagh is really part of the jungle plateau of Central India known in Mughal times as the Jhakhand "remote, forbidding and barbarous," and was inhabited by a number of turbulent petty chiefs, nominally vessels of the Maharaja of Chota Nagpur, but continually fighting amongst themselves, and probably paying tribute only when compelled to do so, or when they required his support against their neighbours. It appears to have been first brought under Muhammadan subjection in 1585. The founders of the Ramgarh family according to the report of Mr. Robinson, Commissioner of Chota Nagpur in 1876, an abstract of which is re-produced in the Hazaribagh district Settlement Report, (1908 to 1915) compiled by Mr. Sifton, the Settlement Officer, were Singh Deo and Bagh Deo who took service with the Maharaja of Chota Nagpur in the fourteenth century. Taking advantage of the disturbed state of the country they quarrelled with the Maharaja of Chota Nagpur and led a body of armed adventurers into Karanpura, defeated Kappar Deo, the Chief of Karanpura, and in time Bagh Deo, the younger and more enterprising brother made himself master of 22 Parganas in that part of the country. The genealogy of this family as taken from Mr. Robinson's report, is set out in the Hazaribagh Settlement report at page 25. The names of the earlier Rajas are not important, but it may be mentioned that from 1604 to 1661 Hemut Singh is said to have reigned as Raja at Badam which was then the family seat. His grandson Dalil Singh is said to have reigned at Ramgarh from 1677 to 1724 and was succeeded in turn by his grandson Bishun Singh (1724 1763). Bishun died childless and was succeeded by his brother Makund (1763-1772). Makund quarrelled with the English who at that time had not subdued the country. Tej Singh, a descendant of Singh Deo, the brother of Bagh Deo the founder of the family, was fouzdar or Commander-in-Chief to Makund and he offered his services to the English to subdue Makund and conquer the country. He led an army into Ramgarh in 1772 and defeated Makund who fled for his life. Tej Singh was then put in possession of the Raj by the English but died next year and was succeeded by his son Raja Pareshnath Singh (1773 1784). After Pareshnath came his son Raja Maninath Singh with whom the Permanent Settlement was made and who died in 1812. It would appear, if Mr. Robinson's report is reliable, that one at least of the Chai Parganas, namely, Rampur was conquered by Basdeo Singh when he established himself in the Ramgarh territory in the fourteenth century. When the Rajas of Ramgarh first acquired dominion over Jagodih is left uncertain but it appears that in the time of Hemut Singh (1604-1641) an assessment of the rent or revenue payable to the Raja by all the villages in the Ramgarh estate was made. This was called the kamil jama. Mr. Leslie, Collector of Ramgarh, writing to the President of the Board of Revenue on the 5th August 1792 says "About 150 years ago the zemindar of Ramgarh caused an estimate to be made of the yearly value of each village in his zemindari which, when completed, was called the kamil jama and has never undergone any alteration;" and in an earlier letter dated the 9th July 1788 writing to Mr. Shore, then President of the Board. Mr. Leslie gives a list of the jagirdars holding under the Ramgarh Raja and the kamil jama of each, together with the number of villages held by them. This list includes Raja Lal Khan of Jagodih who held 15 villages at a kamil jama of Rs. 1,982. It would appear, therefore, that Jagodih was a dependent of Ramgarh in the time of Hemut Singh. How long it remained so, or when first the Jagodih Chief threw off his allegiance and asserted his independence, is not known, but it appears that between 1729 and 1764 it was conquered and re-conquered on several occasions. Some account of the disturbed condition of the country in Chai and Champa and neighbouring Parganas between 1719 and 1769 may be gathered from the report of Sitab Rai to the Board of Revenue. Sitab Rai according to Harrington's Analysis (Volume II, page 3) was a servant of the Company having direction of the details relative to the settlement and collections in the Bihar District for a few years after the acquisition of the Diwani and until supervisors were appointed in 1769. From his report, made apparently in or shortly after 1769, it would appear that in 1719 Kamdar Khan was the renter of Narhat Samoy under the Moghul Government and the Raja of Jagodih used to pay tribute to him. Dalel Singh who was then Raja of Ramgarh decoyed Magar Khan, Raja of Jagodih, out of his fort at Brigsa put him to death and took possession of his estate and eight taluks. He and his successor Bishun Singh remained in possession for 7 years until 1726, when with the help of an army sent by the Aumil of Narhat Samoy, the Jagodih Raja was restored. Six years later, in 1732, Bishun Singh again got possession and drove out the Jagodih Raja, who fled to Itkhore, the chief of which was his uncle, Raja Subaran Singh. These two Rajas then applied to the Raja of Tikari, Sunder Singh, for assistance and about a year or so later Sunder Singh marched on Ramgarh and by treachery secured Bishun Singh in confinement and exacted a ransom of Rs. 80,000 and made him deliver up the Parganas. The Raja of Jagodih, however, does not appear to have got possession for Sunder Singh himself remained in possession for 5 years. Then in 1738 or thereabouts Sunder Singh, being at enmity with Ali Verdi Khan, the Nawab of Bihar, was attacked by the latter and fled, and Bishun Singh with the Nawab's participation again got possession and kept it for 9 years until 1747. The following year the Rajas of Jagodih and Rampur invoked the assistance of Kamdar Khan who marched with an army and put the Jagodih Chiefs again in possession of the country. They retained possession, however, only for a few months for about that time Bisweswar Pundit and other Mahratta Chiefs invaded the country, and Bishun Singh, taking advantage of the situation, made large presents to the Mahrattas to put him in possession of Jagodih. The Mahrattas made terms with Kamdar Khan with the result that Bishun Singh again got possession of Jagodih and other Parganas. It would serve no useful purpose to relate in detail the varying fortunes of the different claimants who fought with each other for mastery over these hilly tracts until order was finally restored by the British. It is sufficient to say that this property changed hands on other occasions until it was finally brought under subjection by the Raja of Ramgarh in 1763. The political situation during this period was complex. The Subedar or Nawab Nazim of Bihar, though nominally the representative of the Emperor, lived a long way from Delhi, and his tribute was not always prompt or regular. His renters exacted such tribute as they could from the petty chiefs and zemindars. The latter were continually fighting amongst themselves for supremacy over large tracts of country. The Mahrattas sometimes took a hand, waging a guerilla warfare and exacting, where they could, such sums as the chiefs of the country were prepared to pay to buy them off. The British during the latter half of the eighteenth century were also sending occasional expeditions into this part of the country, and in 1759 Muhammad Ali Gohur, the Emperor's son, invaded Bihar in order to recover the country from the Nawab and instal himself in his place. He made a second incursion in 1760 after his father's death and when he had declared himself Emperor under the name of Shah Alam. The local chiefs took advantage of the disturbed situation to further their own interests making alliances with one side or the other as appeared to them most likely to further their interests and so matters continued with varying fortunes until 1763 when Makund Singh who succeeded his brother Bishun as Raja of Ramgarh in that year reduced all Chai and Champa to his allegiance.

From 1764 onwards the Settlement of Jagodih and the other Chai Parganas was always made with the Rajas of Ramgarh although the Chai Chiefs made efforts to have their independence recognised. The first document produced in support of this part of the case is Ex. 23 a Settlement of Jagodih and other Parganas with Raja Makund Singh for the year 1178 F. (1771 A. D.) at a jama of Rs. 9,001 after deducting nakar inam. The next (Ex. 24) is a Settlement with Raja Makund Singh for three years 1179 to 1181 F. (1772-1774 A. D.) at a jama of Rs. 21,000. The next Settlement was for 5 years 1181 to 1185 F. with Raja Tej Singh at a consolidated jama of Rs. 30,000 and finally we have the Decennial Settlement with Raja Maninath for the years 1197 to 1206 F. at an annual jama of Rs. 40,001 reduced by deduction of sayer and expenses to a net annual jama of Rs. 28,100. This was further reduced by an order of the Board of Revenue in 1792 by certain allowances for excise, markets, etc., to Rs. 26,567. This Settlement includes, inter alia, Pargana Chai which embraces Jagodih, Rampur, Paroria, Danarh and Itkhori. The settlement which was afterwards made permanent provides "You shall not without the order of the Hazur resume Devotar, Brammhotar Mahotar Aimas, Madatmash of pirs and faqirs, orchard land, lakhraj, tanks and istamrari villages without obtaining order from the Hazur nor are you to make fresh Settlement of the same unless you get a sanad from the Hazur to do so. You shall raise in time usual earth work within your boundary limits. In case of negligence on your part you shall be liable for the loss accruing therefrom, you shall guard and watch over the highways within your boundaries carefully so as to enable travellers and passers-by to journey over them peacefully and safely. You will not harbour thieves and robbers within your jurisdiction. If, per adventure anybody's property be stolen or robbed, you will conformably with Criminal Regulations search for and produce the thieves and robbers with the property".

From this it will be seen that the grantee became responsible to Government for keeping the peace within the zemindari a task previously carried out with the assistance of the jagirdars holding under the Raj whose sanads generally provide that they should maintain a certain number of armed men.

It appears from the documentary evidence in the case and from Mr. Sifton's Settlement Report (pages 86 and 87) that the question of resuming the jagirs was raised at the time of the Decennial Settlement. Mr. Leslie, the Collector, complained to the Board that the value of the Ramgarh Estate was greatly reduced by the alienation of most of the lands in jagir and recommended resumption on the death of the existing incumbent on the ground that the services for which the jagirs were assigned were no longer required. At the same time he pointed out that the custom of the devolution of the jagirs from father to son had become so established that he feared any sudden innovation would be attended with bad consequences. I have already referred to this letter of July 1788 in which he included Lal Khan of Jagodih as one of jagirdars of Ramgarh. In the later correspondence in 1792, after referring to the kamil jama, Mr. Leslie states that it had been thought expedient to require the jagirdars to pay a certain annual revenue in lieu of maintaining the people specified in their sanad, a measure which caused considerable discontent at first and the proportion of the kamil jama which they should pay was not finally determined until the time of Mr. Dallas who fixed it at 6-annas in the rupee on the kamil jama. This measure, however, had not proved satisfactory as this rate of payment although easy in some cases was intolerable in others and the zemindar had been obliged to grant reductions in his Mufassil Settlement to several people whose revenue was excessive. He further states that the jagirdars had in many cases fallen into arrears, as their lands had not been cultivated, and they had taken up the position that they were independent of the zemindar and could not be dispossessed. He makes certain suggestions for alleviating the situation, and, in the event of the Board not approving his proposals, he asks for a determination on the point whether the zemindar has the right to resume the jagir in case the jagirdar falls into arrears and secondly, whether on the death of the jagirdar his heirs have the right to get possession on the same terms, or whether the zemindar may resume the land and increase the rent or levy a fine for renewal. The Board replied that they conceived it optional with the zemindars to resume such of these tenures as they might think proper either upon the death of the present incumbent or upon their being unable to discharge the revenue assessed on their lands and, after resumption fix such assessment as they might think proper under the general Regulations. From that time onwards the jagirs in Ramgarh have come to be regarded as resumable, but by the custom in the family established and supported by legal decisions the zemindar cannot resume except upon failure of the lineal male line of the grantee.

I may now turn to the documents relied on by the plaintiff as showing that the Jagodih Rajas held their lands under a jagir tenure from Ramgarh. The plaintiff's case is that the Ramgarh Rajas were the paramount chiefs of that part of the country for centuries before the advent of British rule. He further contends that although Ramgarh may have lost its dominion over Jagodih from time to time during the disturbed period in the first half of the eighteenth century, nevertheless from 1763 onwards they were always masters of the country, and in fact from about that time they retained possession, and by way of maintenance, and in return for certain services, the nature of which is not very clear but probably included the maintenance of certain armed men, they made grants of a few villages in their Parganas to the Chai Chiefs including Jagodih. The first document is a duplicate sanad dated 1762 (Ex. 13) but it relates only to five villages in Champa which were granted as baiswan (jagir) by Bishun Singh to Lal Khan the then Raja of Jagodih. The learned Judge criticises the authenticity of this document adversely on the ground that it is not in accordance with the allegation in the plaint which states that 16 villages set out in Sch. A of the plaint were granted by a patta dated Aghan Badi 5, 1819 Sambat (1762 A. D.) whereas the sanad produced includes only the first 5 villages mentioned and is dated Aghan Badi 3, 1819 Sambat. The document certainly does not mention any villages in Chai but only those in Champa, but the explanation would appear to be that the plaintiff was relying upon a similar document set out in the rubakari (Ex. 1) in the suit between the Jagodih Chiefs and Maninath Singh decided in 1793 when the former endeavoured to assert their right to a proprietary interest in these Parganas and failed. This document is set out at length in the rubakari in that suit and is followed by what is either a continuation of it or a separate document, but the writing in the copy of the rubakari produced is in parts so mutilated that it is unintelligible, and it is difficult to decipher some of the most important entries, but whether it is part of the same or a different grant, the remaining 11 villages referred to in Schedule A are there named. It is a baiswan grant which is a description of jagir according to Mr. Sifton, assigned for a particular purpose (see Hazaribagh Settlement Report page 86). The learned Judge also thought that the grant could not have been made in Aghan 1819 which corresponds with 1170 F, because according to Sitab Rai's report Lal Khan was in possession of Jagodih for 6 months in 1762. It is, however, by no means clear from Sitab Rai's report that the Raja of Ramgarh was out of possession in November or December 1762 which would correspond with Aghan 1819 Sambat. It was in 1169 F. (1761-1762 A. D.) according to Sitab Rai that Mir Kasim the Nawab sent an army under Buali Khan to depose Kamdar Khan who had rebelled. The Jagodih Chiefs joined Buali Khan, while Bishun Singh sided with his old enemy, Kamdar but was defeated, and Lal Khan and the other chiefs of Chai and Champa got back their estates, but for 6 months only, as the Raja of Ramgarh re-gained Jagodih and the other taluks by bribing the Government Officers. This was probably in the middle or latter part of 1762. Then in 1170 F. (1762-1763 A. D.) according to the report another expedition was sent under Assadullah against the Rajas of Kharagpur, Birbhum, Pachait and Kamdar Khan who had rebelled and who had been encouraged by the Raja of Ramgarh. Again Ramgarh was defeated and again Lal Khan and the other talukdars were restored. This was according to the report towards the first part of 1170 F. It seems, therefore, quite likely that Jagodih was in possession of the Raja of Ramgarh in November-December 1762 and that the second expedition as in the beginning of 1763, for the first part of 1170 F. would include the early months of 1763. It was later in the same year when war broke out between the Nawab and the English that Makund Singh, on Bishun's death, finally subdued the Chai Chiefs and brought the whole of Chai and Champa within his zemindari. Now if Bishun Singh was in possession of Jagodih at the end of 1762 it seems to me by no means improbable that the Raja of Jagodih would accept from him a few villages out of his lost estate for his maintenance coupled with certain duties. If he was offered them, he was hardly likely to refuse as his whole estate was gone. Ramgarh was undoubtedly the most powerful and enterprising zemindar in the neighbourhood and although the Chai Chiefs had from time to time recovered their own, with outside assistance, during the previous half century, their tenure had been a very precarious one and the Ramgarh Raja had been in actual possession for the greater part of that period. Although this document by itself is of little value as evidence of the actual question in dispute it is an indication, if it can be relied on at all, that Lal Khan took a baiswan grant of certain villages in Champa, and the document set out in the rubakari shows that these as well as other villages in Chai were taken by him on similar terms. Other documents set out in the same rubakari show baiswan grants of certain villages yielding an income of about Rs. 1,500 to two other Chai Chiefs, namely, those of Itkhori and Rampur in 1766 and 1769. Between 1784 and 1785 the same Rajas including Lal Khan executed bonds in favour of Maninath Singh of Ramgarh agreeing to pay rent for their villages described as jagir villages. These documents are set out in the rubakari of the 17th December 1793 in the suit already mentioned. That relating to Jagodih is signed on behalf of Lal Khan by the pen of Sumer Singh. It acknowledges a rent of Rs. 656-12-0 and agrees to pay it by instalments. The learned Judge's criticisms of this document hardly appear to me to be justified. The date of the document is 1841 Sambat, not 1839 as the learned Judge assumed. This appears clear from the judgment in the case itself in which these documents are referred to with their dates. The learned Judge's reason for doubting the authenticity of the document by reference to the rent mentioned in the awarza of 1839 Sambat may, therefore, be disregarded. The awarza for 1841 Sambat is not on the record but that of Assin 1842 Sambat shows a rent of Rs. 649-4-0 and that of Assin 1843 shows a rent of Rs. 656-8-0 which agrees with the bond. The rents appear to vary from year to year. I hardly think that one should regard old documents of this nature in a hypercritical spirit, as explanations which might have been forthcoming at the time they were made may no longer be available after the lapse of so many years. The learned Judge also says that it has not been shown that the originals no longer exist and, therefore, secondary evidence is not admissible. The evidence shows, and there seems no reason to doubt it, that a search was made in the record room of the Court of Wards for these old documents and such as could be found have been produced. A search was also made at Calcutta, Patna and Ranchi to find if the original records of the suit of 1792 in which the documents had been exhibited still existed but no trace of the record could be found. The copy of the rubakari was produced from the Commissioner's record room at Ranchi. It was to the plaintff's interest to produce the originals of these documents if he could do so, and I consider that the search made for them was a genuine one and failed. The secondary evidence is, therefore, in my opinion, admissible. The fact that the bond of 1841 Sambat (1784 A. D) was signed on behalf of Raja Lal Khan by the pen of Sumer Singh is also relied on by the learned Judge as showing its inadmissibility for there is no evidence that Sumer Singh had authority to sign on behalf of his master. This matter, however, is of small importance for subsequent documents that Raja Lal Khan had agreed to pay rent for these villages.

It appears from other documents in the rubakari that in 1782 Mr. Dallas the British representative in that part of Bihar finding that the Raja of Ramgarh was unable to pay the revenue owing to default on the part of the jagirdars sent Lala Daryao Singh to make collections direct from the raiyats of the jagir villages. He directed him for the present to collect two annas in the rupee and as regards the balance according to orders that would be passed later. It appears that Lala Daryao Singh applied for orders as regards collection of rents from the talukas of Raja Lal Khan of Jagodih and Shibnath Singh of Rampur and Mr. Dallas directed him to get bonds executed by them for rent in accordance with the khasra papers. The bonds signed by Raja Lal Khan as well as by Shibnath of Rampur and Bahadur Sahi of Itkhori were no doubt executed in accordance with such instructions and they were all signed by the agent on behalf of the respective Rajas. There appears to be little doubt as to the genuineness of the bond signed in 1784 on behalf of Raja Lal Khan of Jagodih. If this is so it is an acknowledgment that he held the villages under a jagir tenure. The rent appears to have been fixed at 4-annas in the rupee on the kamil jama and in 1786 a suit was instituted by Maninath Singh against Lal Khan and Shibnath Singh for realisation of the rent due of the villages then held by them fixed at one-fourth of the kamil jama. In that suit a compromise was come to, the defendants agreeing to transfer a quarter of their villages in lieu of the present and future rents for the whole. This agreement is evidenced by an ekrarnama signed by Raja Lal Khan and Raja Shibnath Singh on the one hand and by a similar document signed by Raja Maninath Singh of Ramgarh on the other. The suit came before Mr. Leslie who was at that time Collector and the ekrarnama of Raja Maninath Singh was delivered to the defendants in his presence and bears the signature of Mr. Leslie. The document signed by the defendants in that suit is to the following effect:—

"Whereas Raja Maninath Singh instituted before the Hazur a suit against us for Rs. 1,330-12-0 being one-fourth of Rs. 5,323 the total amount of rents of the villages held by us but we could not discharge ourselves from the liablity for one fourth of the entire rent, therefore, we of our own accord and free-will give up one-fourth of the villages detailed below for the satisfaction of the one-fourth share of the rent. The said Raja Maninath Singh shall cultivate the villages to the extent of one-fourth share and appropriate the produce thereof on account of rent. In future we shall not interfere with him in respect of the said villages. When we will pay off the said rent to the extent of one-fourth of the entire jama to Raja Maninath Singh we will take possession of our villages. Therefore we have given in writing these few words in the shape of an ekrarnama so that it may be of use when required."

The word translated "rent" in that document is "malguzari". In the corresponding document signed by Maninath Singh the words used are "malguzari sarkar" which may mean Government revenue or may mean rent paid to a superior. The rent payable by Lal Khan fixed at one-fourth of the kamil jama was acknowledged to be Rs. 655-8-0 which corresponds very nearly with the rent acknowledged in the bond of 1784.

About this time the Jagodih Rajas were endeavouring to obtain from the Government Officers on the spot an acknowledgment of their proprietary interest in their estates. They appear to have produced documents in support of their title before Captain Camac, Mr. Chapman and Mr. Dallas and at one time it would appear that they very nearly succeeded. They had obtained some sort of promise from Tej Singh during the short time he was in possession of the Ramgarh Raj that he would confer the rajgi upon all three Rajas and on the 1st June 1782 Mr. Dallas wrote to Lal Khan and Shibnath Singh that the sanad and khillat had been received from Calcutta in the previous month. In a later letter of the 14th January 1783, nothing apparently having been done, Mr. Dallas again writes to them saying "Your application has been received. The facts mentioned therein have been learnt. This year the country is in such a state owing to drought. I will, however, see to it sometimes after when the country will be better off". But no Settlement was ever made by Government with these Rajas.

After the Decennial Settlement had been concluded with Maninath Singh, the three Rajas of Jagodih, Rampur and Itkhori instituted a suit before Mr. Hunter the District Judge of Ramgarh against Maninath Singh claiming to have the milkiat and malguzari rights in the Chai Parganas restored to them. The earlier part of their petition in that suit is mutilated and in parts undecipherable but they admit that certain villages in the taluk had been given to them for their enjoyment by Makund Singh. The case made by them was that the whole of these Parganas were originally their ancestral property but that Makund Singh had forcibly deprived them of their property and that the villages which they still held had been given to them by him for their enjoyment. These villages they refer to as their nankar villages. They were in fact nothing of the sort, although the term may have been loosely used in respect to villages which they held rent free after the commutation made in the rent suit in 1786, whereby they handed over one-fourth of the villages in lieu of rent. They complained that Raja Makund Singh had forcibly taken possession of Pargana Chai and claimed that their milkiat and malguzari rights therein should be restored to them. The case made by the defendant in that suit was that he and his ancestors had been in possession of the Chai Parganas for three generations and had received Settlement from the East India Company and that the plaintiffs had got jagirs for services of the villages they still possessed and that they were paying rent like other jagirdars. The plaintiffs replied that the Government revenue had been paid by them and their ancestors down to their times and that Pargana Chai their ancestral property had never been included in the Ramgarh District or Karanpura by the sheristadar at Sadar. They produced some old kabuliyats of dates between the years 1727 and 1732 showing they had Settlement with the Mughal Government at that time. These were no doubt accurate as they had regained possession from Bishun Singh during those years but they lost possession again just afterwards and from 1763 they never again got possession except over the villages granted by the Raja of Ramgarh. From the evidence in that case it appears that the plaintiffs admitted that they had been dispossessed of their malkiat rights since 1171 F. (1763-1764 A. D). The sazawal Daryao Singh also gave evidence from which it appears that he was sent by Mr. Dallas in 1782 to attach the crops in Pargana Chai as there was a deficit in the revenue of Ramgarh. The money collected was deposited towards the revenue payable by the Raja of Ramgarh. The evidence showed that the collections from the plaintiffs' villages were made in the same way as in the case of the other jagirdars and that the plaintiffs in that suit held jagirs from the time of Makund Singh. The Court found that the plaintiffs had been out of possession of the milkiat zemindari since 1171 F. a period of over 30 years and as the cause of action arose more than 12 years before the institution of the suit and before the acquisition of the Diwani it was time-barred and the claim was dismissed. From this decision there was an appeal to the Provincial Court of Appeal at Patna, but the judgment of the District Judge was affirmed and a second appeal to the Sadar Diwani Adaulat shared the same fate.

It should be remembered that the scheme of the Settlement Regulations was to ascertain the rights of the parties as they existed at the date of the acquisition of the Diwani in 1765 and to settle the land with those who were the actual proprietors at that time, ignoring any earlier titles unless they still subsisted. Under s. 12 of Regulation VIII of 1793 the Collectors were to acquaint the talukdars whom they might adjudge not to be actual proprietors of the land composing their taluks and who consequently continued under the zemindars or other actual proprietors that, if dissatisfied with their decision, they were at liberty to sue for the right of property in their taluks and in the event of their establishing such right, they were to be saparated from the zemindars or other actual proprietors and allowed to pay the revenue assessed upon their taluks to the public treasury. This, however, was subject to the provisions of s. 14 of Regulation III of the same year which prohibited the Courts from trying the merits of any suit where the cause of action arose before the 12th August 1765 or, with certain exceptions, where the cause of action arose 12 years before the suit commenced.

It was contended on behalf of the respondents that the suit of 1793 did not include a claim for the proprietary interest in the villages of which the plaintiffs in that suit were already in possession, but I think it must be taken on a perusal of the record of the suit that the Jagodih Rajas were claiming proprietary rights over the whole of their Parganas of which according to their case they had been deprived. They state in their plaint "Raja Maninath Singh of Ramgarh is in possession of the milkiat and malguzari Rs. 6,501 besides the zirats which is our own jama of five mahals". They were claiming apparently the whole of that which was lost which was their milkiat right; and had they proved that they were entitled as proprietors, even to the villages which they still held, and not as jagirdars I think that they would have been entitled to a declaration as to that part of the property. Evidence was called on both sides as to the terms on which they held these villages. It was their case that the rent was collected during the time of Mr. Dallas under some sort of parwana granted by him and that they were paying as proprietors, but a body of evidence was called on behalf of the Raja of Ramgarh including that of Daryao Singh the sazawal sent by Mr. Dallas to collect the rent, to show that he collected the rent from them as jagirdars in the same way as he collected it from the other jagirdars and credited it to the revenue payable by Ramgarh. There seems to have been no object in calling this evidence unless it were to prove that the Jagodih Rajas were holding those villages as jagirdars and not as proprietors. The Court seems to have accepted the evidence for the defendant on this question and dismissed the whole claim on the ground that the plaintiffs had been out of possession of the proprietary right from before 1765. I consider, therefore, that the present respondents are precluded by that decision from re-opening the question of their proprietary interest.

I hold further that on the evidence before us it is amply proved that the Raja of Jagodih held the villages at that time in his possession under a baiswan or jagir grant from Ramgarh. These villages, then numbering 21 reduced to 15 after the rent suit of 1786, are the nucleus of the present 41 villages of the tenure. The bond of 1784 the genuineness of which is corroborated by the compromise in the rent suit of 1786 admits that they were jagir villages and the amalnama issued by Raja Maninath Singh in 1784 (Ex. 14) is further corroboration of the jagir grant. The Court in the suit in 1793 seems to have taken the same view. Moreover, it is significant that as late as 1848 Raja Shibraj Khan, the descendant of Lal Khan and ancestor of the present respondents, in his petition to Government giving the history of taluka Jagodih, states "The said Raja Makund Singh through his high handedness brought the zemindari in his possession and occupation but left out several villages out of the aforesaid mahal for the maintenance of the dependants of the ancestors of your petitioner the Raja". Maintenance grants in Ramgarh and Chota Nagpur like jagirs are resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of the grantee. In fact it would appear that at all events up to recent times no grants were ever made in Ramgarh of a larger interest than a tenure descendible in the male line. Woodroffe, J., in Ram Narain Singh v. Chota Nagpur Banking Association (1) when discussing the nature of mokarrari istamrari leases which were first granted in Ramgarh in about the year 1864 states:—

"Before that date there had been no absolute transfers in Ramgarh, the nearest approach to such transfers being jagirs descendible in the male line."

(1) 36 Ind. Cas. 321; 43 C. 332 at p. 348

If my decision on the above points is accepted it is unnecessary to consider the effect, if any, of the Settlement Regulations upon the status of the Jagodih Rajas, but in case the present suit may go to a higher tribunal I propose to state my conclusions upon this question.

The entry in the Record of Rights to the effect that the tenure is not resumable by the Raja of Ramgarh in any event can only be justified on the assumption that the tenure-holders have an absolute proprietary interest in the land and are not lease-holders. It is the respondents' case that at the time of the Permanent Settlement they were in the position of independent talukdars and, although they have lost their rights with regard to the other villages in the taluk they at all events retain the right of independent talukdars with regard to the villages which they still possessed at the time of the Settlement. This argument is based upon the assumption that the suit of 1793 did not include those villages. Under the provisions of Regulation VIII of 1793, as already stated, it is provided by cl. (4) that the Settlement, under certain restrictions and exceptions therein specified, shall be concluded with the actual proprietors of the soil of whatever denomination whether zemindars, talukdars or chaudharies. The talukdars to be considered the actual proprietors of the land composing their taluks are set out in s. 5 and are to be regarded as independent talukdars entitled to a separate Settlement with Government. The distinguishing feature of this class is, as I read the section, that they have either acquired their land from the zemindar or other actual proprietor by sale or gift making over to them the proprietary rights, or have received from Government grants of a similar nature directing them to pay their revenue through some other zemindar and not direct to Government. The respondents rely upon the third clause of s. 5 and say that they are talukdars whose taluks were formed before the zemindar or other actual proprietor of land to whom they now pay their revenue or his ancestors succeeded to the zemindari, and they further point to s. 6 which provides that proprietors of taluks, who now pay the public revenue assessed upon their lands through a zemindar or other actual proprietor of land, and whose title-deeds contain a clause stipulating that their revenue is to be paid through him, shall continue to pay their revenue through such zemindar or other actual proprietor of land as heretofore. Assuming that for certain short periods under the Mughal Emperors and before the acquisition of the Diwani they had Settlement of their taluks and were paying revenue direct to the treasury or through some renter such as Kamdar Khan or some other zemindar they lost all rights in their zemindari before 1765 when Raja Makund Singh finally drove them out; and the Settlement made by the British Government took notice only of those rights which still subsisted on the 12th August 1765. From that date onwards they cannot be said to come under the provisions of cl. (6) as they can produce no title-deeds containing a clause stipulating that their revenue is to be paid through Ramgarh or any other proprietor after that date. Had they wished to assert such a right after the property was settled with Ramgarh, they should have brought a suit to establish such right under the provisions of cl. (12) of Regulation VIII. I am assuming, of course, that the villages comprised in their tenures were not included in the suit of 1793. Questions having arisen as to the time within which such a suit could be brought it was provided by Regulation I of 1801, s. 14, (after reciting the necessity of fixing a period for the institution of such suits) as follows:—

"It is hereby required all that talukdars who as the proprietors of the lands composing their taluks may consider themselves entitled under s. 5, Regulation VIII, 1793 or any other part of that Regulation to be separated from the zemindars to which their taluks are attached, shall prefer a written application to the Collector of the zillah in which their taluks may be situated, for the separation thereof, within one year from the date of this Regulation, under penalty of forfeiting all title to separation under Ragulation VIII, 1793, if they shall omit to apply as directed within the prescribed period, at the expiration of which the portion of the section above mentioned shall be considered extinct with regard to all taluks for which no claim to separation may have been then preferred; and such taluks shall thereafter be considered as dependent taluks, not entitled to be separated from the zemindaris to which they may be attached, though in other respects the rights of the talukdars are not meant to be in any degree affected by the Regulation."

The effect of this section appears to me to be that the holders of the Jagodih tenure are reduced to the status of dependent talukdars holding under the Ramgarh Raj and are to be considered as lease-holders only, within the meaning of s. 7 of Regulation VIII of 1793. It is true that their rights in other respects are not affected but they cannot be both dependent and independent. If dependent they are mere lease-holders under the Ramgarh Raja and cannot have a greater interest than that of other lease-holders holding under that Raj at the time of the Permanent Settlement. The highest form of tenure known in Ramgarh at that time was a jagir resumable on the death of the male heirs of the body of the grantee. The grantee in this case was Lal Khan.

With respect to the Settlement Officer, Mr. Sifton, who decided this question for the purposes of the Record of Rights, I think his conclusion was based upon very inadequate materials. He says "After reading the evidence produced I am satisfied that these tenures are not of the same origin as the jagirs founded by the Padma Raja and his predecessors. They have hitherto been regarded and treated as shikmi or shamilat taluks and they probably existed as independent properties before the Ramgarh Raj was established, and I can find nothing in their recent history to change the status of the holders of these taluks. As they were not originated by the Ramgarh Raj I find them to be not resumable by the zemindar. They will be noted in the khewat as not liable to resumption." In his Settlement report at page 26 he says "Jagodih, Rampur, Paroria, Itkhori and Barsote are shamilat taluks the owners of which have always claimed that they are not tenure-holders of the Ramgarh Raj, and that a separate revenue ought to have been assessed on their estates. I have not been able to find out any definite history of the taluks but the fact of their appearing with separately assessed revenue at the time when even the Chota Nagpur Raj was paying its revenue through the Ramgarh Raj suggests the possibility of these shikmi talukdars having been also in reality independent as they claim." If by this he means that they were separately assessed by Government as independent taluks after 1765 there is no evidence to support him. If he means that they were independent at some period or other before that date, then this ignores the fact that in 1765 when the British took over the administration of the country their independence had vanished and the Ramgarh Raj was by conquest the proprietor. Moreover it would appear that Mr. Sifton had not the advantage we now possess of having before him the old documents showing baisway grants or the other documentary evidence adduced in this suit which is confirmatory of those grants.

A further point was raised on behalf of the respondents that the present suit was barred by the provisions of s. 258 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act which applies to land Settlements in Ramgarh. The section provides that save as expressly provided in the Act, no suit shall be entertained in any Court to vary, modify or set aside, either directly or indirectly, any order or decree of any Deputy Commissioner or Revenue Officer in any suit or proceedings under (inter alia) s. 89 except on the ground of fraud or want of jurisdiction. It is contended that the order passed by the Revenue Officer which resulted in the final publication of the Record of Rights was an order passed under s. 89 and cannot now be questioned. The latter section gives the Revenue Officer power on application, or of his own motion, within 12 months from the making of any order or decision under ss. 83, 85 or 86 to revise the same, whether made by himself or by any other Revenue Officer. It is contended that the order passed by Mr. Sifton was an order revising the previous order made by his subordinate under s. 83 which prescribes the procedure for considering objections to the entries made in the draft record. An objection to the entries in the draft record with regard to Jagodih was heard and decided in favour of the present respondents, and Mr. Sifton whose intention appears to have been to reserve this question for himself afterwards decided it in the same manner. When applied to subsequently, he stated that the order made by him was not and did not purport to be taken under s. 89, and added that his order would not be any bar to any subsequent civil suit to determine the status of the tenure. However, that may be, it seems clear that any order passed under s. 83 relates to the draft record only. The draft has now served its purpose and final publication has taken place and the present suit is not one seeking in any way to interfere with the draft record which is merely a preliminary publication. With regard to the Record of Rights finally published, s. 84, cl. (3) provides :—"Every entry in a Record of Rights so published shall be evidence of the matter referred to in any such entry, and shall be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect." This provision is similar to that in s. 103-B (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act which creates a statutory presumption in favour of the correctness of the finally published record but implies the right to bring a suit averring the contrary. In my opinion the present suit is not barred by s. 258 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

What the exact significance of the terms shamilat and shikmi may be it is not necessary to enquire—authorities differ as to their meaning but, in my opinion, the appellant is entitled to a declaration that Jagodih Lat consisting of the villages named in Schedule E of the plaint is a jagir tenure held under the Ramgarh Estate and is resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of Raja Lal Khan, and that it is not a shamilat or shikmi tenure in the sense in which those terms are used by the Revenue Officer in the Record of Rights published in 1914.

A point was raised by Mr. Bannerji, who appeared on behalf of the respondent No. 24, Maharaj Bahadur Singh, who has acquired some interest by purchase in Mouza Petula one of the villages named in Schedule E of the plaint as appertaining to Jagodih Lat. He contends that Mouza Petula appertains to taluk Rampur and not to Jagodih and that he has been unnecessarily made a party to the suit. There was no evidence one way or the other to show whether the village claimed by this respondent is the same Petula as that mentioned in the documents in this case or whether it has subsequently been transferred to Rampur. This question cannot be determined in the present suit and must be left open.

The decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge is set aside with costs against the defendants who appeared at the trial, and in lieu thereof a decree will be passed granting the declaration above mentioned. The appeal is allowed with costs against the respondents who have appeared other than the respondent No. 24 who will bear his own costs.

Mullick, J.—The lands in suit lie within the zemindari of Ramgarh which is situated in the Hazaribagh District, in the Chota Nagpur Division of the Province of Bihar. The Moghuls to whom the hilly and jungle country in Chota Nagpur was known as the Jharkund did not conquer it till 1539, preferring before that time the easier route for their armies along the Ganges Valley to Bengal. In 1659 Prince Muhammad, the son of Aurangzeb, appears to have struck out a new route through Sherghati and through Ramgarh and with a force of 12,000 cavalry attacked the fort of Monghyr in the rear. At the time of the death of Aurangzeb in 1707 the Administration of Bihar was conducted by the Nawab Nazim of Bengal who had his seat at Murshidabad, through a Governor and Deputy Governor at Azimabad or Patna, who collected the revenues either directly through their officers or through amils or renters. One such renter Kamdar Khan plays an important part in the history of Ramgarh and was in possession of Pargana Chai at various times between 1750 and 1760. About that time the Mahrattas in their expedition against Bengal marched through Ramgarh and assisted the Chief of Ramgarh against the Chiefs of Chai. On the 12th August 1765 the Diwani of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa passed into the hands of the East India Company and they became the de facto rulers of Bihar. Between 1763 and 1772 Captain Camac on behalf of the Company brought killa Ramgarh into complete submission and in 1790 a Decennial Settlement was concluded of the Ramgarh Estate with Raja Maninath Singh, which was made permanent in 1799.

The Rajas of Ramgarh trace their descent through two brothers Baghdeo and Singhdeo who acquired 22 Parganas from the Moghuls in the 14th century.

Between 1604 and 1661 Hemat Singh, the Raja of Ramgarh, had his capital at Badam. In 1670 Dalel Singh, the successor of Hemut Singh, is said to have removed the capital to Ramgarh 30 miles to the east in order to escape the pressure of the Muhammadan occupation. It is supposed that the Chiefs of taluk Jagodih began first to come into prominence about this time. In 1719 Dalel Singh captured and murdered the Jagodih Chief Meger Khan and he kept the taluk for 7 years. Dalel Singh died in 1724 and was succeeded by his son Bishun Singh who ruled till 1763. About 1726 Ranmust Khan, the Chief of Jagodih, got back his taluk with the aid of Ali Namal Khan the amil of Narhat Semoy; but his son Mahipat Khan was again driven out by the Raja of Ramgarh. Between 1734 and 1739 Sunder Singh, the Raja of Tikari in Zilla Bihar, captured and kept possession of the taluk. In 1739 Bishun Singh re-captured it and kept it for 9 years but in 1748 he was driven out by Kamdar Khan, whose assistance the Chai Chiefs had invoked. Shortly after this the Mahrattas invaded the country and assisted Bishun Singh to re-gain Jagodih, but Kamdar Khan again defeated Bishun Singh and came to an arrangement with him in 1752 by which he kept Pargana Chai for himself and gave the country south of the Barakar to Lal Khan and the other Chai Chiefs and to the proprietor of Ramgarh. This arrangement lasted till 1760. In 1760 war broke out between the Emperor at Delhi and the Nawab Nazim and Kamdar Khan joined the former. But he was defeated and eventually sought shelter from Ramgarh and gave up the country to the north of the Barakar to Bishun Singh.

In 1762 the Chai Chiefs re-gained possession for about 6 months with the help of Buali Khan who was acting on behalf of the Nawab Nazim but Bishun Singh again re-gained possession either by bribery or by force.

It is said that about this time the Chief of Jagodih admitted the proprietary right of the Raja of Ramgarh and accepted a jagirdari pottah.

But the Chiefs of Chai do not appear to have acknowledged Bishun Singh's authority for long and in 1764 they were again invaded by Makund Singh, who had succeeded Bishun Singh in 1763. They were reduced into complete submission and it does not appear that they ever re-gained their independence after 1764.

In 1772 Makund Singh rebelled and was driven out by the British forces and Tej Singh was installed as the Chief of Ramgarh. Tej Singh, however, did not live long and died the following year and was succeeded by his son Pareshnath who ruled till 1784. Pareshnath's son, Maninath, was the proprietor till 1812 when he was succeeded by his son Sidnath. The plaintiff in the present suit is the descendant of Sidnath.

The plaintiff alleges that his predecessor Bishun Singh conquered Parganas Chai and Champa in or about 1762 and gave part of the conquered country in jagir to Lal Khan, the ancestor and predecessor-in-interest of defendants Nos. 1 and 2. It is alleged that the territory thus given comprised Mouzas Churchu, Khirgaon, Oreya, Alounja and Nimakhap in Pargana Champa and Saharjama, Barahmoria, Basaria, Chakarsar, Suratpore, Kharaundha, Debo, Enaitchak, Machla, Abu Parsa and Patula in Pargana Chai, that is to say Nos. 1 to 5 and 6 to 16 of Schedule A of the plaint. Between 1762 and 1780 Mouzas 1 to 5, 9, 13 and 15 of Schedule A were taken back by the Ramgarh Raj and 14 new mouzas were substituted therefor, so that the tenure comprised the 21 mouzas given in Schedule B. In 1782 the rent of these 21 mouzas was fixed at Rs. 656-12-0 and a kabuliyat was taken therefor from Raja Lal Khan by Maharaja Maninath Singh. As Lal Khan defaulted in the payment of rent Maninath brought a suit in the Diwani Adalat and a compromise was effected by which Lal Khan surrendered Mouzas Barahmoria, Maujurhand, Padaria, Deosar, Koed, Doeya as security for the rent payable in respect of the 21 mouzas, and it was agreed that these mouzas were to be released by the proprietor as soon as the tenure-holder could find other security for the rent.

The tenure was thus reduced to the 15 mouzas mentioned in Schedule C.

It is alleged that between 1786 and 1914 twenty-six hamlets or new mouzas were established on the site of the 15 mouzas and that the tenure now comprises the 41 mouzas enumerated in Schedule E. These have been recorded by the Settlement Officer in the khewat of Mouza Jagodih as falling within the estate of Raja Ramnarain Singh and as constituting a non-resumable shikmi taluk which was purchased by Rai Debendra Chandra Ghose, the predecessor of defendants Nos. 3 and 3 (a) and Rai Jadu Nath Mukherji the predecessor of the Mukherji defendants, in execution of a decree obtained against Raja Hiram Khan and others.

The sense in which the Settlement Authorities have used the word "shikmi" is to be gathered by reference to page 90 of the Final Report of the Survey and Settlement Operations in the District of Hazaribagh published in 1917. In that report Mr. Sifton, the Settlement Officer, makes the following observations in para. 227 in regard to shamilat taluks:—

"In the Ramgarh Estate there are 5 shikmi or shamilat taluks; their origin has been referred to above. The claim made by the talukdars that they were independent chiefs and at the time of the Decennial Settlement only happened to be paying their revenue through the Raja of Ramgarh as the Raja of Chota Nagpur was also doing may be true. When their applications to Government at the Decennial Settlement for a separate assessment to revenue were rejected, three of the talukdars to avoid paying an annual rent to the Ramgarh Estate, each made over separately to that estate a number of villages representing in value the amount of their shares of revenue, and held the balance of their property as rent-free."

He also writes in para. 65 as follows "Jagodih Rampur, Itkhori, Paroria and Barsote are shamilat taluks the owners of which have always claimed that they are not tenure-holders of the Ramgarh Raj and that a separate revenue ought to have been assessed on their estates. I have not been able to find out any definite history of the taluks, but the fact of their appearing with separately assessed revenue at the time when even the Chota Nagpur Raj was paying its revenue through the Ramgarh Raj suggests the possibility of these shikmi talukdars having been also in reality independent as they claim."

An objection having been taken by the proprietor of Ramgarh to the entry shikmi taluk in respect of Mouza Jagodih and the other mouzas in suit, the Settlement Officer on the 1st February 1914 passed an order as follows:—

"Order in case under s. 89, Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act:

"I have heard Pleaders and Counsel upon the question of the nature of the terms of Rampur, Jagodih, Itkhori and Paroria and Barsote. I reversed my orders until I should have had an opportunity of studying the paper-books of two proceedings in the High Court on the relevency and meaning of which the parties were at variance. It is not necessary for me at this stage to write a detailed judgment as the parties will have an opportunity after final publication or proceedings in a formal suit. After reading the evidence produced I am satisfied that these tenures are not of the same origin as the jagirs founded by the Padma Raja and his predecessors. They have hitherto been regarded and treated as shikmi or shamilat taluks and they probably existed as independent properties before the Ramgarh Raj was established, and I can find nothing in their recent history to change the status of the holders of these taluks."

As they were not originated by the Ramgarh Raj I find them to be not resumable by the zemindar. They will be noted in the khewat as "not liable to resumption."

In para. 21 of his plaint the plaintiff states that the cause of action arose in 1914 when the Record of Rights was finally published, and in para. 22 he prays for the following reliefs.

"(1) It may be declared that the tenure ordinarily called 'Jagodih Lat' consisting of villages in Schedule 'E' hereto annexed is not 'shamilat' or 'shikmi' taluk of the Ramgarh Estate, nor is it "non-resumable" as recorded in the khewats.

"(2) It may be further declared that it is an ordinary jagir under the Raj and is resumable by it on failure of the direct male line of the grantee and under certain other circumstances, and the entries in the khewats are incorrect."

A joint written statement was filed by defendant No. 3 Rai Debendra Chandra Ghose Bahadur and by No. 5 Lokendra Nath Mukherji, No. 6 Odhindra Nath Mukherji, No. 7 Harindra Nath Mukherji, No. 8 Digendra Nath Mukherji and No. 9 Parendra Nath Mukherji jointly. They contended that taluk Jagodih was a shikmi taluk at the time of Decennial Settlement paying revenue through the Maharaja of Ramgarh, that it was not, and never had been, a tenure appertaining to the Ramgarh Estate and that the Settlement Entry was correct.

Defendants Nos. 11 and 13 Jhagru Sahu and Bhagwan Das took the same grounds as the above defendants but further pleaded that the Mouzas Debo and Petula were originally included in taluk Jagodih and that by arrangement with the proprietor of taluk Rampur they were exchanged for Mouzas Pado, Ingania and Phuledaria of that taluk. They also claimed that they had purchased proprietary rights in villages Padaria, Kakraula and Machola and have purchased the jagir, khorposh and khairat rights in several villages in the Jagodih Estate and also a mokarrari interest in Mouza Bhagar.

Defendant No. 24 Maharaj Bahadur Singh claimed to have purchased Mouza Petula and other mouzas in execution of a decree obtained by Damri Sowdagar against Kuar Deo Narain Sahi. He contended that this mouza was in taluk Rampur and that he had been unnecessarily impleaded in the present suit.

Defendant No. 22 Ramkumar Lal Bhagat stated that in 1878 his brother purchased Mouza Debo in execution of a decree obtained against Kuar Deo Narain Sahi, and that the mouza was included in Mouza Rampur and that he had been unnecessarily made a party in the suit.

Defendant No. 3 having died during the pendency of the suit his son, the defendant No. 3 (a) now represents his interest. It appears that by purchase he has acquired the interest of some of the Mukherji defendants. This defendant and defendant No. 24 are the only contesting defendants appearing in the present appeal.

The following facts are either admitted or established beyond doubt:

(1) That the 41 mouzas in suit are situated upon the site of Pargana Chai, Champa and Barsote as existing at the time of the Decennial Settlement.

(2) That the site was settled at the time of the Decennial Settlement as part of the zemindari of Ramgarh.

(3) That they were recorded in 1914 by the Settlement Officer as lying within that zemindari.

(4) That the zemindari bears No. 28 on the revenue roll of the District of Hazaribagh which was constituted in or about 1831.

(5) That the defendants do not claim that the lands were ever revenue free. On the contrary their case is that they were assessed to revenue which was paid for convenience through the Maharaja of Ramgarh.

Now as it was admitted before the Settlement Officer that the defendants were holding land within the ambit of the zemindari of the plaintiff and that he was paying revenue for the same, the onus of showing the nature of their title was upon the defendants and upon a failure to show that they had had a tenancy therein, the plaintiff was entitled to resume. But the Settlement Officer having held that the defendants were owners of a non-resumable tenure the onus is shifted upon the plaintiff, and the question is whether he has given sufficient evidence to rebut the presumption created by the Record of Rights. It is necessary to bear this in mind in examining the evidence adduced by the plaintiff.

On the 11th September 1792 Raja Shiva Nath Sahi of Rampur, Raja Bed Khan of Jagodih and Raja Bahadur Sahi of Itkhori in Pargana Chai, Balaghat, laid a suit before the Diwani Adalat at Chata in Zilla Ramgarh against Raja Maninath Singh zemindar of Zilla Ramgarh valued at Rs. 6,501 alleging that he had misappropriated the income of their villages in Pargana Chai. The prayer was made in the following words:—

"The usual practice as regards one-fourth of our villages has been contravened, we are, however, ready to pay the rent. Raja Maninath Singh of Ramgarh is in possession of the milkiat and malguzari Rs. 6,501 besides the zairats, which is our old jama of 5 mahals. It is, therefore, prayed that the said person may be summoned and justice done so that our milkiat and malguzari right may be restored to us."

The plea of the defendants was that the plaintiffs were jagirdars and that the jagirdars have been paying rent year by year.

The number of mouzas in suit was 40 ½ and the valuation represented one year's rental.

It was decided by Mr. Hunter, the District Judge in a judgment delivered on the 17th December 1793 that inasmuch as the cause of action had arisen previous to the 19th August 1765 the suit was barred under the provisions of the Code of 1793, and also that inasmuch as the cause of action had accrued 12 years prior to the institution of the suit it was also barred under the same Regulations.

There was an appeal to the Provincial Court of Appeal at Azimabad (Patna) which was dismissed on the 29th August 1794. There was then a second appeal by the plaintiffs to the Sadar Diwani Adalat which also was dismissed on the 18th November 1795. The material portion of the judgment of the Court runs as follows: "The appellants admit that they were dispossessed of the zemindari claimed by them previously to the Company's accession to the Diwani, and that it is established in evidence of the witnesses that they have never been restored to the possession of it since that period, that it does not appear that they subsequently preferred any claims to the property in any Court of competent jurisdiction within the period limited by the Regulations nor have appellants assigned any satisfactory reasons for having neglected to prefer their claims. The Court, therefore, considering the admission of appellants' claims precluded in the first instance by s. 14 of the Regulation of 1793 which is extended to the Sadar Diwani Adalat by s. 7 of Regulation VIII of 1793 they resolve and decree that the decree passed in this case on the 29th August 1794 by the Provincial Court of Appeal for the Division of Patna affirmed and that the appeal be accordingly dismissed".

In this suit a large number of the documents were filed by both parties and witnesses were also examined. The contents of the documents were embodied in the judgment of the Court in full and are, therefore, admissible in evidence without the production of the originals. The District Judge, Mr. Hunter, did not pronounce it upon their genuineness or probative value, and it will be necessary in the present appeal to consider the evidentiary value of some of these documents.

The earliest documents of title produced in the suit of 1792 were 7 kabuliyats.

The first is by Raja Ranmust Khan and other talukdars of Parganas Chai, Champa and Rampur in the year 1135 F. (corresponding to 1728) in favour of Qazi Muhammad Majid. The annual jama or revenue was fixed at Rs. 6,503-11-0 "after deduction of one-fourth" and the executants agreed that "they would, after the deduction of the nankar allowance, pay the said amount as usual season after season, instalment after instalment into the treasury of the sarkar." It is suggested that Qazi Muhammad Majid was a representative of the Governor of Bihar at that time. On the back of the kabuliyat there is a memorandum showing that out of the revenue demand of Rs. 6,503-10-9 a sum of Rs. 3,765 was estimated as the nankar inam leaving a balance of Rs. 2,738-10-9 payable as rent. The talukdar Ranmust Khan appears to have been assessed at Rs. 3,130 of which Rs. 1,925 was nankar and Rs 1,205 rent.

There are three similar kabuliyats by Raja Ranmust Khan for the years 1731, 1732 and 1733; and three more by Lal Khan the successor of Ranmust Khan and by Raja Ratan Sahi the talukdar of Rampur for the years 1758, 1759 and 1760 in favour of Maharaja Sunder Sahi Bahadur who, as we have seen, was the zemindar of Tikari in Zilla Bihar. This zemindar acquired considerable power in the time of Ali Verdy Khan, who was the Governor of Bihar and afterwards Nawab Nazim at Murshidabad, and it is established that he invaded Ramgarh and held possession of that District for seven years.

It is not explained how the kabuliyats came to be in the possession of the grantees as in the ordinary course of things the pattas and not the kabuliyats should have been retained by them; and as regards the three kabuliyats alleged to have been executed in favour of Sunder Singh of Tikari, they cannot possibly be genuine for Sunder Singh died in 1759 and the period of his occupation of Ramgarh was between 1734 and 1739. There are also other defects in the kabuliyats in favour of Sunder Singh which make it impossible for us to place any reliance upon these documents.

With regard to the other four kabuliyats, we know that Hemut Singh, the proprietor of Ramgarh, who ruled from 1604 to 1661 made a kamil jama or assessment of revenue for the whole of the Pargana Chai which was eventually the basis of the Decennial Settlement. We also know that Dalel Singh the successor of Hemut Singh killed the Jagodih Chief and drove away his son in or about 1719. This may be regarded, therefore, as the second conquest of the taluk Jagodih. Bishun Singh held the estate from 1724 to 1763 and effected the third conquest of Jagodih in 1762. Makund who succeeded Bishun Singh carried out the fourth conquest in 1764. It is difficult, therefore, to see how Raja Ranmust Khan could have executed any kabuliyat in favour of Qazi Muhammad Majid in 1728 and 1731, 1732 and 1733. In my opinion these kabuliyats are of no value whatsoever.

The next document is a patta dated the 3rd Aghan Badi, Sambat 1819 (which corresponds to 1762 A. D.) granted by Maharaja Sri Bishun Singh to Raja Lal Khan in respect of five villages in Pargana Champa yielding an income of Rs. 1,502. This document was produced in the suit of 1792. It was partly in Urdu and partly in Hindi. The Mouzas Churchu, Khirgaon, Oreya, Alaunn and Nauamap or Nimakhap are mentioned in this document as yielding an income of Rs. 752. The grant is headed "baiswan" which is derived from the word "baitna" to sit and means "assigned for a particular purpose" (see page 86 of Sifton's Settlement Report.) The contents of this document and the meaning of some of the words are obscure but this much is clear—that it was granted for mahal Jagodih and certain villages among which were included Sabergaon, Jagodih, Ambagit Tapa Barmoria, Ichak, Rampur Patti, Surtipur and Karni Kzraundha, Inayat Chak, Kzramba Tappa, Jagodih Karamba and Tappa Machola, Parsa, Rangpur Patti, Balegaon and Tappa Bedul. The document also shows that the income of these villages was to be appropriated to the upkeep of the members of the grantee's family and retainers. A similar patta given by Makund Singh in 1769 to Raja Shibnath Sahi of Rampur in respect of certain other villages shows that the grantee was to spend a sum of Rs. 15 per year on account of the salaries of Rajput gunners. There is another sanad of 1766 granted by Makund Singh to Raja Gulab Sahi of Rampur which also is a baiswan grant. But the Schedules and figures on these three sanads cannot be satisfactorily explained and all that they show is that Lal Khan, Gulab Sahi and Shibnath Sahi got grants of certain villages as baiswan tenures in 1762, 1766 and 1769 from the proprietor of the Ramgarh Raj. The fact is important because it is the case of the defendants that they have always remained independent of the Ramgarh Raj except in so far as their revenue was payable through the Ramgarh Raj. The findings that the defendants were at any time baiswan tenure-holders would be destructive of the case of the defendants.

The grant of a service tenure in 1762 also accords with the known facts of history.

It appears from Sitab Roy's report that Ramgarh was invaded by the Mahrattas about 1748 and that Kamdar Khan, the amil of Narhat Semoy, for a payment of Rs. 22,000 agreed to deliver up the property of Jagodih Rajas to them for two months. After the Mahrattas left, Kamdar Khan attacked Bishun Singh, and in 1752 Bishun Singh and Makund Singh gave up to Kamdar Khan the whole of the country north of the Barakar which includes Pargana Chai, while Lal Khan and other talakdars and the Raja of Ramgarh took the territory south of the river. In 1761 war broke out and Kamdar Khan joined the Shahjada of Delhi (who was afterwards Shah Alam) against the Naib Subedar Ramnarain, who was the Deputy at Patna of the Nawab Nazim. Kamdar Khan was defeated and in order to secure shelter within the zemindari of the Raja of Ramgarh he released to Bishun Singh the property of the Jagodih talukdar notwithstanding the latter's remonstrances. It is intelligible, therefore, that the Chief of Jagodih should at this time have accepted a service grant from Bishun Singh. But Bishun Singh did not retain the rulership long. Shortly afterwards Buali Khan, one of the Generals of the Nawab Nazim Kasim Ali, attacked Kamdar Khan and defeated him. He also defeated his co-rebel Bishun Singh at Ramgarh and he put Lal Khan in possession of the zemindari north of the Barakar annexing for the Nawab Nazim the territory to the south. Shortly after this the proprietor of Ramgarh upon payment of Rs. 55,000 secured a release from the Nawab Nazim of the territory south of the Barakar and 6 months later he by bribing the officers of the Muhammadan Government for a sum of Rs. 20,000, secured possession of the territories to the north also. In 1763 Makund Singh and Bishun Singh were both defeated by Asdullah Khan, the Moghul General at Ramgarh and Asdullah then restored Lal Khan to his zemindari. Bishun Singh died in that year and was succeeded by Makund Singh and Asdullah having been called away to assist the Nawab Nazim against the British and Kamdar Khan who had been reinstated also having retired to Pachete for the same purpose, Makund Singh re-conquered the whole of Parganas Chai and Champa. In 1765 the East India Company took over the Diwani of Bengal Bihar and as Makund Singh would not pay the Government due from him he was attacked by Captain Camac and Captain Goddard in 1769 and finally in 1772 he was deposed and Tej Singh was declared to be the proprietor.

The plaintiff produces a patta granted by Sher Ali Khan on the 19th February 1770 (the date 1185 in the document appears to have been an error in printing). The document bears the seal of the Qazi of the Parganas Palamau, Nagpur, and purports to be granted to Raja Makund Singh talukdar of zillah Jagodih, etc., with effect from 1178 F. which corresponds to 1771 A. D. The revenue is entered as Rs. 9,501 Benares coin and a sum of Rs. 500 is declared to be the grantee's allowance on account of inam nankar. The document recites that a sum of Rs. 5,500 is payable for Jagodih, Rampur, Paroria, Rs. 1,600 Itkhori and Dehas Rs. 401 for Kodarma, Rs. 2,000 for Jeyrampur, Buzurg, Komo, Markacho, Nawaladha and Barsote. This document was produced in Mr. Hunter's Court in the suit of 1792, and there is no reason for doubting its genuineness. It shows that the taluk Jagodih was assessed to revenue by the Mughal Government as part of the estate of the Raja of Rampur. Mr. Sifton in his Settlement Report appears to think that it indicates that the taluk was separately assessed and that the Raja of Rampur was merely the agent for transmitting the revenue to the Moghul Government. There is no ground for such a finding. The document recites that the sum of Rs. 9,501 has been fixed and assessed as the consolidated annual jama of the said zilla. The details of the various tracts of territory assessed are shown; but there is nothing to suggest that there was any division of the revenue or that the Raja of Ramgarh was not responsible for the whole of it.

Next Makund Singh received a patta from Sitab Roy for the years 1179, 1180 and 1181 Fs. in March 1772 for the Parganas of Sherghati, Chai, Champa, etc., at Rs. 21,000 per year. The details of this document are not altogether free from obscurity, but this much is certain that revenue was assessed on account of Chai and Champa.

Next on the 30th June 1773 Tej Singh was granted a patta by the East India Company at Rs. 30,000 for the years 1181 to 1185 without deduction of nankar. This document is not disputed and its authenticity was admitted by the Jagodih Chiefs in the suit before Mr. Hunter in 1792. After the death of Tej Singh, Paresh Nath Singh in 1781 made an engagement for Rs. 40,000 inclusive of Rs. 10,000 on account of nazrana.

The significance of these Settlements with the Rajas of Ramgarh cannot be overrated. Makund Singh had crushed the Chai Chiefs in 1764 and was the only person who could engage for the revenue. After Kamdar Khan's death in that year he successfully defied the power of the Nawab Nazims and paid no revenue for several years. In 1770 Kamdar Khan's successor Waris Ali was compelled to make terms with him and took an engagement for Rs. 27,000. Mr. Sifton states in his report that this was the annual revenue but it would seem from Sitab Roy's report that this was the revenue for three years. It seems impossible to believe that either in 1770 or 1771 or 1772 the paramount power would have paid any regard to the Chai Chiefs who had been completely and finally subdued.

But the Chai Chiefs having assisted Captain Camac against Makund Singh it does appear that both he and his successors for a time entertain some idea between 1772 and 1781 of making separate Settlements with the Chai Chiefs but the intention was never carried into action in consequence of Paresh Nath's objections and at the Decennial Settlement they remained tenure-holders as before.

The intentions of the British Officials and of the Raja of Ramgarh in reference to the Chai Chiefs may be gathered from the following documents:—

Shortly before his accession Tej Singh wrote a letter dated the 25th Assin (without year) to Babu Shib Nath Singh, the talukdar of Rampur, in which he uses the expressions "but you are in the same position as I." It is suggested that this is an admission that taluk Rampur was co-ordinate in status with Ramgarh; but the letter does not necessarily bear this interpretation.

Shortly after this Captain Camac sent a parwana to Lal Khan acknowledging his services and informing him that he wished that an engagement for revenue should be taken for him by Government or that he should receive malkhana as a proprietor. There is no date on this letter, but it must have been written immediately after Captain Camac's conquest.

In 1772 Tej Singh is alleged to have written a letter to Captain Camac through Chaudhury Nirmal Singh and Mahtha Dharamdeo in which he observes that as Captain Camac had at Patna raised the question of the title of the Rajas of Chai, he (Tej Singh) would give the "rajgi" to all the three Rajas (that is to say Jagodih, Rampur and Itkhori) and would receive the proper amount of rent (revenue) from Rajas and pay it to Government. The plaintiff in the present suit denies the genuineness of this letter, but there is no reason to doubt its authenticity.

In 1777 Paresh Nath sends a parwana to his karpardazes and peons informing them that the Hakmi (the landlord's rent) in respect of nankar paid by Raja Lal Khan had been remitted from before and that no one should interfere in this matter. It is contended that this order indicates that about this time Lal Khan was claiming to hold some villages rent free on the ground that their income represented the nankar allowance due to him as a malik or proprietor and that Paresh Nath admitted the claim. I do not accept this contention and think that as the services for which the jagir had been granted had not yet been commuted Paresh Nath very properly declined to take revenue from the villages, The use of the word nankar merely indicates that the villages had been held before 1762 in lieu of nankar allowance. After that date and certainly after 1764 the talukdar could not have been entitled to hold any villages as nankar.

On the 3rd December 1781 we find that Mr. Chapman, who had taken over charge from Captain Camac of the civil administration of Ramgarh, writes to Lal Khan and Shib Nath Sahi of Rampur promising to decide his case on his return from Calcutta. On the 5th December there is another letter from Mr. Chapman on the same subject. Apparently Pareshnath had as usual not been able to pay his revenue and a Sajawal had been put in by the East India Company to collect it on his behalf. Mr. Chapman informs Lal Khan and Shib Nath Sahi that he had deputed Lala Subans Rai for making the collection of one-fourth of the rents of the villages held by them and that he would decide the case relating to their claim on account of nankar on returning from tour. He advises them that "they should approach the Lala and pay to him the said one-fourth rent and appropriate to themselves the three-fourths share of the produce." In the event no decision was given and it is clear that whatever Pareshnath may have intended in 1777 the East India Company never at any time recognised the claim of the proprietor of Jagodih to hold any land rent or revenue free. It is said that collection through Subans Rai was an admission by Government that revenue was payable direct by Jagodih on the footing that he was either an actual proprietor or an independent talukdar; but the fact seems to be that the collection was made on behalf of Ramgarh and with the assistance of his sheristadar. The evidence of Daryao Singh in the suit in 1792 clearly establishes this. Mr. Dallas, who succeeded Mr. Chapman wrote on the 1st June 1782 that a sanad and a robe of honour had been received from Calcutta which suggests that on Lal Khan's representation the East India Company had decided to recognise Lal Khan as entitled to engage for the revenue and on the 3rd September of the same year Mr. Dallas acknowledged receipt of some revenue sent by Lal Khan. It appears, however, that on coming to know of the proposal Pareshnath objected and the sanad and the robe of honour were never delivered. Meanwhile the collection of revenue by the Sajawal proceeded and on the 2nd October 1782 Daryao Singh, the Sajawal, was informed by Mr. Dallas that Raja Pareshnath's sheristadar was being sent to assist him in writing up and comparing the account. On the 17th November 1782 Mr Dallas directs Daryao that he should collect 2 annas in the rupee from the jagir villages. On the 14th December Mr. Dallas asks Daryao Singh to take bonds from Lal Khan and Shib Nath for their rent, and on the 14th January 1783 Mr. Dallas informs Lal Khan that he will inquire into his objections (it is not known what their nature was) after the country has recovered from the drought and that in the meantime he should not "give way to anxiety." I think it is clear that Lal Khan's efforts to obtain recognition of his title as actual proprietor to engage for Government revenue never succeeded although at one time it very nearly did so. Pareshnath died in 1784 and Lal Khan appears for the moment to have given up the contest and the same year he executed a bond acknowledging a rental of Rs. 656 12-0 per annum as payable for his "jagir villages," The document is dated October 1784 and was filed before Mr. Hunter in 1793. In order to show how the rent was arrived at the plaintiff produces a duplicate amalnama from his sherista purporting to be an order from Raja Maninath Singh confirming the grant of villages previously made to Raja Lal Khan and informing the raiyats and Mahatas accordingly. This document shows that a total of 21 mouzas comprised the grant of which a portion was khas jagir yielding an income of Rs. 1,652 and the rest a jagir for the maintenance of the grantee's seven brothers producing an income of Rs. 712. A quarter of the total income of Rs. 2,582 comes to Rs. 645 which is about Rs. 12 short of rental shown in the bond. The rent, however, does not appear to have been paid and Maninath Singh sued Lal Khan and Shib Nath Singh in the Court of the Zilla Judge at Chatra in Ramgarh and in that suit a compromise was effected on the 1st December 1786. This compromise shows that Raja Lal Khan was holding 21 mouzas of which the kamil jama was Rs. 1,982 and the malguzari was Rs. 655 8-0. Six villages were surrendered to the proprietor of Ramgarh as a security for the payment of this malguzari and it was agreed that as long as the arrangements were not made for the payment of this amount the villages would remain in the possession of the proprietor, An attempt has been made to show that this compromise recognized Lal Khan's liability to pay revenue and not rent; but the expression "malguzari sarkari" may mean both rent and revenue, and as I will show later that before the Decennial Settlement rent in the English sense was not undertlsood and that every occupier of land was liable to pay revenue to the State whether he was a raiyat, tenure-holder or proprietor. I do not think, therefore, that anything turns on the meaning of the expression "malguzari sarkari" in this compromise petition. That Lal Khan definitely admitted his status as a jagirdar further appears from a letter written by Mr. Leslie, the Collector of Ramgarh, to the President of the Board of Revenue on the 9th July 1788, in which he submits a return showing the kamil jama of each jagirdar including Raja Lal Khan in that category. He reports that 15 villages are in Lal Khan's possession and that he is liable to pay three annas in the rupee on the kamil jama of 1782. Apparently he was asked to report upon the actual produce of the jagirs and he replies "it is not in my power to give you any estimate of their present produce, being apprehensive that an inquiry into this matter on my part might be the means of creating a disturbance. Though from the nature of the tenure by which the jagirs are held, as will appear from the enclosed sanad and translation, many cases, it will be supposed, might occur in which they would revert to the Raja, yet the custom of their devolving from father to son is now so established that I fear any sudden innovation would be attended with bad consequences, and I see no other way of breaking through it, (should you think such a measure expedient) than by permitting the Raja to resume them on the death of the present incumbents." The sample sanad attached to Mr. Leslie's letter shows that the jagirdar was liable to maintain peons probably for guard duty. No reply was given at the time by the Board to Mr. Lesile's suggestion that the jagirs should be resumed on the death of the holder but they accepted the finding that the Chai Chiefs were jagirdars.

Frustrated in their attempts to get a separate Settlement the Chiefs of Jagodih, Rampur, Itkhori thereupon sued for the establishment of their proprietary milkiat right in the Court of Mr. Hunter. Judgment was given by the Trial Court on the 17th December 1793, by the Provincial Court of Appeal on the 29th August 1794 and by the Sadar Diwani Adalat on the 8th November 1795. It appears that in 1800 a further attempt was made by Raja Petambor Sahi, Rampur Balaghat, for recovery of proprietary right to 4 mahals within the Pargana Chai. That suit was dismissed by Lieut. Col. Freyer on the 18th June 1800 who found in his judgment that as Mr. Hunter had dismissed the plaintiff's claim to 5 of the mahals in the earlier suit on the ground that the plaintiff had been out of possession since 1764, this suit also was liable to dismissal on the same ground.

For the next 40 years we do not hear anything more about the Chiefs of the Pargana Chai, but on the 22nd November 1839 Mr. Ouselay, the Agent to the Governor General, wrote to Lieut. Thomas Simpson, the Personal Assistant to the Governor-General's Agent, asking him to submit a statement of estates, jagirs and their malguzars and he enclosed in his letter a form (Ex. 11 (a) to be filled up. In reply a mulki form was filed by Bed Khan on the 17th August 1842 containing a statement of "goshwara villages" in his possession appertaining to mahal Jagodih, the "remarks" column of which contains a history of the Jagodih Chiefs. It is there stated that only 21 mouzas were left as nankar to Bed Khan, ancestor of Raja Lal Khan and 39½ mouzas to Raja Shib Nath Sahi grandfather of Raja Gauhar Sahai after Makund Singh had treacherously captured their country; that after Mr. Camac invaded Ramgarh, Lal Khan and Shib Nath Singh helped to win over Tej Singh to Mr. Camac's side and Tej Singh was recognised as the proprietor of Ramgarh and that Tej Singh acted perfidiously in not causing Lal Khan's nankar villages to be separated from Ramgarh; that after the death of Tej Singh Mr. Camac's intention to recognise the Jagodih Chief's right to separation was not carried out owing to the opposition of Raja Pareshnath Singh. Bed Khan further asserted that no rent was realised for his nankar villages from the time of Nawab Kasim Ali but that Maharaja Maninath Singh upon his accession claimed a one-fourth share, and as he threatened a suit an ekrarnama was executed by him on the 17th November 1795 under which he accepted 6 mouzas of Jagodih as security for rent of the nankar villages leaving the remaining 15 mouzas in the possession of Bed Khan. On the 27th August 1842 Sidhnath Singh, the son of Maninath Singh, filed an objection against Bed Khan's mulki form asserting that Bed Khan was his jagirdar and had no proprietary interest in mouza Jagodih. He also objected that he could not file his own form till Bed Khan had filed a revised form. The order of the Collector upon this objection was that the Maharaja of Ramgarh was at liberty to state in his mulki form the right which he considered the Chiefs of Jagodih and Rampur to possess and to make such entries in his own form as he thought proper.

On the 21st January 1848 Raja Sheoraj Khan filed a statement in the office of the Agent to the Governor General in answer to a request for information as to particulars of the title under which he held and stated that he was holding taluk Jagodih in Pargana Chai as zemindar and proprietor by virtue of a maintenance grant given by Raja Makund Singh and that he was holding 15 of the 21 villages covered by the grant in accordance with the terms of an ekrarnama executed by the Raja Maninath Singh.

In 1859 a Survey was undertaken of the Ramgarh District and in consequence of an order made by the Superintendent of Survey the proprietor Maharaja of Ramgarh filed a statement containing certain particulars of the villages held by him. In this statement he declares that 16 mouzas in taluk Jagodih were held as jagirs for good will and service by Raja Sheoraj Khan and Raja Bed Khan.

Seventeen years later the local authorities did not accept this view and on the 3rd April 1876 a report was submitted by Mr. Robinson, the Commissioner of the Chota Nagpur Division, to the Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal on the land tenures of Hazaribagh in which the following account appears:—

"Shamilat or shikmi taluka. In para. 5 I have mentioned that Pargana Chai was composed of five petty Rajas. These Rajas were semi-independent only paying tribute to Raja Lal Khan and when merged into Ramgarh continuing to pay tribute to the Ramgarh Raja. When the country was taken by the English and its Settlement was being made these Rajas endeavoured to get Settlements made with them direct but their efforts failed and though they were maintained each in his Raj they were directed to pay their tribute which was then converted into a fixed rental to the Raja of Ramgarh. The Rajas of Rampur, Jagodih, Paroria and Itkhori accepted these terms and have been made shikmi talukdars. The Raja of Pitij, who was a resident of Gaya, refused to agree and made over his taluk to the Raja of Kandi, into whose estate this taluk has merged and the title has been lost. Similarly the Raja of Parsote succeeded in saving his estate from being merged into that of Ramgarh and the estate was made shamilat taluk as also was Pargana Kodarma but the circumstances relating to this last and its severance from the Ramgarh Estate, etc., are related in a separate Chapter. There is a legend that there were two more such shikmi taluks, viz, Tiliyaand Gola but they have long been extinct and have merged into the Ramgarh Estate."

It is contended by the appellant that this report was the basis of the statements made by Mr. Hunter (afterwards Sir William Hunter) in his Statistical Account of Hazaribagh and Mr. Lister in his Gazetteer for the Hazaribagh District and Mr. Sifton in his Settlement Report of the District regarding the status of the Chai Chiefs and that Mr. Robinson was completely in error in regarding the Chief of Jagodih as a proprietor, his proper status being that of a tenure-holder governed by the ordinary rule as to resumption applicable to jagirs in the Ramgarh Estate.

In addition to these documents there is a set of awarzas prepared in the Office of the Raja of Ramgarh ranging from 1774 to 1900 (Ex. 15 series to Ex. 21). The earliest Ex. 15 (r) which is dated 1782 shows that Raja Lal Khan held a jagirdari tenure of 21 mouzas. The income from each mouza purports to be shown against it the total being Rs 2,480. The rok hakmi or the landlord's demand is shown at 6-annas in the rupee, that is, Rs. 930 and a collection of Rs. 317 is shown as having been made through Daryao Singh. This document is obviously intended to relate to the period when Mr. Dallas gave orders that the jagirdars should pay 6-annas in the rupee on their kamil juma. A similar document of 1785 shows the landlord's rent at Rs. 649-4-0 and obviously relates to the period after the jagirdars had executed the kabuliyat or bond of 1784 by the pen of Sumer Singh on the 7th Kartick Sudi

Sambat 1841. In the awarza (Ex. 15(t)) for the year 1786 the rent is calculated at 4-annas in the rupee and is shown as Rs. 656 8 0 It relates to the period after the compromise when six of the mouzas were assigned to the landlord as security for rent. The landlord's rent, after making allowance for the depreciation in the currency, is entered as Rs. 640 and accords with the figure shown in the compromise petition filed by Maninath Singh in the Collector's Court printed at page 75 of the paper-book. Owing to exchange of villages the gross income of the 21 villages is shown as Rs. 2,602 in 1786, but after the compromise the income of the 15 villages remaining in the jagirdars' possession is shown in the awarza of 1788 (Ex. 15 (g)) as Rs. 1,982 and it remains at this figure till 1863. In the awarza for 1774 (Ex. 15 (a)) the income is shown as Rs. 1,899 and so also in 1776, 1777 and 1778. In the awarzas for 1774, 1776 and 1777 five villages of Pargana Champa appear, but these go out in the awarza for 1780 which relates to Dalla's time and the number of villages increases from 16 to 21, and the total income to Rs. 2,622.

The learned Subordinate Judge has declined to place any reliance upon these papers on the ground that they are ex parte and prepared in the zemindar's sherista, and, that the defendants cannot be bound by them. That is perfectly true. It is also true that many of the entries in these documents are not now intelligible. Nevertheless so far as they go, I think they are good corroborative evidence of the title set up by the plaintiff. They show that since 1774 the plaintiff has always asserted that the Chief of Jagodih was his jagirdar. Papers which are nearly 150 years old ought not to be regarded in a hypercritical spirit and it is our duty, unless there is clear evidence of forgery, to see whether they cannot be reconciled with the other old documents in the case. In my opinion they cannot support the case of the plaintiff.

The same observations apply generally to the other documents produced by the plaintiff except where there is clear evidence that they are not genuine. I do not think we are justified in rejecting them on the ground that copies were admitted in the suit of 1792 without sufficient proof of the loss of the originals or that the persons executing or writing them on behalf of the respective parties have not been shown to have possessed the authority to do so. The kabuliyat or bond of 1784 was executed by Somer Singh on behalf of the jagirdars of Jagodih, but if he signed in the jagirdar's presence and the signature was what is known in the vernacular as "bakalam" i e, by the hand of some one else, the question of authority arises.

The evidence of the plaintiff, therefore, leads to the following conclusions.

The country of the Chief of Jagodih lying within Pargana Chai was brought under the dominion of Hemant Singh, the Raja of Ramgarh in 1640. It is possible, as has been found by the Subordinate Judge, that the Jagodih family is older than the Ramgarh family and that the Chief of Jagodih was the most powerful of the minor local Chiefs in that part of the country, who all owned allegiance to Ramgarh. Hemnt Singh made an assessment of the annual produce of the villages lying within the Jagodih Chief's territory and prepared the kamil jama upon which the Permanent Settlement was eventually made. The authority of Ramgarh was frequently disputed; but in 1764 Madan Singh finally reduced it. From that time the Chief of Jagodih lost all his villages except 21 which were situated in the neighbourhood of his home and were granted to him by the Chief of Ramgarh on condition of service.

It is now urged on behalf of the appellants that these 21 villages were ancient nankar villages; i. e., villages given in lieu of the allowance given by the Moghuls to zemindars for collecting the revenue. But in support of this there is no evidence beyond the assertions made by the Chiefs of Jagodih from time to time. There is evidence that in 1728, 1731, 1732 and 1733 the Chief of Jagodih executed kabuliyats in favour of some representative of the Moghul Emperor. I doubt the genuineness of these kabuliyats but even if it be admitted that at that time the Chief of Jagodih was paying revenue direct to the Moghuls, it seems clear that by 1764 his State had been completely conquered and absorbed by Ramgarh.

This evidence shows that for sometime the Jagodih Chiefs held the 21 mouzas as tenure-holders entitled to hold the lands free of rent for the services required of them. It is presumed that as their territory lay on both sides of the Grand Trunk Road those services consisted of policing the road and of otherwise assisting the proprietor when necessary. In 1772 and 1773 rent appears to have been realised from them, because after the advent of the East India Company it was no longer necessary for the zemindar of Ramgarh, as was observed by Mr. Leslie, to keep a rabble army of retainers. In 1776 the rent was definitely commuted to Rs. 653-12-0 and 6 villages were assigned as security for the same. In my opinion this evidence is sufficient to rebut the entry that the villages in suit are held under a shikmi taluki. A judicial finding though not res judicata was entered to this effect in 1905 in a suit in which the proprietor of Ramgarh sued Hiram Khan, the Chief of Jagodih, for the rent of the years 1958 to 1961 Sambat describing him as mashruti (conditional) jagirdar and obtained a decree against him.

I propose next to consider the evidence upon which the respondent claims that the Settlement Officer's entry that Jagodih was a shikmi taluk is correct. Hiram Khan in his mortgage in favour of Rai D. C. Ghosh described the mortgaged property as revenue free nankar dehat. In his written statement in this suit the claim to a lakheraj right is withdrawn and it is pleaded that the mortgagor is a talukdar within the meaning of s. 6 of Regulation VIII of 1793. In argument before the learned Subordinate Judge that case was changed, and it was suggested that the mortgagor should have been held to be an actual proprietor under s. 5 of the Regulation. It is now urged that Tej Singh's letter of 1772 to Capt. Camac at Patna shows that the Chief of Jagodih was paying revenue to the East India Company through the Maharajah of Ramgarh. The letter certainly does contain a promise to take revenue from Jagodih but the promise was never carried out.

Next it is said that in 1777 Pareshnath acknowledged the existence of some nankar villages and, therefore, he had a proprietary right when he issued a parwana on Patlu peon not to realise rent from the nankar villages granted to Raja Lal Khan. I have shown that the letter does not contain any such admission. On the contrary it was Pareshnath who objected to Tej Singh's promise being carried out and insisted that Lal Khan was a jagirdar. The Awarazas of 1774, 1776, 1777, 1778, 1780 and 1782 refer to the 21 villages held by Lal Khan as jagir and are inconsistent with any admission that he was holding nankar land as a shikmi or independent talukdar.

It is said that in the ekrarnama delivered by Maninath in 1784 Maninath declares that the said Rajas have set apart one-fourth their villages on account of Government revenue. The word "malguzari" may mean both rent and revenue and before the Permanent Settlement rent in the English sense was unknown. It was not inaccurate to say that a tenure-holder was paying revenue to his landlord. That Lal Khan was a jagirdar in Maninath's opinion is clear from his written statement at page 50 of the paper-book which was filed in the suit of 1792. Mr. Camac in 1780 no doubt wished a separate engagement to be taken from Lal Khan and so did Mr. Chapman but that wish was never carried out. The payments made in 1782 to Daryao Singh do not show that they were made in his capacity as an independent talukdar or other actual proprietor.

It is next pointed out that in his appeal petition to the Sadar Diwani Adalat (page 87 of the paper-book) Bed Khan asserted that the suit of 1792 was for $406\frac{1}{2}$ villages besides nankar villages the jama of which in rupees was 6,501. In 1843 Shiv Raj Khan in the declaration of heirship (page 120 of the paper-book) asserted that he held 15 villages revenue free. In the mulki forms filed in 1842 assertions of the same kind were made. These assertions do not carry the case very far.

With regard to the Acts of Government, we find that Ramgarh was settled for one year in 1771, for three years, from 1772 to 1774 and for 5 years from 1775 to 1780. The first of these documents makes an allowance of Rs. 500 on account of inam nankar. The other two do not. These documents do not in any way show that there were any nankar villages in the possession of Lal Khan. It is possible that in the time of the Moghuls before the accession of the East India Company to the Diwani some nankar allowance used to be granted to the Chief of Jagodih, but there is no evidence that after 1765 they were allowed any nankar or to retain any lands in lieu thereof on the footing of any proprietary right. The evidence on the contrary shows that after 1764 Makund Singh deprived them of all their lands of the 21 mouzas which he assigned to them for their maintenance.

It is contended that though the Chai Chiefs lost their proprietary right to 406½ mouzas they retained it in that small fragment comprised in the 60½ mouzas which were the subject of the suit of 1792 and that, they were at the time of the Permanent Settlement actual proprietors in respect of that fragment. Apart from the effect of the Permanent Settlement on the status of actual proprietors who did not make a separate engagement with the Government, to which subject I will presently refer, it seems to me clear that at no time after 1764 was the Chief of Jagodih holding any land in proprietary right.

The entry, therefore, that he was a shikmi talukdar in the sense of a dependent talukdar paying revenue through another seems to me to be supported by no evidence at all.

It is clear that the Settlement Officer was using the term "shikmi" or "shamilat" talukdar as meaning a dependent proprietor who was entitled to separation as an actual proprietor and who was paying revenue through another. The term has been used to indicate any tenure-holder who dates back to the Permanent Settlement by Mr. Field in his Introduction to the Bengal Regulations and by the High Court in Calcutta and by their Lordships of the Privy Council in various decisions. "shikam" is the Persian for belly and shikmi taluk means literally a taluk within the belly of another or dependent upon another, and "shamilat" means joint or co-ordinate; and the ordinary meaning of the term "shikmi talukdar" is a talukdar who may or may not be an actual proprietor. At the time of the Permanent Settlement the East India Company found in this Province many classes of persons who all claimed to be the owners of the soil Some were ancient Chiefs and Rajas, others belonged to great land-holding families which had come into existence during the Muhammadan Government; others were officers in the employ of the Moghuls; others again were farmers who had in course of time begun to claim a prescriptive right to the office. Some were called zemindars and others were called talukdars or Chaudhurys. The talukdars were divided again into two classes, namely, independent or Huzuri talukdars who paid their revenue direct to Government, or shikmi or mazkuri or dependent talukdars. These again were divided into two classes, namely, those who were actual proprietors of the soil and paid their revenue through another proprietor and those who were not actual proprietors. Section 5 of Regulation VIII of 1793 empowered the East India Company to treat as actual proprietors the shikmi and dependent talukdars enumerated in the section. A talukdar in whose taluk the proprietor, through whom he was paying revenue had no proprietary interest, was entitled to separate himself unless he was under s. 6 debarred from so doing by his title deeds. The need of the East India Company for money was great and as there was no time to make a detailed inquiry, they decided to treat as the actual owner of the soil the person with engagement for the revenue The result was that all those talukdars who were actual proprietors but who failed to separate themselves ceased to be proprietors and became tenure-holders or tenants in the English sense. They fell into the category provided by s. 7 which runs as follows: "talukdars whose taluks are held under writings or sanads from zemindars, or other actual proprietors of lands, which do not expressly transfer the property in the soil, but only entitled the talukdar to possession so long as he continues to discharge the rent, or perform the conditions stipulated therein, are considered as lease-holders only" In s. 8 special provision is made for jungleburi taluks which, although to all intents and purposes proprietary estates, are classed as leaseholds. The Regulation makes a sharp distinction between revenue and rent although the contrary has been sometimes said. In the opinion of the framers of the Code revenue was that which was payable to Government by the zemindar, independent talukdar or other actual proprietor who took Settlement for the zemindari. All other persons holding mal lands in the estate were subordinate in status and were liable to pay rent unless exempted by the terms of the engagement or by special contract with the zemindar. It was the duty of the zemindar or independent talukdar engaging with Government to take in his turn the necessary engagements from the talukdars dependent upon him. The Muhammadan Government had recognised no rights of property in the soil in any one except Government and every person holding any interest therein had been liable to pay revenue to the Crown, and although there is some evidence that rent in the English sense of payment for the use and occupation of a land to a private proprietor other than the King had been known in Hindu times, the Muhammadan Government declined to subscribe to any such economic theory. The result was that the Collector of the revenue was at most entitled to a fee in addition to the revenue demandable from the raiyat. But the East India Company bringing with them a wholly different conception of the ownership of land decided to establish a middle class in whom would be vested a right in the soil, and they carried out this intention by enacting that the zemindar was entitled to contract for rent from his tenants without any reference to the revenue payable by him to Government. The rents, for some years were regulated by custom but though an attempt was made to protect the raiyat against competition rents by the Legislature the growth of population which followed upon a period of settled Government created such a sudden and urgent demand for land that the attempt met with signal failure.

Next in order to put a stop to the entertainment of applications for separation long after Regulation VIII was enacted and to protect the rights of purchasers of estates sold for default of revenue, Regulation I of 1801 directed that a dependent talukdar entitled to separation who failed to make his application within one year, was to be debarred from making any application to separate but that in other respects his rights would not be affected by the Regulation. This proviso, in my opinion, merely saves such rights as a dependent talukdar may claim as a tenant. It is a contradiction in terms to say that a dependent talukdar who had lost the right to separate himself could continue to remain an actual proprietor co-ordinate in status with the zemindar who had engaged for the revenue. The rights that were reserved to him were rights in regard to succession, transfer and the like. It may be conceded that if a dependent talukdar had been an actual proprietor he would become a tenant liable to be resumed for escheat but on no other ground; but if he was not formerly an actual proprietor his status would be governed by contract or custom.

A reference to the resumption Regulations in respect of lakheraj lands which were passed in the same year leads to the same conclusion also.

The effect of Regulation XIX of 1793 and Regulation II of 1819 was that resumed lands less than 100 bighas in area were annexed to the tenure of the dependent talukdar if any in whose taluk they were situated. In other words the relationship of landlord and tenant was established by law between the talukdar and the holder of the lands. There is, therefore, nothing startling in the view that all dependent talukdars became after 1801 the tenants of the proprietor of the estate.

In the lower Court a case seems to have been made that the talukdar of Jagodih was in effect a lakherajdar at the time of the Decennial Settlement; but that case has been abandoned before us and now upon the facts it is not arguable. The case now argued is that he was in possession of nankar lands as a part of his ancient zemindari and that at the time of the Permanent Settlement they were assessed to revenue in conformity with the Regulations and that by arrangement the revenue was computed at the income of 6 mouzas which were assigned as security to the proprietor who undertook the duty of paying it to Government. Such a case is intelligible; but, in my opinion the answer to it is that it is not supported by the facts. It is difficult to see why the proprietor of Ramgarh should have undertaken the position of a mere post office for the trasmission of the revenue and what remedy he had against the talukdar in case of default. Under the Regulations his estate was liable to be sold for the talukdar's default unless he chose to pay the arrear himself. In my opinion the consideration for the grant of the 21 villages was that the Chief of Jagodih accepted the status of a tenure-holder and he was confirmed in that position by the Permanent Settlement and he has continued to occupy it ever since.

The next question is whether the Settlement Officer's entry that the tenure is not resumable is correct.

On this part of the case the plaintiff puts his argument as follows: He says that although it was open to the proprietor of the Ramgarh Estate to create a tenure that would pass an absolute estate of inheritance he has in fact never done so at any time and that even an istimrari mokarrari tenure which for a long period was considered to be such an estate has now been held to be an estate resumable on failure of male heirs in the direct line of the grantee and that a jagir is the highest form of tenure known in the estate and that it has been held in repeated judicial decisions and though originally a tenure for life it has by custom become an estate in tail male: Ram Narain Singh v Chota Nagpur Banking Association (1), Pratap Udainath Sahi Deo v. Ganesh Narain Sahi (2), Srinath Roy v. Pratap Udai Nath Sahai Deo (3) and Sifton's Settlement Report page 89. A jagir which was originally a life-grant, has by custom acquired immunity form resumption except on failure of male heirs in the direct line of the grantee and as there is no tenure within the estate with privileges higher than this, the plaintiff is willing that the taluk in suit should be recorded as resumable like other jagirs. In about 1777 Mr. Heatley reported that the income of Ramgarh Estate was Rs. 1,53,000; but it was found that the proprietor was seldom able to pay a revenue of Rs. 30,000 because he had alienated large tracts of country as jagirs. In 1788 Mr. Leslie reported that these jagirs should be resumed by the proprietor on the death of the holder at the time but no orders were passed by the Board of Revenue and the evidence is that by custom the jagirs have in fact become hereditary and that sometimes a succession fee is exacted. It is true that since 1764 there is no evidence that any services have been actually performed by the talukdars; but, in my opinion, the evidence shows that the condition of the grant was service. The situation of the taluk in the neighbourhood of the Grand Trunk Road and the unsettled condition of the times which compelled the Ramgarh Chief to retain armed forces and the admission of the talukdar himself in 1784 show that the grant must have been conditional upon service and that it was a jagir in the true sense. As there is no question of the land being lakheraj and as the land is included within the ambit of the plaintiff's estate, the burden of proving the incidents of the tenure before the Settlement Officer rested upon the talukdar. The sole ground upon which the Settlement Officer appears to have arrived at his conclusion was that Jagodih was entitled to be separated from the Ramgarh Estate in 1793 as an independent taluk and that the Chief had continued to pay Government revenue since the Permanent Settlement through the proprietor of Ramgarh. In my opinion there was no reliable evidence for such a conclusion. There is no evidence that Jagodih ever paid any revenue through Ramgarh before 1793 or that he was entitled at that time to be classed as an actual proprietor. In my opinion, therefore, the entry that the taluk is not resumable is incorrect and the plaintiff is entitled to have it declared that the taluk is resumable upon failure of male heirs in the male line. The question may be asked "whose heirs?" The answer, I think, is that the taluk is resumable upon the failure of male heirs in the direct line of the original grantee Lal Khan.

It remains next to consider whether the contention of the respondents that s. 258 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act is a bar to the suit.

Now s. 83 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, 1908 (Bengal Act VI of 1908) enacts as follows:

"(1) When a draft Record of Rights has been prepared under this Chapter, the Revenue Officer shall publish the draft in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections which may be made to any entry therein, or to any omission therefrom, during the period of publication. (2) When such objections have been considered and disposed of in the prescribed manner, the Revenue Officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be finally published in the prescribed manner, and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter."

When the draft record of Mouzas Paro and Jagodih was prepared and published, an objection was made by the Maharaja of Ramgarh on the 10th February 1913 that it might be recorded that the shikmi taluk was held in jagirdari right in lieu of service and that the word "resumable" might be entered in column 5 of khewat No. 2. On the 13th August 1913 Mr. N. N. Ghosh recorded an order declaring that the entry was correct and declining to make any alteration. The matter then appears to have been taken by the proprietor of Ramgarh to the Settlement Officer Mr. Sifton, who on the 1st February 1914 recorded the following order ;—

---

(2) 70 Ind. Cas. 232; (1921) Pat. 369.

(3) 82 Ind. Cas. 879; 28 C. W. N. 145; (1923) M. W. N. 702; A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 217; 33 M. L. T. 408 (P. C.).

"Order in case under s. 89 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act."

"I have heard Pleaders and Counsel upon the question of the nature of the terms of Rampur, Jagodih, Itkhori and Paroria and Barsote. I reserve my orders until I should have had an opportunity of studying the paper-books of two proceedings in the High Court on the relevancy and meaning of which the parties were at variance. It is not necessary for me at this stage to write a detailed judgment as the parties will have an opportunity after final publication of proceeding in a formal suit. After reading the evidence produced, I am satisfied that these tenures are not of the same origin as the jagirs founded by the Padma Raja and his predecessor. They have hitherto been regarded and treated as shikmi or shamilat taluks and they probably existed as independent properties before the Ramgarh Raj was established, and I can find nothing in their recent history to change the status of the holders of these taluks As they were not originated by the Ramgarh Raj I find them to be not resumable by the zemindar. They will be noted in the khewat as not liable to resumption." On the 24th March 1914 the Settlement Officer made the following supplementary order:—

"A petition has been filed by the Manager of the Court of Wards on behalf of the Ramgarh Raj enquiring under what section my order of 1st February 1914 was passed and whether it was a revisional order under s. 89, Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act in regard to the tenures Jagodih, Rampur, Itkhori, Paroria, and Barsote. The order was not an order of revision. There had been no objection under s. 83 in reference to any of the tenures except Jagodih and the order of the Assistant Settlement Officer who tried the case of the resumability of Jagodih held it to be non-resumable. The question of the nature of these tenures had been reserved by me for a full hearing when notice for orders were sent by the attestation officers. My proceedings were not and did not purport to be taken under s. 89 Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act and hence my order will not be any bar to a subsequent civil suit to determine the status of these tenures."

It is, however, contended by the respondents in that although the Settlement Officer did not think that his order was an order under s. 89 it was in fact such an order, and that under s. 258 no suit can lie so as to affect that order. Section 258 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act runs as follows:—

"Save as expressly provided in this Act, no suit shall be entertained in any Court to vary, modify or set aside, either directly or indirectly, any decision, order or decree of any Deputy Commissioner or Revenue Officer in any suit, application or proceeding under s. 29, s. 32, s. 35, s. 42, s 46, sub-s. (4), s. 49, s. 50, s. 54, s. 61, s. 63, s. 65, s. 73, s. 74A, s. 75, s. 85, s. 86, s. 87, s. 89, s. 0 or s. 91 (proviso) or under Chs XIII, XIV, XV, XVI, or XVIII, except on the ground of fraud or want of jurisdiction (and every such decision, order or decree shall have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court, in a suit between the parties and, subject to the provisions of this Act relating to appeal, shall be final."

Now, was the Settlement Officer acting under s. 89 of the Act on the 1st February 1914? In my opinion he was not. In the first place, he did not revise any decision made under s. 83; but even if it were held that he did revise the entry in the draft record and that he passed an order within the meaning of s. 89, then the plaintiff's reply is that he is not seeking to vary, modify or set aside either directly or indirectly that decision. He is not concerned any longer with any entry in the draft record. The final record, having been published, he is bringing the present suit for a declaration that the final record is incorrect and this he is entitled to do under the general law. He might have proceeded under s. 87 of the Act for the correction of the entry, but he has chosen not to do so. He has an alternative remedy and s. 258 of the Act is no bar to the suit.

It was also argued that the learned Subordinate Judge was right in finding the issue of limitation against the plaintiff.

It is contended that as the talukdar first made his claim to proprietary rights in 1792 and repeated it in 1812 and 1813 the present suit is barred by the rule of 6 years' limitation under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. The answer to this is that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to take notice of every challenge and that a new cause of action arose when an authoritative record of the title of the talukdar was made in the Survey and Settlement proceedings.

The learned Subordinate Judge also finds that on the death of the original grantee the possession of his successor became adverse if the tenure was a life jagir. In my opinion there is no evidence of any adverse possession. The tenancy was continued by the consent of both parties and as the evidence shows that the jagirdar was let into possession by the proprietor it is not open to him to plead adverse possession during the continuance of the tenancy. In my opinion the learned Subordinate Judge's findings on the issue on limitation cannot be sustained.

There is one other question which requires consideration and that is the effect of the decision of the Sadar Diwani Adalat in 1795 in the appeal, against Mr. Hunter's judgment of the 17th December 1793.

In my opinion that decision operates as res judicata. Although the case of the plaintiffs in that suit was that they were in possession of their nankar villages and although they did not pray for the recovery of those villages the point directly and substantially in issue was whether the plaintiffs had a zemindari or milkiat right in the 406½ villages in Pargana Chai. If they had succeeded in proving their milkiat right to those villages, their title to the alleged nankar villages which were in their possession would have also been established without a further suit. Indeed it was contended by the plaintiffs in their appeal that the fact that they were in possession of the nankar lands was proof of their ancient proprietary title. In my opinion the rule of constructive resjudicata applies here and it must be assumed that the question of the title of the plaintiffs to the nankar lands was also decided against them. If that view is correct, then the Jagodih Chiefs lost the right to claim in any subsequent proceeding proprietary rights to any of the 21 mouzas claimed by them as nankar. It follows then that they cannot how be heard to urge that proprietary right to the 41 villages now in suit.

The decision of this appeal does not depend on oral evidence. It depends upon the construction of and weight to be attached to documentary evidence and on matters of record in respect of which we are in as good a position to pronounce a decision as the learned Subordinate Judge.

In my opinion after giving due weight to the learned Judge's appreciation of the evidence in the case his decision cannot be supported and the appeal must be decreed with costs.

As First Appeals Nos. 163, 169 and 230 of 1922 were heard together, the judgment in each appeal will be governed by the material portions of the judgments in the other two.

R. L. Appeal decreed.
N. H.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 286 OF 1925.
April 13, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Misra.
HULAS—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
Rani BARKATUNNISSA BEGAM—
PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Landlord and tenant—Parti land—Presumption as to ownership of taluqdar—Possession of tenant—Adverse possession—Tenant, whether can put structures on land without permission of landlord—Tenant's right to retain possession over land held for more than 12 years.

It is settled law in United Provinces that where a proprietor of a village is proved to be in rent collecting possession thereof, his possession over the lands situate in that village which bear the character of waste land, tank land and jungle land must be presumed. [p. 1035, col. 2.]

Thakur Sheo Narain Singh v. Bodal Singh, 8 O. C. 177 and Sheikh Muhammad Alam v. Raghbir Singh, 9 O. C. 33, referred to.

Where a person is admittedly a tenant, his possession of the land must be deemed to be in that very capacity unless it be shown by satisfactory evidence that it was of a contrary nature. [p. 1036, col. 1.]

Framji Cursetji v. Goculdas Madhowji, 16 B. 338; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 703, Bechu v. Lachmi Kuar, 8 Ind. Cas. 708, Chokkalinga Naicken v. Muthusami Naicken, 21 M. 53; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 394, Ganpati Ambadas v. Raghunath Anant, 4 Ind. Cas. 244; 33 B. 712; 11 Bom. L. R. 1087 and Chandan v. Bahadur, 68 Ind. Cas. 263; 4 L. L. J. 168; A. I. R. 19-2 Lah. 82; 62 P. L. R. 1922; 4 U. P. L. R. (L.) 106; 35 P. W. R. 1922, referred to.

The tenants residing in a village who are in the enjoyment of the land in front of their houses, the title of which is with the landlord, are not entitled, according to the custom prevailing in Oudh, to put up structures on the land without the consent of the landlord. [p. 1036, col. 2; p. 1037, col. 1.]

Jagannath v. Gurdiyal Singh, 10 Ind. Cas. 284 and Ghatterpal v. Gajadhar Upadhya, 25 Ind. Cas. 59, referred to.

If a tenant in a village has been in possession of a plot of land as sahan darwaza for more than 12 years, he obtains a right by such possession to remain in actual enjoyment of the land and the landlord cannot deprive him of such enjoyment. [p. 1037, col. 2.]

Gopal Krishna Jana v. Lakhiram Sardar, 14 Ind. Cas. 212; 16 C. W. N. 634, referred to.

Second appeal against the judgment and decree of the Subordinate Judge, Sitapur, dated the 20th March 1925, in Civil Appeal No. 45 of 1924, reversing that of the Additional Munsif, Sitapur, in Civil Case No. 163 of 1924, dated the 17th October 1924.

Mr. K. S. Hajela, for the Appellant.

Mr. Rauf Ahmad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is the defendant's appeal arising out of a suit for possession. The plaintiff, Rani Barkatunnissa Begam, is the proprietor of Taluka Ant in which is situate the village Mundyara which contains the land in suit. The plaintiff came to the Court on the allegation that the defendants are the two tenants residing in the village stated above and that they have recently made constructions of various character on the land in front of their houses without her permission. She, therefore, claimed possession of those plots of land and also asked for demolition of the newly constructed structures. The defence raised by the defendant No. 1, who alone contested the claim, was to the effect that the constructions complained of were more than 12 years old and that the plaintiff was not entitled to get them demolished, because the lands on which such constructions were made constituted the sahan darwaza (open spaces in front of house) of their houses. They pleaded limitation as a bar to the plaintiff's claim.

The learned Munsif of Sitapur who tried the case held that the constructions in dispute were not old constructions but had only been put up by the defendants two or three years before the institution of the suit, but the land in suit has been in the occupation of the defendants for more than 12 years and that the plaintiff had not established that she was in possession of this land within limitation. On these findings the learned Munsif dismissed the suit. The plaintiff taluqdar carried the matter further in appeal and the learned Subordinate Judge of Sitapur who heard the appeal came to a different conclusion. He held that the character of the land was parti (waste) and must be treated to be in possession of the taluqdar, who was the proprietor of the village and it was not, under the circumstances necessary for her to prove her possession of the land within limitation. He held also that the defendants were admittedly the tenants of the plaintiff and their possession of the plots in dispute which lay in front of their houses could not be treated as adverse. In that view of the case he decreed the plaintiff's suit for demolition of such of the structures as he held to be recent and also gave the plaintiff a decree for possession of the plots in dispute as held by her before. He, however, dismissed the plaintiff's suit for the demolition of such of the structures as he had found proved to have been built more than 12 years ago. The defendant No. 1 has now appealed to this Court and the learned Pleader for the appellant has contended in appeal that the appellant's possession over the plots in dispute should be held to have been adverse and that the plaintiff should not have been given a decree for demolition of the structures constructed by him on the plots in dispute. His argument was that the view taken by the Trial Court that the plaintiff ought to have proved her possession of the plots in dispute was a correct decision and should not have been reversed by the learned Subordinate Judge in appeal. His last contention was that in any case his client should not be deprived of the possession of the land in suit, inasmuch as it was proved from the plaintiff respondent's own evidence that the appellant had been in possession of the land for about 30 to 40 years.

As to the point that the plaintiff ought to have proved her possession of the land in suit within limitation and that the defendant-appellant had established his adverse possession, I am of opinion that the contention raised by the learned Pleader for the appellant must be overruled. It is a settled rule of law in this part of the country that where a proprietor of a village is proved to be in rent collecting possession thereof, his possession over the lands situate in that village which bear the character of waste land, tank land and jungle land must be presumed. If this were not the case it would be almost impossible for a landlord to prove his possession over the lands of this character. In Thakur Sheo Narain Singh v. Bodal Singh (1) it was held that where a talukdar sued for possession of waste land, tank land and jungle land situte in his taluka the prima facie evidence of his possession within 12 years anterior to the date of suit must be given, but in determining this question, evidence of the physical acts of enjoyment as user indicating possession was not necessary. The talukdar's title having been established, his possession should be presumed to exist unless possession is taken by another person in an exclusive manner. The talukdar was to be deemed in possession of such land without the actual user of it and the owner was not to be deemed to have been dispossessed of the land if trees were planted on the said land or if an act of otherwise trespassing on it had been committed. The same view was held in Sheikh Muhammad Alam v. Raghbir Singh (2), decided by Chamier, A. J. C. This rule of law has been consistently, so far as my knowledge goes, followed in the Province of Oudh and I am surprised to find that the learned Munsif took a contrary view of the matter. The land in suit admittedly lies in front of the house occupied by the defendants and they themselves call it as their sahan darwaza (open space lying in front of the house). The character of the land it is clear, was the same as described in the above cases. I am, therefore, of opinion that it was not necessary for the plaintiff talukdar to prove that she was in possession of the land in suit by proving actual acts of physical possession. She is admittedly the proprietor of the village and the lands are admittedly lands which can be described as parti and in the circumstances she must be deemed to be in possession of those lands.

---

(1) 8 O. C. 177.

As to the contention of the learned Pleader for the appellant that his client's possession of the land was of adverse character, I regret I cannot agree with it. The only thing that has been proved in the case is that the defendants have been in possession of the land in suit in the sense that they have been enjoying it because it lies in front of their houses and an enjoyment of this character cannot be deemed to be adverse. In the case of Thakur Sheo Narain Singh v. Bodal Singh (1) already referred to by me, it was held that in order to dispossess an owner the plaintiff in possession must show that he asserted clearly that he claimed the right to hold possession as owner or his conduct must be such as would amount to the assertion of the intention to exclude the actual owner. No such evidence has been given in the case. The appellant, as remarked by the learned Subordinate Judge, is admittedly a tenant of the plaintiff and his possession of the land must be deemed to be in that very capacity, unless it be shown by satisfactory evidence that it was of a contrary nature. In Framji Cursetji v. Goculdas Madhowji (3) it was laid down that where a small piece of land which was of no present use to its owner and was convenient in many ways to a person having his house close to the land in suit to use it in various ways and he used it for such purposes for more than 12 years, such a user was insufficient to give a title to the land by adverse possession. This view of the law was also held in the late Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh as will appear from the case reported as Bechu v. Luchmi Kuar (4), decided by Lindsay, A. J. C. It was held in that case that structures of purely temporary nature made by a tenant for the convenience of his house did not constitute such an assertion of rights on the part of the tenant as would justify the conclusion that he meant by erecting such structure to set up a claim to the ownership of the soil and, therefore, be an evidence of adverse possession. So far as I am aware this has been the rule of law consistently followed in these Provinces. A similar view was taken in Chokkalinga Naicken v. Muthusami Naicken (5) and in Ganpati Ambadas v. Raghunath Anant (6) and in Chandan v. Bahadur (7), decided by the Lahore High Court. I am, therefore, satisfied that the possession of the defendant-appellant over the plot in dispute cannot in any sense be regarded as adverse. His possession must be deemed to be that of a tenant and in the end of the argument the learned Pleader for the appellant almost conceded that position.

It was next contended that even if the possession of the appellant in respect of the land in dispute was proved to have been merely in the capacity of a tenant, he had still a right to put up the structures complained of. I do not agree with that contention. In my opinion the tenants residing in a village who are in the enjoyment of the land in front of their houses, the title of which was with the landlord, are not entitled, according to the custom prevailing in Oudh, to put up structures on the land without the consent of the landlord. It is one thing for a tenant to remain in enjoyment of the land as open space in front of his house and it is quite a different thing to put up structures on it or to enclose it by means of walls. The landlord may not object to his use of the open land situate in the abadi of a village, of which he happens to be the proprietor, but that would not give a right to the tenant to put up structures upon that piece of land and the landlord would be legitimately entitled to his remedy if he claimed it by coming to the Court for a relief to the effect that the sturctures complained of may be demolished. It would be perfectly within his rights to claim such a relief and in my opinion such a relief should be given to him. I am supported in this view by a case decided by the Allahabad High Court reported as Jagannath v. Gurdiyal Singh (8) and by another case decided by the same Court and reported as Chatterpal v. Gajadhar Upadhya (9) I, therefore, hold that the decree for the demolition of such structures in dispute as have been held by the learned Subordinate Judge to have been of recent date is a correct and proper decree and must be maintained.

---

(2) 9 O. C. 33.

(3) 16 B. 338; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 703.

(4) 8 Ind. Cas. 768.

(5) 21 M. 53; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 394.

(6) 4 Ind. Cas. 244; 33 B 712; 11 Bom. L. R. 1087.

(7) 68 Ind. Cas. 263; 4 L. L. J. 168; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 82; 62 P. L. R. 1922; 4 U. P. L. R. (L.) 106; 35 P. W. R. 1922.

There is, however, a further point which was urged by the learned Pleader for the appellant and it was to the effect that the defendant-appellant should not be deprived of the use of the land in suit as the land lying in front of his house and as his sahan darwaza. In my opinion this contention is quite correct. It has been proved by the three witnesses examined on behalf of the plaintiff, namely, Gouri P. W. No. 1, Bhaya Lal, P. W. No. 2, and Zalim P. W. No. 3, that the land in suit has been in possession of the defendant-appellant for a period of over 30 years. This long enjoyment has undoubtedly given the appellant a right to retain the land in his possession for being enjoyed as such and in this view of mine I am supported by a decision of the Calcutta High Court, which was cited before me by the learned Pleader for the appellant and which is reported as Gopal Krishna Jana v. Lakhiram Sardar (10). This was a case decided by Sir Lawrence Jenkins, C. J., and N. Chatterjee, J., and it was held that if a tenant had been in possession of a plot of land as a tenant for more than 12 years, he obtained a right by such possession to remain in actual enjoyment of the land and the landlord could not deprive him of such enjoyment I am in entire agreement with the principle laid down in this case and it appears to me to be clear from the evidence to which I have already referred that the defendant appellant has been in enjoyment of the land in suit as his sahan darwaza. The land in dispute lies in front of the appellant's house and also of other tenants who have their houses close by. The plaintiff is, therefore, not entitled to eject the defendant appellant from the possession of the land in suit by taking actual possession thereof.

I think that the learned Subordinate Judge when he said in his judgment that the plaintiff's claim should be decreed "for such possession of the plots in suit as before" he meant that the defendant was not to be dispossessed of the land in suit. I have, however, thought it proper that the matter should not be allowed to remain vague so that it may give rise to future disputes and I have, therefore, made it quite clear in my judgment that the plaintiff-respondent will not be entitled to take actual possession of the land in suit. She will, however, be deemed to be in proprietary possession of the land and the defendant will have no right to put up any structures thereon without the express permission of the plaintiff.

I have virtually maintained the decree passed by the learned Subordinate Judge and except a small modification which I have made as indicated in the above portion of my judgment, the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge shall stand. My order, therefore, is that this appeal, shall, subject to the modification indicated above, stand dismissed with costs.

G. H. Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2666 OF 1920.

April 27, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr Justice Fforde.

FATEH SHAH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
Musammat NURAN AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS

Custom—Alienation—Gift—Sayyads of Basti Kesa

---

(8) 10 Ind. Cas. 284.
(9) 25 Ind. Cas. 59.
(10) 14 Ind. Cas. 212; 16 C. W. N. 634.

in Okara Tehsil of Montgomery District—Gift of ancestral property to daughter's son.

Amongst Sayyads of Basti Kesa in the Montgomery District custom permits a gift to a daughter's son of ancestral property provided it is made in writing and is followed by possession. [p. 1038, col. 2.]

First appeal from a decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Montgomery, dated the 30th August 1920.

Diwan Mahesh Das, for the Appellant.

Mr. Muhammad Tufail, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal has arisen out of a suit brought by one Fateh Shah challenging a gift of ancestral land made by his father Bahab Shah in favour of Musammat Sahib Bibi, Musammat Saidan Bibi and Musammat Badshah Bibi, Bahab Shah's daughters by his wife Musammat Nuran. A declaration was asked for to the effect that the said gift would not effect the plaintiff's reversionary rights.

When the suit was instituted Badshah Bibi had died leaving a son named Madad Ali who was made a party under the guardianship of the Assistant Clerk of the Court. Musammat Sahib Bibi died without issue during the pendency of the suit which was dismissed, it being held that the parties who are Sayyads of Basti Kesa in the Okara Tahsil of the Montgomery District were governed by custom by which gifts of a portion of the ancestral property could be validly made to daughters in the presence of a son of the donor. Against this order of dismissal Fateh Shah preferred this appeal in November 1920 and while it has been pending in this Court Bahab Shah and Musammat Saidan Bibi have both died, the latter leaving no issue.

Fateh Shah himself has been brought on to the record as the legal representative of the father Bahab Shah and Musammat Nuran as that of Musammat Saidan Bibi and Musammat Sahib Bibi. She alone has contested the appeal through Mr. Muhammad Tufail. The case was remanded under O. XLI, r. 25, C. P. C. by an order of a Division Bench of this Court dated the 4th April 1925 and has now come up for disposal.

Although other matters were raised in the grounds of appeal the only point argued before us was whether the decision of the Trial Court on the question of custom was correct. Mr. Mahesh Das for the appellant urged that the evidence on the record did not justify the finding arrived at, while Mr. Muhammad Tufail contended that the finding was correct.

Fateh Shah is now in possession of the property which was the subject-matter of the gift and as pointed out by Mr. Mahesh Das, as Mr. Muhammad Tufail's clients have died without issue, the said property must revert to the heirs of the donor. A reference to the Wajib-ul-arz of Basti Kesa prepared at the Settlement of 1857 shows that the power to make a gift of ancestral property to a daughter's son was recognised provided the gift was made in writing and was followed by possession. Again the Riwaj-i-am of this Tahsil prepared in 1872 shows that gifts of lands to daughters were recognised and these entries are supported by two instances. A presumption of correctness attached to the entries in such Revenue Records.

In order to rebut the presumption the plaintiff produced cartain witnesses. P. W. No. 1 Chogatta, is a Churera of a neighbouring village and says that Sayyads "cannot gift ancestral land to daughters." P. W. No. 2 Nathu and P. W. No. 3 Bahadur are Bhattis and afford no assistance as they do not claim to know what the custom among Sayyads is. P. W. No. 4 Shamas Din is a Sayyad and the uncle of Bahab Shah. He says Sayyads cannot make gifts of this nature but had to admit that Taboo Shah, Bahab Shah's brother, had made such a gift. P. W. No. 5 Waryam, a Kharl, supports the plaintiff but gives his evidence in general terms. The evidence of P. W. No. 6 Imam Shah is similar to that of Waryam. P. W. No. 7 Taboo Shah while admitting that he made a gift to his daughter says that it was revoked later. At the same time he admits that the customs they follow are entered in the Settlement Records and have not altered since 1872. In this he is supported by P. W. No. 9 Mehr Shah. P. W. No. 8 Mulak Shah a Sayyad says generally that such gifts cannot be made but in cross-examination admitted that his uncle had made a gift to his daughters that had not been challenged. P. W. No. 11 Muhammad Amir a Lashari Biloch says that Sayyads follow the general agricultural custom which prohibits such gifts.

On the other hand for the defendants Sardar Ali and Hassan Shah both Sayyads, assert that gifts to daughters are recognised by custom and give instances. After a consideration of this evidence I am of opinion that the plaintiff's evidence does not rebut presumption of correctness that attaches to the entries in Revenue Records, which in the present case are further supported by the instances referred to by the defendants' witnesses. I would, therefore, dismiss the appeal but in the circumstances allow the parties to pay their own costs.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

OUDH CHIEF COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 22 OF 1924.
February 24, 1926.
Present:—Sir Louis Stuart, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Hasan.
Musammat SAKINA BEGAM—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
Syed ALI HAIDER AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), ss. 17 (1) (b), 49—Construction of document—Compromise recognising person as successor, effect of—Annuity created and charged upon estate—Registration, whether necessary.

A petition of compromise recited that after the death of the applicant the respondent shall be her representative and successor and provided that so long as the estate in dispute was not transferred to the respondent on behalf of the applicant, a certain sum of annuity shall by monthly instalments ever remain payable from the said estate to the respondent, his heirs and representatives on behalf of the applicant, her heirs and representatives and that the said estate shall be liable for payment of the said annuity :

Held, (1) that upon a proper construction of the compromise the respondent was to succeed the applicant only in the event of a transfer being made by her in his favour either by way of gift inter vivos or by bequest and that so long as the estate did not vest in the respondent in either of these ways he was entitled to receive the annuity and in the event of his dying before the happening of that contingency his heirs and representatives would be entitled to the sum ; [p. 1041, col. 2.]

(2) that the compromise was an instrument of the nature described in s. 17 (1) (b) of the Registration Act and was compulsorily registrable and not being registered could not be received in evidence of any transaction affecting the estate. [p. 1042, col. 1.]

First appeal against a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Bahraich, dated the 5th January 1924.

Messrs. Niamat Ullah and Naim Ullah, for the Appellant.

Mr. Bisheshwar Nath for Mr. Shahenshah Husain and Messrs. Mojiz Husain, Badri Prasad, Zahur Ahmed, Mohammad Hafees and Makund Behari Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is the plaintiff's appeal from the decree of the First Subordinate Judge of Bahraich, dated the 5th of January 1924. The suit out of which this appeal arises relates to an estate called Vaira Qazi situate in the District of Bahraich. At the time of annexation of Oudh one Muzaffur Husain was the owner in possession of the estate and his name was entered in Lists I and III prepared under the provisions of the Oudh Estates Act, 1869. Under a gift inter vivos dated the 31st of May 1874, this estate devolved upon Kazim Husain, the only son of Muzaffar Husain, Kazim Husain died on the 12th of May 1894. Musammat Taiyaba Begam, the widow of Kazim Husain, succeeded to the estate of her husband under a Will, dated the 12th of May 1877 and held it till her death which occurred on the 17th of August 1918. Musammat Taiyaba Begam died intestate and the defendant No. 1, Ali Haider, who is the son of a brother of Musammat Taiyaba Begam, succeeded her by right of inheritance. Ali Haider has made several transfers of portions of the estate. The chief of such transferees are the defendants Nos. 2 and 3. Nawab Haji Sir Fateh Ali Khan and Badri Prasad respectively. Sir Fateh Ali Khan died during the pendency of the litigation and his son, Nawab Nisar Ali Khan has taken his place on the record of the case.

The plaintiff is the daughter of one Syed Ali, who was the son of a sister of Musammat Taiyaba Begam. Syed Ali died on the 1st September 1901. The plaintiff claims title to the entire estate of Vaira Qazi, the details of which are given in Appendix A attached to the plaint in the right of succession to the estate of her father, Syed Ali, who, according to her, had vested remainder in that estate falling into possession on the death of Musammat Taiyaba Begam. This is the second relief for which she prays. The first and the primary relief for which she asks is a decree for possession of a certain number of villages comprised within the estate, the details of which are given in Appendix B attached to the plaint. This relief she claims under a right of her own arising out of the events which we will state at length at the proper place in this judgment. Lastly, she claims an annuity at the rate of Rs. 3,000 per year and asks for decree for the recovery of the sum of Rs. 40,000 as the arrears of the annuity by the sale of the whole or a part of the entire estate. The details of the claim for annuity are given in Appendix C attached to the plaint. Her title to the annuity is again in the right of her deceased father. She does not ask for these reliefs collectively but for the one or the other of them according to the merits of the case.

We will now give a statement of facts which, according to the plaintiff, constitute her father's title to the estate and to the annuity. On this part of the case, there is very little controversy, if at all, as to facts. The matters in controversy are the inferences and legal effect of those facts. Almost immediately after the death of Kazim Husain dispute arose mainly as to possession and incidently as to title to succeed the Vaira Qazi estate. Musammat Taiyaba Begam on one side and Syed Ali on the other were the chief combatants. In consequence of this dispute the District authorities initiated proceedings under s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., and the estate went under attachment into the possession of the Magistrate with a direction that the parties were to seek their remedies in a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction. But before the proceedings ended under the order of the Magistrate, dated the 25th of July 1894 (Ex. 19), Musammat Taiyba Begam and Syed Ali both in opposition to each other, claimed title to the estate of Vaira Qazi. Syed Ali relied on an adoption made by Kazim Husain under a deed of the 9th of November 1893, (Ex. 2). He also relied on a document called sipurdnama, dated the 14th of November 1893 also executed by Kazim Husain under which it was said that Kazim Husain had placed Syed Ali in possession of the estate, (Ex. 3). Both the documents were registered in accordance with the law relating to registration of deeds in British India (See Syed Ali's written statement filed in the criminal proceedings under s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., dated the 18th of June 1894, Ex. 17). Musammat Taiyaba Begam, on the other hand, claimed title to the estate both by right of inheritance under the provisions of the Oudh Estates Act, 1869, and also under the Will of her deceased husband to which reference has already been made (See her written statement in the criminal proceedings, Ex. 18). Kazim Husain's Will of the 12th of May 1877 had some obvious defects. In the present case, however, we are not called upon to consider the effect of those defects. On this Will Kazim Husain merely signed his name on that date. There was no attestation of witnesses. He deposited the Will in the office of the Registrar of Lucknow under a sealed cover. Subsequently on the 1[illegible]th of January 1887, about ten years after, he withdraw it from the custody of the Registrar, opened the cover and got the Will registered. For the purposes of the registration he again signed the Will and was identified for the same purpose by two persons, who affixed their signatures in token of the identification. In a suit to which we will refer in greater details hereafter Musammat Taiyaba Begam claimed that the signatures of the two persons mentioned above made on the Will at the registration of it constituted sufficient attestation in law. This claim was upheld by a Bench of the late Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

In the course of the criminal proceedings a compromise was effected between Musammat Taiyaba Begam and Syed Ali though it had no effect on the decision of the Magistrate. He maintained the attachment in respect of it which he had ordered at the beginning of the proceedings. This compromise is evidenced by two applications filed in those proceedings: one on behalf of Syed Ali, dated the 30th of June 1894, (Ex. 4) and another on behalf of Musammat Taiyaba Begam of the same date (Ex. 6). The plaintiff's claim for the possession of the estate and for the recovery of the annuity is founded on this compromise. This claim is denied by the defendants on various grounds which will be manifest as this judgment proceeds.

The learned First Subordinate Judge has rejected this claim mainly on two grounds, 1. That the compromise required registration and it is not registered and (2) that it was repudiated by the parties concerned. His decision is, of course, challenged in appeal but we are of opinion, that both the grounds are valid. We are further of opinion that the plaintiff's claim in so far as it rests on this compromise also fails on the ground that Syed Ali never acquired any title vested or contingent in the Vaira Qazi estate under that compromise. Before proceeding further with this matter we may mention the fact that Syed Ali's application is not of much consequence in this connection excepting so far that it contains an unequivocal admission of the validity of Kazim Husain's Will of the 12th of May 1877 and of Musammat Taiyaba Begam's title to the estate both as the 'heir' and 'successor' of Kazim Husain and refers to Musammat Taiyaba Begam's application in proof of the compromise. Musammat Taiyaba Begam's application must be quoted in full. It is as follows :—

"Syed KARAMAT HUSAIN—PLAINTIFF

versus

Syed ALI—DEFENDANT.

Charge under s. 145/146, Cr. P. C.

In the above noted case the applicant begs to submit as under :—

"1. That Syed Ali has admitted the deed of Will, dated 12th May 1877, executed by the applicant's husband Syed Kazim Husain, deceased, taluqdar of Vaira Qazi and has acknowledged that the applicant is the heir, representative and successor of the late taluqdar, that she is in proprietary possession of the Vaira Qazi estate and of other possessory (sic) and non-possessory (sic) property and that Syed Ali's own possession over the said estate is on behalf and with the permission of the applicant.

This application is, therefore, filed and it is prayed that the real and actual possession of the applicant (Taiyaba Begam) over the said estate be confirmed and maintained, and Syed Ali and this applicant have arrived at a compromise as per following conditions.

2. That the applicant admitted Syed Ali as the adopted son of her husband and of herself.

3. That Syed Ali, after the death of the applicant, shall be her representative and successor.

4. That Syed Ali shall have the power to attend the Durbar of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh in place of applicant.

5. That on condition of Syed Ali's obedience and allegiance to the applicant, the management and supervision of the said estate shall remain vested in him on behalf of the applicant in the same way as it was in the lifetime of Syed Kazim Husain deceased.

6. That as long as the said estate is not transferred to Syed Ali on behalf of the applicant Rs. 3,000 annually, shall by monthly system, ever remain payable from the said estate, to Syed Ali, his heirs and representatives on behalf of the applicant, her heirs and representatives, and the said estate shall be liable for the payment of the said annuity.

I do hereby declare that the contents of the application are correct and true.

(Sd.) Taiyaba Begam, with the pen of Shafi.

Haider, her brother and general agent.

Petition of Musammat Taiyaba Begam, widow of Syed Kazim Husain, deceased, taluqdar of Vaira Qazi, dated 30th June 1894."

(Sd.) Shafi Haidar."

It will be seen that Syed Ali's admission of Kazim Husain's Will and of Musammat Taiyaba Begam's title as his "heir, representative and successor" is again recited in para. 1 of the application. In para. 2, the deed of adoption put forward by Syed Ali is not mentioned at all but there is an admission on behalf of Musammat Taiyaba Begam of Syed Ali's status as the "adopted son" of her deceased husband and what is more significant 'of herself' a position which Syed Ali had never claimed. Paragraph 3 contains a declaration of Syed Ali's status as a "representative and successor" of the lady. There are no words of gift inter vivos or testamentary, contingent or vested, in respect of the title to the estate of Vaira Qazi in favour of Syed Ali. When para. 3 is read in the light of the provisions made for the annuity in para. 6 of the application and of the language of that paragraph the irresistible conclusion is that Syed Ali was to succeed Musammat Taiyaba Begam only in the event of a transfer being made by her in his favour either by way of a gift in present or testamentary. It is only in this manner that the two paras 3 and 6 can be re-conciled. The vernacular words used in the first portion of para. 6 are these jab tak ilaqa mazkur minjanib saela ba haq Syed Ali muntaqil ho. These words are not accurately translated in the printed record. One of us has translated them as follows :—

"So long as the said estate is not transferred from the side of the appellant in favour of Syed Ali." In other words so long as the estate does not vest in Syed Ali either under a gift inter vivos or under a bequest he shall be entitled to receive the annuity and in the event of his dying before the happening of that contigency his heirs and representatives shall be entitled to the same. Musammat Taiyaba Begam died without making either a gift or a bequest of the estate and Syed Ali predeceased her. Any of Syed Ali's heirs has, therefore, no title to the estate under the compromise of the 30th of June 1894. On this interpretation the plaintiff's claim in respect of relief B fails altogether.

As regards relief C relating to the recovery of the annuity the application of the 30th of June 1894 (Ex. 6) is inadmissible in evidence to prove any title to the annuity. There is no doubt whatsoever that the application for the first time created a charge on the estate in respect of that annuity in favour of Syed Ali the benefit of which was to descend on his heirs and representatives. It is, therefore, an instrument of the nature described in s. 17 (1) (b) of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, and not being registered cannot be received as evidence of any transaction affecting the estate (vide s. 49 of the Indian Registration Act).

The construction placed on Ex. 6 on behalf of the plaintiff is that it created a life-estate in favour of Musammat Taiyaba Begam and a vested remainder in favour of Syed Ali in the Vaira Qazi estate. Apparently the learned First Subordinate Judge has accepted this interpretation as a correct one. We are unable to adopt it. We have given our interpretation in the preceding paragraph. Assuming however that the plaintiff and the learned First Subordinate Judge are correct, we agree with the latter that the application was compulsorily registerable. It would then fall under either cl. 1 (a) or cl. 1 (b) of s. 17 sub-s. (1) of the Indian Registration Act and under s. 49 of the same Act is inoperative altogether. That the charge for the annuity of the life-estate and the vested remainder were created by means of a compromise will not make the application less compulsorily registrable. See the case of Umrao Singh v. Lachhman Singh (1). In our judgment it was not in recognition of any pre-existing right in favour of Syed Ali that the compromise was made by Musammat Taiyaba Begam. On the contrary her title as the full owner in terms of her husband's Will was most unequivocably recognised and Syed Ali according to our interpretation was held out a bare hope of succession in case the lady ever chose to exercise her powers of disposition in his favour. Syed Ali only secured on his side empty words of a declaration that he was the adopted son of the lady's husband and of the lady herself and a possible successor to the lady.

On the question as to whether the settlement of the 30th of June 1897 was acted upon or not we agree with the learned First Subordinate Judge that the balance of evidence is in favour of a negative answer to the question. Both sides repudiated it even before the ink was dry. After the proceedings under s. 145 of the Cr. P. C. had closed Syed Ali made an application to the Court of Revenue at Bahraich for the entry of his name in place of Kazim Husain deceased in respect of the Vaira Qazi estate (Ex. B-3 dated the 7th of September 1894). In this application Syed Ali imputed fraud to Musammat Taiyaba Begam's agent in the matter of the compromise and challenged the validity of the Will of the 12th of May 1877. He asserted that the terms of the compromise were not as were set forth in Musammat Taiyaba Begam's application (Ex. 6) but that they were to the effect that " the entire estate shall remain under the management of the petitioner (that is Syed Ali) as a proprietor and the widow shall receive only monthly allowance in cash." He wound up the petition with a prayer for mutation of names in respect of the Vaira Qazi estate on the ground of his title under cl. (5) of s. 22 of Act I of 1869. (Exhibit B-3). On the 27th of September 1894 Musammat Taiyaba Begam filed a counter-application asking for mutation of names in her favour (Ex. 20). In this application she asserted her title to the estate on the basis of the Will of the 12th of May 1877 and took advantage of Syed Ali's admissions contained in his application of the 30th of June 1894 as to the validity of the Will and as to her proprietary possession of the estate. She also claimed title as an heir under s 22, cl. (7) of Act I of 1869. The controversy as to the title to the estate was intended perhaps to be set at rest by the applications of the 30th of June 1894, was revived with full force by these applications for mutation of names. Syed Ali lost the case for mutation of names in the first Court but challenged the decision of that Court by way of an appeal to the Commissioner of the Fyzabad Division. A certified copy of the judgment of the Commissioner is on the record (Ex. 22). It completely brings into light the hostile attitude of Syed Ali and of Musammat Taiyaba Begam as against each other in respect of their claims of succession to the Vaira Qazi estate. The plaintiff says that the compromise was acted upon by the payment of the annuity for which provision was made in para. 6 of Musammat Taiyaba Begam's application. On the merits of the case we are not satisfied that the plaintiff has succeeded in establishing this part of her case. It is admitted by the plaintiff that the payment of the annuity ceased soon after 1907 and in agreement with the learned First Subordinate Judge we hold that it has not been proved that it was paid previously. In the circumstances of the case it is highly improbable that this annuity was ever paid either to Syed Ali or after his death to his heirs. The general effect of the evidence in the case is that soon after the termination of the controversy in the mutation case Syed Ali settled down to a life of submission to Musammat Taiyaba Begam. He lived with her and died while living with her. His widow and children also lived with Musammat Taiyaba Begam and were supported by her. The lady in spite of Syed Ali's hostility in the past seems to have taken him and his family back into her affections In these circumstances no occasion could have arisen for payment of any annuity on the part of Musammat Taiyaba Begam. The needs of Syed Ali and his family were all met with the income of the estate which came into the hands of the lady. Any benefit, therefore, pecuniary or otherwise, which Syed Ali and his family after his death derived from the profits of the estate or of any portion of it cannot safely be attributed to a recognition by Musammat Taiyaba Begam of any claim to the annuity. As we are in agreement with the Court below on this question of fact it is not necessary to pursue the matter further. But before we part with it we may mention that at the hearing of the appeal the plaintiff's learned Advocate laid great stress on certain admissions made on behalf of Musammat Taiyaba Begam in the proceedings of a case which was instituted against her by Syed Husain brother of Syed Ali in May 1906. In this case Syed Husain claimed title to the estate as against Musammat Taiyaba Begam in the right of his brother Syed Ali deceased. The title was based on the deed of adoption of the year 1893 to which reference has already been made and the Will in favour of Musammat Taiyaba Begam was challenged. A copy of the judgment of the Trial Court in that suit is on the record (Ex. B-15). The suit was dismissed. It appears that in defending that suit on behalf of Musammat Taiyaba Begam her agent and her Pleaders relied on the compromise of the 30th of June 1894 and the payment of the annuity thereunder (see Exs. 25, 26, 27 and 49). These statements made by her agent and her Pleaders were certainly binding on the lady in the suit in which they were made. But for the purpose of using them as the lady's admissions in the present case we should require evidence to bring them home to the lady herself. Musammat Taiyaba Begam was a pardanashin lady.

---

(1) 10 Ind. Cas. 285; 38 I. A. 104; 15 C. W. N. 497; 8 A. L. J. 465; 13 C. L. J. 519; 9 M. L. T. 107; 13 Bom. L. R. 404; 21 M. L. J. 637; 33 A. 344; 14 O. C. 9; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 242 (P. C.).

The first document which contains the admission relied upon is Ex. 49 dated the 2nd of July 1906. This is a petition filed in that suit by Lachman Singh, Musammat Taiyaba Begam's general agent. It is not the petition of defence or the written statement of Musammat Taiyaba Begam. It is only an application under s. 32 of the C. P. C., 1882, asking that the minor daughters of Syed Ali might be made a party to the suit. Before any other written statement or application was filed on her behalf Musammat Taiyaba Begam had left India and gone to Karbala in Mesopotamia. In the circumstances we agree with the Court below that these statements made on behalf of Musammat Taiyaba Begam cannot be safely relied upon in proof of the payment of the annuity in pursuance of the compromise of the 30th of June 1894. On these grounds and in agreement with the First Subordinate Judge we are of opinion that the plaintiff's case in respect of the reliefs B and C fails.

Now we come to that part of the plaintiff's case on which the relief A rests. This case is stated in para. 11 of the plaint. The learned First Subordinate Judge has refused to grant the relief A as well to the plaintiff. We have come to the conclusion what she is entitled to it. In proof of it the plaintiff relies upon two documents and upon the oral testimony of her witness in relation thereto. According to our judgment the evidence proves that while Musammat Taiyaba Begam was on her death-bed apprehensions were entertained as to the course of succession in respect of the Vaira Qazi estate after her death. Besides Muhammad Hasan and Shahamat Husain, with whom we are not concerned, the plaintiff honestly contemplated a rightful claim to the estate and the annuity in the right of her deceased father, Syed Ali, which according to her, arose by virtue of the settlement of the 30th of June 1894. The defendant, Ali Haider, on the other hand, claimed succession to the whole estate by right of inheritance to his own aunt, Musammat Taiyaba Begam. The plaintiff and the defendant agreed that there shall be no dispute between them when the succession opened on the death of Musammat Taiyaba Begam. The result was that five days before the death of Musammat Taiyaba Begam, that is on the 12th August 1918 Ali Haider and Zakir Mehdi, the husband and general agent of the plaintiff and on her behalf solemnly swore in writing that two-thirds of the estate shall go to Ali Haider and the remaining one-third to the plaintiff in satisfaction of her claim to the estate and to the annuity. Each party also agreed to bear proportionate liability for the debts then existing. Exhibit 31 is in the form of an affidavit and proves the contemplated settlement as stated above. This Exhibit is proved by the evidence of Zakir Mehdi and Muhammad Raza, who is its scribe. The learned First Subordinate Judge also holds its execution proved but he is of opinion that it being an unregistered document does not affect the immoveable property. Exhibit 31 was not produced as a deed of title to any immoveable property. It merely forms a link in the chain of proof of the plaintiff's case as stated in para. 11 of the plaint.

The next document in proof of this part of the plaintiff's case is Ex. 7. It purports to be a draft of a deed of gift which Ali Haider had promised to execute in favour of the plaintiff in performance of the settlement effected between them. The learned First Subordinate Judge holds that it bears the signature of Ali Haider. We agree with him. Then he says "Even if the Ex. 7 is not a forgery altogether it is certainly a document which has been "tampered with." In this opinion of the Court below we are unable to concur. Its finding that it has been tampered with is based on suspicions for which in our judgment there is no foundation. We have examined the original document carefully and have also carefully considered the evidence given by the plaintiff in proof of it. The scribe of the document, Zakir Husain (P. W. No. 3) is a witness in the case. As regards the word "guzara" on the first page of the draft, which the Court below thinks an interpolation, not a single question was put to the witness when he was in the box. It should be remembered that Zakir Husain was making a fair copy of the first and original draft which was made by Mehdi Haider. It may be that in making the copy he omitted the word "guzara" in the first instance and added it afterwards. But apart from that explanation we find nothing suspicion in the position of the word "guzara" on the paper of Ex. 7. The size of the letters forming the word "guzara" is in our opinion exactly the same as of the rest of the letters in the document. As to the addition of the sentence after the word faqat at the end of the document Zakir Husain tells us clearly how it came to be made. His story is that the addition was made at the desire of Zakir Mehdi, the plaintiff's husband, to which Ali Haider had agreed. According to him Ali Haider had added those words to the first draft. The learned First Subordinate Judge's criticism that the addition is "in much inferior language" and that it is "unidiomatic" has no force whatsoever. In the first place, it is not so. In the second place it did not form part of the original draft made by Mehdi Haider but as already explained it was the composition of Ali Haider made at the time when the writing of the fair copy had nearly finished. The difference in the gender of the two words "dia" and "di" is too subtle for a man of ordinary ability to grasp. Indeed the learned First Subordinate Judge seems at first to have thought that the sentence after the word faqat was put in the evidence as if it formed part of the first draft. He says "I have no doubt that the addition is not composed by the same man who has composed the rest of the draft". He is under a misapprehension. Zakir Husain's evidence is to the effect that the addition was made by Ali Haider as already stated. To the same effect is the statement of the plaintiff's husband, Zakir Mehdi. He says that "Ali Haider had amended the draft (that is the draft prepared by Mehdi Haider and for this reason Ex. 7 is not the exact copy of the draft prepared by Mehdi Haider. The amendment was made when the draft was faired out. The correction were made by Ali Haider personally." It appears that the learned First Subordinate Judge realized the true effect of the evidence at a late stage of his judgment; but he adheres to this opinion for the reason that the addition is not attested by Ali Haider. Again he suspects that the list of the villages at the end of the draft is an interpolation. This suspicion he bases on the position of the list in relation to Ali Haider's signature and the words "attested" on Ex. 7. He adds "If the intention of the parties was to make the draft of binding nature and if it was not a mere proposal there is no reason why it was not attested". We see nothing suspicious in the relative positions of the list and the signature of Ali Haider and of the words "attested" in two places. Besides the position is of no consequence when there is direct evidence both as to the signature of Ali Haider and to the list in the draft. In the body of the draft there is a specific reference to "the property detailed below". There is, therefore, no doubt that a list of villages was intended to be added at the foot of the draft. Zakir Husain, the scribe, says that Ali Haider at first made a list of the villages on a separate piece of paper. He had then dictated the list to the witness who wrote it on the draft. He adds that Ali Haider signed it in his presence and he identified Ali Haider's signature on the document. To the same effect is the evidence of Zakir Mehdi. The learned First Subordinate Judge seems to have omitted to consider the fact which in our opinion is of great importance that the draft not only bears the signature of Ali Haider in his own handwriting but that in the same handwriting is the endorsement "yeh masaoda baham manzur hai" (this draft is agreed upon by the parties). Finally he thinks that the so-called interpolations were made with the object of making the document a draft of a deed of an irrevocable gift; without them the gift would be revocable. Here again the learned First Subordinate Judge is in error. In the body of the draft we find the following "and also in return for the maintenance (guzara) and all sorts of present and future rights". The draft, therefore, without the suggested interpolations, evidences a mutual and amicable settlement of claims and there could be no question of revocation had Ali Haider perfected the settlement to which he had agreed.

According to the evidence one part of the settlement was the release by Musammat Sakina Begam of all her claims against the Vaira Qazi estate in favour of Ali Haider. A draft of a deed of release was accordingly also written and signed by Zakir Mehdi on behalf of the plaintiff as her agent (vide Zakir Mehdi's evidence at page 64 of the printed record) and this draft was handed over to Ali Haider. It is well-established by the evidence on the record that every act done by Zakir Mehdi was done by him with the consent and for the benefit of the plaintiff. The plaintiff has never repudiated the acts of Zakir Mehdi. On the contrary, she has constantly ratified them and stood by the settlement as would appear from applications of the 13th of September 1918 (Ex B 10) and of the 30th of September 1918 (Ex. 33 paras. 9 and 10). Qui facit per alium facit per se. We are, therefore, unable to attach any importance to the opinion of the learned First Subordinate Judge that the plaintiff is not entitled to any relief on this part of the case for the reason that the acts of her husband are not shown to have been done by him under the authority of his wife. There is some corroborative evidence also which is to be found in the statements of Khadim Husain (P. W. No. 4) and Zaigham Ali (P. W. No. 6). The strongest reason for accepting the evidence of the plaintiff's witnesses on this part of the case as substantially true is that it is wholly unrebutted. Ali Haider has not come into the witness-box to contradict it. The learned First Subordinate Judge has given no satisfactory reasons for discrediting the evidence of these witnesses. In a matter of the nature of this settlement no strangers could have any place in the negotiations. Zakir Mehdi is the husband of the plaintiff and Zakir Husain is a relation of Zakir Mehdi. This relationship, therefore, is no ground for disbelieving the testimony of these persons. Considering the entire circumstances of the case it appears to us that they are the most natural witnesses and they relate a story which is highly probable and consistent with other admitted and proved facts of the case.

The essence of the transaction which we hold as proved is a family settlement. The true nature of such a settlement is well-stated, if we may respectfully say so in the case of Ram Nirunjun Singh v. Prayag Singh (2) and we do not think that it is necessary for us to add anything to it. There is nothing in law to prevent us from giving effect to the contract for the settlement which we find proved in this case. If a primary relief as to the specific performance of the contract is necessary there is no reason why it may not be granted in the present case. There is no bar of limitation and the relief is specifically incorporated in relief A of the plaint. Clause (c) of s. 23 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, clearly provides for such a case. But as such a relief is merely ancillary to the main relief for possession we are of opinion that the merits of the case will be satisfied if a decree for possession is granted in respect of property entered in Appendix B of the plaint.

---

(2) 8 C. 138; 10 C. L. R. 66; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 88.

As regards the transferees, we agree with the finding of the learned First Subordinate Judge that they had notice that the plaintiff had a claim against their transferor Ali Haider. In the circumstances they cannot be treated as transferees in good faith without notice. Some of these transfers are also pendente lite.

The result is that we allow this appeal, set aside the decree of the lower Court and grant relief A. to the plaintiff with proportionate costs in both the Courts. Reliefs B and C are rejected.

Z. K. Appeal allowed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS FIRST CIVIL APPEAL
No. 2175 OF 1924.
January 27, 1925.
Present:—Mr. Justice Martineau.
SHIV RAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS —APPELLANTS
versus
Musammat ISHRI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), s. 20—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 16—Property situate in Burma and at Ludhiana—Probate taken out in Burma—Suit for administration of estate—Jurisdiction.

A suit for a declaration that the Probate proceedings shall not affect the plaintiffs and for the administration of the estate is not a claim for the determination of any right to or interest in immoveable property within the meaning of s. 16, C. P. C., and the mere fact that part of the property is situate at a particular place does not confer jurisdiction on the Court at that place. Such a suit would be entertained by the Court at the place where the Probate is taken out.

Miscellaneous first appeal from an order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ludhiana, dated the 18th August 1924.

Lala Fakir Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. C. Bakhsi, Lala Badri Dass, R. B., and Lala Nawal Kishore, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from an order of the Senior Subordinate Judge of Ludhiana returning a plaint for want of jurisdiction.

The plaintiffs allege that they and Indar Singh were members of a joint Hindu family owning property in the Ludhiana District and in Burma and that Indar Singh having died they are entitled to the property by survivorship. Indar Singh made a Will, of which Probate has been obtained by the defendant Parhlad Rai in Burma. The plaintiffs have brought a separate suit for a declaration of their title to the property. In the present case they ask for a declaration that the Probate proceedings shall not effect them and for the administration of the estate left by Indar Singh. The Senior Subordinate Judge has held that this suit is not triable in the Ludhiana District and I agree with him.

Section 16 of the C. P. C. does not apply, the claim for the estate to be administered not being a claim for the determination of any right to or interest in immoveabe property, so that the mere fact that part of the property to be administered is situate in the Ludhiana District will not give the Ludhiana Court jurisdiction. The question of jurisdiction has, therefore, to be determined by s. 20. Parhlad Rai is residing in Burma and the cause of action arose in Burma having been afforded by the Probate proceedings taken by Parhlad Rai in Burma. Consequently the suit cannot be tried in the Ludhiana District.

The appeal is accordingly dismissed with costs.

R. L. Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 331 OF 1924.
February 5, 1926.
Present :—Mr. Justice Devadoss.
THONDIYIL PUTHALATH UKKARAN
NAIR—DEFENDANT—PETITIONER
versus
THONDIYIL PONNIGARI UKKARAN
NAYAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 15 (2)—Vendee, default by, to pay kist—Payment by vendor in whose name patta *continues to stand—Suit by vendor for recovery of amount, whether cognisable by Small Cause Court—Plaintiff, right of, to personal decree—*Kist for more than three years, whether recoverable

Where a vendee undertook to pay the revenue payable on the land and committed default therein, and the vendor, in whose name the patta continued to stand, was compelled to pay, in a suit by the vendor to recover the money in a Small Cause Court:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was entitled to a personal decree;

(2) that the suit was cognisable by the Small Cause Court;

(3) that plaintiff was entitled to recover only three years' kist.

Petition, under s. 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Payoli, in S. C. S. No. 171 of 1925.

Mr. T. S. Viswanatha Iyer, for the Petitioner.

Mr. S. Venkatachala Sastry, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The first point raised in this petition is that the District Munsif had no jurisdiction to try the case as the relief which could be granted to the plaintiff is not a relief which a Small Cause Court is empowered to give, viz., mortgage-decree. The argument is that the defendant who is in possession of property is liable to pay the tax on the property and when the pattadar pays the tax, he can only have a remedy against the land in the same way as the Government would be entitled to proceed against it, and the defendant not being a pattadar s. 5 of the Revenue Recovery Act (Madras) II of 1861, has no application to him. This point was not raised before the District Munsif. His contention there was that the suit was not maintainable not on the ground that the Small Cause Court could not give a mortgage decree against the defendant but on the ground that that patta had not been transferred to the defendant and, therefore, he was not liable to pay the revenue. The point not having been raised in the first Court, I do not think the defendant should be allowed to raise it in this Court. The suit as framed was a small cause suit and the relief prayed for also was one within the competency of the Small Cause Court to grant, and the relief granted was only for payment of money. That being so, the frame of the suit and the relief claimed were all within the cognizance of the Small Cause Court and the defendant could have pleaded that the suit as framed was improper and that a suit should have been differently framed and such suit would not be within the cognizance of the Small Cause Court. He not having taken the point before the District Munsif is not entitled to take the point now.

The next contention is that the plaintiff cannot obtain a personal decree against the defendant, and he relies on Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingaswami Sivan (1) and Boja Sellappa Reddy v. Vridachala Reddy (2). In Boja Sellappa Reddy v. Vridachala Reddy (2) it was found that the payment was a voluntary payment and in Subramania Chetty v. Mahalingaswami Sivan (1) it was found that the mortgagee paid the kist on the property not in his capacity of pattadar but in his capacity of a mortgagee. In a recent case C. R. P. No. 489 of 1923, Mr. Justice Krishnan held that the remedy which is open to a pattadar who pays kist against the owner of the land who is bound to pay it is not by a personal decree but by a decree against the property. These cases have no application to the present case as the District Munsif finds that there was a special agreement between the parties that the revenue payable on the plaint property was to be paid by the tarwad of the defendant; and from the previous conduct of the parties it is clear that the plaintiff paid the revenue on the land on behalf of the defendant. That being the course of conduct between the parties, it is not now open to the defendant to contend that the plaintiff is not entitled to obtain a personal decree against him. The District Munsif has given a decree for the revenue for four years on the ground that Ex. I which is a registered sale-deed provides for the payment of cist by the defendant. Under that document, the vendee, i.e., the defendant, was asked to pay assessment. That would not enable the plaintiff, land-holder, to claim kist for more than three years prior to the date of the suit. The decree will, therefore, be modified by giving the plaintiff a decree only as regards the three years' kist. Each party to bear his own costs.

V. N. V. Decree modified.

(1) 3 Ind. Cas. 624; 33 M. 41; 19 M. L. J. 627; 6 M. L. T. 198.

(2) 30 M. 35; 16 M. L. J. 569; 1 M. L. T. 323.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2261 OF 1925.
March 25, 1926.
Present:—Mr. Justice Jai Lal.
BAHADUR—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
SAGHAR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Adverse possession—Possession follows title—Principle, application of.

The presumption that possession must be deemed to follow title arises only when there is no definite proof of possession by either party in the case of land incapable of actual possession owing to its nature.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Jhelum, dated the 12th June 1925, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, Fourth Class, Jhelum, dated the 18th February 1925.

Mr. Parkash Chandra for Mr. Muhammad Azam Khan, for the Appellant.

Mr. N. C. Mehra, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Three khasra numbers were purchased by one Haidar. The sale in favour of Haidar was pre-empted by the respondent Saghar who in execution of his decree for pre-emption obtained possession of the three khasra numbers in 1923. Bahadur appellant thereupon instituted a suit under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act and obtained possession. Saghar then instituted the suit out of which this second appeal has arisen for possession of three khasra numbers. The District Judge has held that in regard to two of the khasras numbers Bahadur has proved that he had been in adverse possession thereof for more than 12 years. He has, therefore, dismissed the suit with regard to them. The present appeal relates to khasra No. 581. This land was not cultivated but in the Revenue Records Bahadur had been shown to be in actual possession throughout. The fact that Bahadur obtained a decree under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act also shows that he was in actual possession of this khasra numbers. The District Judge on the findings that Saghar is the owner of the land, that it is not cultivated, and that Bahadur could not be in adverse possession of uncultivated land, has decreed the suit as regards khasra No. 581. In my opinion this view of the learned District Judge is erroneous. The presumption that possession must be deemed to follow title arises only when there is no definite proof of possession by either of the contending parties, in the case of land which is incapable of actual possession owing to its nature. In this case Bahadur has been and is in possession of khasra No. 581. Saghar or his predecessors-in-interest have not been proved to have been in possession of the khasra number at any time within 12 years of the suit except on one occasion when he was ejected as a result of the suit under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. I hold, therefore, that Saghar's suit as regards khasra No. 581 should also have been dismissed and accepting this appeal dismiss it with costs throughout.

R. L. Appeal accepted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 317 OF 1922.
February 5, 1926.
Present:—Sir Grimwood Mears, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Lindsay.
CHARAN SINGH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS
versus
GANESHI LAL—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 82—"Contract to contrary," meaning of—Contract between mortgagor and mortgagee not providing manner of liability of different properties—Effect—Subsequent purchasers, right of—Vendee's right to avail of contract between his vendor and another vendee.

The expression "a contract to the contrary" in s. 82, Transfer of Property Act, means a contract between the mortgagor and mortgagee. Therefore, in the absence of any contract between a mortgagor and his mortgagee that the several properties mortgaged are liable in any other manner than that contemplated by the section, neither of the purchasers of the properties subsequent to the mortgage can as against the mortgagee set up a case that the properties are not rateably liable to contribute to mortgagee's debt. [p. 1051, col. 1.]

Ramabhadrachar v. Srinivasa Ayyangar, 24 M. 85, relied on.

A vendee cannot avail himself of a personal covenant between his vendor and another vendee. [p. 1051, col. 2.]

Jamna Das v. Ram Autar Pande, 13 Ind. Cas. 304; 34 A. 63; 16 C. W. N. 97; 11 M. L. T. 6; 9 A. L. J. 37; (1912) M. W. N. 32; 15 C. L. J. 68; 14 Bom. L. R. 1; 21 M. L. J. 1158; 39 I. A. 7 (P. C.) and Jamna Das v. Ramautar Pande, 2 Ind. Cas. 460; 31 A. 352; 6 A. 427, referred to.

First appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Aligarh, dated the 1st May 1922.

Dr. K. N. Katju, for the Appellant.

Dr. M. L. Agrawala, Messrs. P. L. Banerji and Panna Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—One Bijai Indar Singh was the owner of a share in Mauza Kheria Gurdeo and a share in Mauza Mirpur in the Aligarh District. On the 8th of November 1906 he mortgaged these shares to one Mangal Sen as security for the sum of Rs. 8,000. From 1906 onwards he appears to have been in difficulties and on the 19th of March 1912 one Kishen Singh had obtained a decree against him on a mortgage which decree was under execution in 1914. On the 19th of May 1914 Bijai Indar Singh sold the property Kheria Gurdeo to Sher Singh, the father of the plaintiffs for the sum of Rs. 33,000. In the conveyance from Bijai Indar Singh to Sher Singh occurs the following passage:—

"The property sold is declared to be free from all kinds of claims, hypothecation liens and encumbrances, in that the entire amount due to Lala Mangal Sen and that due to Shrimati Ram Dei, wife of B. Sheo Prasad, Vakil, and Shrimati Ram Dei, wife of Bhola Nath, i. e., entire amount due under both the documents have been left in deposit with the vendee for payment."

A sum of Rs. 17,300 was left with the vendee for payment of the mortgage of Mangal Sen of the 8th of November 1906. Rupees 6,500 were left to satisfy the decrees of Kishen Singh and of Hazari Lal and Gulzari Lal in respect of which an order had been made that the property of Bijai Indar Singh should be sold on the 20th of May 1914, that is, the day succeeding the date of the sale-deed.

It is said that there was another decree obtained by Hazari Lal alone for which no provision was made in this document. But be that as it may, the sale did in fact take place on the 21st of May 1914 and one Bhola Nath bought the share in Kheria Gurdeo for Rs. 1,450. On the 19th of June Sher Singh deposited a sufficient sum of money to have the sale set aside. That deposit was objected to and Sher Singh subsequently withdrew the money deposited by him for reasons which seemed good to him. On the 14th of November 1914 the sale to Bhola Nath was confirmed.

On the 16th of April 1915 Bhola Nath conveyed Mauza Kheria Gurdeo to Sher Singh for the sum of Rs. 2,500.

We now turn to Mauza Mirpur. It will be remembered that this also was subject to the mortgage of Mangal Sen, and the share in this mauza was also sold in execution of the decree of Kishen Singh. On the 18th of June 1913 Kishen Singh, the decree-holder had filed an affidavit in which he stated that the property was subject to certain encumbrances and the second encumbrance set out by him was the mortgage executed by Bijai Inder Singh in favour of Mangal Sen for Rs. 8,000 registered on the 10th of November 1906. It is, therefore, evident that any bidder at the auction sale would be well aware that he was bidding for property which was at all events possibly encumbered by that mortgage.

On the 20th of July 1914 Mauza Mirpur was sold to Ganeshi Lal. He gave for it the sum of Rs. 2,900. The alleged value of the property, free of encumbrances, has been stated to be Rs. 70,000 and there is evidence to show that the net annual profits were at least Rs. 1,800. And later when on the 20th of August 1921 this very property was put up to auction in execution of the decree of Jaideo and others, heirs of Mangal Sen, Roshen Singh purchased it for Rs. 45,000 subject to an encumbrance of Rs. 16,000 and deposited the whole of the purchase money. Subsequently an application was made by Ganeshi Lal the defendant in this case that the sale should be set aside, and it was in fact so set aside, but on the question of value it would appear that Roshan Singh was willing to pay a price in excess of Rs. 60,000 for this share in Mauza Mirpur.

Notwithstanding the engagement which Sher Singh had entered into by the document of the 19th of May 1914, he did not pay the Rs. 17,300 to Mangal Sen and Mangal Sen instituted a suit for sale which was decreed on the 14th for September 1918.

Ganeshi Lal was impleaded in this suit as defendant No. 4 and raised the defence that Sher Singh, who was joined as defendant No. 3 was liable to satisfy the plaintiff's debt as he had purchased Kheria Gurdeo from the mortgagor and had by the terms of his purchase undertaken to discharge the mortgage held by Mangal Sen. Ganeshi Lal claimed, therefore, that in the event of a decree being passed, the decretal debt should in the first instance be satisfied as far as possible by sale of Kheria Gurdeo and that Mirpur, purchased by him (Ganeshi), should not be brought to sale unless it transpired that the entire debt could not be discharged by sale of Kheria Gurdeo. The Subordinate Judge on the issue raised by this pleading held that there was no equity in favour of Ganeshi Lal and that as all the defendants were subsequent purchasers of the mortgaged property the mortgagee was entitled to sell as he chose.

Mangal Sen having obtained a decree took out execution and in the execution proceedings Ganeshi Lal again raised the plea which he had advanced by way of defence to the suit. That plea was rejected by the Execution Court and Ganeshi Lal then brought a suit (No. 111 of 1921) against the representatives of Sher Singh (Charan Singh and others) asking for a declaration that the share in Mauza Kheria Gurdeo was liable to be sold before any recourse could be had to Mouza Mirpur. That suit failed (see the judgment at pages 77-79 of our record) the Subordinate Judge holding (to quote his own words) as follows:—

"It is true that defendants first set (i. e., the representatives of Sher Singh) undertook to pay the decree of Kishen Singh but they say that the existence of Hazari Lal's decree was concealed from them and so they had (refused) to satisfy the decree. Anyhow that is a matter between Bijai Indar Singh and the defendants first set and plaintiff has no right to make equity on that score. His clear remedy is to satisfy the decree of the defendants second set (i. e., the representatives of Mangal Sen) and then to sue for contribution".

On the 20th August 1921 both these properties, Kheria Gurdeo and Mirpur were sold in execution of Mangal Sen's decree and on the 19th of September, 1921 Sher Singh, in order to save Mauza Kheria Gurdeo satisfied the decree by payment of Rs. 31,939. The effect of this payment was to set aside the sale which had taken place in execution and to free Mauza Mirpur from any claim under Mangal Sen's decree. It is in respect of that payment that the heirs of Sher Singh have brought this suit for contribution, the basis of their claim being that both properties stood proportionately liable to answer for the principal money and interest due under Mangal Sen's mortgage of the 8th of November 1906. This case was founded on the provisions of s. 82 of the Transfer of Property Act.

It was further pleaded that the question of the liability of Mauza Mirpur to contribute was res judicata between the parties in view of the decisions (1) in the suit brought by Mangal Sen (Suit No. 146 of 1918), (2) in the execution proceedings which followed on that suit, (3) in the declaratory suit (No. 111 of 1921) already referred to.

The defendant resisted the claim by pleading that the plaintiffs had no right to claim contribution by reason of the terms of the sale-deed executed in favour of Sher Singh on the 19th of May 1914 whereby the latter was bound to satisfy the claim of Mangal Sen on his mortgage—a sum of Rs. 17,300 having been left with him for that purpose. It was also denied that the question of the liability of Mauza Mirpur to contribute to the mortgage debt was res judicata.

And, lastly it was contended that when Bhola Nath purchased Kheria Gurdeo on the 21st May 1914 in execution of decree, he did so as benamidar for Sher Singh, and that, consequently, the subsequent transfer of this property by the sale-deed executed on the 16th of April 1915 by Bhola Nath in favour of Sher Singh conferred no fresh title upon the latter.

The suit was dismissed in the Court below. The Subordinate Judge held that the sale-deed of the 19th May 1914 was binding upon the plaintiffs and that they had no right to claim contribution because upon the terms of that deed Sher Singh was under an obligation to discharge the debt due on Mangal Sen's mortgage and that his subsequent payment of Rs. 31,939 in satisfaction of Mangal Sen's decree was nothing more than the discharge of that obligation. A sum of Rs. 17,300, sufficient to satisfy the claim of Mangal Sen at the date of the sale in May 1914 had been left with Sher Singh, and he having failed to pay off Mangal Sen then as he was bound to do, the plaintiffs, his representatives could not seek contribution in respect of the larger sum which by reason of Sher Singh's default, had become due to Mangal Sen when he sued, later, to enforce the mortgage.

The Subordinate Judge further held that Bhola Nath when he purchased Kheria Gurdeo on the 21st May 1914 was a benamidar for Sher Singh and that the subsequent sale by Bhola Nath to Sher Singh on the 16th April 1915 gave Sher Singh no new title. And he also decided that the question of the liability of Mauza Mirpur to contribute to the mortgage debt for which Mangal Sen obtained his decree was not res judicata.

These findings are attacked here in appeal and it is contended that on the facts, as established, the defendant had, in law, no answer to the plaintiff's claim.

The law which declares the liability of several properties mortgaged to secure one debt is contained in the first clause of s. 82 of the Transfer of Property Act. It is there laid down that in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the several properties mortgaged are liable to contribute rateably to the debt secured by the mortgage, after deducting from the value of each property the amount of any other incumbrance to which it is subject at the date of the mortgage.

It follows, therefore, that unless there was a contract to the contrary, the two items of property with which we are concerned were liable to contribute rateably to the mortgage debt in favour of Mangal Sen.

It has been judicially held that the expression "a contract to the contrary" in s. 82 means a contract between the mortgagor and mortgagee [see the decision in Ramabhadrachar v. Srinivasa Ayyangar (1)] and if that is a correct statement of the law it follows that in the present case s. 82 is left to its full operation for it is not pretended that there ever was any contract between Bijai Indar the mortgagor and Mangal Sen his mortgagee that the two properties were to be liable in any other manner than that contemplated by the section; and neither Sher Singh nor Ganeshi Lal as purchasers subsequent to the mortgage could, as against Mangal Sen set up a case that the properties were not rateably liable to contribute to his debt. Prima facie, therefore, Ganeshi Lal is not entitled in this suit to maintain that the property purchased by Sher Singh was liable to the full extent of its value to be taken in satisfaction of Mangal Sen's decree.

But the plea put forward by Ganeshi Lal was that by virtue of the term of his purchase from Bijai Indar, Sher Singh was liable to satisfy the entire mortgage-debt of Mangal Sen out of that portion of the purchase money which was left with him for the purpose and that if he had done what he was legally obliged to do the result would have been that Mauza Mirpur would have stood free of the mortgage and could not afterwards have been sold in execution of Mangal Sen's decree. And so it has been argued before us that the plaintiffs have no right to enforce contribution. It is said that Sher Singh when he satisfied the mortgage-decree was paying not his own money but the money of Bijai Indar which had been left with him to discharge the mortgage. The defendant by raising these pleas is clearly claiming for himself the benefit of a contract to which he was no party. The obligation to pay off the mortgage arose out of the agreement for sale entered into between Bijai Indar and Sher Singh. That was a personal obligation which Bijai Indar as vendor, might enforce against his purchaser but it cannot be pleaded or enforced by Ganeshi Lal who was a stranger to the contract. Ganeshi Lal bought the share in Mirpur subject to the mortgage in favour of Mangal Sen and he cannot escape liability by pleading the terms of the sale-deed executed in favour of Sher Singh.

It has been argued before us that Ganeshi Lal has, as a representative of Bijai Indar, become entitled to the benefit of the contract but that is not so. He did, no doubt, by his purchase in execution acquire the right, title and interest of Bijai Indar in the share of Mauza Mirpur which was sold but he could not thereby acquire the benefit of any personal covenant in favour of Bijai Indar arising out of the sale in favour of Sher Singh.

The sale gave rise to no covenant attaching to the land of Mauza Mirpur which could pass upon a sale of that property.

The law on the subject is well-established; and we need only refer to the decision of their Lordsdips of the Privy Council in the case reported as Jamna Das v. Ram Antar Pande (2) which affirmed the judgment of this Court reported as Jamna Das v. Ramautar Pande (3). That was a case in which a mortgagee brought an action to enforce against a purchaser of the mortgaged property an undertaking which he had entered into with his vendor. It was held that the mortgagee had no right to avail himself of the undertaking. He was no party to the sale and the pruchaser entered into no contract with him.

The same is the case here. When Sher Singh in May 1914 entered into a contract with Bijai Indar for the sale of Kheria Gurdeo, he certainly did not make any contract with Ganeshi Lal who at that time was a complete stranger to the property. Nor, as has already been said, did he create any obligation the benefit of which could pass or has passed to Ganeshi Lal. Dr. Agarwala, in the course of his argument on behalf of the respondent, has put forward a contention based upon the language of s. 55, sub-s. (5), cl. (b) of the Transfer of Property Act. He claims that the sale of the 19th May 1914 was a sale of Kheria Gurdeo free from incumbrance and that consequently the sum of Rs. 17,300 left with Sher Singh for redemption of Mangal Sen's mortgage was a portion of the purchase-money which really belonged to the vendor Bijai Indar. And he argues that when, later on, Sher Singh was paying off the mortgage-decree he was doing so with Bijai Indar's money and cannot be heard to say that the money was his own so as to entitle him to claim contribution against Ganeshi Lal.

---

(1) 24 M. 85.

(2) 13 Ind. Cas. 304; 34 A. 63; 16 C. W. N. 97; 11 M. L. T. 6; 9 A. L. J. 37; (1912) M. W. N. 32; 15 C. L. J. 68; 14 Bom. L. R. 1; 21 M. L. J. 1158; 39 I. A. 7 (P. C.).

(3) 1 Ind. Cas. 460; 31 A. 352; 6 A. 427.

In the first place, we cannot accept this view of the sale of the 19th May 1914. The property was not being sold free of encumbrance as a reference to the language of the sale-deed will clearly show. What was stated was that the property was subject to certain mortgages and that money sufficient to satisfy those mortgages was being left with the purchaser. It is true that there are words declaring that the property sold is "free from all kinds of claims, hypothecation liens and incumbrances" in asmuch as money was being left with the purchaser to discharge the incumbrances named but it is quite clear that at the time the property passed under this deed, it was incumberd. That fact was expressly mentioned, and so the sale was in reality a sale of property subject to incumbrances. The same view was taken of a similar transaction in the case reported as Jamna Das v. Ram Autar Pande (4).

Section 55, sub-s. (5), cl. (b) has, therefore, no application to this transaction.

In the next place even if we were to assume that it had, the case of the respondent is not advanced in any way. He cannot be heard to say that the money paid by Sher Singh to satisfy the mortgage-decree was purchase money belonging to Bijai Indar; to allow him to say so would be allowing him to take advantage of a term of a contract to which he was no party. Sher Singh paid the money into Court and it is no concern of Ganeshi Lal's whose the money was. If it was Bijai Indar's money, he can be left to make whatever claim he chooses. The learned Subordinate Judge in coming to his decision relied upon the case of Shah Muhammad Abbas v. Muhammad Hamid (5). That was a case in which two properties X and Y were subject to various mortgages. Of these X was sold to the plaintiffs with whom was left sufficient money to discharge all the incumbrances that existed on X and Y. Subsequently by arrangement between these plaintiffs and their vendors, the latter by taking some money from the plaintiffs agreed to pay off some of the incumbrances, the plaintiffs being liable to pay off the others.

After this the Y property was sold to the defendants "free of incumbrances" in spite of the fact that neither the vendors nor the plaintiffs had paid off the incumbrances under the arrangment just mentioned.

The mortgagee brought a suit for sale and having obtained a decree proclaimed portions of X and Y for sale. In order to prevent a sale the plaintiffs paid up the decree and sued the defendants (the owners of property Y) for contribution. It was held that the suit could not succeed and that the defendants were entitled to hold the property free from liability to contribute to the mortgage debts.

This decision appears to have proceeded upon the consideration that the vendors had sold property Y to the defendants free of incumbranees and that after the date of the sale to the plaintiffs it was not the intention "of any of the parties concerned" that the shares in the two villages should contribute rateably to the mortgage-debts.

The facts of the case were peculiar and are very different from those we have to consider here. The defendants' vendors had by the arrangement referred to above made themselves liable to dicharge some of the incumbrances, and without doing so had sold property Y to the defendants as being free from incumbrance.

In the case now before us Bijai Indar the vendor did not assume any liability for the mortgage debt due to Mangal Sen—that liability was left upon the purchaser Sher Singh. And again there was no sale to Ganeshi Lal free of incumbrance. On the contrary, it is clearly established that he bought Mirpur with knowledge of Mangal Sen's mortgage upon it: in fact he bought and knew that he was buying only the equity of redemption, for which he paid a sum of Rs. 2,900 only which was nothing like the value of the property free from incumbrance. The case is altogether different from the one just referred to and it is not possible for Ganeshi Lal to claim here the equity which was raised on behalf of the defendants in the other case.

---

(4) 33 Ind. Cas. 351; 38 A. 209; 14 A. L. J. 151.

(5) 14 Ind. Cas. 179; 9 A. L. J. 499.

We are satisfied that the judgment of the Court below on this part of the case is erroneous and that the defendant Ganeshi Lal had no answer to the claim for contribution on any of the grounds just referred to.

The case was correctly put by the Subordinate Judge who decided the declaratory suit (No. 111 of 1921) between the present parties. Ganeshi Lal had no right to claim any equity based upon the contract entered into between Sher Singh and Bijai Indar on the 19th May 1914.

Next as regards the question of res judicata. Here again we must differ from the judgment of the lower Court. The decision in the declaratory suit we have just mentioned (No. 111 of 1921) is a bar to the defence raised in this suit by Ganeshi Lal.

In that suit, Ganeshi Lal as plaintiff asked for a declaration of his right to throw the entire mortgage debt upon Mauza Kheria Gurdeo and to hold Mauza Mirpur free of all claim under Mangal Sen's mortgage which could be satisfied by the sale of Kheria Gurdeo. The Subordinate Judge held that he had no such right and that all he was entitled to was a claim to contribution in case he satisfied the mortgage-decree.

That settled matters between Ganeshi Lal and the present plaintiffs and the question could not be agitated again in the present suit.

There remains only the finding of the Court below to the effect that when Bhola Nath purchased Kheria Gurdeo at auction on the 21st May 1914 he purchased benami for Sher Singh and that the sale purporting to have been made by Bhola Nath in favour of Sher Singh on the 16th April 1915 (Ex. I at page 55 of the record) gave no new title to Sher Singh.

In view of our decision on the other questions recorded above it is not necessary for us to give our opinion on this matter. We have dealt with the case as if Sher Singh's only title to the property arose out of the sale-deed obtained by him on the 19th May 1914 as alleged by the defendant.

We think it proper however to observe that were we called upon to decide this question, we should not be able to accept the finding of the Court below.

The solitary witness examined on the point was Bhola Nath himself. Sher Singh, the alleged real purchaser, is dead.

The learned Subordinate Judge believed the statement of Bhola Nath. In our opinion he ought not to have done so. We hold that Bhola Nath was not a witness of truth.

If we examine the sale-deed of the 16th April 1915 we find Bhola Nath reciting that he is the owner of the property which he had purchased at auction on the 21st May 1914 for Rs. 1,450. He professes to sell this property for Rs. 2,500 to Sher Singh the latter to be liable to pay all incumbrances whatever they may be. The deed further recites that Sher Singh had previously purchased the property from Bijai Indar and that the incumbrances mentioned in the sale-deed are to be maintained.

The deed further states that out of the Rs. 2,500 fixed as the purchase-money the vendor Bhola Nath had already received Rs. 1,900 from the vendee (Sher Singh) under a receipt dated the 23rd February 1915. The balance, Rs. 600, was to be paid at the time of registration and the registration endorsement shows that on the 17th April 1915 when the deed was registered the sum of Rs. 600 was paid to Bhola Nath in the presence of the registering officer. Bhola Nath's statements in the witness-box are in no way to be reconciled with the recitals in the deed. His story now is that he bought benami for Sher Singh and that he paid the 25 per cent. deposit of the purchase money out of funds provided by Sher Singh. He goes on to say that when he had to deposit the balance of the purchase money he paid Rs. 500 out of his own pocket. The rest was found by Sher Singh.

He does not in so many words explain how if that was the case he was selling the property for Rs. 2,500 to Sher Singh in April 1915 but his evidence leaves it to be inferred that the only consideration for this sale was Rs. 600 which he received at the time of registration and which compensated him for the Rs. 500 he had himself deposited in Court after the auction. According to this version, therefore, the recital in the sale-deed that he had received Rs. 1,900 from Sher Singh on the 23rd February 1915 was false. There is one other matter to be noted in this connection. It is admitted by Bhola Nath that after he had bought the property at auction Sher Singh applied to the Court to have the sale set aside. It is proved that he made a deposit of over Rs. 2,000 along with the application.

Bhola Nath admits that he opposed this application made by Sher Singh and that Sher Singh afterwards withdrew it with the result that the sale was confirmed to Bhola Nath on the 14th November 1914. Bhola Nath cannot explain why Sher Singh went through this farce if the fact was, as now alleged, that he himself was the real purchaser and Bhola Nath was merely his benamidar. It was for Bhola Nath to explain this matter and also to give some reasonable account of this discrepancies between his present statements and those contained in the sale deed of the 16th April, 1915 and as he failed to do so, we are of opinion that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in acting upon Bhola Nath's evidence so as to find that he was a benamidar for Sher Singh.

For these reasons we are of opinion that the right of the plaintiffs to claim contribution is established and that their appeal must prevail:

The only question left to be determined is the amount to which the plaintiffs are entitled by way of contribution. To enable us to decide this question it is necessary to remit an issue to the Court below as follows:—

"Having regard to the respective values of the properties in Mauza Kheria Gurdeo and Mauza Mirpur on the 8th of November, 1906, when the mortgage to Mangal Sen was made, to what sum are the plaintiffs entitled by way of contribution in respect of the payment of Rs. 31,939 made by Sher Singh on the 19th of September, 1921?"

The parties will produce any evidence they think proper before the Subordinate Judge, who will return his finding within two months from the receipt of this order, and on receipt of the finding 10 days will be allowed for filing objections.

R. L. Appeal allowed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 346 OF 1925.
January 8, 1926.
Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Coyajee.
MHALAPPA VENKATESH SHETTI
—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
JANARDAN GOVIND MAHALE—
PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 111, 117—Agricultural leases—Relief against forfeiture for breach of covenant.

Agricultural leases are exempt from the operation of s. 111, Transfer of Property Act. Therefore, a Court can in a proper case exercise its equitable power of relieving against forfeiture for breach of covenant. [p. 1055, col. 1.]

Appeal from a decision of the District Judge, Karwar, in Appeal No. 47 of 1924, confirming that of the First Class Subordinate Judge, Karwar, in Civil Suit No. 121 of 1923.

Mr. G. S. Rao, D. B., (with him Messrs. V. N. Nadkarni and B. S. Mavinkurve), for the Appellant.

Mr. G. P. Murdeshvar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Macleod, C. J.—The plaintiff sued to recover possession of the land described in the plaint free from any rights or charges thereon, alleging that defendant No. 1 held the land in suit under a mulgeni lease, dated June 17, 1882; that under it the lessee was liable to pay the stipulated rent at a fixed time of the year; that the lease also stipulated that the lessee should enjoy the land without transferring it to anybody; that if he broke any of these conditions the lessee was under its terms liable to forfeit his lease-hold rights; that defendant No. 1 did not give the stipulated rent at the stipulated time; that defendant No. 1 mortgaged the land to defendant No. 2 on November 11, 1922; that he thus broke both the conditions and that, therefore, the plaintiff had got a right to recover possession of the land.

The 1st defendant contended that the stipulation against alienation was illegal. But that is obviously a point which cannot be relied upon by the 1st defendant.

We must take it, considering the terms of the lease, although it is not very clear whether the District Judge considered that the terms 'transfer' or 'alienation' include a simple mortgage, that the 1st defendant has transferred by mortgage his interest in the land to the 2nd defendant, which would involve a forfeiture if the owner wished to exercise his rights under the lease.

It has been argued that this Court has no power to relieve against forfeiture, except for non-payment of rent. But s. 111 of the Transfer of Property Act and the other sections of Ch. V do not by virtue of s. 117 apply to leases for agricultural purposes, and there is no other restriction that I know of against the Court exercising its equitable powers by relieving against forfeiture in a proper case. Considering that the lease does not expressly restrain the tenant from mortgaging his interest, and that apparently the owner had refrained from objecting to a prior mortgage executed by defendant No. 1 in favour of defendant No. 3, we think the proper order to make in this case is that defendant No. 1 should have three months from the time the record reaches the lower Court, to release the land held by him from the mortgage of the 2nd. defendant, and if he cannot release the land from the mortgage within that time, then the decree which has been passed by the Trial Court will come into effect. If the land is released from the mortgage, then the suit of the plaintiff will be dismissed. But in any event the 1st defendant will have to pay the plaintiff's costs throughout.

Coyajee, J.—I concur.

R. L. Order accordingly.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2793 OF 1925.

April 27, 1926.

Present:—Mr. Justice Campbell.

KALIAN SINGH—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

FAZAL DIN—PLAINTIFF AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12—Time requisite for obtaining copies—Sale-deed guaranteeing indemnity in case of loss—Pre-emption, loss in consequence of—Vendee's right to be recompensed.

A Jhelum appeal was heard by the District Judge, Rawalpindi, in his capacity as Additional Judge, Jhelum, and decided on 25th May 1925. On the 24th July 1925 the appellant applied in the Court of the District Judge, Jhelum, for copies of the judgment and the decree of the Appellate Court. His deposit of the fees was accepted and an order was made on the application for supply of the copies. On 28th September 1925 appellant's application was returned with a direction that it should be made at Rawalpindi. The application was presented in Rawalpindi Court on the 29th September 1925 and copies were obtained on the 5th October 1925 and the appeal was filed on 30th October 1925:

Held, that the appellant was entitled to count the whole period from the 24th July till the 5th October as time requisite for obtaining copies. [p. 1056, col. 1.]

A guarantee clause in a sale-deed to the effect that the vendor would be liable to recompense any loss that might accrue to the vendees in connection with the sale (agar intikal haza men mushtarian ko koi nuksan paunche to main zimmenwar hunga) covers the risk of the vendees' title being defeated by a pre-emptor. [p. 1056, col. 2.]

Khommon Bibi v. Shah Mali, 4 Ind. Cas. 690; 11 P. R. 1908; 13 P. L. R. 1909; 180 P. W. R. 1908, referred to.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Rawalpindi, dated the 25th May 1925, modifying that of the Subordinate Judge, Fourth Class, Chakwal, at Gujar Khan, dated the 15th July 1924.

Mr. Ram Chand Manchanda, for the Appellant.

Messrs. Mohammad Azam and Anant Ram, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary objection is taken that this appeal and No. 2794 are barred by time. The facts are these.

The suits were Jhelum cases but the appeals were heard by the District Judge, Rawalpindi, in his capacity as Additional Judge, Jhelum. The date of the judgments is 25th May 1925. On the 24th July 1925 the appellant applied in the Court of the District Judge, Jhelum, for copies of the judgments and decrees of the Appellate Court.

His deposit of the fees was accepted and an order was passed on the applications that copies should be supplied. We know nothing of what happened thereafter until the 28th September 1925, on which date the appellant's applications were returned to him with endorsement that the cases had been sent to record in the Rawalpindi Court and that applications for copies should be made there. The applications were presented in the Rawalpandi Court on the 29th September 1925 and copies were obtained on the 5th October 1925 and the two appeals were filed here on the 30th October 1925.

If the time during which the appellant's applications lay in the Jhelum Court be included in the time requisite for obtaining copies the appeals were filed within time. If that period is to be excluded the last date for filing the appeals was the 12th

October 1925, the date of the High Court opening.

It has been argued on behalf of the respondents, who have raised the preliminary objection, that the appellant must have been negligent, since otherwise there would not be so wide a gap between the 24th July and 28th September. In view of the facts, however, that his money was taken at Jhelum and was not returned and that an order for supplying the copies was passed and further that he presented his applications at Rawalpindi without any delay after receiving them back at Jhelum entitled him, in my opinion, to count the whole period from the 24th July till the 5th October as time requisite for obtaining copies. The preliminary objection is overruled.

On the merits the facts are as follows:— Uttam Chand and Hoshnak Rai decree-holders purchased a certain house in execution of a decree. They then sold it to Kalyan Singh for Rs. 600. Kalyan Singh, through his agent Ram Singh, sold the house again to Fazal Din and Musammat Rakhi for Rs. 1,500. Jawala Sahai cousin of Uttam Chand and Hoshank Rai then brought a suit to pre-empt the sale by his relatives to Kalyan Singh, and obtained a decree for possession by pre-emption of Rs. 600 against Fazal Din and Musammat Rakhi who were impleaded among the defendants. Fazal Din and Musammat Rakhi then brought separate suits against Kalyan Singh to recover the balance of purchase-money paid by them to him and damages for the expenditure to which they had been put to in the litigation. Each suit was of Rs. 450 (i. e., half of Rs. 900) plus Rs. 250 damages. The Trial Court dismissed the suits but on appeal the District Judge gave each plaintiff a decree for Rs. 554-10. Kalyan Singh has preferred second appeals.

The question for decision is the interpretation of the following sentence in the sale deed executed by Ram Singh as agent of Kalyan Singh in favour of Fazal Din and Musammat Rakhi: "agar intikal haza men mushtarian ko koi nuksan paunche to main zimmenwar hunga."

It was argued before the lower Appellate Court on behalf of Kalyan Singh that the word "main" indicated a personal responsibility undertaken by Ram Singh in his individual capacity and that the sentence did not bind Kalyan Singh in any way. It should be observed that the original defendants were Kalyan Singh and Ram Singh both, but in the lower Appellate Court the claims against Ram Singh were given up. The learned District Judge held that it was clear from the document that Ram Singh was not taking upon himself any individual responsibility and that the guarantee given was that of Kalyan Singh.

The second point urged by Kalyan Singh in the lower Appellate Court was that the word "nuksan" could not be interpreted to mean "loss" as the result of a pre-emption suit such as that which was brought by Jawala Sahai. The learned District Judge repelled this contention also and held that the word "nuksan" was wide enough to cover such "loss." He referred to Khommon Bibi v. Shah Mali (1), a case which has some features in common with the present case, and appears to have concluded that, as in that case, so in the case before him the sentence quoted was inserted as much for the purpose of indemnifying the purchaser against loss due to the intervention of a pre-emptor as for any other reason.

Exactly the same argument has been put before me in second appeal by the learned Vakil for Kalyan Singh and after hearing him and examining the sale-deed I find that the learned District Judge was correct. When the whole deed is read it is clear to my mind that the guarantee was one by Kalyan Singh the vendor given on his behalf by Ram Singh as agent, and I see no reason for disagreeing with the learned District Judge's view that the word "intikal haza men nuksan paunche" can properly be held to include the risk of the vendees' title being defeated by a pre-emptor. It has not been argued that Ram Singh was not empowered to give the guarantee.

I, therefore, dismiss both the appeals with costs.

R. L. Appeals dismissed.

---

(1) 4 Ind. Cas. 690; 111 P. R. 1908; 13 P. L. R. 1909; 180 P. W. R. 1908.

END OF VOLUME 94.

GENERAL INDEX.

VOLUME 94—1926.

Abadi. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 399

Abatement of suits and appeals. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXII.

Acquiescence—Possession, suit for—Building on another's land—Delay in suit—Proper relief.

If a person deliberately builds on another's land, the latter is entitled to recover possession of the land unless there are special circumstances amounting to a standing by so as to induce the belief that the owner intended to forego his right or to acquiesce in the erection on his building. Mere delay in bringing a suit is not in itself sufficient to deprive the owner of his strict rights. KARIM BAKHSH v. MOHAMED SHAFI 168

Acts—General.

Act 1839—XXXII. See INTEREST ACT.
—— 1841—XIX. See SUCCESSION (PROPERTY PROTECTION) ACT.
—— 1860—XLV. See PENAL CODE.
—— 1863—XX. See RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS ACT.
—— 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.
—— 1870—VII. See COURT FEES ACT.
—— 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.
—— 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.
—— 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.
—— 1878—VIII. See SEA CUSTOMS ACT.
—— 1878—XI. See ARMS ACT.
—— 1879—XVIII. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
—— 1881—V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT.
—— 1881—XXVI. See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—II. See TRUSTS ACT.
—— 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
—— 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.
—— 1887—VII. See SUITS VALUATION ACT.
—— 1887—IX. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
—— 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
—— 1890—IX. See RAILWAYS ACT.
—— 1894—I. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT.
—— 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1899—II. See STAMP ACT.
—— 1899—IX. See ARBITRATION ACT.
—— 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1912—II. See CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT.
—— 1913—VII. See COMPANIES ACT.
—— 1916—XV. See HINDU DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY ACT.
—— 1920—V. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1922—XI. See INCOME TAX ACT.

Acts—Bengal.

Act 1866—V. See CALCUTTA POLICE ACT.
—— 1879—IX. See COURT OF WARDS ACT.
—— 1884—III. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.
—— 1911—XVIII. See CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT (APPEALS) ACT.
—— 1920—III. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT.

Acts—Bihar and Orissa.

—— 1876—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT.
—— 1908—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR TENANCY ACT.

Acts—Bombay.

—— 1874—III. See BOMBAY HEREDITARY OFFICES ACT.
—— 1879—V. See BOMBAY LAND REVENUE CODE.
—— 1879—XVII. See DEKKHAN AGRICULTURISTS' RELIEF ACT.
—— 1888—VI. See GUJARAT TALUQDARS' ACT.
—— 1901—III. See BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1918—II. See BOMBAY RENT (WAR RESTRICTIONS) ACT.
—— 1920—XVII. See BOMBAY PLEADERS ACT.

Acts—C. P.

—— 1920—I. See C. P. TENANCY ACT.

Acts—Madras.

—— 1900—I. See MALABAR COMPENSATION FOR TENANTS IMPROVEMENTS ACT.
—— 1905—III. See MADRAS LAND ENCROACHMENT ACT.
—— 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.
—— 1914—I. See MADRAS HINDU TRANSFERS AND BEQUESTS ACT.
—— 1920—V. See MADRAS DISTRICT MUNICIPALITIES ACT.

Acts—Punjab.

—— 1887—XVI. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
—— 1911—III. See PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1913—I. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1914—I. See PUNJAB EXCISE ACT.
—— 1918—VI. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.

Acts—U. P.

—— 1869—I. See OUDH ESTATES ACT.
—— 1886—XXII. See OUDH RENT ACT.
—— 1899—III. See U. P. COURT OF WARDS ACT.
—— 1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
—— 1916—II. See U. P. MUNICIPALITIES ACT.
—— 1922—XI. See AGRA PRE-EMPTION ACT.

Regulations.

Reg.1793—VIII. See BENGAL DECENNIAL SETTLEMENT REGULATION.

—— 1798—I. See BENGAL LAND (CONDITIONAL SALES) REGULATION.

—— 1806—XI. See BENGAL TROOPS TRANSPORT AND TRAVELLER'S ASSISTANCE REGULATION.

—— 1806—XVII. See BENGAL LAND (REDEMPTION AND FORECLOSURE) REGULATION.

—— 1827—XVI. See BOMBAY REGULATION.

Statutes.

1915—(5 & 6 GEO. V, c. 61). See GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.

Adverse possession.

See LANDLORD AND TENANT 779

See TRUST 489

———— Co-owners—Exclusive possession.

Jhanda Singh, Hira Singh and Jagat Singh were brothers and co-owners of a piece of land. The possession of the entire holding was with Jhanda Singh the others being absentees. In 1896 sons of Hira Singh sold off their share to a stranger which was successfully pre-empted by Gattu son of Jhanda Singh. In 1907 Jagat Singh died and his share was mutated in favour of Gattu no mention being made of Hira Singh's sons. On Hira Singh's sons bringing a suit for possession for half share of Jaggat Singh's share in 1923:

Held, that the plaintiffs' suit was barred by time for Gattu's possession since 1907 was exclusively on his own account and not that of co-owner and was, therefore, adverse to the plaintiffs. L BISHNA v. NARAIN SINGH 486

———— Co-owner, ouster of—Knowledge of adverse possession—Mode of proof—Second appeal—Mixed question of law and fact—Finding of fact, consideration of.

The question of adverse possession is a mixed question of law and fact. In dealing with the question in second appeal the findings of fact should be considered to see whether the inference drawn by the Appellate Court was proper or not.

The ouster of a co-sharer in order to render the possession adverse need not be violent nor need notice of adverse holding be actually brought home to the other co-sharers by personal or formal communication but it is sufficient if contrary is not proved, that the circumstances show that such knowledge may reasonably be presumed. C SABITRI DASI v. NADIAR CHAND BARIK 38

———— Death of owner of property—Possession of one of several heirs beyond his share—Adverse possession in respect of excess.

Where one of the heirs of a deceased person comes to occupy more than his share to the exclusion of the rightful heir of the excess share and alienates it and such alienation is accepted by the conduct of the latter, the possession of the former is adverse to the latter and ripens into ownership if it extends beyond twelve years. L KARAM DIN v. MEHR DIN, 8 L. L. J. 129 550

————, how established.

No particular form of an expression is necessary to constitute adverse possession, it is always a question of animus which has to be gathered from all the circumstances. C GANGA PROSAD CHOWDHURY v. KULADANANDA ROY, 30 C. W. N. 415; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 568 235

———— Plaintiff vendee from person without title—Open user for more than 12 years—Prescription.

Adverse possession—concld.

The plaintiff had purchased the site in suit by a deed from a person who had no title to it. The deed was not registered but was attested by a lambardar of the patti. On another land purchased by the plaintiff he had constructed a house and he had been using the land in suit as an appurtenance to his house. He had enclosed it with a hedge and had been using as a carpenter's yard for more than 12 years:

Held, that the plaintiff's possession had ripened into ownership. L ISHER SINGH v. WIR SINGH 1000

———— Possession follows title—Principle, application of.

The presumption that possession must be deemed to follow title arises only when there is no definite proof of possession by either party in the case of land incapable of actual possession owing to its nature. L BAHADUR v. SAGHAR 1048

Advocate, whether must file appointment in writing. See O. P. C., 1908, O. III, R. 4 841

———— or Vakil—Written authority, necessity of. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 340 714

Agra Pre-emption Act (XI of 1922), ss. 14, 15—Sale by co-sharer—Notice—Estoppel.

Sections 14 and 15 of the Agra Pre-emption Act do not imply that unless a notice of a contemplated sale is given by the intending vendor to his co-sharers, they can in no case be estopped from claiming the right of pre-emption. If by taking an active part in the completion of the sale, and by his conduct in other ways, a co-sharer leads the vendee to believe that he (co-sharer) has waived his right of pre-emption, and no notice is, therefore, thought necessary to be issued to him, he would be estopped from claiming his right of pre-emption. A RANJIT SINGH v. BHAGWATI SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 581 397

Appeal (Civil). See ARBITRATION 7

———— New plea.

A plea will not be allowed to be set up in appeal which was neither taken up in the plaint nor was embodied in an issue and is contradicted by the party's own witness. O PIRTHA SINGH v. RAJA MOHAMMAD ALI KHAN, 13 O. L. J. 126 188

———— Plea of limitation, abandoned in trial Court, whether can be taken 611

———— (Privy Council). See C. P. C., 1908, O. XLI, R. 33 767

———— High Court, judgment of—Misstatement of fact—Review—Appeal.

If a High Court in its judgment makes an absolute mis-statement of fact in a perfectly plain question, it is the duty of the person aggrieved to go to that Court and say "your judgment is vitiated by an obvious error on a pure question of fact" and to ask it to correct the mistake. If this remedy is not availed, the Privy Council will not go behind it. P C MAUNG KYI OH v. MA THET PON, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 29; (1926) M. W. N. 489 916

———— (Second).

See ALSO C. P. C., 1908, ss. 100 TO 103, O. XLI.

See ADVERSE POSSESSION 38

See CIVIL PROCEDURE 686

See JURISDICTION OF COURT 1

———— Finding of fact.

The High Court ought not to interfere in second appeal with a finding of fact so long as there is some evidence to support it, but a finding arrived at without evidence is bad and is not binding upon the High Court. Pat JUGAL SARKAR v. RAJ MANGAL PRASAD, A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 187 929

Appeal (Second)—concld.

——— Pre-emption suit—Location of property—Question of fact or law.
The question whether a certain immoveable property is situated in a town or village is a question of fact. L KARAM CHAND v. KARM SINGH, 8 L. L. J. 66 127

Arbitration—Parties agreeing to be bound by decision of Court—Appeal.
If the parties to a suit relating to a landed property agree not to produce any evidence and to be bound by the decision of the Court arrived at after an inspection of the locality, such decision is binding on the parties and is not appealable. A CHAIN SUKH v. RAM SARUP 7

——— Terms of reference—Private enquiry—Award, validity of.
An arbitrator must not take evidence behind the back of the parties unless the terms of the reference, construed in the light of the circumstances of the case, give him authority to do so.
Where a reference to arbitration permits the arbitrator to come to a decision by any method that he might think fit, an award made by him after private enquiry is not invalid. O CHANDRIKA DATT RAM PANDEY v. SHYAM LAL, 3 O. W. N. 397; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 383 162

Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), s. 8. See C. P. C., 1908, SCH. II 177

——— s. 19—Stay of suit or proceeding—Arbitration, taking place of.
The power of the Court under s. 19 of the Arbitration Act is to stay the suit or proceedings, if the conditions referred to in the section are fulfilled. If a stay is granted the arbitration then takes place by reason of the submission contained in the contract and in accordance with the provisions of the Arbitration Act.
Per Buckland, J.—In connection with arbitration proceedings under the Arbitration Act, all that need be considered is whether there were (1) a submission by the parties to the dispute, (2) a reference before arbitrators duly appointed by them under the submission and (3) an award properly made by such arbitrators. C MITSUI BUSSAN KAISHA, LTD. v. HOGARTH SHIPPING CO., LTD., 43 C. L. J. 297; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 722 182

Arms Act (XI of 1878), ss. 19 (f), 20—Concealment, meaning of—Carrying arms in gunny bag—Intention.
Each case of concealment of arms must be decided on its own merits.
For a conviction to fall under s. 20, Arms Act, there must be some special indication of an intention that the possession of arms was being concealed from a public servant or from a Railway Official. Where the arms are carried through a place where it is not anticipated that a public servant would be met, the intention to conceal is not easy to infer. Consequently when a person carried arms wrapped up in a gunny bag on a horse back to an appointed place for sale where he did not expect any public servant to meet, he could not be said to have had an intention to conceal. L CHET SINGH v. EMPEROR, 7 L. 65; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 262; 27 Cr. L. J. 625 401

Benami transaction—Onus of proof.
The onus of proving that the ostensible owner is not the real owner is on the plaintiff.
If a simple benami is alleged in the plaint without any suggestion indicating that a fraud or an illegal act was contemplated, the defendant would have to aver and prove that the fraud or the unlawful act that was intended was carried out. C RAJANI KANTA DAS GUPTA v. ABANI KANTA DAS GUPTA 33

Bengal Land (Conditional Sales) Regulation (I of 1798), s. 2. See BENGAL LAND (REDEMPTION AND FORECLOSURE) REGULATION, 1806, s. 7 991

Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation (XVII of 1806), s. 7—Object of Regulation—Mortgage with conditional sale—Notice to foreclose—Formalities—Bengal Land (Conditional Sales) Regulation I of 1798, s. 2—Omission to mention section—Notice demanding larger sum than due—Effect.
The object of the Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation XVII of 1806 is to give a warning to the mortgagor so as to enable him by taking action under the Regulation to preserve his right to redeem.
The omission to mention s. 7 of the Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation of 1806 in the notice is not fatal to its validity if the purport of the section is given in the notice. Similarly so long as the purport of s. 2 of the Bengal Land (Conditional Sales) Regulation I of 1798 is given in the notice specific reference to it is not imperatively necessary.
The demand for a larger sum than is actually due at the time of the notice is not a defect fatal to the validity of the notice. L JAGGI MAL v. ARYA RAM 991

Bengal Municipal Act (III B. C. of 1884), ss. 102, 103—Re-valuation of holdings without fresh determination of percentage rate—Legality.
Section 102 of the Bengal Municipal Act provides that once a percentage has been fixed it shall remain in force until rescinded or until the Commissioners at a meeting determine some other percentage at which the rate will be levied from the next year. There is no provision in the Act which provides that every time there is a fresh valuation there must be a formal meeting to fix the percentage even though the Commissioners intend the same percentage to continue. C BHUBAN MOHAN BASAK v. CHAIRMAN, MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONERS, DACCA, 30 C. W. N. 405; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 607; 53 C. 453 231 ——— ss. 112, 113—Privy and water taxes—Liability—Remedy of person aggrieved.

In some cases it is the owners and in others it is the occupier that is liable for privy and water taxes. A person who disputes his liability to be assessed has his remedy by way of an application to the Commissioners under s. 113 of the Act and until he has exhausted the remedies provided by the Act he cannot invoke the assistance of the Civil Courts. C BHUBAN MOHAN BASAK v. CHAIRMAN, MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONERS, DACCA, 30 C. W. N. 405; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 607; 53 C. 453 231

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 13—Landlord's fee, failure to pay—Notice, service of, absence of—Auction-purchase, effect on.
Neither failure to pay landlord's fee, nor mere failure to serve notice under s. 13 of the Bengal Tenancy Act invalidates the purchase of a tenure at an auction-sale. C BARADA PROSAD ROY v. TARAK NATH MANDAL 147

——— s. 22 (2). See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, 1885, s. 50 (2) 749

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— s. 49. See Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, s. 182 920

——— s. 50—*Presumption of fixity of tenure—*Kabuliyat for term, effect of—Record of Rights, if rebutted.

The existence of a temporary kabuilyat for a term of years sufficiently rebuts the presumption raised by an entry in the Record of Rights as to the permanence of the tenure. C Birendra Kishore Manikya v. Jahiruddin 26

——— s. 50 (2)—Presumption of fixity of rent—Occupancy raiyat, if can be raiyat at fixed rate.

In cases to which the presumption under s. 50 (2), Bengal Tenancy Act, is not applicable the Court is entitled to consider the facts in view of all the circumstances and determine whether the holding is held at a fixed rental.

The same person can combine in himself the status of an occupancy raiyat and a raiyat at fixed rate. C Rajmohini Dasi v. Nagendra Kumar Talpatra 310 ——— ss. 50 (2), 22 (2)—Ejectment suit—Fixity of rent—Uniform payment for 20 years—Presumption, applicability of.

Sub-section (2) of s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application to suits which are not suits under that Act but are suits under the general law for ejectment of an alleged trespasser.

The mere fact that the operation and effect of s. 22 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act has to be considered in a suit does not make a suit in ejectment a proceeding under the Act.

Though the special presumption laid down in cl. (2) of s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act may not be applicable to a case not under the Act, a presumption may arise, apart from the Act, that where there has been a uniform payment of rent for more than 20 years the original contract was a contract to hold at fixed rate. C Santosh Kumar Roy v. Rakhal Chandra Hazra, 43 C. L. J. 104 740

——— s. 174 (3)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 91, applicability of—Auction-purchaser, if can apply to set aside sale and claim refund.

The prima facie meaning of s. 174 (3), Bengal Tenancy Act, is that the principle laid down in O. XXI, r. 91, C. P. C., does not apply to cases of sales held under Ch. XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C Sasdhar Choudhury v. Bishnu Narain Kunda, 43 C. L. J. 279; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 738 292

——— s. 178—Holding—Undivided parcel of land, if holding—Sale of undivided portion—Abandonment—Re-entry, clause as to—Legality.

Undivided portions of land included within a leasehold do not constitute a holding as defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Sale of undivided portions of lands not comprising a holding does not amount to abandonment and the landlord is not entitled to re-enter on that ground.

A clause in a lease covenanting that the landlord shall be entitled to re-enter on transfer by the tenant does not offend against the provisions of s. 178, Bengal Tenancy Act. C Bahadur Ahmed Moulvi v. Hemanta Kumar Roy, 30 C. W. N. 613 338 ——— ss. 182, 49—*Under-*raiyati of homestead and nal land—Lease, expiry of—Ejectment suit, maintainability of.

Defendant was holding an under-raiyati of homestead and also of nal land and a tank under a registered lease the term of which had expired. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of possession after service of notice under s. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act:

Held, that s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable to the case and that the suit was maintainable. C Rahimuddi Meaji v. Amina Bibi, 43 C. L. J. 132; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 662 920

Bengal Troops Transport and Traveller's Assistance Regulation (XI of 1806), s. 3 (1) paras. 3, 4—Impressing cart against owner's will—Native officer, power of.

In case of carts let on hire, the native and Police Officer referred to in paras. 3 and 4 of s. 3, cl. (1) of the Bengal Troops Transport and Traveller's Assistance Regulation can legally impress them against the consent of their owner. Pat Rup Lal Singh v. Secretary of State for India, 5 Pat. 205; (1926) Pat. 105; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 258; 7 P. L. T. 463 10

Bombay District Municipal Act (III of 1901), s. 22. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 660

Bombay Hereditary Offices Act (III of 1874), ss. 4, 5—Mortgagee or lessee from watandar, whether watandar—Alienation of watan land—Period of operation.

Legal possession within the lifetime of the mortgagor or lessor watandar is clearly not equivalent to the legal acquisition of title to the land which is contemplated in the definition of watandar. Therefore, a mortgagee or lessee from a watandar is not himself a watandar.

An alienation of a watan land remains in force only during the natural life of the alienor. B Ganpatrao Bhavanrao v. Ganesh Vishnu Hasabnis, 28 Bom. L. R. 395; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 261 651

——— s. 10. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 760

Bombay High Court, Original Side, Rule 494—Bombay Pleaders Act (XVII of 1920)—Attorney—Taxation of bill for work done as Pleader in mofussil—Work done on appellate side of High Court—Taxation of bill.

Before the operation of Bombay Pleaders Act, 1920, a Solicitor would be entitled to have his bill for professional work done in the mofussil taxed by the Taxing Master on the original side of the High Court. But a bill for the work done on the appellate side of the High Court could not be so taxed. B Nowroji Pudumji Sirdar v. Kanga & Sayani, 28 Bom. L. R. 384; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 272 149

——— r. 736—Appeal—Security for costs, additional, when may be demanded.

Additional security for the costs of the respondent may be required from an appellant in an exceptional case where it appears that the appellant has failed to pay the costs incurred by the respondent at the trial, that he is not possessed of sufficient funds out of which the costs can be recovered and that he has not been able to make the necessary deposit with his attorneys for advances for costs. B Sevadasji Chandradasji v. Municipal Corporation, 27 Bom. L. R. 1216; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 42 654

Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879), ss. 3 (16), 68, 83, 217—Alienated village, introduction of Survey Settlement in—Tenant's rights, variation in—Liability to enhanced rent.

Introduction of Survey Settlement into an alienated village does not confer on an ordinary tenant the rights which belong to an "occupant" in an unalienated village. Such a tenant, therefore, is not immune

Bombay Land Revenue Code—concld.

from enhancement of rent. B Kondi Ramji Bhosle v. Vithalrao Laxmanrao, 28 Bom. L. R. 424; 50 B. 155; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 257 662

——— s. 111. See Gujarat Talukdars' Act, 1888, s. 33 752

——— s. 150—Land revenue, meaning of.

The term 'land revenue' as used in s. 150, Bombay Land Revenue Code, is not confined to one particular kind of land revenue, namely, assessment but covers every other kind of revenue from land payable to Government by any person on account of land held by or vested in him. B Jinabhai Nathabhai Rashia v. Collector & T. S. Officer, 28 Bom. L. R. 416; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 325 752

Bombay Pleaders Act (XVII of 1920). See Bombay High Court, Original Side, Rule 491 149

Bombay Regulation XVI of 1827, s. 20, construction of—Grantee from Deshpande, alienation by—Restriction.

Section 20 of the Bombay Regulation XVI of 1827 must be strictly construed. The section covers the case of an alienation of watan lands by an incumbent of the hereditary office of Deshpande and not an alienation by any grantee of that incumbent.

Therefore, sale of a land forming part of a Deshpande watan granted by the Deshpande thereof to a mutalik as remuneration for services as a mutalik, in execution of a decree against the mutalik, is permissible. B Bodhrao Gopalrao Mutalik v. Shrinivas Atmaram Jog, 28 Bom. L. R. 390; 50 B. 128; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 259 649

Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act (II of 1918), s. 9—Landlord and tenant—Tenancy terminating during continuance of Act—Ejectment after Act ceases to be applicable—Notice to quit, whether necessary.

There is nothing in the provisions of the Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act to justify the contention that the contractual tenancy which, apart from the provisions of the Act, exists between a landlord and tenant cannot be terminated during the continuance of the Act. Where such tenancy has been terminated by a proper notice to quit during the continuance of the Act, the mere fact that the tenant is entitled to retain possession of the premises while the Act remains in force is not sufficient to create any such relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties as would require a fresh notice to terminate it after the provisions of the Act have ceased to be applicable to the premises. The right of the tenant to continue in possession of the premises occupied by him under the provisions of the Act is a statutory right the limits of which are to be found in the terms of the Statute; and the moment the Statute ceases to extend that protection to him he ceases to have the protection as against the landlord which the Statute gave him up to a certain period. Thereafter his possession with reference to the premises is that of a tenant holding over whose tenancy had been terminated, and he is not entitled to any fresh notice to quit. B Kishoredas P. Mangaldas v. Ahmed Suleman, 27 Bom. L. R. 1086; 49 B. 567; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 516 564

Buddhist Law, Burmese—Inheritance—Orasa son—Minor, whether can claim rights of orasa son—Death of husband—Widow, rights of—Alienation by widow.

The whole doctrine of the orasa son under the Burmese Buddhist Law is based on the eldest son being in a position to take his father's place as head of the household in the event of his father's death. The eldest son, therefore, can on the death of his father claim one-fourth share in his property from his mother only if he has attained the full status of an orasa son at the time of his father's death. A minor son cannot be regarded as having attained the full status of orasa and cannot, therefore, claim one-fourth share of the estate on his father's death. In such a case the widow who owned half of the joint property in her husband's lifetime, inherits his half when he dies and thus becomes possessed of the whole and is competent to alienate the whole of it. R U Tun Gywe v. Ko Ko Gyi, 4 Bur. L. J. 67; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 245 531

Buddhist Law—concld.

——— Inheritance—Property inherited by husband after marriage, nature of—Share of wife—Property, whether liable for debts of husband.

Where a Burman Buddhist eindounggyi having two wives inherits immoveable property from his father after his second marriage, the property is lettetpwa of the marriages and is joint property of the husband and wives and not the separate property of the husband. The share of his two wives in such property jointly is one-third and both being of equal status the share of each is one-sixth. Each wife acquires a vested interest in one-sixth of such property from the date on which it is inherited, and that interest is not liable for any part of the debts incurred by the deceased husband alone.

Per Maung Gyi, J.—Under Burmese Buddhist Law as soon as a person dies his heirs immediately become entitled to his estate, and when a husband or a wife inherits property after marriage, the other spouse also becomes entitled at the same time to an undivided one-third share of such inherited portion. R C. T. P. V. Chetty Firm v. Maung Tha Hlaing, 3 R. 322; A. I. R. 1925 Rang 329 797

Burden of proof—Doubt, benefit of. See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 102 158

Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act (XVIII of 1911), s. 5—Execution of order—Jurisdiction of Chief Judge, Small Cause Court—Munsif, jurisdiction of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 6, application of.

Under s. 5 of the Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act the jurisdiction to execute the order of the President of the Tribunal by the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court of Calcutta is not limited to an order which may come within his pecuniary jurisdiction.

Proceedings before the President of the Calcutta Improvement Tribunal not being a suit, s. 6 of the C. P. C. does not apply to any order passed by the President which may, therefore, be executed by a Munsif irrespective of the consideration of his pecuniary jurisdiction. C Nandalal Ganguli v. Nrityakali Devi 170

Calcutta Police Act (V of 1866), s. 78-A—Procedure in Police investigation—Inherent powers of Police.

Attendance and questionings of any person during Police investigation under s. 78-A, Police Act, are intended to take place within the Presidency Town itself. But if information is to be obtained from a person outside the Presidency whose attendance cannot be procured for some reason in the Presidency Town the procedure laid down in cl. (3) of the section is to be followed.

Calcutta Police Act—concld.

There are no inherent powers possessed by the Police. All investigations by the Police in the Mofussil must be controlled by the Cr. P. C. and in Calcutta by the Police Act itself or by any Circular Orders issued. C SATYA CHARAN MITTER v. EMPEROR, 30 C. W. N. 427; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 586; 27 Cr. L. J 602 266

Calcutta Rent Act (III of 1920), s. 11—Landlord and tenant—Covenant not to sub-let without written consent—Breach of covenant—Waiver of breach—Ejectment.

Where a lease provides that the lessee shall not assign, sub-let or part with possession of the demised premises or any part thereof without the previous consent in writing of the lessor but that such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld in the case of a responsible and respectable person, and the lessee subsequently sub-lets the premises, without the written consent of the lessor, the lessor continuing to receive the rent with knowledge of the sub-lease and without objection thereto, the breach of covenant is merely technical and the subsequent receipt of rent by the landlord amounts to a waiver of the breach. In such a case it cannot be held that the tenant has failed to perform the conditions of the tenancy within the meaning of s. 11 (1) of the Calcutta Rent Act.

Per Rankin, J.—The last words of sub-s. (1) of s. 11 of the Calcutta Rent Act cannot possibly mean that because a breach of covenant was committed by a tenant in 1921, which was perfectly harmless, was never made a grievance of, and as to which no request for compensation or damages was ever made, therefore, it is impossible for the Court to give the tenant, in 1924 the benefit of the Rent Act. C OFFICIAL TRUSTEE v. W. G. BOWDEN, 30 C. W. N. 199; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 624 857

Carriage of goods—Railway Company—Goods accepted under Risk Note B—Waggon sealed with paper only—Liability for loss of goods.

The fact that a waggon is sealed with paper and bolted but not locked, does not amount to wilful neglect on the part of the Railway Company accepting goods on the terms of Risk Note B. O DWARKA DAS v. AGENT OF EAST INDIAN RY. CO., 2 O. W. N. 794; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 16 672 —— Railway Company—Risk Note—Delay in delivery—Railway, liability of.

Where a consignee of goods in consequence of obtaining the carriage of his goods at low rates signs a Risk Note thereby absolving the Railway from liability for loss under certain circumstances, he is bound by the terms of the note.

Where a suit as framed is not one brought in tort for damages due to loss occasioned to the plaintiff on account of retardation in delivery but simply for compensation for the loss of the articles which were found missing, it cannot succeed on the ground of delay in delivery of goods, where the goods were consigned to the Railway under Risk Note Form H. Pat MADRAS & SOUTH MARHATTA RY. CO. v. GOPAL RAI-RAM CHUNDER, (1926) Pat. 123; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 273 510

C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920), s. 12—Occupancy holding—Transfer to distant heirs—Legality.

Under s. 12 of the C. P. Tenancy Act an occupancy tenant is entitled to transfer his holding to any distant heir even during the lifetime of other nearer heirs, provided the transferee is a person to whom the right is likely to go by inheritance to the transferring tenant in the absence of any nearer heirs entitled to succeed under the Tenancy Act. N MOHAN v. BODHAN, 21 N. L. R. 144; A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 421 655

—— ss. 12, 13—Occupancy holding—Surrender to co-sharer—Joint possession by lambardar, suit for—Contribution, whether can be claimed by co-sharer.

A transfer of an occupancy holding is not ab initio void but only voidable, as it can be avoided by certain specified persons mentioned in s. 13 of the C. P. Tenancy Act.

A lambardar can, therefore, obtain joint possession of land acquired under a surrender by a co-sharer from an occupancy tenant only on making contribution towards the cost of acquisition incurred by the latter. N WAMANRAO v. SHRAWAN 941

—— ss. 49, 50, 109—Sir land—Cultivating rights—Transfer—Permission in general words, scope of—Sanction for sale, whether sufficient for mortgage of portion—Sanction of Sub-Divisional Officer—Confirmation by Deputy Commissioner, whether necessary—Endorsement on transfer deed, whether sufficient proof of sanction—Civil Courts, whether have power to question propriety of sanction.

A permission by the proper Revenue Officer to transfer cultivating rights in sir lands must be taken to be a permission to transfer them in any way, for any consideration, to any person, at any time the owner pleases unless the permission is limited in any of these ways. A permission for the sale of such rights would, therefore, suffice for validating a transfer by mortgage of those rights.

If a sanction is granted for the sale of the cultivating rights in the entire sir land in the village, it will be available for the transfer of such rights in a part of the land.

The sanction required under ss. 49 and 50 of the C. P. Tenancy Act or by any of the rules made on the subject under s. 109 of the Act is the sanction of the Revenue Officer, i.e., Sub-Divisional Officer, and though under the rules under s. 109 the Revenue Officer dealing with an application of this kind must in certain cases forward it to the Deputy Commissioner if he does not reject it, the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner is not necessary under the Act for the validity of the transfer. The sanction of the Revenue Officer, i.e., Sub-Divisional Officer, being all that is required for the purpose of validating the transfer.

The endorsement by the Revenue Officer relating to the grant of the sanction by him for the transfer is complete proof of such sanction and the Civil Courts cannot enquire whether the Revenue Officer ought to have granted the sanction or not. N PREM NARAYAN v. MAN SINGH 829

—— s. 109. See C. P. TENANCY ACT, 1920, s. 50 829

Chinese Customary Law. See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 488 608

Chota Nagpur and Ramgarh Jagirs—Jagirs and maintenance grants, nature of—Jagodih Lat, whether resumable—Bengal Decennial Settlement Regulation VIII of 1793, s. 7.

Jagirs and maintenance grant in Ramgarh and Chota Nagpur are resumable on the failure of the lineal male descendants of the grantee.

The holders of Jagodih tenure have the status of dependent taluqdars holding under the Ramgarh Raj and are to be considered as lease-holders only within the meaning of s. 7, Bengal Decennial Settlement Regulation VIII of 1793.

Chota Nagpur and Ramgarh Jagirs—concld.

Jagodih Lat is a jagir tenure held under the Ramgarh Estate and is resumable on failure of the lineal male descendants of Raja Lal Khan the grantee and is not a shamilat or shikmi tenure in the sense in which the terms are used by the Revenue Officers in the Record of Rights published in 1914. Pat Kamakhya Narain Singh v. Jawahir Khan 1007

Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876), ss. 3 (1), 12—Estate coming under Act—"Bar" of pending proceedings, meaning of—Revival of proceedings—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 15.

The real meaning of the word "bar" used with regard to pending proceedings in cl. (1) of s. 3 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act is that they should be stayed so long as the management continues and not that, except in the circumstances laid down in s. 12, the bar shall be absolute. Even if, in cases which do not fall under the purview of s. 12, no revivor of proceedings is allowed, the provisions of s. 15 of the Limitation Act must apply thereto.

Similarly any process, execution or attachment, which became null and void on the publication of an order under s. 2 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, can be revived, after its cancellation, under s. 15 of the Limitation Act, although s. 12 of the Estates Act does not apply thereto.

The provisions of s. 12 of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act relating to the revival of barred proceedings and debts should not be strictly construed. Pat Mathura Prasad Singh v. Jageshwar Prasad Singh, (1926) Pat. 65; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 260; 5 Pat. 404 624

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908), s. 258 —Settlement entries—Suit for declaration that entries are wrong, whether maintainable—Burden of proof.

A suit for declaration in a Civil Court that a certain tenure which has been entered in the Settlement records as non-resumable is in fact resumable is not barred by the provisions of s. 258, Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

Per Mullick, J.—Where it is admitted before the Settlement Officer that the defendants are holding land within the ambit of the zemindari of the plaintiff who is paying revenue for the same, the onus of showing the nature of their title is upon the defendants and upon a failure to show that they have a tenancy therein, the plaintiff is entitled to resume. But where the Settlement Officer holds that the defendants are owners of a non-resumable tenure, the onus is shifted upon the plaintiff to rebut the presumption created by the Record of Rights. Pat Kamakhya Narain Singh v. Jawahir Khan 1007

Civil procedure—Minor, decree against, in second appeal—Decree set aside—Second appeal, re-hearing of.

Where a decree in second appeal passed by the High Court is set aside on the ground that a minor respondent was not duly represented by a guardian ad litem, the second appeal would be re-heard. L Muin-ud-din v. Abul Khair 686

——— Suit against Railway—Defendant misdescribed. See Limitation Act, 1908, s. 22 762

——— Trial Court, duty of, to try all issues.

A trial Court should not dispose of a case on a law point only but should try all the issues that arise in the case. Pat Kesho Prasad Singh v. Shamnandan Rai, (1926) Pat. 81; 5 Pat. 233 28

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2) (b), scope of. See Jurisdiction of Court 1

——— s. 6, application of. See Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1911, s. 5 170

——— s. 11—Award not operative—Decree, whether executable—Executability of decree, decision as to, in previous application—Res judicata.

Where in an award a sum is noted as due by one party to another but without any direction that the party so liable should pay it to the other, the decree based upon such award cannot be said to be executable.

But where once in execution proceedings of such a decree it is decided that the decree is executable, the decision operates as res judicata in a subsequent application. A Nand Lal Saran v. Dharam Kirti Saran, 24 A. L. J. 465 961

——— s. 11—Consent decree—Unnecessary finding—Res judicata—Rent suit, findings in, where binding.

Res judicata by its very words means a matter upon which the Court has exercised its judicial mind, and a judgment passed on consent cannot be considered as a judicium. A consent decree, therefore, does not come within the rule of res judicata as contained in s. 11 of the C. P. C. It, however, raises an estoppel as much as a decree passed in invitum and the decree must be held binding as against the parties thereto unless there was want of jurisdiction or there were present circumstances which would go to vitiate the agreement on which the consent was founded.

Where a Court in a rent suit definitely determines the area of the land in the possession of the tenant and the annual rent payable for the same, it might be said that the determination is general and not limited to the particular years for which rent is claimed, and in a subsequent suit the tenant can only dispute the findings by proving that the area or the rent has since altered.

Where a decree is not based on a finding but is granted in spite of it and the party against whom the finding is arrived at is not able to challenge it on appeal, the finding cannot be regarded as necessary for the decision of the suit and does not operate as res judicata. C Sivadas Dutta v. Birendra Krista Dutta, 43 C. L. J. 116; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 612 844

——— s. 11—Legal representative, question of—Res judicata.

Where the question of a legal representative is decided by a Court under O. XXII, r. 5, C. P. C., its re-adjudication in a subsequent regular suit is barred by the rule of res judicata. A Raj Bahadur v. Narayan Prasad, 24 A. L. J. 546 157

——— s. 11—Res judicata—Custom of pre-emption, finding as to, inter partes in previous suit, effect of—One of parties minor in previous litigation—Variation in custom, right to prove.

A finding in a previous suit inter partes as to the existence or non-existence of a custom of pre-emption is binding on the parties in a subsequent suit subject only to the condition that it is open to the either party to show in the subsequent suit that the custom has ceased to exist or has in any other way been abandoned.

The mere fact that one of the parties to the subsequent suit was a minor in the previous litigation does not take away from the binding force of the finding in the previous suit. A Deonath Singh v. Tilakdhari Singh 463

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

———— s. 11—Res judicata, plea of—Court of concurrent jurisdiction—Judgment, whether operates as bar—Subsequent suit—S. 11, whether exhaustive.

The plea of res judicata is not limited to the provisions of s. 11 of the C. P. C., nor is it limited to a judgment of a Court of concurrent jurisdiction being pleaded as bar to the subsequent suit which is dealt with in the said section but it extends also to a judgment of a Court of exclusive jurisdiction. S VELJI DAYALJI v. FIRM OF NAND LAL 423

———— s. 11—Res judicata—Decision in previous case wrong—Cause of action recurring—Res judicata.

It is settled law that even if the cause of action for a suit be a recurring one every matter decided in the suit may be res judicata which was directly and substantially in issue in the previous suit even though the decision in the former suit be erroneous. Pat DEBI PRASAD v. JALDHAR MAHTON, (1926) Pat. 113; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 288 553

———— s. 11—Res judicata—Mortgage—Suit for redemption—Mortgagee not resisting suit on ground of purchase of equity of redemption—Subsequent suit, whether barred—Defendant in possession, duty of, to resist suit.

Where in a redemption suit the mortgagee does not resist the suit on the ground that he is a purchaser of the equity of redemption of part of the property but simply claims mortgage-money, a subsequent suit by him for possession on the ground of purchase is barred by the rule of res judicata.

A defendant being in possession is bound to resist claim on all grounds that it is possible for him on his knowledge at the time to bring forward. L ROSHAN v. NIGAHIA, 7 L. 40; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 162 27

———— s. 11—Res judicata between co-defendants—Necessary conditions—Res judicata, constructive.

In order to constitute a decision res judicata between co-defendants three essential conditions must be fulfilled: (1) that there should be a conflict of interests between co-defendants, (2) that it should be necessary to decide on that conflict in order to give the plaintiff the relief appropriate to his suit, and (3) that the judgment should contain a decision on the question as between co-defendants.

The tendency of Courts is to apply the doctrine of constructive res judicata as founded on Explanation IV to s. 11, C. P. C., within very narrow limits as between plaintiffs and defendants and there is scarcely any room for its application as between co-defendants. C GANGA PRASAD CHOWDHURY v. KULADANANDA ROY, 30 C. W. N. 415; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 568 235

———— s. 11—Res judicata—Order entering satisfaction of decree—Fresh application.

An order in execution entering satisfaction of decree unless set aside operates as res judicata and bars a fresh application for execution. L MUL RAJ v. KISHORI LAL 172

———— s. 11—Res judicata—Rent suit—Rate of rent.

The essence of the doctrine of res judicata is that where a material issue has been tried and determined between the same parties in a proper suit and in a proper Court as to the status of one of them in relation to the other or as to the right or title claimed by one of them against the other, the same question cannot be agitated by them again in another suit. In the case of suits for rent or other recurring liability, the causes of action for suits for successive periods are different. In the case of such suits, for the doctrine to apply, it will have to be shown that the question of right or liability not merely for the period in the previous suit but that for all times or once for all was directly and substantially in issue and was tried and determined. If a direct issue on the point was raised and decided the decision would be res judicata in respect of any suit for a subsequent period. If the decision falls short of that requisite and if the general question was gone into and decided merely for the purpose of deciding the right or liability for the period involved in the suit, then the issue was raised not directly and substantially but collaterally or incidentally. In a suit for rent, no issues need be framed, but where issues are framed, the non-existence of a direct issue of this character has to be seriously taken into account in determining whether the question of right or liability for all times was really directly and substantially in issue. C GNANADA GOBINDO v. NALINI BALA DEBI, 43 C. L. J. 146; 30 C. W. N. 593; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 650 837

———— s. 11, Exp. IV—Point not necessary in previous suit, omission to raise—Res judicata.

A point which could have been raised in a previous suit but was not necessary for the decision of the case and as such was not raised cannot operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit. C RAJMOHINI DASI v. NAGENDRA KUMAR TALPATRA 310

———— s. 11, 151—Dismissal of application under s. 151 challenging compromise decree—Suit to set aside same decree—Res judicata.

A summary dismissal of an application under s. 151, C. P. C., challenging the validity of a compromise decree does not bar a regular suit for avoiding that decree on the basis of fraud. Pat PARSHAN SAHI v. RICHARDSON, 5 Pat. 276; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 289 765

———— s. 13. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 94 512

———— s. 13—Foreign state, subjects of, sued in British Courts—Duty of Courts.

When the jurisdiction of a British Court is invoked against a subject of a foreign state on the ground that by coming within the physical boundaries of the jurisdiction of that Court he is liable to be sued as if he were a subject of His Majesty, a duty is cast upon the Court to be as jealous in safeguarding his liberties as if he were for all purposes a subject of His Majesty. M CHAND MULL DUDHA v. PURUSHOTHAMADOSS, 50 M. L. J. 348; (1926) M. W. N. 328; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 584 512

———— s. 16. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, 1881, s. 20 1046

———— s. 20—Jurisdiction—Principal and agent—Suit for account—Negligence and misconduct alleged—Contract of agency, where made—Cause of action, where arises.

The cause of action in a suit for account between a principal and agent arises where the contract of agency is made or where it was to be performed and where the refusal to account takes place.

In the absence of proof as to where any express contract of agency was made, it must be deemed to have been made where the agent receives orders from his principal and accepts the orders thus indicating his consent to act.

In the absence of a contract to the contrary the accounting and payment by an agent must necessarily be done where all the business is transacted.

Where a principal charges his agent with various acts of negligence and misconduct on the latter's part in the course of agency, the cause of action arises

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

where the agent commits the alleged acts of negligence and misconduct, even though the suit may ostensibly be for rendition of accounts. S Gordhandas Kalidas v. Dowlatram Khhayalal 287

——— s. 20 (c)—Suit for declaration that decree is obtained by fraud and for injunction restraining decree-holders from executing it—Cause of action—Jurisdiction.

Cause of action for a suit for a declaration that a particular decree was obtained by fraud and for an injunction restraining the decree-holders from executing it partly arises at the place where the decree is obtained and partly where it is sought to be executed and consequently Courts at both the places have jurisdiction to try the suit. L Jawahar Singh v. Sassoon & Co., 7 L. 61; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 277 377

——— s. 24—Expression of opinion by Court in another case—Transfer.

Expression of opinion by Court on certain points involved in the case in hand in a previous case is no ground for transferring the case from that Court. L Narain Devi v. Shankar Dass 394

——— s. 34. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 73 575

——— s. 35. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 73 971

——— s. 35 (1)—False defence—Compensation.

No compensation for a false defence can be awarded unless objection has been taken by the party against whom the defence was set up. L Hira Lal v. Darbari Lal 78

——— s. 35 (1)—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 24—Small Cause Court—Costs, extraordinary, award of, power of—Appeal, whether lies.

An officer who has been permitted to exercise the powers of a Small Cause Court Judge, under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, is not entitled to exercise the powers of granting costs under s. 35 (A) of the C. P. C., unless he is vested with a jurisdiction up to Rs 250 or has been empowered by the High Court to award such costs.

Where an order awarding extraordinary costs under s. 35 (A) of the C. P. C. is made by a Small Cause Court an appeal lies from the order under s. 24 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act to the District Judge. A Banwari Lal v. Shalimar Paints Colour and Varnish Co. 790 ——— ss. 38, 41—Decree transferred for execution—Re-call by Court transferring.

A Court can make an order withdrawing its own decree which it has transferred to another Court for execution. B B. N. Lang v. Jasvantlal Hathichand, 28 Bom. L. R. 381; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 271 146

——— s. 39. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 181 482

——— ss. 39, 41—Decree transferred for execution—Failure to execute—Circumstances attending failure to execute certified to Court passing decree—Jurisdiction, cessation of, of Executing Court.

The Court to which a decree is sent for execution ceases to have any jurisdiction to deal with the case after it has certified to the Court which passed the decree the circumstances attending the failure to execute it. Pat Muhammad Ibrahim v. Chhatoo Lal, (1926) Pat. 86, 5 Pat. 398; 7 P. L. T. 461; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 274 36

——— s. 46—Precept, issue of—Security, acceptance of, by Court to which precept is issued—Jurisdiction—Estoppel.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

It is not beyond the jurisdiction of the Court to which a precept has been issued to accept security offered by the judgment-debtor for payment of the decretal amount by a particular date and stay execution till then.

Where a security has been so offered to and accepted by the Court, judgment-debtor and surety are both estopped from challenging the jurisdiction of the Court to do so. L Puran Mal v. Dina Nath-Bari Ram, 8 L. L. J. 164 119

——— s. 47—Legal representative—Right to contest liability under decree in execution.

The question whether or not an alleged legal representative does or does not occupy that capacity so as to be bound by the decree, is one which is to be decided in the Execution Court. Such a determination does not offend against the principle that an Execution Court cannot go behind the decree. A Babu Lal v. Janak Dulari, 24 A. L. J. 462 454

——— s. 47—Party exonerated as misjoined—Name not removed from record—Party, whether ceases to be party to suit.

A party to a suit who has been exonerated on the ground of misjoinder but whose name appears in the decree without being struck off from the record is a defendant against whom the suit has been dismissed within the meaning of Explanation to s. 47, C. P. C.

The ground upon which a party is exonerated can never determine whether he continues to be a party to the suit or ceases to be a party, but it will depend entirely upon whether his name has been struck off from or retained on the record. M Sethu Konar v. Ramasami Konar, 50 M. L. J. 205; (1926) M. W. N. 251; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 484; 49 M. 494 526

——— s. 47—Stay of execution, refusal of—Appeal, if lies.

No appeal lies against an order refusing to stay execution of decree. C Khetra Mohan Saha v. Sarat Chandra Saha 352

——— s. 47, O. I, r. 10—Suit, dismissal of, against necessary party by consent—Order "striking off" name of party—Order, construction of—Subsequent suit against party, maintainability of.

Where a party is properly impleaded as one of the defendants in a case and the case as against would proceed to judgment but for the fact that the plaintiff elects to abandon part of his case and the suit is in consequence dismissed as against that defendant, the party is a defendant against whom a suit has been dismissed within the meaning of the Explanation to s. 47, C. P. C.

But where a defendant has been improperly joined as a party, the proper procedure is to strike out the name of the defendant under O. I, r. 10, C. P. C., and not to dismiss the suit as against him.

Where in a suit against several defendants, the Court in its judgment stated as to one of the necessary defendants, "By consent I strike off the 2nd defendant's name. Plaintiff will pay by consent half the costs":

Held, (1) that the substance and not the form of the order must be regarded;

(2) that since the defendant was not an unnecessary party to the suit, the order was really one of dismissal as against him, although the words "strike off" were inappropriately used;

(3) that the order amounted to a decree which not having been appealed against became final and a subsequent suit against the same defendant was not maintainable. M Linga Iyer v. Lakshman Chettiar, 50 M. L. J. 387; 23 L. W. 533; (1926) M. W. N. 409; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 487 123

———— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 90 —Letters Patent (Lah.), cl. 10—Execution of decree—Sale, application to set aside, dismissal of—Appeal, second, whether lies—Revision—Appeal under Letters Patent, whether competent.

An application to set aside an auction-sale was dismissed as barred by time. In appeal the District Judge held that as the necessary deposit under O. XXI, r. 84 (1) of the C. P. C., had not yet been made the sale was not complete and the application was within time. He remanded the case to the first Court for a fresh decision. In revision a Single Judge of the High Court set aside the order of the District Judge and restored that of the first Court dismissing the application. The judgment-debtor filed an appeal against the order of the Single Judge under cl. 10 of the Letters Patent and contended that the order of the first Court was passed under s. 47, C. P. C., and was, therefore, a decree and consequently open to second appeal, and that the order of the Single Judge must be treated as having been passed in a second appeal and was appealable under the Letters Patent:

Held, (1) that the order of the first Court was passed under O. XXI, r. 90, C. P. C., and was not open to second appeal,

(2) that the order of the Single Judge was passed in revision and was not open to appeal under the Letters Patent. L Parja Mal-Chandi Mal v. Mul Chand-Murari Lal, 6 L. 250; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 624 521

———— s. 48—Decree of Original Court appealed from—Limitation, starting point of.

Where an appellate decree either affirms, modifies or reverses the decree of the trial Court, the period of limitation will begin to run under s. 48, C. P. C., from the date of the decree of the Appellate Court.

But where an appeal is dismissed as not being competent, there is no decree by the Appellate Court and the limitation would run from the date of the decree of the trial Court. A Nand Lal Saran v. Dharam Kirti Saran, 24 A. L. J. 465 961 ———— ss. 48, 151, O. XLVII, r. 1—Execution application—Dismissal for no fault of decree-holder—Restoration—Inherent powers—Review—Notice.

Where an execution application is dismissed, by reason of objections on the part of the judgment-debtor or action taken by Court or other cause, for which the decree-holder is not responsible, the right of the decree-holder to the final completion of the proceedings is not necessarily defeated, and further applications of the decree-holder to the Court executing the decree to go on from the point where the execution proceedings are arrested, are regarded as applications merely ancillary to the substantive application and no question of limitation under s. 48, C. P. C., can arise under such circumstances.

Where an Execution Court strikes out execution proceedings in the absence of the decree-holder, on the ground that there is no bidder for the property at the Court-sale, and the decree-holder is not present at the time to ask for further action, it is a case in which the decree-holder is not responsible for dismissal of the proceedings, and the Court has power to revive them under s. 151, C. P. C. But where it purports to act under O. XLVII, r. 1, C. P. C., it is incumbent on it to give notice of the application filed by the decree-holder to the opposite party, and an omission to do so makes the order of restoration of proceedings defective. However, any such defect is cured, if the propriety of the order is not challenged for several months together. A Girdhari Lal v. Ram Charan Lal, 24 A. L. J. 437; A. I. R. 1926 All. 331 613

———— s. 79—Government of India Act, s. 32—Sovereign act—Right of suit.

There is a great and clear distinction between acts done in the exercise of what are usually termed Sovereign powers and acts done in the conduct of undertakings which might be carried on by private individuals without having such powers delegated to them.

If the Secretary of State takes the property by an act of Sovereignty then no suit lies, but if on the other hand he takes it under the colour of a legal title then his act will be within the jurisdiction of the Courts. When the Secretary of State takes property under a decree of Court, the acquisition is one under the colour of a legal title and not by an act of Sovereignty. Pat Khursaidi Begum v. Secretary of State for India, (1926) Pat. 145 433

———— s. 92—Scheme—Provision for redress by application to Court, legality of—Application by archakas for salary payable by trustee, whether sustainable.

A general clause in a scheme framed under s. 92, C. P. C., providing for application to the Court with regard to the scheme is ultra vires as being opposed to the principle of s. 92, C. P. C., since for such matters as are covered by the section, the sanction of the Advocate-General must be obtained.

An application by archakas of a temple to a Court for recovery of the arrears of their salaries is not competent even if the scheme provides for making an application to the Court by the trustee or any other person interested in regard to any matter arising out of the scheme. The proper remedy in such a case is by way of a regular suit. M Ryali Brahmayya v. Venkatasurya Narayanamurthy, 50 M. L. J. 409; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 557 554

———— s. 92—Scheme, tentative—Removal of trustee—Procedure—Appeal.

A trustee appointed under a tentative scheme, which provided for its modification after a certain time but made no provision for the removal of the trustee, can be removed only by a regular suit under s. 92, C. P. C. Any removal of such a trustee otherwise than in a regular suit is without jurisdiction and liable to be set aside in revision.

Orders of the latter kind removing the trustees are not orders in execution and are, therefore, not appealable. M Bangarammal v. Ramanuja Iyengar 610

———— s. 92, scope of.

Section 92, C. P. C., regulates suits where there is a breach of an express or constructive trust created for public purpose of a charitable and religious nature but a suit to establish the existence of the trust itself is beyond its ambit. Pat Khursaidi Begum v. Secretary of State for India, (1926) Pat. 145 433

———— s. 92—Sikh and Singh distinguished—Udasis, whether Sikhs—Singhs, interest of, in Udasi shrine—Religious community, identity of—Suit for change of management of shrine, who may bring.

Sikh and Singh are not interchangeable terms. Udasis constitute a sect of their own quite distinct from the orthodox Sikhs of the previous generations as well as from the modern Singhs.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

The followers of Guru Gobind Singh have no such interest in an Udasi shrine as is contemplated by s. 92, C. P. C., and are, therefore, not competent to maintain a suit under that section in respect of an Udasi shrine.

The mere fact that their ancestors or some members of their community made gifts to the shrine does not confer on them the said right.

Per Harrison, J.—Identity of a religious community described as a Church consists in the identity of its doctrines, creeds, confessions, formularies and texts.

Any man having a right of worship can bring a suit under s. 92, C. P. C., but the right to worship connotes the profession by the would-be worshipper of the religion practised in the place of worship, and even though the views of the majority of the worshippers may change and develop to such an extent that they wish to alter and even to make a radical change in the form of worship, they have no right to do so, and the minority, however small, which adheres to the original practice retains the control and possession of the place of worship and its endowments. No question of the majority of persons can affect the question but the original purposes of the trust must be the guide. L Basant Das v. Hem Singh, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 100; 7 L. 275 695

——— s. 94, O. XXXVIII, r. 1—Arrest before judgment, principles of—Suit founded on proceedings of special Tribunal created by firman of Nizam—Plaint disclosing highly contentious questions—Arrest before judgment, whether can be ordered.

Before ordering arrest before judgment a Court should be satisfied (1) that the plaintiff's cause of action is prima facie an unimpeachable one subject to his proving the allegations made in the plaint and (2) that there is reason to believe on adequate materials that unless the jurisdiction is exercised there is a real danger that the defendant will remove himself from the ambit of the powers of the Court.

A suit was filed on the Original Side of the High Court of Madras for recovery of a sum of $5\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees and the plaint was founded on the proceedings of a special tribunal created under a firman of the Nizam of Hyderabad and described as a decree of that commission. On an application by the plaintiff for arrest before judgment of the defendant and for an order that he should be made to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance:

Held, that it was at least highly arguable that the proceedings before the Commissioners terminated not in anything that could be called a decree or a foreign judgment within the meaning of s. 13 of the C. P. C. but a report submitted to the Nizam to guide him as to what action he should take;

(2) that it was equally arguable that the order to pay passed by the Nizam though binding on the defendant as a subject, was not a foreign judgment but an executive act;

(3) that the plaint, therefore, disclosed highly contentious matters, obviously doubtful and arguable and the application for arrest before judgment and for security must be rejected. M Chand Mull Dudha v. Purushothamadoss, 50 M. L. J. 348; (1926) M. W. N. 328; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 584 512

——— s. 94, O. XXXIX, r. 1—Suit for declaration—Temporary injunction, whether can be granted.

In a suit for declaration of title which contains no prayer for any injunction which may last after the disposal of the suit, the plaintiff is not entitled to ask for a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the exercise of his rights by the plaintiff during the pendency of the suit. C Sachindra Lal Mitter v. Panchanon Mitter, 30 C. W. N. 214; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 604 871

——— s. 95. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 36 444

——— s. 96—Second appeal—Meaning of word—Finding of fact.

The finding as to the meaning of a word is a finding of fact and cannot be disturbed in second appeal. C Bi[illegible]ban Mohan Basak v. Chairman, Municipal Commissioners, Dacca, 30 C. W. N. 405; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 607; 53 C. 453 231

——— s. 97—Finding as to status of agriculturist under Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act—Preliminary decree—Appeal.

A finding on the question whether a party to the suit is or is not an agriculturist within the meaning of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act is not appealable as a preliminary decree. B Rupchand Ganesh Shet v. Bhogilal Ratanchand, 28 Bom. L. R. 307; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 237 72

——— s. 100—Second appeal—Custom, whether question of fact or law—High Court's power to interfere—Custom regarding zar chaharum—Finding as to evidence being insufficient to prove custom, whether open to attack in second appeal.

The High Court in second appeal is not justified in determining whether the evidence produced in a case as to the existence of the alleged custom is or is not credible, though the High Court is competent to examine the evidence and to determine whether the evidence produced establishes a valid and binding custom.

The question whether the facts found in any given instance prove the existence of essential attributes of a custom or usage is a question of law which may be discussed in second appeal but the question whether such a state of facts has been proved by the evidence is merely a question of fact.

Where, therefore, the lower Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the documentary and oral evidence produced is sufficient to prove a custom regarding "zar chaharum," the finding of fact as to custom arrived at by the lower Appellate Court in appeal is binding on the High Court and cannot be attacked in second appeal. O Horilal v. Bachchu Lal 987

——— s. 100—Second appeal—Finding of fact, when not binding.

A finding of fact arrived at on a mistaken view of the pleadings is not binding in second appeal. O Ahmad Sharif v. Umrao Beg, 3 O. W. N. 460; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 353 779

——— s. 100—Second appeal—Jointness of cultivation, finding as to—Finding of fact—Finding based on misappreciation of expression 'sharing in cultivation'—Sharing in cultivation, meaning of.

A finding whether a person is sharing in cultivation with another person is one of fact. But where such a finding is based on the misappreciation of the true meaning of the expression "sharing in cultivation" it is liable to be disturbed in second appeal.

Sharing in cultivation is not confined to ploughing, sowing, attending the crops or reaping them but covers any kind of help in agricultural pursuits. A Ramdeo v. Sheo Naik 190

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

—— s. 100—Second appeal—Matters of procedure, if can be questioned.

Matters of procedure dependent upon certain facts cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. C SHIB NARAIN KAIBARTA DAS v. ABDUL GANI 417

—— s. 102. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1887, s. 23 77

—— s. 102—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, cl. 41—Suit for contribution by co-judgment-debtor—Second appeal.

A suit by a co-judgment-debtor to recover by way of contribution a share of the decretal amount paid by him is a suit of the nature of a Small Cause and not one falling under cl. 41, Sch. II, of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and, therefore, no second appeal is competent in such case where the value of the suit is less than Rs. 500. A MOHAMED SHER KHAN v. CHAMMAN KHAN 949

—— s. 107—Additional evidence in appeal.

Power to take additional evidence in appeal should be exercised by a Court of Appeal with much caution and only in suits where it is satisfied that in the interests of justice it should be exercised and that such additional evidence when admitted will be evidence which if produced at the trial would have been admissible. P. C. MAHOMED KHALEEL SHIRAZI v. LES TANNERIES LYONNAISES, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 34; 3 O. W. N. 568; 49 M. 435; (1926) M. W. N. 495 767

—— ss. 109, 110—Appeal in High Court dismissed in default—Appeal to Privy Council—Substantial question of law—Inferior wife, rights of, under Buddhist Law.

Leave to appeal to Privy Council cannot be granted where the appeal in the High Court has been dismissed for want of prosecution.

Buddhist Law regarding the rights of a lesser or inferior wife when living apart from her husband having been established by a series of decisions is not a substantial question of law within the meaning of s. 110, C. P. C. R MA THAN v. MA KYIN, 3 R. 658; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 111 464

—— s. 109 (c), 110, O. XLV, rr. 2, 3, 8—Order of remand setting aside abatement of suit, whether final—Leave under s. 109 (c), grant of.

Where in a suit under s. 92, C. P. C., for removal of a trustee and for framing of a scheme, the trustee died and the Court of first instance held that the suit had thereby abated but the High Court on appeal set aside the abatement in so far as the prayer for scheme was concerned, and remanded the case to the lower Court for disposal according to law:

Held, that the order in appeal was not a final one within the meaning of s. 110, C. P. C., nor was the case a fit one for granting special leave under s. 109, C. P. C.

An order is only final if it finally disposes of the rights of the parties. M SRILASRI VYTHILINGA DESIKA v. AURUMUGHA THAMBIRAN, 50 M. L. J. 552; 23 L. W. 695 966

—— s. 110—Appeal to Privy Council—Mesne profits subsequent to High Court decree—Valuation.

Mesne profits subsequent to the date of the High Court decree which have been awarded to the decree-holder, cannot be taken into consideration in making an estimate of the value under para. 2 of s. 110, C. P. C. B SHESHAGIRI SHAMBULINGA UPADHYA v. MANJAYA SANNAYA SHANBHOG, 28 Bom. L. R. 454; 50 B. 160; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 265 755

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

—— s. 110—Appeal to Privy Council—Value of property involved—Affidavit, value of.

Where on an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the petitioner files an affidavit that the value of the property in dispute exceeds Rs. 10,000 and there is no counter-affidavit by the respondent, the Court may assume the correctness of the affidavit filed by the petitioner. L WAZIR CHAND TRIKHA v. NATHU RAM, 26 P. L. R. 123 554

—— s. 114. See PRIVY COUNCIL APPEAL 916

—— s. 115.

See ALSO GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915, s. 107.

See C. P. C., 1908, SCH. II, para. 5 483

See C. P. C., 1908, SCH. II, para. 10 115

—— s. 115—Assumption of jurisdiction—Revision.

Where upon an erroneous construction of a Statute, a Subordinate Court assumes a jurisdiction which does not belong to it, the High Court has the power to revise its decision. B BHIMJI N. DALAL v. B. B. & C. I. RY. CO., 28 Bom. L. R. 443; 50 B. 215; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 266 742

—— s. 115—Bombay District Municipal Act (III of 1901), s. 22—Election petition—District Judge acting under Municipal Act, whether Court—Revision.

A District Judge acting under s. 22, Bombay District Municipal Act, is not a Court within the meaning of the word in s. 115, C. P. C. Therefore, an order by the District Judge refusing to entertain an objection petition in election on the ground of improper presentation is not open to revision by the High Court. B GANGADHAR BAPURAO GADER v. HUBLI MUNICIPALITY, 28 Bom. L. R. 519; 50 B. 357 660

—— s. 115—Bombay Hereditary Offices Act (III of 1874), s. 10—Collector's refusal to grant certificate—Revision.

Assuming that it has power to do so, the High Court will not interfere in revision with the order of Collector refusing to grant a certificate under s. 10, Bombay Hereditary Offices Act, where there is no violent misuse of authority, obvious bad faith, or reckless disregard or wanton perversion of the law on his part. B GOVIND MAHIPAT DESHPANDE v. BALKRISHNA NARAYAN, 28 Bom. L. R. 456; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 308 760

—— s. 115—Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s. 7 (iv) (c)—Valuation of injunction accepted by District Judge—Interference in revision.

The High Court will not interfere in revision with a valuation given by the plaintiff to a suit for injunction which the District Judge found to be a reasonable one. Pat JANKI SAHAY v. LALBEHARI LAL, (1926) Pat. 102 103

—— s. 115—Refusal of leave to sue as pauper—Revision.

No revision lies from an order refusing leave to sue in forma pauperis. A SHANKER BAN v. RAM DEI, 24 A. L. J. 557 484

—— s. 115—Wrong decision—Material irregularity or illegality—Another remedy open—Interference in revision.

A Court that has decided a suit over which it had jurisdiction cannot only on the ground that it has arrived at a wrong decision be said to have exercised its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity.

It is not the practice of the Judicial Commissioner's Court to interfere in revision where another remedy is open to the aggrieved party and where no great injustice or inconvenience would follow from their refusal to act. N SAMSHERKHAN v. ABDUL SATTAR KHAN, 22 N. L. R. 30; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 290 70

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— s. 115, O. IX, application of—Execution proceedings—Mistaken application—Relief, grant of, in revision.

The provisions of O. IX, C. P. C., are not applicable to execution proceedings.

The High Court will not interfere in revision to direct the lower Court to treat a mistaken application under O. IX, C. P. C., as one for review under O. XLVII of the Code, where there was another remedy open to the applicant which he could have availed of. C SAFITANNESSA KHATUN v. MEGH LAL GOPE, 43 C. L. J. 285; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 735 172

——— s. 115, O. IX, r. 13—Ex parte decree, proceedings for setting aside, whether case—Application barred by time—Jurisdiction.

Proceedings for setting aside an ex parte decree, since they involve the reversal of a final order and decree are themselves a case within the meaning of s. 115, C. P. C.

When a Court in effect decides that an application is time-barred and in spite of its decision refers to that application, which is one for which the law does not permit it to extend time, as within time and proceeds to decide it in favour of the applicant, the Court illegally assumes jurisdiction which it does not possess. L WIRU RAM v. AMAR CHAND, 8 L. L. J. 170 117

——— s. 141, O. IX—Dismissal of suit in default—Application for restoration also dismissed in default—Application to restore application, whether maintainable.

An application under O. IX, C. P. C., to set aside an order of dismissal of a suit in default, is not an application in suit but is an independent one coming under s. 141, C. P. C. Such an application, therefore, is covered by O. IX and can be restored under that Order if dismissed in default. M SALAR BAG SAHEB v. KARUMANCHI KOTTAYA, 23 L. W. 538; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 654 151

——— s. 145, O. XXI, r. 2—Surety for payment of decree—Uncertified payment, whether can be pleaded by surety—Surety, application of, under O. XXI, r. 2, maintainability of.

So long as there is an executable decree against the judgment-debtor, a surety who executes a bond undertaking to discharge the decree is not relieved from his liability to pay the decree amount under the security bond executed by him.

Where, therefore, payments to the decree-holder are not certified to the Court executing the decree, an application for execution is maintainable against the surety.

A surety though he is not a party to the decree has an interest in showing that the decree has been satisfied and may, therefore, ask the Court to hold an enquiry as to the same. M TAMBI REDDI VIRAREDDY v. DEVI REDDY, 49 M. 325; 50 M. L. J. 584; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 674 522

——— s. 151. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 48 613

——— s. 152—Amendment of decree after satisfaction

Section 152 of the C. P. C. permits clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments and decrees to be corrected at any time, but an amendment of a decree after satisfaction has been entered up is a mere nullity unless steps are also taken at the same time to set aside the order recording satisfaction. M MUNUSAMI PILLAI v. MAHDI HUSSAIN KHAN, (1926) M. W. N. 180; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 516; 50 M. L. J. 655 453

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— O. I, r. 8, scope of.

Order I, r. 8, C. P. C., is merely an enabling provision of law and does not prevent a representative suit being brought in any other manner that the law permits. B SHANKARLAL PURSHOTTAM GOR v. DAKORE TEMPLE COMMITTEE, 28 Bom. L. R. 309; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 179 47

——— O. I, r. 10. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 47 123

——— O. I, r. 10—Suit by widow for declaration of invalidity of adoption, dismissal of—Suit for possession by adopted son—Reversioner of adoptive father, whether can be impleaded as party.

The widows of a deceased Hindu instituted a suit against the plaintiff for a declaration that his adoption by their deceased husband was invalid. This suit was dismissed and the plaintiff then instituted a suit against the widows for recovery of possession of the property of his adoptive father. During the pendency of the suit, a reversioner of the deceased made an application to be impleaded as a party to the suit:

Held, that the suit being merely one for possession consequential upon the dismissal of the declaratory suit brought by the widows, it was not proper to implead the reversioner as a party to the suit, inasmuch as such a course would totally change the frame and scope of the suit and would render it necessary again to re-open the question of the validity or invalidity of the plaintiff's adoption which had already been settled as between him and the widows. N SUNDARBAI v. GOPAL SINGH 918

——— O. II, r. 2—Promissory note given in satisfaction of antecedent liability—Suit on pro-note, dismissal of—Suit to enforce antecedent liability, whether barred.

The provisions of r. 2 of O. II of the C. P. C. are directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a cause of action and not the inclusion in one and the same action of different causes of action, even though they arise out of the same transaction.

Where a promissory note is given in satisfaction of an already existing liability, a claim founded on the promissory note and a claim founded on the original liability are based on different causes of action, though they may arise in respect of the same transaction. Where, therefore, in such a case, a suit to recover on the promissory note is dismissed, a subsequent suit to enforce the original liability is not barred by the provisions of r. 2 of O. II of the C. P. C. R M. K. M. V. CHETTY FIRM v. MA MYA, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 304; 4 Bur. L. J. 130 628

——— O. II, r. 2—Suit for possession—Claim for mesne profits not adjudicated upon—Subsequent suit to recover mesne profits, whether barred.

In a suit for declaration and recovery of possession there was a prayer that the defendants be ordered to render true and full accounts of all receipts in their hands and expenditure since the estate in dispute had passed into their possession. The Court granted the plaintiffs a decree for declaration and possession and made a note at the end of the judgment to the effect that the relief with regard to the accounts could not be claimed in the suit. In a subsequent suit by the plaintiffs to recover mesne profits arising out of the property which was the subject-matter of the previous suit:

Held, (1) that the prayer for accounts in the previous suit was in substance a prayer for the recovery of mesne profits ;

(2) that if the right to recover mesne profits was regarded as a relief arising out of the same cause of action as the right to obtain possession, then the effect of the note made in the judgment in the previous suit was to give leave to the plaintiffs to omit the relief with regard to mesne profits in that suit and to refer them to a separate suit for that purpose ;

(3) that if the right to recover mesne profits was regarded as a claim arising out of the same cause of action out of which the right to obtain possession had arisen, the plaintiffs having asserted their claim in that suit and having prayed for a relief in respect of it, it could not be said that the plaintiffs had omitted to sue in respect of the claim or that they had intentionally relinquished it ;

(4) that, therefore, the subsequent suit was not barred by the provisions of O. II, r. 2 of the C. P. C. R MAUNG MYA v. MA THIN TIN, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 313; 4 Bur. L. J. 113 611

——— O. III, r. 4—Advocate, whether must file appointment in writing.

The effect of the Notification No. 57, dated the 16th September 1925, published in the Bihar and Orissa Gazette of the 7th October 1925, is to dispense with cl. (3) of r. 4 of O. III of the C. P. C., and an Advocate has now to file appointment in writing as any other legal practitioner in the High Court. Pat ABDUL GHAFFAR v. MRS. F. B. DOWNING, (1925) Pat. 4; 7 P. L. T. 213; 5 Pat. 255; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 246; 5 Pat. 415 841

——— O. V, r. 15—Notice, service of—Pardanashin lady—Service on son, validity of.

Service of notice on the son of a pardanashin lady living in the same house with her is valid and proper service. C KHORSHEDENNESSA KHATOON v. HAKIKANNESSA BANOO 228

——— O. V, r. 20—Substituted service.

Under O. V, r. 20, C. P. C., the Court has power to order substituted service not only where it has reason to believe that the defendant is keeping out of the way to avoid service but where it is satisfied that for any other reason the summons cannot be served in the ordinary way. N ANAND v. RAMCHANDRA 395

——— O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint—Court-fee not tendered—Procedure—Amendment at late stage.

An application for amendment of a plaint should not be rejected on the ground that the necessary Court-fee had not been paid with the application. The application should be granted and the plaintiff required to pay the requisite Court-fee within a time fixed by the Court.

Under O. VI, r. 17, C. P. C., all amendments ought to be allowed at any stage of the proceedings which satisfy the two conditions :

(a) of not working injustice to the other side, and

(b) of being necessrry for the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties. O MOHAMMAD ZAFAR v. KANIZ SAIYADA 875

——— O. VI, r. 17—Pleadings, amendment of, in second appeal—Co-owners—Suit for rent by one.

In the absence of a contract to the contrary, one of the joint owners cannot singly bring a suit for his share of rent. He may sue for the enforcement of the entire claim by making other co-owners as party defendants.

The High Court in second appeal will not allow an amendment of plaint where the objection as to incompetency of one of the joint owners to bring a suit for his share of rent was raised in both the Courts below and no amendment was applied for. C RADHABINODE MANDAL v. NABA KISHORE MONDAL, 30 C. W. N. 413; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 578 244

——— O. VII, r. 10—Wrong Court, presentation of plaint to—Duty of Court—Finding as to merits, legality of.

Where a Court holds that it has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit, it should not go into the merits of the case but should return it for presentation to the proper Court. M ABDUL AMEETH SAHIB v. PONNAMBALA MUTHURIAN, (1926) M. W. N. 286; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 679; 23 L. W. 757 550

——— O. VII, r. 16—Plaint covering several causes of action—Some within jurisdiction of Court, others beyond it—Return of plaint—Procedure.

Where on presentation of plaint covering more than one cause of action, the Court is of opinion that it can deal only with some of the causes of action, the proper procedure to follow is to retain the plaint and strike out from the plaint that part of it which it thinks is beyond its jurisdiction leaving it to the plaintiff to file another suit with regard to the causes of action struck out from the plaint in the proper Court. It is not a proper procedure to return the plaint to be presented to proper Court for trial of causes of action beyond its jurisdiction and itself to proceed on a certified copy of the plaint for causes of action within its jurisdiction. B SHANKAR GOVIND PATHAK v. BALKRISHNA SHANKAR JOSHI, 28 Bom. L. R. 521; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 253 783

——— O. IX.

See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 172

See C. P. C., 1908, s. 141. 151

——— O. IX, r. 13. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 117

——— O. IX, r. 13—Ex parte decree—Application to set aside—Conditional acceptance—Condition not fulfilled—Death of applicant—Order maintaining decree, effect of—Fresh order.

Where, on an application to set aside an ex parte decree, the Court passes a conditional order to the effect that if the defendant pays in Court a certain sum before a certain date, the decree would be set aside, otherwise the application would stand dismissed, and no payment being made till the prescribed date, dismisses on that date the application, maintaining the decree, it is not any fresh order adverse to the defendant that is passed by the Court, but only effect is given to the previous order, and if on that date the defendant is dead, it cannot be said that any fresh injurious order has been passed against a dead man. O SURAJPAL SINGH v. DEOKALI 973

——— O. IX, r. 13—Ex parte decree in reference under Land Acquisition Act—Refusal to set aside—Appeal.

No appeal lies against an order refusing to set aside an ex parte decree made in a reference under the Land Acquisition Act. C ROSHAN BEPARI v. COLLECTOR OF DACCA, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 816 330

——— O. IX, r. 13—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 164—Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Service of summons, finding as to.

For setting aside an ex parte decree it is not enough to find that the judgment-debtor was ignorant of the decree, the Court must also decide whether the summons was not duly served. M R. Duraiswamy Iyer v. Balasundaram Iyer, 23 L. W. 319; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 558 420

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— O. X, r. 2—Examination of person appearing on behalf of party—Statement, whether binding on party.

Any statement made by a party to a suit while being examined under O. X, r. 2, C. P. C., is binding only on the person who made the statement to the same extent as the statement made by a Pleader engaged by him may be binding on him; but a statement made by a person who merely appears to prosecute a case or to look after it on behalf of a party, not personally present or who is unable to be present, does not stand on the same footing. If the statement made by him in Court in regard to any material fact is admitted or accepted by the party concerned or his Pleader to be correct, it may help to narrow down the issues; but it is open to the party to say that the statement was not made under his instructions. A Suraj Mal v. Chhote 1003

——— O. XX, r. 1—Judgment, pronouncement of—C. P. Courts, practice of—Decree, appeal or application against.

In the Central Provinces a judgment cannot be said to have not been "pronounced" within O. XX, r. 1, C. P. C., simply because it is not read out entirely by the Court. N Kutuab-ud-din v. Gulam Rabbani 121

——— O. XX, r. 4. See Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, s. 25 397

——— O. XX, rr. 7, 3—Limitation, operation of.

The period of limitation for an appeal or application against a decree runs from the date of the decree and not from the date when the decree is signed. N Kutuab-ud-din v. Gulam Rabbani 121

——— O. XX, r. 11. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXXVII, r. 2 9

——— O. XX, r. 18—Partition suit—Interest, whether can be allowed.

In a suit for partition the Court has power, after a preliminary decree has been passed, to award interest, although the preliminary decree does not make any mention of interest. B Kesarlal Girdharilal Desai v. Jagubhai Hiralal, 27 Bom. L. R. 226; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 406 686

——— O. XXI, r. 2. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 145 522

——— O. XXI, r. 2—Decree, adjustment of, by another decree.

An agreement which puts an end to a liability under a decree by substituting a new liability under the agreement may be held to be an adjustment of the decree and may itself be embodied into a decree which decree would be one under O. XXI, r. 2, C. P. C. O Ahmed Mirza Beg v. Allahabad Bank, Ltd., 29 O. C. 26 317

——— O. XXI, r. 10. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 181 482

——— O. XXI, r. 40—Arrest of judgment-debtor, when can be refused—Judgment-debtor's right to apply for insolvency—Duty of Court.

Unless a Court finds that the judgment-debtor is unable to pay his debts because of poverty or any other sufficient cause, the decree-holder is entitled to have the warrant of arrest issued against the judgment-debtor, even though the latter be prepared to farm out his land to the decree-holder or have his salary attached.

When judgment-debtor is brought before the Court, it is the duty of the Court to inform him that he can avoid arrest by presenting a petition in insolvency. L Dukh Bhanjan Ram v. Sarfraz Khan 279

——— O. XXI, r. 63—Execution of decree—Objection proceedings—Order passed on objection, finality of.

By virtue of the provision contained in r. 63 of O. XXI of the C. P. C., it is incumbent on a person, against whom an order is made in objection proceedings, to file a suit to set aside the order if he feels himself aggrieved thereby, otherwise the order passed in the objection proceedings will become final, and will not be open to question in any other proceeding between the parties. N Lobo v. Babulal, 8 N. L. J. 170; A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 390 573

——— O. XXI, r. 63—Objection to attachment dismissed—Execution case dismissed—Suit under O. XXI, r. 63, necessity for—Attachment effected second time—Dismissal of second application—Regular suit—Limitation, starting point of.

Where an execution case is dismissed it is not incumbent upon the claimant to bring a suit under O. XXI, r. 63, C. P. C., in order to set aside the order rejecting his claim. In case an attachment is made second time, it is competent to the objector to file another application and in the event of rejection of such application to bring a regular suit under O. XXI, r. 63, C. P. C., within one year from the date of dismissal of second objection application. C Satish Chandra Ray v. Joy Chandra Roy 120

——— O. XXI, r. 66, Issue of notice under. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 182 (5) 44

——— O. XXI, r. 66—Proclamation of sale—Duty of Court—Settlement of proclamation, whether can be delegated—Sale, validity of.

Under O. XXI, r. 66, C. P. C., it is the duty of the Court to settle the proclamation of sale and it cannot delegate that power to Commissioner appointed by it.

A sale held without the proclamation therefor having been settled by the Court is invalid. M Kuzhakkumbat Madhathil Appu v. Achutha Menon, 23 L. W. 652; 48 M. 333 8

——— O. XXI, r. 90. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 47 521

——— O. XXI, rr. 90, 92—Proceedings under r. 90—Parties—Object of r. 92.

Period of limitation for an application to set aside a sale in execution of a decree is 30 days under Art. 166 of the Limitation Act but there is no time limit under that Act for serving notices upon persons affected by the order. Pat Iswardas Marwari v. Bhikeswar Lal Marwari, (1926) Pat. 83; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 266 31

——— O. XXI, r. 91. See Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, s. 174 (3) 292

——— O. XXII, rr. 2, 4—Rent-decree—Death of one of tenants respondents—Non-substitution—Abatement.

If in an appeal from a rent-decree by the landlord against the heirs of a deceased tenant, one of the respondents dies and his legal representative is not brought on the record, the appeal abates only partially and can be proceeded with against the surviving respondents. C Official Trustee v. Adhar Bera 30

——— O. XXII, rr. 3, 4—Appeal from injunction decree—Death of one of several plaintiffs-respondents—Legal representatives not brought on record in time—Abatement in toto.

Where in an appeal from a decree issuing mandatory injunction to the defendant restraining him from opening windows in a particular wall of his house one of the several plaintiffs-resopndents dies and his legal representatives are not brought on the record the appeal abates in toto. L Maula Bux v. Chanan Mal, 8 L. L. J. 134 563

——— O. XXII, r. 4—Decree against dead man—Rent-decree against some dead defendants, whether wholly null—Decree as against surviving defendants, nature of—Execution sale, what passes at.

A decree against a dead person is a nullity. But the question whether the whole decree is a nullity depends on the question whether the failure on the part of the plaintiff to bring the representatives-in-interest of the deceased on the record affects his right to proceed with the suit.

A decree for rent is a nullity only against the dead defendants or their representatives as a suit for rent against some of the several joint tenants is maintainable. But such a decree cannot be executed as a decree for rent but as a simple money-decree only. Consequently at execution sale of such a decree the entire holding does not pass and the interests of the defendants dead at the institution of the suit remain unaffected. Pat Kesho Prasad Singh v. Shamnandan Rai, (1926) Pat. 81; 5 Pat. 233 28

——— O. XXII, r. 4—Mesne profits, indivisible, claim for—Death of some of respondents—Legal representatives not brought on record—Abatement in toto.

Where plaintiffs-appellants' claim for mesne profits is based on the allegation that the defendants-respondents jointly dispossessed them from the land in collusion with one another, the claim is one that is not divisible and where in appeal the legal representatives of the deceased respondents are not brought on the record the appeal abates in its entirety. C Srikanta Mandal v. Jotirmoyi Devi 253

——— O. XXII, r. 4—Only one legal representative brought on record—Abatement—Knowledge of death—Diligence required.

Even if one of the legal representatives of a deceased party is brought on the record in time there is no abatement of the suit or appeal as the case may be.

No doubt an appellant is required to be diligent in prosecuting his appeal, but after he gets the notice served on the respondent he is not required to watch the movements of the respondent and as to whether he is dead or alive. The law, therefore, is that he must make the application for substitution within 90 days of his knowledge of the death. Pat Sadhu Saran Pandey v. Nand Kumar Singh, (1926) Pat. 97; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 276 209

——— O. XXII, rr. 4, 8—Abatement—Legal representatives brought on record subject to just exceptions—Nature of order.

Where a Judge of the Lahore High Court passes an order subject to just exceptions setting aside abatement and bringing legal representatives of a deceased party on the record, the order in accordance with the usual practice of the Court must be considered as conditional and not an absolute one. L Sham Sundar-Madan Gopal v. Fatteh Chand 243

——— O. XXII, rr. 4, 9—Application for bringing legal representative on record, when may be treated as one for setting aside abatement—Joint decree—Death of party in appeal—Abatement in toto.

Where there has been no reasonable cause for delay in making the application, an application for bringing legal representatives of a deceased party on record cannot be treated as an application for setting aside abatement.

Where a decree may be executed by any one of the plaintiffs, it is a joint decree.

A decree for a declaration that a certain lease has expired and that the plaintiffs are entitled to retain proprietary possession of certain shops and for an injunction to the defendants not to take steps to obtain possession or to interfere with the plaintiffs' ownership and possession is a joint decree as the injunction against the defendants might be enforced by any one of the plaintiffs.

If in an appeal from a joint decree a necessary party dies without his legal representatives being brought on the record the appeal abates in toto. L Ata-ur-Rahman v. Mashkur-un-nisa 300

——— O. XXII, rr. 4, 9—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5, Sch. I, Art. 177—Appeal—Death of respondent—Abatement of appeal—Application to set aside abatement—Ignorance of law, whether sufficient excuse for delay.

During the pendency of an appeal one of the respondents died and no application was made within time to bring his legal representatives on the record. In an application to set aside the abatement the appellant urged that he was an ignorant milkman and was not aware that he was required to make an application for substitution of the legal representatives of the deceased respondent:

Held, that there was sufficient cause to set aside the abatement. C Krishna Mohan Ghosh v. Surapati Banerji, 29 C. W. N. 472; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 684 929

——— O. XXII, rr. 4, 9 (2)—Abatement—Automatic proceeding.

Abatement takes place automatically after the expiration of 90 days from the death of a deceased party and unless the abatement is set aside on an application presented within 60 days or a period further extended in virtue of s. 5 of the Limitation Act, the suit or appeal is dead. L Qaim v. Nura, 7 L. 73; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 234 422

——— O. XXII, r. 10—Assignment pendente lite—Application for substitution by assignee—Delay in making application—Discretion of Court.

Rule 10 of O. XXII of the C. P. C. leaves a discretion to the Court to recognize or refuse to recognize an assignment made pendente lite.

Where the factum of an assignment is disputed and an application by the alleged assignee to be brought on the record is made several months after the date of the alleged assignment, the Court may properly refuse to recognize the assignment. L Allah Jawaya v. Lajpat Rai, A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 574; 7 L. L. J. 392 926

——— O. XXII, r. 10—Company going into liquidation—Devolution of interest—Legal representative, necessity of bringing on record.

When a plaintiff Company registered under the Companies Act goes into liquidation, there is no assignment, creation or devolution of an interest within the meaning of O. XXII, r. 10, C. P. C., the Company continues to be the plaintiff and there is no need of bringing any legal representatives on the record. N National Stores v. Ramsaran, 9 N. L. J. 40; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 303 380

——— O. XXIII, r. 1 (2), (b)—Withdrawal of suit—'Other sufficient ground,' construction of.

The expression "other sufficient ground" in cl. (b) of r. 1 (2), O. XXIII, C. P. C., must be construed to be ground analogous to the ground mentioned in cl. (a) of the same rule, that is to say, it must be of the same nature as formal defect. B Punjushet v. Motiram Budhu, 28 Bom. L. R. 440; 50 B. 192; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 315 777

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— O. XXIII, rr. 1, 2—Leave to withdraw suit with liberty to bring fresh suit—Formal defect, what is—Defect in substance, whether ground for granting leave.

Where a defendant has succeeded in showing that certain facts were lacking which were essential to the plaintiff's cause of action, the Court has no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C., to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.

On an application to withdraw a suit the Trial Court has only a limited jurisdiction. It is not unconditionally empowered to permit a plaintiff to withdraw his plaint under O. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. C. If the plaint is defective the only sort of defect which attracts the rule is a formal defect, and not a defect in substance.

In permitting a plaintiff to withdraw his plaint by reason of a defect not in form but in substance the Court exercises a jurisdiction not vested in it by law. M Palikanji Chettiar v. Krishna Iyer, 23 L. W. 525 983

——— O. XXIII, r. 3, O. XXXIV, r. 4—Compromise decree passed in mortgage suit, nature of—Preliminary decree, necessity of, in mortgage suit.

Order XXIII, r. 3, C. P. C., does not contemplate the necessity of two decrees, a preliminary and a final but only one decree. Therefore, a compromise decree in a suit on an hypothecation must be regarded a final and an executable decree and not one under O. XXXIV, r. 4.

The necessity to pass a preliminary decree in a suit on the basis of a mortgage arises only when the plaintiff succeeds and not where the matter is compromised. O Ahmed Mirza Beg v. Allahabad Bank, Ltd., 29 O. C. 26 317

——— O. XXVI, r. 4 (1) (a)—Examination of plaintiff on commission—Applicant for removal of guardianship, examination on commission of.

Ordinarily a plaintiff, having had a choice of forum, is not entitled to claim to be examined on commission outside the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is pending. But where the plaintiff has had in effect no choice of forum, he can, in a fit case, be permitted to examine himself on commission. Pat Fariduddin Ahmed v. Abdul Wahab, (1926) Pat. 103; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 277 229

——— O. XXX, r. 1—Partnership, suit against—Title of suit—Written statements, separate, whether can be filed.

Under O. XXX, r. 1, C. P. C., any two or more persons being liable as partners and carrying on business in British India may be sued in the name of the firm. In such a suit an individual partner may also be sued personally along with the firm. It is not, however, correct to sue persons as partners in the name of the firm by a partner or manager. B Ajitsing Manibhai v. Grunning & Co., 27 Bom. L. R. 998; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 491 969

——— O. XXX, r. 6—Partnership, suit against—Written statement separate, whether can be filed.

Under O. XXX, r. 6, C. P. C., where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm they must appear individually in their own names but all subsequent proceedings will nevertheless continue in the name of the firm. In such a case, each partner can put in a separate written statement, but each written statement is the written statement of the firm. It is only when a partner is sued personally along with the firm that he may put in a personal defence. B Ajitsingh Manibhai v. Grunning & Co., 27 Bom. L. R. 998; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 491 969

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

——— O. XXXII, r. 7—Compromise of suit on behalf of minor—Benefit of minor—Matters to be considered by Court in sanctioning compromise.

How far a Judge should go into the facts and the law of each case before he makes up his mind to sanction a compromise on behalf of minors must depend on the circumstances of each case and where the Judge exercises his discretion in a judicial manner it is not one which can be afterwards called in question in subsequent proceedings.

It is not practicable to lay down a definite or hard and fast rule as to what particular materials a Judge may call for before he is satisfied that the compromise is one for the benefit of the minors. It must be left to his discretion and that discretion may vary in different cases.

A Judge is entitled to rely upon the opinion of the Counsel at least in part, that the compromise is for the benefit of minors.

There is no authority for the proposition that a Judge is bound to gauge the chances of success of the minors and weigh against them the chances of the opposite party and sanction only if the chances of the minors appear to him slender. B Dhairyasingh Gordhandas v. Kissandas Tribhovandas, 28 Bom. L. R. 363 104

——— O. XXXII, r. 11—Retirement of guardian ad litem—Courts, discretion of.

It is not open to a guardian ad litem to retire at his own sweet will without the permission of the Court. It is a matter of discretion for the Court which having regard to all the circumstances of the case may permit the guardian to retire and may pass such orders as to costs as it thinks fit. A Narender Singh v. Chatrapal Singh 340

——— O. XXXIII, r. 1—Petition to appeal in forma pauperis—Subsequent deposit of money to petitioner's credit under decree of lower Court, whether amounts to, "sufficient means"—Subject-matter of suit, exclusion of, in considering means of person.

The expression "The subject-matter of the suit" in O. XXXIII, r. 1, C. P. C., does not qualify "sufficient means" and in considering the means of a person to sue in forma pauperis, the subject-matter of the suit ought to be excluded as being out of the pauper's reach.

But where a plaintiff who has obtained a decree for maintenance applies for leave to appeal in forma pauperis claiming a larger amount and the petition is sent to the Court of first instance for inquiry into pauperism and the judgment-debtor meanwhile deposits into Court the amount of the decree, which amount is in excess of the Court fees payable on the appeal, the petitioner must be said to be possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the stamp fee in appeal and is not entitled for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. M In re Pokala Mahalakshmi Ammal, 50 M. L. J. 114; 23 L. W. 427; A. I. R. 1926 Mad 567 337

——— O. XXXIII, r. 10—Court-fee decreed to Government in pauper suit—Right to future maintenance, liability of, to be proceeded against—Method of recovery.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

The right of the Government to recover the Court-fee decreed as payable to Government from a pauper plaintiff is not unenforceable, merely because plaintiff's property is confined to a right to future maintenance. The proper method of recovering such Court-fee is by the Court appointing a Receiver to collect the maintenance amount and pay to Government (by instalments if necessary in order that plaintiff may have something to live upon) the fee due by the plaintiff M SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. SARVEPALLI VENKATA LAKSHMANAYYA, 50 M. L. J. 279; 23 L. W. 602; (1926) M. W. N. 362; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 484; 49 M. 567 254

——— O. XXXIII, r. 10—Forma pauperis—Suit for maintenance decreed—Government's costs, charge for—Sale of property liable for maintenance for costs—Effect.

Where a plaintiff's suit for maintenance in forma pauperis is decreed and maintenance is made a charge on certain properties of the defendant, the first charge of the Government for costs must be on the subject-matter of the suit so far as the plaintiff succeeds under O. XXXIII, r. 10, C. P. C. But where, however, the Government proceed to sell the properties the effect would be as that of a sale of equity of redemption subject to the charge of maintenance decreed in plaintiff's favour. C GADADHAR MANDAL v. MANAKA DASSI 391

——— O. XXXIV, r. 4. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXIII, R. 3 317

——— O. XXXIV, rr. 4, 5—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Decree made final without separate sheet—Irregularity.

Where in a mortgage suit, a preliminary decree is made final by an endorsement on the preliminary decree-sheet and no formal decree is drawn up, the absence of a separate decree-sheet should be considered only an irregularity and the Court should be considered to have made the decree final. L DHANPAT RAI v. NATHE KHAN 58

——— O. XXXVII, rr. 2 (2), 4, O. XX, r. 11—Summary suit—Defendant not obtaining leave to defend—Right to ask for instalments—Instalments, procedure for grant of.

In a summary suit under the provisions of O. XXXVII, C. P. C., unless a defendant has obtained leave to defend, he cannot be allowed to appear on the hearing and make an application for stay of execution or for payment of the decree by instalments. Such a defendant may either apply for instalments under O. XX, r. 11 (2) which relief can be granted only with the consent of the decree-holder or under O. XXXVII, r. 4 ask the Court to grant him any of the reliefs mentioned therein. B PESTONJI SHAPURJI NARELWALLA v. JAMSHEDJI NOWROJI GAMADIA, 28 Bom. L. R. 138; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 250; 50 B. 262 9

——— O. XXXVIII, r. 1. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 94 512

——— O. XXXVIII, r. 5—High Court—Attachment before judgment—Property outside jurisdiction—Procedure—Practice.

Where the property of the defendant sought to be attached is outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court, the proper course to follow is to transmit the order for attachment before judgment to the Court in whose jurisdiction the property is situated with a request that that Court should levy the attachment.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

The practice of appointing plaintiff's Solicitor's clerk as a special bailiff to levy such attachment is not a proper one and must be stopped. B GAJANAN RAMKRISHNA MULE v. BHASKAR BALVANT KULKARNI, 28 Bom. L. R. 380; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 278 116

——— O. XXXVIII, r. 6—Attachment before judgment—Past conduct of defendant.

Under O. XXXVIII, r. 6, C. P. C., the Court must be satisfied that the defendant is now about to dispose of his property with the intention of delaying and obstructing any decree that the Court might pass against him.

The mere fact that the defendant in the past mortgaged or otherwise disposed of his property is not sufficient ground for an order under O. XXXVIII, r. 6, C. P. C. C MANMATHA NATH SEIT v. NAGENDRA NATH BHATTACHARJYA 880

——— O. XXXIX, r. 1. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 94 871

——— O. XXXIX, rr. 1, 2—Interim mandatory injunction, whether can be granted—Discretion, when to be exercised.

A Court has power to grant an interim mandatory injunction, but the power should be exercised only in very exceptional circumstances, and for this purpose each case must be considered on its own merits. S HAROON BROTHERS v. COWASJI BEZONJI AGHA 840

——— O. XL, r. 1—Plaintiff's possession recently disturbed—Suit for declaration—Receiver, appointment of.

Appointment of a Receiver under O. XL, r. 1, C. P. C., is competent even if the suit is one for declaration.

Where plaintiff's possession has been only very recently disturbed, the Appellate Court will not interfere with the discretion exercised by the Court below in the appointment of a Receiver. L MAKHAN SHAH v. HALIMA 39

——— O. XLI, r. 1—Appeal—Copy of decree essential—Land Acquisition Act (1 of 1894), s. 26—District Judge's award, whether decree—Two appeals against same decree—Decree filed only in one appeal, whether sufficient for other appeal.

As under s. 26 of the Land Acquisition Act the award of a District Judge contains both a decree and a judgment and as it is essential that a copy of the decree appealed against should accompany memorandum of appeal, an appeal against the award is not properly filed without this memorandum. Therefore, where two appeals are filed by the same Vakil on the same day and from the same award of a District Judge, it is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of O. XLI, r. 1, C. P. C., if instead of filing a copy of the award with the memorandum of each appeal it is filed only with one of them and a note is made on the other to the effect that the award has been filed with the other appeal. L MUBARAK ALI SHAH v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, 6 L. 218; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 438 145

——— O. XLI, r. 1—Second appeal—Copy of first Court's judgment uncertified—Proper presentation.

Presentation of a second appeal accompanied by an unattested copy of first Court's judgment, when an attested copy was applied for but the report was that the record could not be traced, is a proper presentation under the circumstances. L CHHOTA LAL-AMBA PARSHAD v. BASDEO MAL-HIRA LAL 2

——— O. XLI, r. 1, O. XLII—Appeal from decree in cross-appeal—Decree requisite for second appeal.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

A party appealing from a decree passed against him in appeal need only file the decree made in his appeal and his failure to file the decree made in cross-appeal will not bar his appeal from being proceeded with. L Bhuri v. Asghari Begam 959

——— O. XLI, rr. 4, 23—Appeal by one of plaintiffs only—Question, whether plaintiffs were collaterals—Finding that appellant was collateral—Remand of entire case, legality of.

Where in a suit for possession of property by several plaintiffs as collaterals of the last owner, only one of the plaintiffs appeals with regard to his own share and the sole question to be determined in appeal is whether the appellant was a collateral of the deceased, a finding of the Appellate Court that the appellant was a collateral of the deceased, on the basis of a pedigree-table covering the case of all the plaintiffs, does not empower the Court to remand the whole case, including that of the plaintiffs who have not appealed. The terms of O. XLI, r. 4, C. P. C., do not apply to such a case. L Mangli v. Pohu Ram, 8 L. L. J. 132; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 303 557

——— O. XLI, r. 7—Appeal to Privy Council—Security, form of—Immoveable property, whether can be offered as security—Time for furnishing security, whether can be extended—Difficulty in procuring cash security, whether sufficient reason.

Order XLI, r. 7 (1) of the C. P. C., requires that the security furnished by an appellant to the Privy Council must be given in cash or Government securities. Under the proviso to the rule the Court may allow some other form of security to be furnished, but an order to this effect must be obtained at the time of granting the certificate. An offer of immoveable property as security at a subsequent stage cannot be accepted.

It is open to the Court to grant an extension of time for furnishing security for cogent reasons, but the mere fact that there is difficulty in furnishing cash security would not be a sufficient cogent reason for extension of time. R Ma Sein v. Sit Paung, 4 Bur. L. J. 3; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 44 590

——— O. XLI, r. 23, 27—Remand—Local inquiry—Order, how to be made.

Where a local enquiry is necessary for proper decision of a case the Appellate Court should either itself order a fresh local enquiry or remand the case to the Primary Court for the purpose to have the result reported to it. C Rajani Kanta Dey v. Khatir Mahomed 393

——— O. XLI, r. 33—Appeal, absence of, to High Court—Appeal to Privy Council.

Where no appeal is filed to the High Court from the decree of the Trial Judge dismissing a suit against a particular defendant except as to costs no appeal lies against him in the Privy Council. P. C. Mahomed Khaleel Shirazi v. Les Tanneries Lyonnaises, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 34; 3 O. W. N. 568; 9 M. 435; (1926) M. W. N. 495; 24 L. W. 115 767

——— O. XLI, r. 33—Appeal by one defendant—Defence common—Reversal of entire decree.

It is open to an Appellate Court to vary the decree appealed against where there is a common defence even in favour of persons who have not appealed but were parties to the suit. A Mohsham Ali Khan v. Muloo, 24 A. L. J. 586 347

——— O. XLI, r. 33—Appeal by one of plaintiffs—Reversal of dismissal in favour of all.

Where only one of the several plaintiffs appeals from the dismissal of suit on a ground common to all, the dismissal may be set aside for the benefit of all the plaintiffs. A Dharam Singh v. Bakhshi 315

——— O. XLI, r. 33—Death of one of several appellants—Legal representative not brought on record—Partial abatement—Decision in favour of all.

Where an appeal has partially abated in consequence of the death of one of the appellants without his legal representatives being brought on the record, it is competent to the Court to accept the appeal in favour of all the appellants including the legal representatives of the deceased appellants not brought on the record. L Kishen Singh v. Moti Singh 530

——— O. XLIII, r. 1 (w), O. XLVII, r. 7—Review, order granting—Appeal—Grounds of objection.

In view of the provisions contained in r. 1 (w) of O. XLIII of the C. P. C., which permits an appeal against an order granting an application for review, the provisions of r. 7 of O. XLVII of the Code have become superfluous. Even if r. 1 (w) of O. XLIII has to be read with r. 7 of O. XLVII, the only effect of the latter rule is to enumerate certain grounds on which an order granting a review may be objected to and not to restrict the grounds which might be taken in appeal against such order. B Daso Keshav Panchbhavi v. Karbasappa Kariyappa Mudhol, 27 Bom. L. R. 1446; A. I. R. 1926 Bom 121 591

——— O. XLIV, r. 1—Application for leave to appeal as pauper—Application, when can be entertained.

An Appellate Court is entirely precluded from admitting an application for leave to appeal as pauper unless it is satisfied that the decree sought to be appealed against is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law or is otherwise erroneous or unjust. The direction contained in the proviso to r. 1 of O. XLIV of the C. P. C. to that effect is mandatory. Pat Rajendra Prasad Bose v. Gopal Prasad Bose, 4 Pat. 67; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 412 814

——— O. XLV, r. 15 (1). See Privy Council 813

——— O. XLVII, r. 1. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 48 613

——— O. XLVII, rr. 4, 7—Appeal—Error apparent on face of record, Court incorrectly thinking, whether good ground—Contravention of r. 4, ground of appeal—Court, what to consider.

An appeal against an order granting a review does not lie on the ground that the lower Court was incorrect in thinking that there was a mistake or error apparent on the face of record. Again, an appeal against an order passed in review on the ground that the provisions of r. 4, O. XLVII, C. P. C., had been contravened by the lower Court must be confined to a disregard of those provisions only and not to any other matter on which the granting of review is based. A Shaukat Ali v. Shakila Bano 78

——— O. XLVII, r. 7. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XLIII, r. 1 (w) 591

——— Sch. II—Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), s. 8—Award, null and void—No appeal against judgment—Appeal from order dismissing application to set aside award—Reversal of award—Arbitration Act, conversion of matter to—Proceedings under Civil Procedure Code, legality of—Arbitration Act, order under, when to be made.

An award may be set aside on the ground of nullity in appeal from an order dismissing an application for setting aside of an award, though no appeal has been preferred from the judgment.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—concld.

Once the matter has been converted into one under the Arbitration Act there is no power either for the parties or the arbitrators or the Court to act under Sch. II, C. P. C., and all steps so taken must be regarded as having been taken without jurisdiction.

A Judge has no power without consent of the parties to adjudicate upon an application made under cl. (17), Sch. II, C. P. C., as though it were made under the Arbitration Act. C NARENDRA NATH DAS v. HARAN CHANDRA GHOSE, 43 C. L. J. 292; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 750 177

——— Sch. II, para 5, ss. 104, 115—Arbitrator, order of Court as to appointment of—Agreement to refer to arbitration, order as to—Revision.

An order directing a party to nominate a substitute for an arbitrator or else the Court would nominate one itself can only be passed as ancillary to an order directing the agreement to refer to be filed. Non-compliance with this provision is both an exercise of jurisdiction not vested as well as a failure to exercise a jurisdiction vested by law in Court and furnishes a good ground for revision. L SHIB DIYAL v. ALI BAKHSH & SONS 483

——— Sch. II, para. 10—Award—Notice of filing of award, absence of—Revision.

The omission to give notice to the parties that the award has been filed by the arbitrators is a serious irregularity furnishing good ground for revision. C RANJIT CHANDRA TALUKDAR v. BISSAY RAM MANDAL 115

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 104—Allotment of shares—Agreement before formation of Company to allot shares—Ratification by Directors after registration—Liability of Company to furnish particulars—Default—Penalty.

Certain persons who purchased a business registered themselves as a Company under the Companies Act. By the terms of the contract of purchase the vendor was entitled to certain shares allotted otherwise than in cash and such allotment was, after registration of the Company, ratified by the Directors at a meeting:

Held, that there was no contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee within the meaning of s. 104 (1) of the Companies Act, and the Company was bound to furnish the particulars duly stamped under cl. (2) of the section and in default to do so, the officer responsible for the default was liable to be fined under cl. (3) of the section. M RAMASAMI CHETTY v. CHENGALRAYA PILLAI, (1926) M. W. N. 6; 23 L. W. 571; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 380; 27 Cr. L. J. 700 892

Company—Shares, calls for—Resolution by Board of Directors—Time, place, amount and person, specification of.

Where the Articles of Association authorise the Directors of a Company to make calls upon the shareholders in respect of moneys unpaid, to the persons and at the time and place appointed by the Board, the Directors must, when they make a call, fix and appoint by resolution the amount to be paid, the time and place of payment and the person to whom the same should be paid. Any failure to comply with the above requirements can be remedied by any subsequent issue of notice.

In the absence of any such provisions in the Articles of Association, the fact that the amount of the call is fixed by the terms of the issue of the shares cannot be treated as creating an obligation on the share-holders to pay such amount as and by way of a call. B PIONEER ALKALI WORKS LD. v. AMIRUDDIN SHALEBHOY, 28 Bom. L. R. 411 681

Compromise decree. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 11 844

Construction of Document.

See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17 (1) (b) 1039

See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 58 756

——— acknowledging former adoption.

A document which acknowledges the fact of a previous adoption cannot itself be a deed of adoption. O BRIJ RAJ CHANDRA v. SUBHADRA KUAR, 3 O. W. N. 321; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 324 294 ——— Disposition of property—Will or gift.

The Court must not construe an instrument prepared by a layman without legal assistance, where the question is as to whether it was intended to operate as a Will or as a transfer inter vivos, with too great nicety, or assign too much weight to the exact words the writer uses for a transfer of the property, as if he were accurately weighing the difference between a testamentary instrument and one operating inter vivos. In such a case not only the words actually used in the deed should be considered, but also the circumstances should be taken into consideration, and the matter ought to be broadly looked at. C BRAHMOPADA BHATTACHARJEE v. RAI MOHAN HALDAR 967 ——— Judgment and decree based on compromise, interpretation of.

The judgment and the decree have to be read as a whole and where they are based upon a compromise, they have to be interpreted in the light of the contents of the compromise itself. O PIRTHA SINGH v. RAJA MOHAMMAD ALI MOHAMMAD KHAN BAHADUR, 13 O. L. J. 126 188

Contempt of Court—Chamber matters, publication of—Bombay High Court, practice of—Matters relating to wards and lunatics—Publication.

The practice of the Bombay High Court has been that in all Chamber matters no report of the proceedings or of the judgments delivered are allowed to be published by the Press without the leave of the Court.

In regard to matters relating to wards and lunatics and matters in which the publication of certain facts would cause injury to the individuals this rule of practice is absolute and its breach constitutes contempt of Court. B PURSHOTTAM HURJIVAN v. NAVANITLAL HARGOVANDAS, 28 Bom. L. R. 148; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 208; 50 B. 275 15 ——— Jurisdiction of Court, when to be exercised—Obstruction of course of justice—Procedure—Discretion of Court.

A Solicitor's clerk while attempting to serve on the appellant a notice issued by the High Court was assaulted and ill-treated by the latter, and the notice had eventually to be served by affixing a copy thereof on the door of the appellant's flat:

Held, that appellant's conduct was calculated to obstruct and interfere with the due course of justice and the due administration of the law and that the appellant was, therefore, guilty of contempt of Court.

Where proceedings in a Magistrate's Court would be quite sufficient to meet the requirements of a case, it is not desirable to invoke the special jurisdiction inherent in the High Court by way of proceedings for contempt of Court.

Contempt of Court—concld.

Where, however, a Judge of the High Court has exercised his discretion and taken action by way of proceedings in contempt and the matter has been fully investigated and a definite conclusion has been arrived at, the Court will not, on the Appellate Side, interfere with the exercise of such discretion where the conclusion arrived at by the Judge on the merits is not challenged. C Bason v. Skone, 43 C. L. J. 41; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 701; 53 C. 401 532

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 11. See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 115 853

——— s. 23—Pro-note for existing liability—Criminal liability as well as civil—Pro-note, legality of.

Where a bona fide debt exists and where the transaction between the parties involves a civil liability as well as possibly a criminal act, a promissory note given by the debtor executed for the debt constitutes a valid agreement. A Radha Kishen v. Sital Prasad 465

——— ss. 23, 25—Marriage, promise of—Promise to marry married lady—Legality—Fixing day for marriage after her divorce—Promise to marry inferred.

A promise to marry a lady who is already married is void even though made in contemplation of a divorce which is subsequently effected. But where after the divorce is effected the parties fix a day for their marriage, a promise of marriage may be inferred and one is not bound to take it as a ratification of a contract which in itself is void. P C Thomas Charles William Skipp v Lilian Mildred Kelly, 50 M. L. J. 498; A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 27; 3 O. W. N. 453; 43 C. L. J. 430; 28 Bom. L. R 873; 24 L. W. 18; 30 C. W. N. 841 331

——— s. 25—Marriage, promise of—Sufficient consideration.

A promise to marry is a sufficient consideration in itself on either side. P C Thomas Charles William Skipp v. Lilian Mildred Kelly, 50 M. L. J. 498; A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 27; 3 O. W. N. 453; 43 C. L. J. 430; 28 Bom. L. R. 873; 24 L. W. 18; 30 C. W. N. 841 331

——— s. 28—Agreement to abide by decision in another matter, validity of.

An agreement to abide by the decision in certain appeal in cognate matters pending in Court between third parties and pay and receive damages according to the rate fixed by the decision in the said appeal and not to raise any question as to breach of contract or any other contention and to treat the agreement as a new arrangement giving rise to a fresh cause of action, is neither without consideration nor illegal nor opposed to public policy and can be legally enforced. S Rameshwerdas Benarsidas v. New Jooria Bazar Sugar Co. 371

——— s. 30——*Contract for sale of goods—Presumption as to nature of transaction—*Badni transaction, proof of.

The ordinary presumption is in favour of the legality of a contract and it is for those who assert that it was not intended to perform the contract in the manner recited therein to prove their assertion.

In order to prove that a transaction is wagering one it is necessary to prove that no delivery was originally intended and also that it was agreed between the parties at the time the contract was entered into, that neither party would be entitled to enforce the actual delivery of goods.

The mere fact that a transaction is a speculative one does not make it a wagering one.

Contract Act—contd.

The mere fact that neither of the parties deal in the commodity contracted to be sold and that in previous transactions the parties merely settled by payment of differences does not prove a transaction to be a badni one. L Kanwar Bhan-Sukha Nand v. Ganpat Rai-Ram Jiwan, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 318 304

——— s. 30—Wagering contract, definition of.

A wagering contract is one where two persons professing to hold opposite views touching the issue of a future uncertain event, mutually agree that, dependant upon the determination of that event, one shall win from the other and that other shall pay or hand over to him a sum of money or other stake, neither of the contracting parties having any other interest in that contract than the sum or stake he shall so win or lose, there being no other real consideration for the making of such contract by either of the parties. S Rameshwerdas Benarsidas v. New Jooria Bazar Sugar Co. 371

——— ss. 39, 48—Contract, refusal to perform—Other party, remedies of—Rescission of contract.

Where a person who has contracted to supply goods to another writes to say that he will not supply the goods, the latter has three courses open to him. He can write back accepting the position and so fulfil the requirements of s. 39 of the Contract Act. He can also act upon the refusal by going to the open market and purchasing the goods therefrom. In either of these cases he can sue for damages. If he does not adopt either of these courses, he can ignore the refusal and treat the contract as still subsisting. But if he does so, it must inure for the benefit of both sides, and s. 48 of the Contract Act will apply.

Therefore, where a person has contracted to supply goods to another throughout the year according to his requirements, the latter, on a refusal by the former to supply the goods, must accept or reject the offer of rescission there and then. It is not possible for him to go on accepting the offer by instalments throughout the year. If he does not take action by word or deed, he cannot keep alive the contract for his own purpose and treat it as rescinded so far as any benefit to the other party is concerned. In other words if he does not adopt either of the alternative courses by which he can put an end to the contract, he must inform the other party of his requirements as they arise, to enable him, if he wishes, to carry out the contract as it affects the remaining instalments. L Jawahar Singh v. Secretary of State for India, 8 L. L. J. 114; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 292 635

——— s. 48. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 39 635

——— ss. 51, 93—"Readiness and willingness" of promisee, meaning of—Purchaser's duty to demand delivery.

The expression "readiness and willingness" as used in s. 51, Contract Act, does not require a party to prove that on the due date he had the goods actually in his possession. It is quite sufficient if he is able to prove that he had control of the requisite goods or that he had the capacity to deliver them to the purchaser when called upon to do so.

Under s. 93, Contract Act, it is the duty of the purchaser to apply for delivery on tendering the agreed price. L Kanwar Bhan-Sukha Nand v. Ganpat Rai-Ram Jiwan, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 318 304

——— s. 59—Appropriation of payment to one of several debts—Uncommunicated appropriation, effect of.

A debtor who has more than one debt to pay to the same creditor and makes a payment, is not bound to intimate to the creditor the appropriation he desires along with the payment itself or so soon afterwards as to form part of the same transaction, but may do so after a reasonable interval.

The essence of an appropriation under s 59, Contract Act, is that it should be known to both parties.

An uncommunicated entry in an account-book of the creditor is not effective as between the parties. M CHEGGANMULL v. DESUR MANIKA MUDALIAR, 50 M. L. J. 242 384

——— ss. 59, 61—Debtor and creditor—Payment—Appropriation

The rights to adopt the manner of appropriation rests directly with the debtor. In the absence of any direction of the debtor it is open to his creditor to appropriate the payment towards any of his debts, and lastly, if there is no intimation by the debtor at the time of payment with regard to appropriation by the creditor, then it is open to the creditor to insist upon the appropriation being made in the chronological order in which the debts stand. Pat F. H. MANISTY v. J. V. JAMESON, 5 Pat. 326 273

——— s. 68—Bulls supplied to minor, whether necessaries.

The question whether the bulls supplied to a minor are a necessity or not depends upon the particular circumstances of the case. M SRINIVASA PILLAI v. BALASUBRAMANIA ODAYAR, (1926) M. W. N. 294; A. I. R. 1926 Mad 592 534

——— s. 69—Mortgage—Decree for sale—Decree obtained by landlord for arrears of rent, paid off by mortgagee—Sale of property by mortgagor—Mortgagee, whether entitled to recover money paid by him.

Section 69 of the Contract Act includes cases not only of personal liability but all liabilities to payment for which owners of land are indirectly liable, when such liabilities are imposed on lands held by them.

Where a mortgagee who has obtained a decree for sale of the mortgaged property pays off a decree obtained by the landlord in respect of such property in order to save the property from sale under the landlord's decree, he is entitled to maintain a simple suit for money against a subsequent purchaser from the mortgagor for the purpose of recovering the amount paid by him under the landlord's decree. C SARAJUBALA ROY CHAUDHURANI v. KAMINI KUMAR, 43 C. L. J. 142; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 765 811 ——— ss. 69, 70, scope of—Contribution—Equity—Liabilities of parties, determination of.

The right of contribution has its foundation in and is controlled by the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. It does not arise from contract, although it has sometimes been based on the theory of an implied contract for contribution supposed to exist between the parties jointly liable ex-contractu.

A Court as a Court of justice, equity and good conscience may, in certain circumstances, although such circumstances do not bring the case strictly within the purview of ss. 69 and 70 of the Contract Act, allow contribution if the claim appears to be either just or equitable.

In a suit for contribution, the respective liabilities of the parties should be ascertained and determined once for all and nothing should be left undetermined which may lead to further litigation for the ascertainment of such liability between two or more of the parties to the suit. C REGISTERED JESSORE LOAN CO. v. GOPAL HARI GHOSE, 30 C. W. N. 366; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 657 159

——— s. 73. See INTEREST ACT, 1839, s. 1 647

——— s. 73—Contract for payment of money—Breach—Damages—Method of assessment—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 35, scope of—"Court rate of interest", meaning of—Court, whether bound to award 6 per cent. per annum.

In ascertaining under s 73 of the Contract Act the loss or damage caused by a breach of contract for the payment of money all that is to be done is to find out the rate of interest that the person to whom it ought to have been paid, would have got on it in the ordinary way, if it had been paid. The rate or amount of interest which was originally promised and that promised in case the original promise was broken come in only as a guide in ascertaining what rate of interest ought to have been paid and as a maximum.

There is no such thing as a "Court rate of interest". What is usually so called is merely the maximum rate which the Court may order to be paid on the costs under s. 35 of the C. P. C.

The rate of 6 per cent. per annum may in some cases be the appropriate rate of interest to allow for damages, though the fact that it is the rate mentioned in s. 35, C. P. C., does not make it so. N KISHANLAL v. BAPU 971

——— s. 73—Suit based on breach of contract and for damages—Maintainability.

In one and the same suit one defendant may be sued for breach of contract and the other for damages for wrongful detention of goods, both claims being covered by two parts of the same section of the Contract Act, i. e., s. 73. N RAMCHARAN v. SARWAR KHAN 999

——— ss. 73, 107—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 34—Sale of goods—Breach of contract—Re-sale beyond reasonable time after breach, effect of—Damages, suit for—Date of breach, determination of—Measure of damages—Interest pendente lite, whether can be awarded.

Where a contract for the sale of goods empowers the seller to re-sell the goods at the risk of the buyer in case the latter fails to take delivery, the re-sale must be held within a reasonable time from the date of such failure and the same rule applies to a re-sale held under the provisions of s. 107 of the Contract Act.

Where the time for performing a contract of sale has been postponed, at the request either of vendor or purchaser, and the contract is ultimately broken, this has the effect of deferring the period at which the breach takes place and, therefore, alters the date with reference to which the damages are to be calculated. The old contract continues, but the date of the breach is shifted. The damages for non-delivery or non-acceptance of the goods will be calculated at the market price of such goods on the last day to which the contract was extended if a date was fixed, or at the date when the plaintiff refused to grant further indulgence, or at a reasonable period after his last grant of an indulgence.

A plaintiff who sues for damages owes the duty of taking all reasonable steps to mitigate the loss consequent upon the breach and cannot claim as damages any sum which is due to his own neglect. But the loss to be ascertained is the loss at the date of the breach. If at that date the plaintiff could do something or did something which mitigated the damage the defendant is entitled to the benefit of it.

Contract Act—contd.

Where a breach of a contract for the sale of goods is committed by the buyer and the seller does not exercise his power of re-sale within a reasonable time, the correct measure of damages is the difference between the contract rate and market rate at the date of breach and not the market rate at the expiration of a reasonable time from the date of breach within which the re-sale should have taken place. It is immaterial in such a case whether the property in the goods has or has not passed to the buyer.

A clause in a contract for the sale of goods giving the power of re-sale to the seller confers a valid right on the latter to claim the difference between the contract price and the price realized at the re-sale, provided that power has been exercised in accordance with the provisions of the clause. But where that power has not been exercised within a reasonable time the only right of the seller is to claim damages on the footing of the difference between the contract price and the market value of the goods on the date of the breach, without any reference to the price which might be realized by a re-sale at any time after the limit of the reasonable time has been exceeded.

Where a party responsible for a breach of contract improperly delays the ascertainment of damages for a long time, interest on the damages awarded from the date of the institution of the suit may be decreed under s. 34 of the C. P. C. B Coorla Spinning & Weaving Mills Co. v. Vallabhdas Kallianji, 27 Bom. L. R. 168; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 547 575

——— s. 93. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 61 304

——— s. 107. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 73 575

——— s. 116—'Latent defect', meaning of—Sale by sample—Open delivery—Refund, suit for, whether maintainable—Damages.

Where in a case of sale of goods by sample open delivery is taken after examination of the goods and the goods are subsequently discovered to be defective, the purchaser cannot claim a refund of the purchase-money, his only remedy is by way of damages.

The expression "latent defect" in s. 116 of the Contract Act means a defect which is not obvious to the eye and is not apparently noticeable.

Section 116 of the Contract Act is applicable to a case of sale by sample. C Jatindra Chandra Banerjee v. Murlidhar, 43 C. L. J. 126; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 749 873

——— s. 121—Sale of shares of Company by delivery of certificates and blank transfers—Cheque for price dishonoured—Title in shares—Vendee transferring certificates and transfers to third party—Plaintiff vendor's suit for recovery of certificates and transfers—Proper remedy of plaintiff.

Plaintiff sold certain shares of Company to defendant No. 1. He took from various brokers blank transfers signed by the registered holders along with corresponding certificates and handed them over to the defendant No. 1. The defendant No. 1 gave the plaintiff a cheque which was dishonoured. The defendant No 1 made certain propositions as to the raising of money with defendant No. 2 and handed the certificates and transfers to him. Defendant No. 2 did likewise with defendant No. 3. In an action by the plaintiff against all the three defendants asking for return of the certificates and blank transfers or otherwise for damages :

Held, that as soon as the plaintiff handed over the certificates and transfers and the defendant accepted them and gave a cheque, property in the shares passed to the defendant No 1 and the plaintiff had neither any jus in re of the certificates and transfers nor had he any statutory lien on them. The plaintiff could only sue the defendant No 1 on the cheque or on the price of the shares unpaid in respect that the cheque had not been honoured and could not sue defendants Nos. 2 and 3 for delivery of shares. P. C. Maneckji Pestonji Bharucha v. Wadilal Sarabhai & Co., A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 38; 43 C. L. J. 508; 24 A. L. J. 657; 28 Bom. L. R. 777; 51 M. L. J. 1; 50 B. 360; (1926) M. W. N. 499 824

——— ss. 140, 141—Principal and agent—Contract entered into by guaranteeing agent—Breach of contract—Suit to recover damages—Principal, whether necessary party—Principal added as co-plaintiff after expiry of limitation—Limitation Act, 1908, s. 22—Suit, whether barred.

Where a contract for the sale of goods is entered into by a selling agent who is in the position of a guaranteeing agent towards his principal and who on default by the buyer in taking delivery of the goods has paid to the principal the amount due in respect of the goods, the agent is entitled in equity to assignment of the principal's rights against the buyer under the contract and is entitled to maintain a suit against the buyer for recovery of damages. Such an agent may also be treated as being in the position of a surety who has paid all that he is liable for and who upon such payment is invested with all the rights which his principal had against the buyer and becomes entitled to the benefits of every security held by the principal. To a suit by the agent in such a case to recover damages from the buyer, the principal is a proper rather than a necessary party and the suit will not be deemed to be barred by time if the principal is not added as a co-plaintiff until after the period of limitation has expired. B Coorla Spinning & Weaving Mills Co. v. Vallabhdas Kallianji, 27 Bom. L. R. 1168; A. I R 1925 Bom. 547 575

——— ss. 251, 263—Partnership, dissolution of—Rights and obligations of partners.

Under ss. 251 and 263 of the Contract Act after dissolution of partnership the rights and obligations of partners continue in all things necessary for winding up the business of the partnership. S Rameshwerdas Benarsidas v. New Jooria Bazar Sugar Co. 371

——— s. 253—Partnership—Death of partner—Agreement by managing member of joint Hindu family to continue partnership, effect of—Right to sue for accounts of old partnership, whether survives.

Ordinarily a partnership is dissolved by the death of one of the partners but there may be an implied contract to continue the partnership after the death of a partner and in such a case the partnership would continue between the persons who have entered into such contract. Where such a contract is entered into by the managing member of a joint Hindu family not on behalf of the members of the family but acting merely on his own behalf, the contract is not binding on the other members of the family.

Where a partnership is continued after the death of one of the partners it is, however, technically a new partnership and not the old partnership. On the death of a partner each surviving partner is presumed, where the partnership is continued, to invest in the new partnership his share of the assets of the dissolved partnership and to take over his share of the liabilities of that partnership. So that even where a partnership is so continued one of the continuing partners has a right to demand a settlement of accounts of the old partnership up to the date of the death of the deceased partner, and he does not lose his right to such an account by reason of his agreement with the surviving partners to continue the partnership. S TANUMAL v. GANGA RAM, A. I. R. 1925 Sind. 103 547

Contract Act—concld.

Contribution. See CONTRACT ACT, 1872, s. 69 159

Co-operative Societies Act (II of 1912), s. 42 (6), r. 42—Dissolution of registered society—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts—Liquidator's order, appeal from.

A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to question the legality of the acts of a liquidator in a matter connected with the dissolution of a registered society.

Under r. 42 of the rules under the Co-operative Societies Act II of 1912 made applicable to the Central Provinces by Notification No. 355 of the 26th September 1916 no appeal lies from any order of a liquidator. N SADASHEO v. FADNAVIS 40

Co-owners—Possession of one, whether adverse to others. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, s. 144 855

——— Suit for rent by one. See C. P. C., 1908, O. VI, R. 17 244

Co-sharers—Joint land—Exclusive occupation by one—Partition—Joint possession.

Where one of the co-sharers exclusively occupies land which he holds in common with the rest of the co-sharers, the remedy of the other co-sharers is by means of partition. A suit for joint possession is not maintainable. O KESHO PRASAD v. GAYA BUX SINGH 921

Counsel and Client—Attorney—Costs, charging order for—Decree-holder's claim—Priority.

The attorney's right to a lien for his costs is ancillary to the right he has of recovering his costs against his client. Where the attorney is unable to show that he cannot get payment from his client where others besides the client are interested in the fund, the Court would not exercise its discretion in favour of attorney against the other parties so interested. B ANANDRAO BHICARI SABNIS v. NAPU PATRAMUL, 28 Bom. L. R. 386; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 289 153

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), ss. 7 (1), 17—Redemption of kanom, suit for—Damages, claim for—Court-fee payable.

Where in a suit for redemption of a kanom, the plaintiff seeks to deduct from the kanom amount certain damages to which he claims to be entitled, he is bound to pay Court-fee not only on the kanom amount but also an ad valorem fee on the amount claimed as damages.

When damages are sued for, s. 7 (1) of the Court Fees Act must apply, and redemption and damages are two distinct subjects as contemplated by s. 17. M GOVINDAN NAIR v. KANHAIRATHOTIKAYIL ITALLUTTY, 50 M. L. J. 213; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 542; (1926) M. W. N. 442 557

——— s. 7 (iv) (c)—Valuation of injunction accepted by District Judge—Interference in revision. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 103

——— s. 7 (iv) (c), Sch. I, Art. 1—Suit for declaration with general prayer for any other relief—Ad interim injunction granted—Appeal from dismissal of suit—Court-fee payable.

A vague and indefinite prayer for "any other relief to which plaintiff may be entitled" which is customarily added in a suit, does not turn a suit for mere declaration into one for a declaration with a consequential relief within the meaning of s. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act.

Where, however, in a suit for declaration an ad interim injunction is granted on the application of the plaintiffs and on dismissal of the suit the plaintiffs in appeal seek reliefs which they had sought in first Court, the case falls under s. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act and the Court-fee leviable on memorandum of appeal is ad valorem. Pat GANGADHAR MISRA v. DEBENDRABALA DASI, 5 Pat. 211; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 249 22

——— s. 7 (iv) (d)—Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8—Injunction, suit for—Valuation—Court-fee payable.

Under the provisions of s. 8 of the Suits Valuation Act the value of a suit for an injunction for the purposes of Court-fees and of jurisdiction must be the same and Court-fee must be paid according to the amount at which the relief sought is valued in the plaint. A BACHHAN v. MUNICIPAL BOARD, MIRZAPUR, 24 A. L. J. 478 951

——— s. 7 (iv) (f)—Suit for accounts—Plaintiff's valuation.

In a suit for rendition of accounts, the option or discretion of the plaintiff in fixing his valuation is not confined to those cases where the value of the relief cannot be ascertained at the time the plaint is presented. L RIKHI KESH v. MELA RAM, 8 L. L. J. 78; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 242 650

——— s. 7 (v) (b)—Land assessed to revenue—Suit for possession by cancellation of deed—Court-fee payable.

A suit for possession of land assessed to revenue by setting aside the sale in favour of the defendant falls under s. 7 (v) (b) of the Court Fees Act and the Court-fee payable is on five times the revenue. O SARJU v. SHEORAJ, 13 O. L. J. 124; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 380 179

——— s. 7 (v) and (xi) (e)—Suit for possession by occupancy tenant—Valuation of suit.

A suit for possession by an occupancy tenant against his landlord on the basis of illegal ejectment falls under s. 7 (xi) (e), Court Fees Act, only when there is no question of title to be gone into. But when a question of title is involved the case would fall under s. 7 (v) of the Act and the Court-fee payable would be on the market value. Pat KRISHNA CHANDRA GAUNTIA v. RAJA MAHAKUR, 5 Pat. 208; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 251 19

——— s. 12—Set-off—Court-fee not paid—District Judge, power of, in appeal—Document admitted without Court-fee—Party's right to object.

It is open to an Appellate Court to direct a defendant, who has obtained a set-off in the Trial Court without paying Court-fee on his written statement, to pay the Court-fee before allowance of the set-off.

Where once a document, such as an unstamped written statement of a defendant claiming a set-off, has been admitted in the Trial Court without objection, it is not for the plaintiff to say in appeal that the document should be struck off from the record; the Court is entitled to allow the defendant on payment of proper fee, to rely upon the set-off. B MANEKLAL

Court Fees Act- concld.

VADILAL v. CHANDULAL BALABHAI SHAH, 28 Bom. L. R. 525 646

——— s. 17. See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 7 (i) 557

——— s. 19-I—Hindu Law—Joint family—Survivorship—Letters of Administration, application for—Court-fee payable.

No administration need be taken out to the estate of a Hindu governed by the Mitakshara Law when the estate passes by the right of survivorship to his co-parceners, but where a grant is sought the applicant must comply with the provisions of s. 19-I of the Court Fees Act. The provisions of the section are imperative and the Court has no power to relax them. C In the goods of BHUBANESHWAR TRIGONAIT, 29 C. W. N. 372; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 627 986

——— Sch. I, Art. 1—Appeal from decree on award—Court-fee.

An appeal from a decree based on an award filed through the intervention of Court must bear ad valorem Court-fee. L GAURI SHANKAR v. ANANT RAM 646

——— Sch. II, Art. 10—Power of appointment filed by Advocate, whether liable to pay Court-fee.

A power of appointment in writing filed by an Advocate, whether he is a Barrister or not, authorising him to make or do any appearance, application or act on behalf of his client, requires the Court-fee payable upon a vakalatnama as prescribed in Art. 10 of Sch. II to the Court Fees Act. Pat ABDUL GHAFFAR v. MRS. F. B. DOWNING, (1925) Pat. 4; 7 P. L. T. 213; 5 Pat. 255; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 246; 5 Pat. 415 841

Court of Wards Act (IX B. C. of 1879), s. 60—Hindu widow—Surrender, validity of—Estate under management of Court of Wards, effect of.

A surrender by a Hindu widow of the whole of her interest in the estate of her deceased husband in favour of the nearest reversioner or reversioners at the time of the surrender is valid, provided it is a bona fide surrender and not a device to divide the estate with the reversioners.

Where a Hindu widow's estate is under the management of the Court of Wards, the widow is not competent to surrender the estate to the nearest reversioner of her husband. Any such surrender is void under the provisions of s. 60 of the Court of Wards Act. P. C. MAN SINGH v. NAWLAKHBATI, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 2; 24 A. L. J. 250; 50 M. L. J. 332; 43 C. L. J. 259; (1926) M. W. N. 332; 7 P. L. T. 223; 5 Pat. 290; 28 Bom. L. R. 841 830

Criminal Procedure—Corroboration—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 114, illus. (b)—Approver—Corroboration of approvers inter se—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 411, offence under—Corroboration required.

An approver is unworthy of credit as against each accused unless corroborated in material particulars.

One approver cannot corroborate another approver unless there is something on the record to show that they had no chance of collaboration before giving evidence.

The evidence that the accused appeared before certain panchayats which made certain enquiries into certain thefts or that they received moneys (bhungas) promising to restore property cannot be corroborative evidence of an offence under s. 401, Penal Code.

The corroborative evidence of witnesses that the assembling of the accused at a particular well was always followed by a theft is not sufficient corroboration where none of the witnesses ever reported to the Police at the time of the occurrence of any one of the thefts that it was preceded by a meeting of the accused at a particular well. L MUNSHI v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 600 264

——— Defence, weakness of.

The guilt of a person accused of a crime has to be established by the evidence for the prosecution and not by the weakness of the defence. L EMPEROR v. SAIN DASS, 8 L. L. J. 180; 27 Cr. L. J. 593 257

———.

Distinction between an irregularity and illegality discussed. R ABDUL RAHMAN v. EMPEROR, 4 Bur. L. J. 213; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 63; 27 Cr. L J 669 717

——— Examination of witnesses, mode of—Medical witness, whether can prove statement made in another trial.

A medical witness, like any other witness in a case, must be examined orally in the presence of the accused and cannot in lieu of such examination be allowed to prove statements made by him at the trial of other accused persons in the absence of the accused against whom his evidence is being recorded. L SARDARA v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 571 139

——— Hostile witnesses.

The prosecution is not entitled to declare a witness hostile merely because he is a neighbour of the accused and does not support the prosecution story unless there is something in his deposition which conflicts with earlier statements made by him, and which would afford ground for thinking that he has been gained over by the defence. Pat PARMESHWAR DAYAL v. EMPEROR, (1926) Pat. 139; 27 Cr. L. J. 657; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 316; 7 P. L. T. 567 705

——— Murder case—Local inspection and preparation of plan by Trying Judge—Trial Judge's opinion about witnesses—Witnesses credibility not shaken—Judge's duty.

It is a commendable procedure on the part of the Trying Judge to visit the spot on the conclusion of a murder case and to prepare a plan of the locality showing as to who are the witnesses who live in close proximity to the house of the deceased.

Considerable weight must be attached to the opinion of the Judge who hears the witnesses as to their relative credibility. Where the record does not show that the witnesses on either side have been materially discredited or greatly shaken in cross-examination it is the duty of the Judge to decide which side are telling the truth. Where the Judge has tried the case with marked care and intelligence, his opinion as to credibility of witnesses should ordinarily be accepted. O MUKTA PRASAD v. EMPEROR, 13 O. L. J. 69; 27 Cr. L. J. 577 193

——— Police diaries, nature of entries in—Discrepancy between diaries and inquiry—Effect.

The entries in the Police diaries are not exhaustive and in a protracted inquiry before the Trial Court little weight attaches to a discrepancy between those entries and the inquiry. O MUKTA PRASAD v. EMPEROR, 13 O. L. J. 69; 27 Cr. L. J. 577 193 ——— Technical objections by Crown.

The Crown does not usually take technical objections either on the criminal or the civil side, whereby the doing of substantial justice may be defeated. L EMPEROR v. ATMA SINGH, 8 L. L. J. 82; 27 Cr. L. J. 696 888

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 55, 110—Arrest of suspected criminal—Powers of Police Officer—Warrant, nature of, when action contemplated under s. 110.

A Police Officer may first arrest any person as is mentioned in s. 55 of the Cr. P. C., and then make up his mind whether to proceed against him for some substantive offence or to put him before a Magistrate in order that proceedings under Ch. VIII may be taken against him.

If it is intended that a Police Officer should arrest a man with a view of taking proceedings under s. 110, Cr. P. C., it is strictly and specifically necessary that he should specify one of the clauses given in s. 55, although it may be for the cause so stated that he intends to proceed under s. 110. S HARDAYAL SINGH v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 628 404

——— ss. 69, 70, 71, 133, 134 (1)—Nuisance—Conditional order—Service of notice—Procedure.

The procedure for service of summons which is provided by s. 71 of the Cr. P. C., cannot be made use of unless service in the manner mentioned in ss. 69 and 70 cannot be effected by the exercise of due diligence.

Where the report of a peon shows that service cannot be effected in the manner provided by s. 69, but it does not show that service cannot be effected in the manner provided by s. 70, the peon is not justified in effecting service in the manner provided by s. 71.

A return of service of notice of a conditional order made under s. 133 of the Cr. P. C. showed that the person to be served was not found in his house and that two copies of the notice were affixed to the door of the house:

Held, that there being nothing to show that service could not be effected in the manner provided by s. 70 of the Code, the service effected in the manner provided by s. 71 was not sufficient. C BENI MADHAB SAPUI v JARU NATH SAPUI, 43 C. L. J. 113; 27 Cr. L. J. 715 907

——— s. 106—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 452, conviction under—Security for keeping peace.

On conviction under s. 452, Penal Code, no security can be demanded for keeping the peace as the offence does not involve any breach of the peace. L SANTOSH SINGH v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 571 139

——— s. 109—Attempt to avoid Police patrol—Security.

An attempt to avoid a Police patrol cannot bring the case of a shop keeper residing in a town within the ambit of s. 109, Cr. P. C. L GANDOO v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 573 141

——— s. 110. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 55 404

——— ss. 110, 112, 115—Copy of order not sent with notice—Notice, defective—Effect.

Where it appears that the person proceeded against under s. 110, Cr. P. C., was sufficiently informed as to the allegation against him an order passed against him on such proceedings cannot be set aside on the sole ground that the provisions of ss. 112 and 115 of the Code were not strictly complied with. L DAYA RAM v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 575 143

——— ss. 110, 118, 406, 417—Magistrate directing security to be furnished for good behaviour—Sessions Judge ordering accused to be discharged—Appeal by Local Government to High Court, whether maintainable—High Court's power to interfere on revision.

The order of a Sessions Judge passed on appeal under s. 406, Cr. P. C., discharging an accused ordered by a Magistrate under s. 118, Cr. P. C., to furnish security for good behaviour under s. 110, Cr. P. C., cannot be considered to be an original or an appellate order of acquittal within the meaning of s. 417 of the Cr. P. C., so as to give the Local Government a right of appeal to the High Court.

The Local Government has, however, a right to approach the High Court in revision and where the evidence against the accused is sufficient to justify his being bound over to be of good behaviour, it is open to the High Court to set aside the order of discharge and direct the accused to furnish security. O EMPEROR v. SAMAI DEEN, 3 O. W. N. 390; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 399; 13 O. L. J. 276; 27 Cr. L. J. 626 402

——— s. 133. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 69 907

——— s. 145—Dispute with regard to immoveable property—"Forcibly and wrongfully," meaning of—Order confirming possession, duration of—Revision.

Per Marten, J.—The distinction drawn in the first proviso to sub-s. (4) of s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., is between forcible entries which are rightful and forcible entries which are wrongful; and that depends on whether the person entering was entitled to use force, and not merely on whether he had a legal right to possession.

Per Pratt, J.—The phrase "forcibly and wrongfully" used in the first proviso to sub-s. (4) of s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., has the same meaning as forcible entry without due warrant of law; in other words "wrongfully" means no more than "otherwise than in due course of law."

Possession taken by a show of force is a forcible dispossession within the meaning of the first proviso to sub-s. (4) of s. 145.

Per Fawcett and Madgavkar, JJ.—Sub-s. (6) of s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., and the connected form No. 22 of Sch. V to the Code allow a Magistrate to give directions as to possession with a legal effect that is valid until actual eviction or ouster by due course of law and not merely until the institution of a civil suit for the purpose of determining the legal right to the property. B BAI JIBA v. CHANDULAL AMBALAL, 27 Bom. L. R. 1353; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 91; 27 Cr. L. J. 661 709 ——— ss. 145, 537—Dispute as to immoveable property—Preliminary order, service and publication of—Irregularity.

Under sub-s. (3) of s. 145 of the Cr. P. C., a copy of the preliminary order made by the Magistrate must be served on the parties and must also be published by being posted on the land itself. The failure to serve and publish the order in this manner is, however, an irregularity which is curable under the provisions of s. 537 of the Code and does not by itself vitiate the proceedings. R MAUNG MAUK v. MAUNG PO YON, 3 R. 169; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 270; 27 Cr. L. J. 660 708

——— s. 148 (3). See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 439 709

——— s. 162. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 27 901

——— s. 162—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 27—Statement of accused by gesture in Police custody—Admissibility.

Section 162, Cr. P. C., prevails over the provisions of s. 27 of the Evidence Act.

A statement can be made by means other than words. Therefore, the gesture of the accused in pointing out to the Police where revolver lies is inadmissible in evidence. R EMPEROR v. NGA KYAING, 3 R. 656; 27 Cr. L. J. 658; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 112 706

——— s. 162—Police diaries, improper use of.

To believe a witness because a perusal of the Police diaries shows that he was examined at earliest opportunity and had made the same statement is to make an improper use of the diaries. L Fazal v. Emperor, 27 Cr. L. J. 614 358

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— s. 162—Police diaries, use of.

A Magistrate is not justified in referring to the statements made in the Police diaries unless and until the witnesses have been confronted by these statements. L Municipal Committee, Simla v. Mukand Singh, 27 Cr. L. J. 607 271

——— s. 162—Statement before Police during investigation, use of, at trial—Duty of Judge.

Statements made by any person to a Police Officer in course of an investigation under Ch. XIV, Cr. P. C., cannot be used for any purpose except to contradict a witness at the request of the accused in the manner provided in second paragraph of s. 162 of the Code.

Where a witness supported prosecution in his statement before the Police but resiled from that statement before the Committing Magistrate and Sessions Court, it is the duty of the Judge to withhold from the Jury's knowledge the statement made by the witness to the Police unless it was proved in the manner provided by law at the request of the accused. C Gahur Howldar v. Emperor, 30 C. W. N. 503; 27 Cr. L. J. 641; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 793 593

——— s. 164—Confession, recording of, in Calcutta of offence committed in Mofussil—Formalities to be observed.

Where an accused is arrested in Calcutta in pursuance of a request made by the Police at Burdwan who evidently were holding the investigation with regard to the matter under the provisions of Ch. XIV, Cr. P. C., the arrest and production of the accused before a Magistrate at Calcutta for recording of confession must be taken to have been an act done in the process of investigation that was being held and the Magistrate is bound to comply with provisions of s. 164, Cr. P. C., in recording the confession.

Where a Magistrate records the accused's confession not in the form prescribed for recording confessions but puts down the gist of the confession in the narrative form without recording the questions put to and answers given by the accused, though both the Magistrate and the accused are Bengalees, and does not remember the exact words used by the accused, and the only warning which he gives to the accused is that he asks the accused whether he is willing to make a voluntary confession and that if he makes a confession that might be used against him, and does not inform the accused that he is a Magistrate nor does he put to the accused questions to find out whether the reply which the accused is about to make is a voluntary one, there is no compliance with requirements of law for recording a confession. C Emperor v. Garib Hari, 30 C. W. N. 454; 27 Cr. L. J. 921; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 712 365

——— s. 172—Police diaries, use of.

To disbelieve defence story on the ground that it is nowhere mentioned in the Police zimnis amounts to using the zimnis in such a way as to strengthen the case for prosecution and it is against the provisions of the Cr. P. C. L Dini v. Emperor, 27 Cr. L. J. 572 140

——— ss. 196, 403—Sanction to prosecute, absence of—Acquittal for want of sanction—Subsequent trial after obtaining sanction, whether barred.

In the absence of a sanction by the Local Government a Court is not competent to try an accused person for an offence under s. 171F of the Penal Code. Where, therefore, an accused person who is charged with an offence under s. 171F is acquitted on the ground of want of sanction, such an acquittal does not bar a subsequent trial for the same offence after the necessary sanction is obtained. A Ram Nath v. Emperor, 24 A. L. J. 180; A. I. R. 1926 All. 231; 27 Cr. L. J. 705; L. R. 7 A. 18 897

——— ss. 200, 201, 202, 203—Preliminary inquiry—Magistrate, duty of—Procedure—Accused, whether can be called upon to show cause.

The procedure which a Magistrate is required to adopt on a complaint being lodged before him is laid down by ss. 200 to 203 of the Cr. P. C. Section 200 of the Code makes it incumbent on a Magistrate to examine the complainant forthwith at sufficient length to satisfy himself as to his veracity and as to any points on which the complaint is silent. If the result of such examination is that he finds no prima facie reason to distrust the complaint and he is satisfied that the facts alleged before him constitute a criminal offence, it is incumbent on him to issue process forthwith. If, on the other hand, he distrusts the complaint altogether or comes to the conclusion that no offence is made out, it is equally his duty to dismiss the complaint. It is only in a case where he distrusts the complainant, but his distrust is not sufficiently strong to warrant him to act upon it, that it is open to him to postpone the issue of process pending further inquiry as contemplated by s. 202, Cr. P. C., provided he records his reasons in writing for adopting this intermediate course.

The procedure of calling upon an accused person to render an explanation to enable the Magistrate to decide if he should issue process is undesirable. It is not fair to the accused that he should be called upon to state his defence before the prosecution have laid all their cards on the table. Though there is no obligation on him either to appear or to render an explanation in the preliminary inquiry, a refusal or failure on his part to attend in answer to a Rule nisi issued by a Magistrate is likely to prejudice the mind of the Magistrate and a compliance therewith to expose him to serious risks.

In determining whether he should exercise his criminal jurisdiction, a Magistrate should apply his mind to see if there is "prima facie evidence for the alleged offender to answer" irrespective of what the motive of the complainant was. S Crowder v. Morrison, 27 Cr. L. J. 711 903

——— ss. 201, 211. See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 509 (a) 896

——— ss. 235, 233, 190 (1) (c)—Conspiracy—Sameness of transaction—Complaint, offence disclosed in—Joint trial—Joint charges—Non-compliance with s. 360, whether illegality.

The offence of conspiracy and offences committed in pursuance of that conspiracy form one and the same transaction.

When a Magistrate has taken cognizance of an offence upon complaint, it is competent for him to take cognizance of any offence that is disclosed by evidence.

Therefore, where a Magistrate acting on the facts disclosed in the evidence for the prosecution adds a second charge in respect of an act alleged to have been done in pursuance of the alleged conspiracy contained in the complaint, his action is not only justified under s. 235, Cr. P. C., but such initiation taken by him is on the original complaint and not upon his own knowledge or suspicion.

Where an act of the accused is done in pursuance of the conspiracy mentioned in the original complaint, a charge in respect of that act may be framed without any further complaint.

Where the offences form part of the same transaction and law allows their joint trial, it is immaterial whether the two offences are included in one charge or whether they are separated and each of them made the basis of a charge R ABDUR RAHMAN v. EMPEROR, 4 Bur. L. J. 213; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 53; 27 Cr. L. J. 669 717

——— ss. 236, 237—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 467, 471—Charge of abetting forgery—Conviction for using forged document—Legality.

An offence of abetment of forgery is quite distinct from one of using a forged document. In a trial on a charge of abetment of forgery, an accused cannot be convicted for an offence of using a forged document.

Before a person is convicted under a particular section of the Penal Code or of any other enactment it is imperative that subject to the provisions of s. 237, Cr. P. C., he should be formally charged with having committed the offence specified in the section and be given an opportunity to defend himself against the specified charge. C HARUN RASHID v. EMPEROR, 30 C. W. N. 432; A. I. R. 1926 Cal 581; 27 Cr. L. J. 606; 53 C 466 270

——— s. 237—Charge under s. 302, Penal Code—Conviction under s. 201, Penal Code.

A person charged with an offence of murder can be convicted under s. 201, Penal Code, without a further charge being made against him under that section. Such a conviction is warranted by s. 237, Cr. P. C. L RANNUN v. EMPEROR, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 88; 7 L. 84; 27 Cr. L. J. 709 901

——— ss. 238, 269 (3), 418—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 411, 412—Trial by Jury—Conviction for minor offence triable with Assessors, legality of—Appeal on facts, whether lies.

Accused were charged with an offence under s 412 of the Penal Code, which was an offence triable by a Jury, and were tried by a Jury. The Jury brought in a verdict of guilty under s. 411 of the Code, which was an offence triable with the aid of Assessors:

Held, (1) that having regard to the provisions of s. 238 of the Cr. P. C, the accused could be convicted of an offence under s. 411 of the Penal Code;

(2) that the provisions of s. 418 of the Cr. P. C. were applicable to the case and that the accused were not entitled to appeal against their conviction on the facts. B GULABCHAND DOSAJI v. EMPEROR, 27 Bom. L. R. 1416; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 134; 27 Cr. L. J. 650 602

——— s. 249—Warrant cases—Magistrate's power to stop case and release accused—Starting case afresh on complaint—Legality.

Section 249, Cr. P. C., is inapplicable to warrant cases. Therefore, an order by a Magistrate stopping a warrant case and releasing the accused under the section is illegal.

Where a Magistrate stops a warrant case and releases the accused purporting to act under s. 249, Cr. P. C., the case is still on the pending file of the Magistrate and can be re-opened either by an application by the Crown or suo motu by the Magistrate but cannot be started de novo upon a private complaint, the Police case being already on the pending file. Pat FIRANGI SINGH v. DURGA SINGH, 5 Pat. 213; 7 P. L. T. 449; 27 Cr. L. J. 698; A. I. R. 1626 Pat. 292 890

——— s. 250—Appellate Court, power of, to award compensation.

Section 250 does not authorise a Court of Appeal to grant compensation. L NOTIFIED AREA COMMITTEE, KHARAR v. KARTA RAM, 7 L. 152; 27 Cr. L. J. 570 138

——— s. 250—Complaint, false and vexatious or frivolous—Compensation.

Where there are depositions of some witnesses and a Zaildar's report to support a complaint without any rebuttal on the part of the accused, the complaint cannot be said to be false and vexatious or frivolous. L SANWALYA v. BARU, 27 Cr. L. J. 633 409

——— s. 250—Informer, whether can be directed to pay compensation—Maximum compensation, amount of.

It is open to a Magistrate under s. 250 of the Cr. P. C. to pass an order directing a person, upon whose information given to a Police Officer or to a Magistrate the proceedings were started, to pay compensation to the accused.

Under s. 250 (2) of the Cr. P. C. all that is prohibited is that compensation to the accused or each or any of them should not exceed Rs. 100 in amount. The section does not mean that if there are a number of accused persons the total amount awarded to all of them must not exceed the maximum specified in the section. A FARIDUDDIN v. EMPEROR, 24 A. L. J. 221; A. I. R. 1926 All. 295; 27 Cr. L. J. 702 894

——— s. 250—'Vexatious' case, meaning of—Acquittal—Compensation.

An accusation cannot be said to be vexatious unless the main intention of the complainant is to cause annoyance to the person accused and not merely to further the ends of justice.

Where a report regarding the conduct of the accused, a Municipal Supervisor, was made by the Municipal Engineer, on which the President set a more or less informal inquiry on foot through the Police, and the report of the Police showed that the Supervisor had been guilty of falsification of accounts but the accused was acquitted on trial, it cannot be said under the circumstances that the object in instituting the proceedings was primarily to annoy the accused. L MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, SIMLA v. MUKAND SINGH, 27 Cr. L. J. 607 271

——— s. 256—Prosecution witnesses coming from Native State—Accused, whether can be asked forthwith about cross-examination.

The fact that the prosecution witnesses come from a Native State and it would take a long time to again secure their attendance, is a sufficient reason under s. 256, Cr. P. C., for requiring the accused to state forthwith whether he wishes to cross-examine any of the witnesses. L KURA v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 720 912

——— ss. 262, 263, 264, 265—Summary trial—Charge, necessity of—Record, what consists of.

In a summary trial, whether it be appealable or otherwise, a formal charge in writing need not be framed.

In a summary trial judgment and judgment alone, embodying as it does the substance of the evidence, and the particulars mentioned in s. 263, Cr. P. C., is the self-contained record of the case and apart from this record there is no other and, what is more, there is no document which can be defined or described as a portion of a record L Emperor v. Salig Ram, 8 L. L. J. 140; 27 Cr. L. J. 639; A. I. R. 1926 Lah 301; 7 L 303 415

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— s. 263 (g). See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 342 408

——— ss. 287, 350—Statement by one Magistrate but committal by another—Admissibility of statement in trial before Sessions Judge.

Where a statement of the accused during inquiry is recorded by one Magistrate but the case is committed by his successor, the statement so recorded is admissible in evidence at the trial before the Sessions. L Ghulam Jannat v. Emperor, 7 L. 70; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 271; 27 Cr. L. J. 627 403

——— s. 288—Evidence before Committing Magistrate—Admissibility at trial—Weight to be attached.

Section 288 of the Cr. P. C. makes the previous evidence of a witness taken before a Committing Magistrate, evidence admissible at the trial and the limitation imposed to such admission by the words 'subject to the provisions of the Evidence Act' merely means, that such evidence can be used at the trial for all purposes so long as the evidence is evidence within the meaning of the Evidence Act.

Unless there is clearly present, besides the evidence given before the Magistrate, evidence which will show that the evidence given before the Magistrate should be preferred to and substituted for that given before the Sessions Judge, the evidence given before the Magistrate cannot be effectively utilized in support of the conviction. Pat Bigna Kumhar v. Emperor, (1926) Pat. 167; 27 Cr. L. J. 594 258

——— s. 307—Reference to High Court—Procedure.

In making a reference to the High Court under s. 307 (2), Cr. P. C., the Sessions Judge should not enter his finding on any of the charges but should refer the entire case for consideration. C Emperor v. Ekabbor, 27 Cr. L. J. 617 361

——— s. 340—Vakalatnama—Criminal cases—Appearance by Advocate or Vakil on behalf of accused—Written authority, necessity of filing.

There is no provision either in the Cr. P. C., or in the rules of the Patna High Court requiring an Advocate or Vakil of that Court to file a duly stamped appointment in writing in order to enable him to present an application or appeal or conduct a criminal case on behalf of the accused. Pat Subda Santal v. Emperor, (1926) Pat. 125; 27 Cr. L. J. 666; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 296; 7 P. L. T. 524 714

——— s. 342—Non-compliance with provisions—Absence of prejudice—Effect.

An omission to comply fully with the provisions of s. 342, Cr. P. C., does not vitiate the trial unless the accused has been prejudiced. A Rammu v. Emperor, 27 Cr. L. J. 719 911

——— ss. 342, 263—Scope—Provisions, whether mandatory—Omission to examine accused—Effect—"If any" in s. 263 (g), meaning of.

In every case, whether summons or warrant one, there must be an examination of the accused, under s. 342 of the Cr. P. C. the provisions of which are mandatory.

The words "if any" in cl. (g) of s. 263 of the Cr. P. C., do not leave the Magistrate any discretion as the words are intended merely to cover cases in which owing to the admission or plea of the accused or the weakness of the prosecution evidence, the accused can either be convicted on his own plea or can be acquitted on the evidence without an examination of the accused. N Bhagwan v. Emperor, 9 N. L. J. 43; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 300; 27 Cr. L. J. 532; 22 N. L. R. 65 408

——— s. 344—Complainant's witnesses not present—Adjournment—One accused, absence of—Costs.

A complainant should not be burdened with costs for an adjournment occasioned by his failure to produce evidence when one of the accused also happens to be absent on that day. L Bishambar v. Ram Chand, 27 Cr. L. J. 572 140

——— s. 345—Compromise with some of several accused—Effect on others.

The compounding of an offence with some of the accused does not effect the acquittal of the rest. L Emperor v. Mohna, 27 Cr. L. J. 576 144

——— s. 350. See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 287 403

——— s. 350 (1) (2)—Magistrate, transfer of—Accused, application of, for de novo trial—Subsequent waiver—Mere cross-examination of prosecution witnesses, effect of—Re-trial, privilege of, whether claimable by complainant.

Where an accused, on a transfer of a Magistrate, claimed the privilege of re-trial under s. 350, Cr. P. C., but when the prosecution witnesses appeared, changed his mind and was content to cross-examine the witnesses:

Held, that the procedure adopted was not irregular and the Court was free to exercise its statutory option and act upon the evidence recorded by its predecessor.

The privilege under s. 350, Cr. P. C., is that of the accused and not of the complainant and if the accused declines to act under sub-cl. (1) (a) the complainant of necessity must suffer any disadvantage which follows upon the Magistrate electing to proceed upon the evidence already recorded. M In re Arulay, 27 Cr. L. J. 659 707

——— s. 360—Depositions of witnesses, reading over of—Procedure—Reading over of deposition of witnesses in interval and after close of day—Effect.

The evidence of a witness must be read over to him after it is completed and before the examination of another witness is started.

Where the depositions of witnesses who are examined one after another until the midday adjournment are read over to them during the interval and the depositions of the witnesses examined in the afternoon are similarly read over to them in the afternoon after the close of the day there is no compliance with the provisions of s. 360, Cr. P. C., and the trial is vitiated. C Samserali Hazi v. Emperor, 53 C. 129; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 563; 27 Cr. L. J. 688 736

——— s. 360, non-compliance with, whether illegality.

Where the Magistrate has tried to consult the convenience of the defence Counsel and also at the same time tried to comply with the requirements of s. 360, Cr. P. C., as far as possible and it is not alleged that failure to comply with this provision of law has resulted in any inaccuracy in the deposition of any of the witnesses, the defect is a mere irregularity curable under s. 537, Cr. P. C, and not an illegality vitiating trial. R Abdul Rahman v. Emperor, 4 Bur. L. J. 213; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 53; 27 Cr. L. J. 669 717

——— s. 386 (1) (a). See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 488 604

——— s. 403. See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 196 897

——— s. 403—Autrefois acquit—Acquittal on charge under ss. 325, 147, Penal Code—Subsequent trial under s. 302, Penal Code.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Acquittal of an accused under s. 325/147, Penal Code, by a Magistrate does not bar a subsequent trial of the accused on the same facts for an offence under s. 302, Penal Code. A Yad Ram v. Emperor, 27 Cr. L. J. 615 359

——— ss. 406, 417. See Cr. P. C, 1898, s. 110 402

——— s. 418. See Cr. P. C., 1898, s 238 602

——— s. 423 (d). See Cr. P. C., 1898, s. 439 709

——— s. 437—Accused discharged—Further enquiry, when to be ordered.

Further enquiry should not be ordered unless the order of discharge is manifestly perverse or foolish or is based upon a record of evidence which is obviously incomplete. The opinion of the Court that the prosecution evidence requires more careful attention than it has received is no ground for ordering further enquiry. L Harnam Singh v. Emperor, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 130; 27 Cr. L. J. 661 709

——— s. 437—District Magistrate—Further enquiry, when to be ordered.

District Magistrate's powers to direct further enquiry should be exercised in exceptional cases and for good reasons. Further enquiry after discharge is improper unless the order of discharge is manifestly perverse or foolish or is based upon a record of evidence obviously incomplete.

A Magistrate's disbelieving witnesses for reasons not cogent is no ground for ordering re-trial. L Maji v. Emperor, 2 L. C. 231; 27 Cr. L. J. 535 133

——— s. 439—Interlocutory order—Revision.

It is under very rare and exceptional circumstances that the Judicial Commissioner's Court would interfere on the revisional side with an interlocutory order of a Magistrate rejecting a piece of documentary evidence. N Wamanrao v. Emperor, 22 N. L. R. 31; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 204; 27 Cr. L. J. 707 899

——— s. 439—Revision—Acquittal, conversion of, into conviction.

Where an accused has been convicted of one offence and acquitted of another, the High Court is competent on the revision side to convert the acquittal into conviction. L Kanshi v. Emperor, 8 L. L. J. 188; 27 Cr. L. J. 566 134

——— s. 439 (2) (6)—Alteration of sentence, issue of notice for, to accused—Right of accused to show cause against conviction.

Where a notice under s. 439 (2), Cr. P. C., is issued to the accused to show cause why the sentence should not be altered, sub-cl. (6) of the section becomes applicable and the accused becomes entitled to show cause against his conviction. L Emperor v. Sain Das, 8 L. L. J. 180; 27 Cr. L. J. 593 257

——— s. 439 (4)—Murder trial—Conviction under s. 323, Penal Code—Revision—High Court's power to record conviction and sentence under s. 325.

If in a case tried under s. 302, Penal Code, on the facts disclosed and found an offence under s. 325, Penal Code, is committed but the Trial Court without considering the applicability of s. 325 acquits the accused under s. 302 but convicts and sentences him under s. 323, Penal Code, the High Court is not precluded by anything in s. 439 (4), Cr. P. C., from recording the conviction and sentence under s. 325, Penal Code, inasmuch as there was no acquittal under s. 325. A Duli v. Mangli, 24 A. L. J. 414; 27 Cr. L. J. 564; A. I. R. 1926 All. 332; L. R. 7 A. 100 Cr. 132

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ss. 439, 145, 148 (3), 423 (d)—Revision—Costs whether can be awarded.

The High Court has power, under s. 439 read with ss. 423 (d) and 148 (3) of the Cr. P. C. to pass an order for costs incurred in the hearing of a revision petition arising out of a proceeding under s. 145 of the Code. B Bai Jiba v Chandulal Ambalal, 27 Bom. L R. 1353; A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 91; 27 Cr. L. J. 661 709

——— s. 476—Case filed in one Court—Trial by another—Jurisdiction to file complaint.

It is the Court trying the case and not the Court in which the complaint was originally filed that is competent to make a complaint under s. 476, Cr. P. C. C Tarakeswar Mukhopadhyay v. Emperor, 30 C. W. N. 504; 27 Cr. L. J. 648; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 788; 53 C. 488. 600

——— ss. 476, 476A, 476B—Complaint—Appellate Court, order by—Appeal to High Court, when lies—Discretion of Court—Interference by High Court.

Upon a proper construction of ss. 476, 476A and 476B, Cr. P. C, an appeal would lie to the High Court from an order passed by a District Judge in the following cases :—

(a) where a Munsif has refused an application made to him under s. 476 to make a complaint, there has been an appeal to the District Judge and the District Judge, disagreeing with the Munsif, has made a complaint;

(b) where under s. 476A (the Munsif having taken no action suo motu and not having been asked to take any action) the District Judge, on application to him, makes a complaint or refuses to make a complaint.

In no other case would an appeal lie to the High Court from an order passed by a District Judge as an Appellate Court.

The same procedure would apply to any other chain of three Courts (contemplated by s. 476) of ascending jurisdiction.

The question whether a complaint should be made under s. 476, Cr. P. C, is one of discretion and the High Court is always loath to interfere except in extraordinary cases. Pat Ranjit Narayan Singh v. Ram Bahadur Singh, 7 P. L. T. 114; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 81; (1926) Pat. 89; 5 Pat. 262; 27 Cr. L. J. 641 593

——— s. 488—Chinese Customary Law—Marriage, proof of—Long cohabitation—Presumption.

For the purpose of determining, in a proceeding under s. 488, Cr. P. C., whether a valid marriage exists between a Burmese woman and a Chinese half-caste who claims to be a Confucian, the Court must find whether the requirements of the Chinese Customary Law have been fulfilled. Under that Law a marriage must be preceded by a betrothal contract and the usual ceremonies and festivities must be performed and celebrated. The Court may, however, draw a presumption of marriage from the intention of the parties, long cohabitation, habit and repute. R Ma U v Kyin Htat, 4 Bur. L. J. 255; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 82; 27 Cr. L. J. 656 608

——— s. 488—Maintenance—Another's child, maintenance of—Maintenance prior to date of application.

An order directing payment of maintenance for any period prior to the date of application is illegal.

A father is liable for the maintenance of his own child whether legitimate or otherwise but not for the child of another man. L Abdul Rahim v. Amir Begum, 27 Cr. L. J. 610 354

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ss. 488, 386 (1) (a)—Order for maintenance charged on joint estate—Sale and attachment of moveable property owned jointly by husband, whether permissible.

Where the amount of maintenance awarded under s. 488 of the Cr. P. C. is made a charge on the joint estate of the husband and his brothers, the order can be enforced by attachment and sale of the husband's share in moveable property owned jointly by the husband and his brothers.

Per Fawcett, J.—The words "moveable property belonging to the offender" in s. 386 (1) (a) of the Cr. P. C. are wide enough to cover the share of the offender in a joint Hindu family estate so far as it consists of moveable property, and an order for maintenance under s. 488 of the Code can, therefore, be enforced by the attachment and sale of such share, although this method of recovery should not ordinarily be resorted to. B SHIVALINGAPPA NIJAPPA TUBCHI v. GURLINGAVA, 27 Bom. L. R. 1363; 49 B. 906; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 103; 27 Cr. L. J. 652 604

——— ss. 509 (a), 190 (2), 201, 203—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 211, 302—Complaint of murder—Second Class Magistrate, whether competent to take cognizance—Procedure—Complainant charged with offence under s. 211, legality of.

Section 509 (a) of the Cr. P. C. saves the proceedings before a Magistrate taken on a complaint of which cognizance is taken without authority; but this will not have the effect of making the complainant liable for prosecution for a false complaint by reason of the Magistrate's having taken cognizance of it without power to do so.

A complaint that certain persons had committed the offence of murder was made to a Second Class Magistrate who sent the complaint to the Police for enquiry and on their reporting the case to be false dismissed the complaint under s. 203, Cr. P. C., without even examining the complainant on oath and then himself complained against the latter under s. 211 of the Penal Code:

Held, (1) that the Magistrate was not competent to take cognizance of the complaint and the proper procedure for him to adopt was that laid down in s. 201, Cr. P. C., which required him to return the complaint for presentation to the proper Court with an endorsement to that effect;

(2) that the proceedings before the Magistrate were void ab initio and that the Magistrate had, therefore, no jurisdiction to make a complaint against the complainant for an offence under s. 211 of the Penal Code. Pat BENGAL GOPE v. EMPEROR, 7 P. L. T. 335; 27 Cr. L. J. 704; 5 Pat. 417 896

——— s. 520—Scope.

An order by an Appellate Court under s. 520, Cr. P. C., staying or modifying, altering or annulling an order of a Subordinate Court can be made only when the order of the subordinate Court is one relating to property and made under ss. 517, 518 or 519, Cr. P. C. L SARAJ DIN v. KHALIL SHAH, 27 Cr. L. J. 574 142

——— s. 526—Magistrate accepting hospitality of complainant's son—Transfer of case.

A Magistrate's accepting hospitality of the complainant's son is a circumstance which would naturally raise a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the accused that he would not have a fair trial though the Magistrate may have been quite ignorant of the fact that his host was the son of the complainant. L NARAIN SINGH v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 565 133

Criminal Procedure Code—concld.

——— s. 526—Transfer of case—Convenience of parties.

For purposes of transfer, it is the convenience of the accused rather than that of the complainant that has to be considered. L SOHAN LAL v. GOPAL SINGH, 27 Cr. L. J. 563 131

——— s. 526 (e)—Complaint dismissed in default—Fresh complaint in another Court—Transfer to Court dismissing original complaint.

Where a case has been dismissed in default by a particular Magistrate, a fresh complaint based on the same facts should be transferred to the same Magistrate for trial. L DHARI MAL v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 719 911

——— s. 537. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 145 708

——— s. 562. See PUNJAB EXCISE ACT, 1914, s. 61 (1) 129

——— s. 562—Accused above 21 years—Benefit of section—Revision, interference in.

In case of an accused not under 21 years of age s. 562, Cr. P. C., is only applicable when the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with the imprisonment for not more than seven years.

The High Court is not bound to interfere on its revision side with an order under s. 562 even when it is illegal. L EMPEROR v. HOSHIARA, 27 Cr. L. J. 624 368

——— s. 562—Lambardar pocketting money received as water rate—Sentence.

Where the accused, a lambardar, is convicted for pocketting the water rate money received by him as an agent of the Government from the complainant a landowner, the case is not a fit one to be dealt with under s. 562, Cr. P. C. L EMPEROR v. SOHAN SINGH, 27 Cr L. J. 562 130

Custom, whether question of fact or law. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 100 987 ——— Alienation—Alienation by widow—Suit for declaration by reversioners—Consent by father, whether binds son.

An assent given by a reversioner to an alienation by a widow of her late husband's property is not binding on the sons of such reversioner when the consent given is not bona fide. L SUNDAR SINGH v. GANDA SINGH 761 ——— Gift—Sayyads of Basti Kesa in Okara Tehsil of Montgomery District—Gift of ancestral property to daughter's son.

Amongst Sayyads of Basti Kesa in the Montgomery District custom permits a gift to a daughter's son of ancestral property provided it is made in writing and is followed by possession. L FATEH SHAH v. NURAN 1037 ——— Gift—Sonless Awan of Tallagang Tahsil, District Attock—Gift of ancestral property to daughter.

A sonless Awan of Tallagang Tahsil of Attock District has an unrestricted power of gifting his property, ancestral or non-ancestral, to a daughter or her issue. L MOHAMMAD ASLAM KHAN v. JAHAN KHAN 398 ——— Necessity—Purchasing of house to live in.

Where the only house which a man possessed is sold in an execution sale and he is in imminent danger of being turned out and it is not easy to rent a house, the buying of a house to live in is a legal necessity. L LACHI v. SURJA 114

Custom—contd.

——— Applicability—Sikh Sodhi Khatris of Anandpore, District Hoshiarpore—Law of inheritance.

Sodhis of Anandpore, District Hoshiarpur, do not follow Hindu Law in matters of inheritance. Therefore, there is no presumption that an Anandpore Sodhi family constitutes a co-parcenary body in accordance with Hindu Law of Mitakshara. L Wazir Singh v. Moti Singh 492

——— Customary right, suit for declaration of—Custom found against. See Pleadings and proof 226

——— Extension of custom by deductions—Personal law, falling back upon, when no custom proved.

It is outside the province of a Court to extend custom by the process of deduction from the principles which seem to underlie custom which have been definitely established.

Among parties generally following Customary Law it is permissible to fall back as a last resort on their personal law for the decision of a point on which no definite rule of custom applicable to the parties can be found. L Shahab Din v. Umran 148 ——— Partition—Widow's right to claim partition —Onus of proof.

A widow of a deceased co-sharer in a joint holding has a statutory right to demand partition of her share and the burden of proving that she cannot claim partition of her share is upon the person denying her such right. L Amir Hamza v. Murad Bibi, 6 L. 196; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 458 525

——— Pre-emption. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 11 463

——— Right of privacy—Right, whether attached to property.

It is settled law in the United Provinces that there is a customary right of privacy existing in them and that a substantial interference with such a right would afford a person, whose such right has been invaded, a good cause of action. This right is not only personal but attaches to the property in respect of which that right is claimed. O Sheo Bhagu v. Janki, 29 O. C. 136 914 ——— Succession—Widow succeeding as malik kamil—Absolute estate.

The words "malik kamil" convey the idea of absolute ownership.

Where the widow of a childless proprietor succeeds to him as malik kamil as recorded in the wajib-ul-arz she inherits an absolute estate, particularly where no line of devolution of the estate after the death of the widow is indicated in the entry. O Sahai Singh v. Surajpal Singh 653

——— v. Personal Law—Alienation—Presumption —Tarkhans of Hassan Abdal, Attock District.

In the case of a person who is not a member of an agricultural tribe and whose main occupation is not agriculture, there is no initial presumption against a free power of alienation.

In matters of alienation the tarkhans of Hassan Abdal in the Attock District are governed by their personal law and not by custom. L Lachhmi Narain v. Mahammedji, 6 L. 294; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 525 559 ——— Wajib-ul-arz, construction of—Use of future tense in recording of custom—Interpretation.

Prima facie an entry in a wajib-ul-arz is intended to be a record of custom and not a record of the expression of wishes of the proprietors of the village, and use of the future tense does not in any sense negativ the existence of the custom but it only denotes that the pre-existing custom shall be applicable to cases which arise thereafter. O Sahai Singh v. Surajpal Singh 653

Custom—concld.

Damages for breach of promise to marry—Interference by Privy Council.

Their Lordships of the Privy Council will not interfere with a measure of damages unless there is something very clearly wrong with the figure. P. C. Thomas Charles William Skipp v. Lilian Mildred Kelly, 50 M. L. J. 498; A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 27; 3 O. W. N. 453; 43 C. L. J. 430; 28 Bom. L. R. 873; 24 L. W. 18; 30 C. W. N. 841 331

——— for interference with another's property—Suit —Maintainability. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 36 444

Debt. See Lease 741

Debtor and creditor. See Contract Act, 1872 s. 59 273

——— Payment by debtor to third person—Authority to receive payment.

When a creditor sues the debtor for the payment of a debt and the defence is that the debtor paid the debt to another person, it is for the debtor to prove that the other person had, or had been held out to the debtor by the creditor as having had the authority of the creditor to receive payment of the debt on behalf of the creditor. P. C. Mahomed Khaleel Shirazi v. Les Tanneries Lyonnaises, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 34; 3 O. W. N. 568; 49 M. 435; (1926) M. W. N. 495; 24 L. W. 115 767

Decree, joint, what is. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXII, r. 4 300

Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), s. 2—Date for determination of status as agriculturist.

Under s. 2, Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, the term 'agriculturist' applies to a person who is an agriculturist at the time of the transaction and not at the time of suit. S Shakarkhan v. Lakhimal, A. I. R. 1926 Sind 56 664

——— s. 15B—Ex parte decree—Execution—Instalments.

Where a decree is passed ex parte, the defendant can, at any stage in the execution proceedings, show that he was an agriculturist at the date of the decree and claim instalments. B Narayan Govind Deshpande v. Dhondo Krishna Tathe, 28 Bom. L. R. 305; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 246 76

——— s. 63A—Sale by agriculturist through agent —Requirements of law.

An alienation by an agriculturist must comply with the provisions of s. 63-A, Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, whether the alienation is effected by him personally or through a person holding his power-of-attorney. B Bhagu Govinda Patel v. Narayan Tukaram Survashi, 28 Bom. L. R. 428 658

Digwars or ghatwal tenures, whether under zemindar—Burden of proof—Service tenures, kinds of.

The question whether certain digwars or ghatwals are or are not subordinate to the zemindar is always one of fact and the burden of proving that they are under him lies on the zemindar.

Various forms of service tenures enumerated and defined. P. C. Secretary of State for India v. Jyoti Prashad Singh Deo, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 41; 30 C. W. N. 745; 24 A. L. J. 761 974

Divorce—Misconduct, proof of—Burden of proof—Withdrawal of charge—Condonation.

In a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, the burden of proving the respondent's misconduct lies heavily upon the petitioner. In such a proceeding the duty of the petitioner is to show that on or between the dates specified in the petition, the respondent was guilty of misconduct with the co-respondent, and that must be a matter of proof upon evidence which, though it may not be direct, must at all events be so clear and cogent, both as to inclination, opportunity and conduct as to lead to the inevitable inference that the offence has been committed.

A withdrawal of a charge of adultery amounts in law to a condonation of such offence, if any, committed prior to the date of the withdrawal. C WATSON v. WATSON, 43 C. L. J. 37; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 703 528

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), ss. 3 (1), 10—Oudh Chief Court, whether has original jurisdiction to entertain petition for divorce—Residence within jurisdiction, nature of.

Under s. 10 of the Divorce Act the Oudh Chief Court has original jurisdiction in matters of divorce under the Act.

The word 'together' in s. 3 (1) of the Divorce Act governs only the word 'resided' and not the word 'reside'. Where a petitioner and respondent both reside within the jurisdiction of a Court, even though they did not reside together within the jurisdiction of such Court, the Court has jurisdiction to entertain a petition for divorce. O ROBERT HENRY LEADON v. EATHEL MAY LEADON, 3 O. W. N. 403; 13 O. L. J. 236; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 319 952

Easement, definition of.

Every right peaceably enjoyed as an easement, and as of right without interruption for the prescribed period becomes absolute and indefeasible after the expiry of such period. Pat JUGAL SARKAR v. RAJ MANGAL PRASAD, A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 187 929

——— Occasional use of right.

The proprietor of a piece of land, over which the members of the public exercise a right of easement, does not lose his right to the land as proprietor on account of the occasional user for the purpose of exercising the right of easement. C MOHENDRA NATH ROY v. NABADWIP CHANDRA NANDY, 43 C. L. J. 180 5

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 4—New kind of easement, creation of.

If a right comes within the four corners of the statutory definition of an easement, whether it be a new one or novel one, the Court is bound to give effect to it. B OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BOMBAY v. SALEBHAI SARAFALLY BHAGAT, 28 Bom. L. R. 403; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 328 673

——— ss. 4, 13—Right of going upon property of another person to white-wash one's wall—Easement, whether of necessity—Easement of necessity, what is.

The right claimed by a person of going upon the premises of another person with a view to erect a scaffolding for purposes of white-washing and plastering his own wall is an easement though not one of necessity.

An easement of necessity is not created merely when the easement is necessary but when it is absolutely necessary for the beneficial enjoyment of the dominant property.

But there cannot be an easement of necessity for enabling the dominant owner to enjoy another easement. B OFFICIAL TRUSTEE OF BOMBAY v. SALEBHAI SARAFALLY BHAGAT, 28 Bom. L. R. 403; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 328 673

Easements Act—concld.

——— s. 7—Lands, upper and lower, owners of—Right of upper owner to let surface water on to lower land.

Where two contiguous plots of land belong to different proprietors, one of which stands upon higher level than the other, the owner of the plot of land on a lower level, into which water flows in the ordinary course of nature from the adjacent land on a higher level, is not entitled in law so to deal with his land as to obstruct the escape of water from the higher land. M SHEIKH HUSSAIN SAHIB v. PACHIPULUSU SUBBAYYA, 50 M. L. J. 377; (1926) M. W. N. 370; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 449; 49 M. 441 677

——— s. 17. See WATER RIGHTS 929

——— s. 60 (4)—License—Execution of permanent works—Revocability—Intention of parties—Estoppel—Principle, whether applicable to licensor's heirs.

Where a license has been acted upon and cost has been incurred in executing works of a permanent character, the license is not revocable unless the power of revocation is expressly reserved or the terms of the grant limit the license as to its duration.

The presence of a covenant in the agreement executed by the licensee that the agreement shall be binding on his estate and the heirs is an indication of the intention of the parties that a heritable grant was to be made.

The principle of estoppel where applicable as against the licensor is equally applicable as against his heirs. N DAYARAM v. DEORAO 923

Estoppel.

See EASEMENTS ACT, 1882, s. 60 (4) 923

See MORTGAGE 538

——— Kabuliyat acted upon by lessors—Denial of lease by persons claiming under lessors.

Where a kabuliyat has been accepted and acted upon by the lessors, third parties claiming under the lessors are, equally with the lessors, estopped from denying the validity of the lease. C HAR MONDAL v. DURJODHON MANDAL 661

——— Transfer as guardian of minor—Subsequent transfer as owner—Subsequent transferee, whether estopped.

Where a Hindu widow, as guardian of her alleged adopted son, mortgages certain property as belonging to the son, and subsequently transfers the same property in her own right as a Hindu widow, the transferee from the widow is not estopped from asserting his vendor's title. In fact there is no question of estoppel in such a case. M MYLAVARAPPA RANGAPPA NAIDU v. BASANNA SIMON, 23 L. W. 467; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 594 639

Evidence, admission of—Principle of acquiescence.

It is a well-known rule of practice that when a fact relevant in itself has been wrongly allowed to be proved in a manner not permitted by law unless the opposite party objects to the evidence at the time, when it is offered, he cannot object afterwards. But this principle of acquiescence can only be applied when the secondary evidence has been of the contents of a document which if produced itself could have been admitted under the provisions of the law. L JHANDA SINGH v. HARNAM SINGH 75

———, circumstantial—Inference of guilt—Motive, value of—Accused, producing body of deceased—Offence.

Evidence—concld.

In order to justify the inference of guilt, on circumstantial evidence the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt.

Motive for a crime while it is always a satisfactory circumstance of corroboration when there is convincing evidence to prove the guilt of an accused person can never supply the want of reliable evidence, direct or circumstantial, of the commission of the crime with which he is charged.

Where the sole evidence against an accused is that in consequence of information supplied by him the body of a murdered person was recovered from his field he cannot be convicted under s. 302, Penal Code, but he can be convicted of an offence under s. 201 of the same Code. L RANKUN v. MORRISON, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 88; 7 L. 84; 27 Cr. L J. 709 901

——— Document not public, admitted as such—Effect.

If a document is admitted in evidence on the understanding that it is a public document, it loses all evidential value when it is discovered that it is not a public document. L THAKAR SINGH v. GHANAYA SINGH 125

——— Relevant evidence, admission of, without objection, effect of—Omission to object to inadmissible evidence, effect of.

Where evidence is admitted in the first Court without objection and the evidence is admissible as relevant, no party will be allowed to object to the reception of such evidence at any later stage of the litigation.

An omission to take objection to reception of a document which is irrelevant or inadmissible in evidence does not make it admissible. C MANMATHA NATH KAR v. PROBODH CHANDRA RATARI, 43 C. L. J. 274 279

——— Witness, demeanour of—Rejection of testimony—Appellate Court, when would interfere.

A Court of first instance sees a witness and can, therefore, better judge his demeanour than a Court of Appeal; and, therefore, the rejection by the former Court of the testimony of a witness is not disturbed in a Court of Appeal. But if such rejection is based on the inherent probabilities of the story told by the witness, then it is open to the Appellate Court to consider the inherent probabilities of the story and come to a different conclusion. P. C. MAUNG KYI OH v. MA THET PON, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 29; (1926) M. W. N. 489 916

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 27. See CR. P C., 1898, s. 162 706

——— s. 27—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 162—Evidence Act v. Cr. P. C.—Relative scope of s. 27, Evidence Act and s. 162, Cr. P. C.

The Evidence Act is a separate Statute dealing with an important branch of law and its provisions are independent of the rules of procedure contained in the Cr. P. C., and must have full scope unless it is clearly proved that they have been repealed or altered by another Statute.

Section 162, Cr. P. C., applies to the statements of persons examined as witnesses by the Police in the course of investigation and not to the statement of an accused person and does not override or modify the provisions of s. 27 of the Evidence Act. L RANKUN v MORRISON, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 88; 7 L. 84; 27 Cr. L. J. 709 901

Evidence Act—contd.

——— s. 30—Exculpatory statement, whether confession.

Per Fawcett, J.—A statement made by an accused person denying his guilt is not a "confession" within the meaning of s. 30 of the Evidence Act. B VALLABHRAM GANPATRAM v. EMPEROR, 27 Bom. L R. 1391; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 122; 27 Cr. L. J. 689 881

——— s. 32 (3)—Admission, splitting up of.

An admission against the pecuniary interests for the maker when admitted into evidence under s. 32 (3) of the Evidence Act, must be admitted in its entirety and cannot be split up into parts. Pat SITA RAM SINGH v. KHUB LAL SINGH, 5 Pat. 168; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 255 13

——— s. 70—Mortgage—Execution admitted—Proof, necessity of—Executant pardanashin lady—Consideration, proof of.

Admission of execution of a document dispenses with necessity of its proof.

But where the defendant executant of the deed is an illiterate pardanashin lady the mere admission of her execution of the document is not sufficient to dispense with the necessity of proving the passing of consideration. Pat RAM LAL SINGH v. SEPTI, (1926) Pat. 117; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 295 558

——— s. 80—Deposition—Identity of deponent, proof of

Under s. 80 of the Evidence Act the presumption can be made only as to the genuineness of the statement recorded in a deposition. No presumption can be made regarding the identity of the deponent. Where, however, the document containing the deposition is a very old document, the Court can turn to the deposition itself to find out whether there is inherent evidence of the identity of the deponent. O BHAGWAT PRASAD v. SHER KHAN 985

——— s. 90—Document deposited with Collector—Production after 30 years—Presumption.

The mere fact of a certain document having been produced from a Court where it had been filed, does not necessarily bring that document within the requirements of s 90 of the Evidence Act. The application of this proposition, however, depends upon the circumstances of each particular case.

A Hindu who died suddenly of cholera was alleged to have left an anumatipatra authorising his widow to make an adoption to him and also a Will. His father who arrived at the place where the death had taken place ten days after the date of the death, obtained the two documents from a servant of the deceased and deposited them with the Collector of the District with a request that the estate of the deceased may be taken under the management of the Court of Wards. The documents remained in the custody of the Collector for 54 years, and were then produced in Court in the course of a litigation between the reversioners of the deceased and a person who had been adopted by the widow of the deceased under the authority contained in the anumatipatra:

Held, that under the circumstances the Court was entitled to accept the documents as presumably genuine under the provisions of s. 90 of the Evidence Act. Pat RAJENDRA PRASAD BOSE v. GOPAL PRASAD BOSE, 4 Pat. 67; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 442 814

——— s. 91. See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17 (1) (b) 567

——— s. 92—Oral evidence, admissibility of, to prove consideration.

Evidence Act—contd.

Under s. 92 of the Evidence Act oral evidence is admissible to determine what the consideration for an agreement in writing was. S Rameshwerdas Benarsidas v. New Jooria Bazar Sugar Co. 371

——— s. 92 (4)—Lease registered- Subsequent arrangement for giving credit out of rent, proof of.
Though a subsequent oral agreement varying the terms of a registered lease cannot be proved, an arrangement to give credit to the extent of a certain amount out of the rent owing to certain groves having been cut by the lessor may be proved. A Jhabba Singh v. Chajjoo, 24 A. L. J. 548; L. R. 7 A. 141 Rev. 169

——— s. 102—Judgment-debtor claiming to be member of agricultural tribe—Burden of proof—Doubt, benefit of.
The burden of proving that the judgment-debtor is a member of an agricultural tribe within the meaning of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act is on him especially when in Settlement Records he is shown as belonging to one of the non-agricultural tribes.
Law does not recognise the principle of giving the benefit of doubt to a party on whom the burden of proof lies. L Thakur Das v. Ghulam Mahommad 158

——— s. 114, ill (b). See Criminal procedure 264

——— s. 114—Letter posted under registered cover—Note of refusal by postman—Presumption.
Where a letter under a registered cover is proved to have been posted and bears a note by the postman that the addressee refused to take it, the presumption is that he did refuse to take it. L Sher Afzal v. Mohan Lal 103

——— s. 114—Stolen property, possession of—Presumption—Possession, recent.
In a case of possession of stolen goods no fixed time limit can be laid down to determine whether possession is recent or otherwise. Every case must be judged on its own facts.
If a few stolen articles are found in possession of a person under circumstances which may give rise to the probability of his coming by them honestly some time after the theft the presumption does not arise.. C Emperor v. Ekabbor, 27 Cr. L. J. 617 361

——— s. 115—Estoppel—Attachment and sale of property in execution—Vendee from judgment-debtor standing by—Denial of judgment-debtor's title—Estoppel.
Where a purchaser from a judgment-debtor sees the property, the subject-matter of his purchase, being attached and sold in execution of a decree against his vendor and keeps silent, he is estopped from denying the title of the judgment-debtor at the time of execution sale as against the auction-purchaser. L Jhanda Singh v. Harnamsingh 75

——— s. 115—Estoppel—Building house in absence of plaintiff—Silence.
Where the defendant has built a house on plaintiff's land in the latter's absence, no question of estoppel by acquiesence can possibly arise. O Dawarka v. Sankatha 307

——— s. 115—Litigant changing position—Estoppel.
A litigant who has all along maintained a position in support of one branch of his suit cannot be permitted, when he fails upon that branch, to withdraw from the position and assert the contrary, more especially when he thereby places his opponent at a great disadvantage. P. C. Mirza Raja v. Secretary of State for India, A. I. R. 1926 P C. 18; 50 M. L. J. 391; 49 M. 249; 43 C. L. J 378; 28 Bom. L. R. 865; 24 L. W. 9 501

Evidence Act—contd.

——— s. 115—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 41—Minor, execution of sale-deed by, representing to be adult—Suit to set aside alienation—Minor whether estopped—Refund of purchase-money on setting aside sale.
Where a minor represented himself to be a major and joined in the execution of a sale-deed and the alienee believed in that representation and acted on it in taking the sale, in a suit by him on attaining majority for a declaration that the sale-deed was void against him on the ground that he was a minor on the date of sale:
Held, (1) that the plaintiff was not estopped from proving that he was a minor at the date of sale;
(2) that under s. 41, Specific Relief Act, the decree in favour of the plaintiff could be made conditional on the plaintiff re-paying the consideration paid by the alienee in respect of the sale. M Koduri Venkataramayya v. Thumuluri Punnayya, 23 L. W. 521; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 607 853

——— s. 124—Official Reports whether privileged.
Reports by one Government Officer to another written in official confidence are privileged under s. 124 of the Evidence Act and are not documents that an outsider has a right to inspect. B Vallabhram Ganpatram v. Emperor, 27 Bom. L. R. 1391; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 122; 27 Cr. L. J. 689 881

——— s. 124—State document—Rejection by Court.
It is incumbent upon a Court to prevent the disclosure of State documents in proceedings before it. No sound distinction can be drawn between the duty of the Judge when objection is taken by the responsible officer of the Crown, or by the party, or when, no objection being taken by anyone, it becomes apparent to him that a rule of public policy prevents the disclosure of the documents or information sought. N Wamanrao v. Emperor, 22 N. L. R. 34; A. I. R. 1926 Nag 304; 27 Cr. L. J. 707 899

Excise cases—Sentence—Imprisonment desirable—Government Circulars—Reference by Magistrates—Practice.
In the case of the crimes such as illicit traffic in drugs where the offender may make great profits by breach of the law the payment of the fine is apt to be considered merely in the nature of a tax which is no deterrent at all.
Where there have been several cases when persons living on the border-land of foreign territory have imported excisable articles in British territory, it is desirable that the Courts should as far as possible inflict a substantive sentence of imprisonment to prevent the recurrence of such crimes.
Per Tyabji, A. J. C.—The object of Government in issuing Circulars is to bring to the notice of the Magistrates certain circumstances mentioned therein which when relied upon must be openly stated in Court and the parties allowed to comment thereon.
Nothing can be more deleterious to the administration of criminal justice than a notion that the Magistrate conceives himself to be under orders to pass any particular kind of sentence or that any considerations affect his decision but such as are openly stated in Court and are subject to comment by the prosecution and the defence. S Emperor v. Mustali, 27 Cr. L. J. 633 409

Execution of decree.
See C. P. C., 1908, s. 48 613
See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 115 75

———— Attachment, wrongful—Damages, suit for—Malice, proof of, whether necessary.

In a suit to recover damages for wrongful attachment by a person other than the judgment-debtor it is not incumbent on the plaintiff to allege and prove that the person at whose instance the wrongful attachment was made acted maliciously or without reasonable or probable cause. The defendant may have acted in perfectly good faith and innocently, but he is nevertheless liable if damage has been caused by his mistake. N LOBO v. BABULAL, 8 N. L. J. 170; A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 390 573

———— Decree against dead man. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXII, R. 4 28

———— Decree sent to Collector for partition—Collector going beyond decree—Court's power to refer it back to Collector.

Where the Collector to whom a decree has been sent for effecting a partition of the property, disregards the terms of the decree and divides the property, in contravention of its terms, the Court is within its rights to refer the case back to Collector to partition the property in accordance with the terms of the decree.

A Collector when asked to partition lands in accordance with a decree must follow the terms of the decree and is not at liberty to read the decree together with the judgment so as to effect partition in a manner not contemplated by the decree. B TIMMANNA PARMESHWAR BHAT v. GOVIND GANPATI BHAT, 28 Bom. L. R. 523; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 258 656 ————Orders passed, whether appealable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2) (b), scope of.

An order passed in execution is not appealable merely because it fulfils the conditions laid down in s. 47, C. P. C. In order to be appealable, it must fall within the definition of decree in s. 2 (2), C. P. C.

The expression "any order of dismissal for default" in sub-cl. (b) of s. 2 (2), C. P. C., is not confined to suits only, but it also covers an order of an Execution Court dismissing the objections of an objector judgment-debtor for default. A HIRA LAL v. TIKAM SINGH 1 ———— Original application pending—Further application, if necessary.

Where there has been no dismissal of the original application for execution, no special application is necessary to revive the first application which remains pending before the Court. C AKSHOY KUMAR v. NALINI KUMAR 80 ———— Relief not given by decree.

An Executing Court cannot grant a relief which is not given by the decree itself. L HUSSAIN BIBI v. NUR HUSSAIN SHAH 212 ———— Sale—Bid, inadequate—Court, if has discretion to refuse bid.

By virtue of the third condition on the back of the sale certificate, it is in the discretion of the Court or the officer holding the sale to decline acceptance of the highest bid when the price offered appears so clearly inadequate as to make it advisable to do so.

When the Court thinks fit not to accept a sale and orders a re-sale, the order should state reasons for the same. C RAM SAKHI DEBYA CHOWDHURANI v. RADHA NATH DE 46 ———— Sale of property of person not party to decree, effect of.

Persons who are not parties to a decree are not bound by it and, therefore, a sale in execution of a decree does not operate to pass the property of any person who is not bound by the decree.

The Court has no jurisdiction to sell the property of persons who are not parties to the proceedings or properly represented on the record. As against such persons decrees and sales would be a nullity and might be disregarded without any proceedings being taken to set them aside. O LACHMI NARAIN v. NAZEER FATIMA 927

———— Stay of execution—Executing Court staying execution on furnishing surety for interest—Appellate Court subsequently staying execution on payment of security—Effect on previous surety.

Where a judgment-debtor obtains a stay order from the Executing Court pending the decision of appeal on his furnishing a surety for the payment of interest from the date of the decree upto a particular time, an order by the Appellate Court for stay of execution on judgment-debtor's furnishing security for a particular sum puts an end to the future liability for interest of the previous surety from the date of such order. B HIRALAL AMBALAL v. MANILAL MAGANLAL, 28 Bom. L. R. 517 645

Execution of document—Illiterate executant—Document signed by another at request of executant—Authority to sign.

Where an illiterate person requests another to sign a document for him and the latter signs such document with a pen touched by the former, the signature must be taken to have been made under the authority of the executant himself. O BHAGWAT PRASAD v. SHER KHAN 985

Fraud—Fraudulent transaction—Burden of proof.

The burden of proving the fraudulent nature of a transaction lies ordinarily on the person who seeks to impeach it, and the question is always one of fact. O LACHMI NARAIN v. NAZEER FATIMA 927

Government of India Act, 1915, (5 & 6 Geo. V, c. 61), s. 32. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 79 433

———— s. 107—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), ss. 171, 172—Orders of Board of Revenue—Revision to High Court, whether competent.

The High Court has revisional jurisdiction over the orders of the Board of Revenue passed under ss. 171 and 172 of the Madras Estates Land Act.

Where there is no remedy to the party aggrieved by an order of the Board of Revenue, the High Court would be justified in exercising revisional jurisdiction.

Per Devadoss, J.—All Courts which are governed by the C. P. C. are Civil Courts and therefore the High Court as having the right of superintendence over all the Civil Courts in the Presidency has power over such Civil Courts as are erected by any enactment. M NARASINHA RAO v. RYOTS OF PEDAMA MIDIPALLI, (1926) M. W. N. 131; 23 L. W. 320; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 480; 49 M. 499 164

Grove—Plot of land given for planting trees—Landlord's right to re-enter on portion becoming devoid of trees—Grove-holder, status of—Illegal ejectment of grove-holder—Rights of grove-holder.

Where a plot of land has been given to a person to plant a grove thereon, the landlord is not entitled to enter into possession of portions of the grove which have become vacant or to cultivate them himself or to let them for cultivation to others.

Where a grove-holder is ejected illegally by the landlord whether through the Revenue Court or out of Court, a suit for possession by him would clearly lie in the Civil Court. If, after an order of ejectment by the Revenue Court, the grove-holder is able to recover possession or refuses to deliver possession, he is quite justified in his action and if he is subsequently sued in the Civil Court, the decision passed by the Revenue Court does not constitute a bar in his way to plead in the Civil Court that he was a grove-holder and was wrongly ejected by the Revenue Court.

Grove—contd.

A grove-holder cannot be considered to be a tenant within the meaning of the said word as defined in s. 3, cl. (10) of the Oudh Rent Act, such a person neither paying rent to the landlord, nor being liable to pay rent to him. O LAL JAGDISH BAHADUR SINGH v. RAGHO RAM, 3 O. W. N. 392; 13 O. L. J. 265; L. R. 7 A. (O.) 237 349

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 17—Guardianship of adopted son—Matters to be considered—Natural father, whether proper person to be guardian—Guardian, whether must live with minor.

In appointing a guardian to the adopted son of a deceased Hindu the first consideration of the Court must be with regard to the interest and the welfare of the minor and the Court must next see how far the intentions of the adoptive father can be best carried out.

The object of an adoption by a Hindu is to affiliate the adopted boy into his family, to disassociate him completely from his natural father and family. The adopted boy is to become a member of the adoptive family to own the adoptive father and the adoptive mother as his parents and the relations of the adoptive family as his own relations; all traces of relationship with the natural parents or their relations have to be effaced. The adopted boy must, therefore, be reared up in sentiments such as the adoptive father wants him to imbibe. Care must, therefore, be taken in appointing the guardian of an adopted son after the death of the adoptive father, that the intentions of the adoptive father should not be frustrated, and if a suitable person is forthcoming from among the members of the adoptive father's family to act as the guardian of the minor, the natural father of the minor should not be appointed his guardian.

In the absence of the adoptive mother, the adoptive grandmother of the minor should be appointed as guardian in preference to the natural father.

It is desirable that the person who is appointed the guardian of a minor should live with him and look after him and attend to his daily needs. Pat MONOMOHINI DASI v. HARI PRASAD BOSE, 4 Pat. 109; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 444 808 ——— ss. 34 (d), 45—Moneys invested in unapproved security—Realisation from guardian on pain of punishment.

Section 34 (d), Guardians and Wards Act, does not apply to moneys invested whether in approved or unapproved securities but is limited to such a balance of cash as the accounts show to be in the hands of the guardian and it is only such cash that he can be compelled to produce on pain of punishment under s. 45 of the Act.

Where the guardian in defiance of the order of Court invests moneys belonging to the minor in an unapproved instead of an approved security, it is such cash only that he would have had if he had followed the directions of the Court that he can be compelled to produce. M RAMANUJULU REDDY v. RANGIAH REDDIAR 79

Gujarat Taluqdars' Act (VI of 1888), s. 33—Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879), s. 111—Taluqdari Settlement—Officer's powers to recover arrears of rent.

Section 33, Gujarat Taluqdars' Act, gives complete powers to a Government Officer in the temporary management of a taluqdar's estate to recover arrears of revenue including rent. B JINABHAI NATHABHAI RATHIA v. COLLECTOR & T. S. OFFICER, 28 Bom. L. R. 416; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 325 752

High Court—Attachment before judgment—Property outside jurisdiction—Procedure. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXXVIII, R. 5 116

Hindu Disposition of Property Act (XV of 1916)

—Act, whether retrospective.

There is nothing in the Hindu Disposition of Property Act to suggest that it is retrospective in its operation. B ATMARAM JAMNADAS SHAH v. NAZIR, DISTRICT COURT, 28 Bom. L. R. 431 704

Hindu Law—Adoption. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890, s. 17 808

——— Adoption of son in another family after father's death—Rights of adoptee in his natural family—Adoptee's sons, rights of, in natural family of their father.

An adopted son's rights are extinguished in his natural family on his adoption whether he is adopted during the lifetime or after the death of his natural father. But the sons, if any, of the adopted in existence at the time of adoption retain their rights in the natural family of their father. A DHARAM SINGH v. BAKHSHI 315 ——— Debts—Joint family—Money lent by manager—Discharge, who may give, after manager's death.

If money is lent by a manager of joint Hindu family in his capacity as a manager, a valid discharge for payment after his death can be given only by a person representing him as manager of such family. But if the money was lent by the manager in his personal capacity the discharge can be given by a person holding the heirship certificate. S SHAKARKHAN v. LAKHIMAL, A. I. R. 1926 Sind 56 664 ——— Sums misappropriated by father as trustee—Sons, liability of.

Under the Hindu Law a son is liable to account for amounts collected by his father in his capacity as trustee but subsequently misappropriated by him. The fact that the misappropriation amounts to a criminal offence does not affect his liability. M VENKATAKRISHNAYYA v. KUNDRITHI BYRAGI, (1926) M. W. N. 194; 50 M. L. J. 353; 23 L. W. 714; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 535 634 ——— Guardianship and minority—Minor wife, custody of.

Under Hindu Law husband is the natural guardian of the minor wife and is entitled to her custody unless good cause be shown to the contrary. The fact that a girl is not mature would be a ground for the Court refusing to give the custody of his wife to a husband unless her parents were dead and the Court could be convinced that no attempt to enter into conjugal relations would be made before maturity. B NAVANITLAL HURJIVANDAS v. PURSHOTTAM HURJIVAN, 28 Bom. L. R. 143; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 228; 52 B. 238 11

——— Inheritance—Guru and chela. See HINDU LAW—RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENT 703

——— Interpretation.

In the administration of the Hindu Law it is not the literal meaning of the original text that is to be looked to. Though commentators may have been wrong in their interpretation of an original text their opinion should be enforced as having the sanction of usage B. KESARLAL GIRDHARILAL DESAI v JAGUBHAI HIRALAL, 27 Bom. L. R. 226; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 406; 49 B. 282 686 ——— Joint family—Alienation by father—After-born son, when may impeach.

Hindu Law—contd.

If there be an alienation invalidly made by a Hindu father where a son was either born or in gremio matris, the rights of any after-born son attach thereto and the latter is entitled to challenge the validity of the transaction. N GUNAJI v. RAMCHANDRA 948 ——————— Debts—Goods supplied for family business—Co-parceners, liability of.

Where a debt represents money due for goods supplied for a Hindu joint family business, it is one for necessity and binding on the co-parceners. L RAM GOPAL v. BHAN RAM-MANGAL CHAND 163 ——————— Debts—Joint family property—Widow's right of residence and maintenance.

Where a debt is incurred for a family purpose and necessity, a Hindu widow's right to maintenance and residence in the family property must be postponed to the just claims of her late husband's creditors. L LAKHO v. LACHHMAN DAS, A. I. R 1926 Lah. 241 181

——————— Father, mortgage by—Mortgagee obtaining decree against father—Suit by sons to contest mortgage—Burden of proof.

In a suit by the sons of a Hindu father to contest the legality of a mortgage executed by him of the joint family property, it is the duty of the mortgagee to prove the existence of a legal necessity.

But if the mortgagee obtains a decree upon his mortgage against the father, and thus the mortgage merges in the decree and ceases to subsist independently, the burden lies upon the sons, if they desire to escape liability under the decree, to prove the immoral nature of the judgment-debt. O KEDAR NATH v. SHANKAR DAYAL 250

——————— Father—Sale in execution of decree against—Quantum of interest purchased—Question whether of fact or law.

The question whether a purchaser on execution of a decree against a Hindu father got the entire family property or only the father's share therein is a mixed question of law and fact.

The mere fact that the father might have transferred his son's interest affords no presumption that he had done so.

The fact that the sons have not been made parties to the proceedings in execution of a decree against father is a material element in considering whether the creditor aimed at the larger or was willing to limit himself to the minor remedy. M NATESA PATHAR v. GANAPATHI SUBBU, 23 L. W. 349 68

——————— Manager, money lent by—Death of manager—Discharge, who may give. See HINDU LAW—DEBTS 664

——————— Self-acquisitions—Alienation—Will—Pension—Jagir—Priestly income.

The father of an undivided family subject to Mitakshara Law has full powers of disposition over his self-acquired property.

Jagir money as well as pension is the self-acquired property of each recipient though the jagir or the pension may have continued from father to son.

Hindu Law—contd.

Income from priestly-source is the self-acquired property of the man who receives the offerings though the offerings are made to him for his being a member of a ancient priestly family. L WAZIR SINGH v. MOTI SINGH 492

——— Joint family—Survivorship—Letters of Administration. See COURT FEES ACT, 1872, s. 19-1 986

——— Partition. See HINDU LAW—WIDOW 932

——————— Joint family—Separation—Separate acquisitions—Burden of proof.

Where a party comes into Court claiming a share in a certain property, it lies upon him to establish the foundation of his case, viz., that the property was Hindu joint family property, to which he as a surviving member is entitled.

The presumption of jointness of a Hindu family does not arise where it appears that before the suit there has been a division of the family property or a separation in the family all the members of which are living separately, though the date of the separation is unknown.

Where a family is admitted to be separate on the date of the suit, it is on a party who alleges that certain acquisitions were made at a time when the family was joint to prove that they were so made.

A separation in mess and worship may be due to various causes and yet the family may continue joint in estate. In other cases separation may take place and yet partition of the family property may be postponed. A PARTAP NARAIN SINGH v. RAM KUMAR SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 513; L. R. 7 A. 230 Rev. 944

——————— Step-mother, whether entitled to share.

Under the Hindu Law a step-mother, with or without sons, is entitled to get a share on a partition amongst the sons. N PADMAN SINGH v. SUBRANSAI, 22 N. L. R. 28; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 291 791

———————, whether transfer—Son's share, whether liable to be attached in execution of decree. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 53 282

——— Religious endowment—*Inheritance—*Guru and chela—Deity, property belonging to—Manager, power of, to sue—Idol, status of.

For purposes of inheritance under the Hindu Law, the relationship of a guru and his chela is that of father and son, and a chela is for this purpose the grandson of his guru's guru and two chelas of the same guru are brothers and so on. There is no limit to which this principle may be extended.

A manager of the property of a deity can sue as a next friend of an infant plaintiff for the recovery of property belonging to the deity even though there is a flaw in his title as the mahant of the temple in which the deity is lodged.

A Hindu idol is a juristic entity and has a juridical status with the powers of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager with all the powers, which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir. N NANDKISHORDAS v. KALA BAI 703

——————— Priestly income, whether constitutes self-acquired property of recipient. See HINDU LAW—SELF-ACQUISITION 492

——————— Shebaitship, alienation of—Distinction between spiritual obligations and temporalities—Doctrine of benefit or necessity.

The office of a shebait, i. e., the spiritual rights and duties the fulfilment of which is the primary func tion of a shebait, is not alienable. The doctrine of benefit or necessity is confined in its application to an alienation of the temporalities of the idol.

Hindu Law—contd.

There is a distinction between the shebait's obligation to perform the spiritual obligations of his office and his obligation to manage the temporalities of the idol. A shebaitship is primarily and mainly a sacred office and it does not follow that because in certain circumstances a shebait may be entitled to alienate the temporalities of the deity, in similar or certain circumstances he is entitled to transfer the spiritual duties and privileges which appertain to the office. C Nagendra Nath Palit v. Robindra Narain Deb, 30 C. W. N. 289; 53 C. 132; A. I. R. 1926 Cal 490 . 212 ——— Religious endowment—Temple—Scheme of management—Practice, departure from—Right of worship—Levy of fees—Rules under scheme—Court's power to alter.

A distinction must be drawn between a temple and its inner sanctuary. Every Hindu has a right to enter a Hindu temple and obtain sight of the idol and perform his act of worship from a distance without payment of fees. But the right of access to Holy of Holies is not equally free and may be regulated by special rules.

Rules framed under a scheme become a part of it and are liable to be superseded or altered by the Court having power to modify or alter the scheme.

A right of worship at a temple is not an absolutely unrestricted right. It is subject to reasonable regulations for preventing overcrowding, etc. Courts should be slow to recognise without proper evidence claims of right which would materially interfere with the rights of trustees to regulate the worship and ceremonials of temples in the interests of the whole community.

Though due consideration is to be given to an established practice in an institution when framing a scheme, it is not necessary that scheme and rules thereunder must conform to it. The interests of the institution and the facilitating of the work of management are the primary matters for consideration both in preparing the scheme and making any modifications in it. There should be provided means of progress even if it involves some departure from the established practice. B Shankarlal Purshottam Gor v. Dakor Temple Committee, 28 Bom. L. R. 309; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 179 47 ——— Succession—Father's sister's son and maternal uncle, preference between.

Under the Hindu Law prevailing in the Bombay Presidency the father's sister's son is a preferential heir to the maternal uncle of the deceased. B Sakhram Narayan Patvardhan v. Balkrishna Sadashiv Modak, 27 Bom. L. R. 1003; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 451; 49 B. 739 817

——————— Mayukha—Sons of deceased brother, whether entitled to succeed along with brothers.

In the Mayukha the sons of pre-deceased brothers succeed along with surviving brothers to the estate of a deceased Hindu. B Kesarlal Girdharilal Desai v. Jagubhai Hiralal .27 Bom. L. R. 226; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 406; 49 B. 282 686 ——— Widow—Alienation—Permanent lease by widow in consideration of alienee looking after her—Legal necessity.

A permanent lease granted by a Hindu widow in consideration of the alienee looking after her and her property is for good legal necessity and is valid. C Rajendra Nath Das v. Peyari Mohan Das 321

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Widow, alienation by—Necessity—Purchase of other properties—Benefit of estate.

If the parties who have to support an alienation made by a Hindu widow can show that the estate has been improved by selling immoveable property and buying other lands of equal or greater value and more convenient for cultivation and management, the Court will not set aside such a transaction. M Suryadevar Mahalakshamma v. Vennam Nagayya, (1926) M. W. N. 253; 23 L. W. 596; 50 M. L. J. 651; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 641 950

——————— Alienation — Partial necessity — Principle to be applied—Time-barred debts of husband.

In a case where the validity of a sale by a Hindu widow is in question and it is only in part supported by legal necessity, the proper principle to be applied is not whether the bulk of the sale consideration was taken for legal necessity, but whether the portion which was not taken for the said purpose was such a small fraction of the total consideration that it might reasonably be left out of account.

If a sale has been made in order to discharge a debt the essential point involved is whether on the date of the sale there was any pressure on the widow to meet this debt. The fact of its being time-barred is not conclusive on the question of the obligation resting on the widow to discharge. N Govinda v. Krishnaji 1002

——————— Co-widows—Partition, effect of—Alienation by one widow, whether binding upon co-widow.

Where the widows of a separated Hindu governed by the Mitakshara Law succeed as co-heirs to the estate of their deceased husband, a partition of the estate between them can in no circumstances have the effect of destroying the right of survivorship, and whatever may be the authority, under a friendly arrangement, of each widow to enjoy the usufruct of a separate portion of the estate, there is no right of alienation by one widow alone, which will bind the other widow after her death. It is the right of each of the co-widows to enjoy her deceased husband's property by partition inter se, and she can assign her share to any one she chooses and if she has already obtained her share by partition, she can alienate that share; but in either case the assignment or alienation cannot take effect or have validity beyond her lifetime. It is good as long as she lives, and on her death, her interest in the property ceases and the share goes to the surviving co-widow. O Gaya Kunwar v. Gauri Nath Kakajee, 3 O. W. N. 414 932 ——————— Debts—Charge on estate.

Even the fullest legal necessity cannot make a debt incurred by a Hindu widow a charge on her husband's estate after her death unless she specifically creates that charge. A personal debt of the widow is payable out of the income of the estate until she declares her inability to pay it herself by alienating a part of the estate to pay it. N Bisheshwardas Daga v. Anjor Singh, A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 334 394

——————— Maintenance, right of. See Hindu Law—Joint family 181

——————— Maintenance—Unchastity, effect of—Reversion to moral life, effect of—Bare maintenance.

The right of a Hindu widow to maintenance is dependent upon her continuing to be chaste. In case her incontinence is proved she forfeits that right.

Hindu Law—contd.

Where a Hindu widow, who has been unchaste, is proved to have given up the life of unchastity she is entitled to bare maintenance which should ordinarily be fixed by a rough and ready reference to the general condition of the family as disclosed in the evidence The amount of maintenance should be the bare minimum which is necessary in order to enable the widow to live. B BHIKUBAI YESAWANTRAO MEHER v. HARIBA SAWALARAM MEHER, 27 Bom. L. R. 13; A. I R. 1925 Bom. 153; 49 B. 459 665 ——— Widow, powers of -Family arrangement.

A Hindu widow is entitled to protect a right purported to be given to her under her husband's Will, and to make a compromise with a contesting party in defence of that right, provided always that the transaction as a whole is fair and reasonable from the point of view of reversioners.

A Hindu died leaving behind a widow and four married daughters. By a Will left by him, the widow was given authority to adopt a son, and was also appointed executor of the estate. An application being made by the widow for a Probate of the Will, certain objections were raised to it by the daughters, and an administrator pendente lite was appointed thereon. Some sort of family settlement was brought about among the members by the intervention of friends, the objections were withdrawn, and the widow paid a sum of Rs. 30,000 to one of the daughters in pursuance of the settlement. Subsequently, in accordance with the provisions of the Will, the widow adopted a son who about seven years after the settlement brought a suit contesting the payment of Rs. 30,000 to the daughter:

Held, (1) that qua executor it was a breach of trust for the widow to spend the testator's property in buying off disputes about the Will;

(2) that, however, whether the Will was bad or good everything went to the widow herself as a Hindu widow and she was fully entitled to represent the estate, and consequently a payment out of the estate was payment out of the beneficiary interest which at the moment was the widow's;

(3) that the arrangement which was made, was within the powers of the widow, and it was a beneficial and not an improper arrangement;

(4) that the fact of the estate being at the time of making the arrangement in the control of the administrator pendente lite did not affect her powers to make it.

A family arrangement by a Hindu widow, a limited owner, entered into with reversioners, themselves limited owners, cannot cure an act which is otherwise wrong.

There can be no family arrangement in the strict sense of the term, where it is not proved who the parties were to the settlement and what were the terms settled upon. C SUDHIR CHANDRA DAS v. INDUMATI CHAUHURANI, 43 C. L. J. 187; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 627 616

——— Surrender. See COURT OF WARDS ACT, 1879, s. 60 830

——— Will, construction of—Disposition to named person and 'his male heirs'—Estate-in-tail.

When a Hindu bequeaths property to some one and his male heirs, he means that the property should devolve upon the legatee and the male heirs in succession and thereby creates an estate-in-tail in favour of male heirs. Such a Will fails in its entirety, the estate created being unknown to Hindu Law. When a person devises property to a person and "his male heirs" and then lower down, instead of repeating the expression uses the expression "aforesaid person and his heirs" it cannot be said that he intended to change the course of devolution of the property already provided for in the preceding clause of the Will. M MADURA HINDU PERMANENT FUND LD. v. KAMAKSHI AMMAL, (1926) M. W. N. 137; 50 M. L. J. 355; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 492 487

Inam. See TRUST 489

———, Sarva Dambala.

The phrase "Sarva Dambala inam" only means that no money payment is insisted on the holding of the inam and it does not necessarily show that it is not a service inam. M TADANKI BRAHMAYYA v. PUVVALA MADHAVAN, 50 M. L. J. 282; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 496 489 ——— Service inam, resumption of—Nature of service inams—Incidents of service—Presumption of grant in lieu of wages, permissibility of—Right of resumption—Burden of proof—Mudam service, duties of.

To determine whether a grant of a service inam land is resumable or not, regard must be had to the nature of the tenure, whether the grant was made in lieu of wages for service or whether it was an absolute grant subject to the condition of the performance of the service. In grants of the former description, the relation between the grantor and the grantee is that of master and servant, and the grant may be resumed on the services being dispensed with. In a grant of the latter description, i.e., one burdened with service, it is an absolute grant with a condition annexed to it, namely, the rendering of service. In the absence of provision to the contrary it is only on breach of that condition and on the grantee committing default in the performance of that service that the grantor becomes entitled to resume the grant.

Where there is a grant in writing and it is produced, on a construction of it will depend the nature of the tenure, whether the grant was made in lieu of wages or was burdened with service. But where, either the original grant is not in writing or in any event is not before the Court, the nature of the tenure can be determined only on the evidence given and the facts and circumstances of each case.

When the question arises as to the class to which a specified grant belongs, there is no presumption that the grant was one made in lieu of wages for services. Nor can such a presumption arise even where it is proved that the services are personal.

The burden of proving the right of resumption lies on a plaintiff who seeks to resume.

Presumptions are not made at random. In order to raise a presumption some connection must be shown to exist between the fact proving and the fact to be proved, which warrants an inference from the one to the other when the two are brought into proximity.

The duties of mudam service consist in looking after the harvest of the crops, watching the heaps of harvested produce, placing seals upon them, preventing removal of cow-dung from waste lands and general supervision of harvest operations. M KANDADA THIRUVENKATA CHARLU v. SHAIK ALTOO SAHIB, 50 M. L. J. 251; (1926) M. W. N. 314; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 411 458

Income Tax Act (XI of 1922), ss. 2 (4), 4 (1), 6, 42 (1)—Non-resident assessee, liability of, to income tax—Non-resident limited company in India engaged in manufacture and export of worked up goods and raw materials—Principles of assessment.

Income Tax Act—1922—contd.

Under s. 42 (1), Income Tax Act, all profits or gains accruing or arising to a non-resident, whether directly, or indirectly, through or from any business connection or property in British India are deemed to be income accruing or arising within British India.

A limited Company was registered in London under the English Companies Act with its headquarters in London and was admittedly a non-resident of British India. It carried on large business operations in Burma in connection with rice, timber and cotton. It also had various rice mills, saw mills, cotton ginning mills and vegetable oil mills in Burma whereby commodities or raw material was worked up into forms suitable for use. The Company exported the material thus worked up as well as raw commodities without working them up in any way:

Held, (1) that in determining whether any income, profits or gains arise or accrue, it is not only the last stage of the accrual that has to be looked to but the previous stages also have to be taken into consideration and that, therefore, the mere fact that produce of the Company was sold in London and the money was received there did not prevent profits or gains accruing or arising or being deemed to accrue or arise in British India from being taxable under the Income Tax Act;

(2) that no distinction, so far as liability to income tax was concerned, could be drawn between profits on produce which had undergone some process of conversion or working up by the assessee in Burma, and profits on produce purchased by the assessee in Burma and exported in the same form as when purchased;

(3) that in arriving at the amount of profits liable to income-tax, a reasonable commission, agents' commission, should be allowed on goods exported and sold in London;

(4) that profits arising from contracts of insurance entered into by the Head Office in rice cargoes consigned to it by the Rangoon branch were not taxable in India;

(5) that commission earned by the Company through its export department on stores, etc., purchased and shipped from the United Kingdom to Burma could not be assessed to income-tax. R COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX v. STEEL BROTTHERS & Co., 3 R. 614; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 97 466

——— s. 13.

See INCOME TAX ACT, 1922, s. 22 (4) 150, 615

——— s. 22—Assessment—Procedure.

An Income Tax Officer should be governed in his procedure by judicial considerations. He should base his assessment on legal and not on mere hearsay evidence. L BAIJ NATH v. COMMISSIONER, INCOME TAX, LAHORE, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 238 156

——— ss. 22 (4), 23 (2), 13, 37—Accounts, production of—Assessment without opportunity to justify accounts—Legality—Procedure of Income Tax Officers—Accounts as basis for assessment—Petty traders, accounts of.

Production by an assessee of his accounts is a substantial compliance with the notice received under s. 22 (4), Income Tax Act, and the Income Tax Officer is not justified in rejecting the return and the accounts and in assessing on a rule of thumb until he has given notice to the assessee under s. 23 (2) of the Act to appear before him and justify his return.

When a return is furnished and accounts are put in, in support of that return, the accounts should be taken as the basis for assessment. They should not be rejected because they are complicated. Strictly regular accounts are not available particularly in the case of petty traders who very often have only a poor knowledge of accounts.

Section 37 of the Income Tax Act indicates that the procedure of the Income Tax Officers is of a judicial nature and in making assessment they should proceed on judicial principles. If evidence is produced by the assessee in support of his return it should be accepted unless it is rebutted by other admissible evidence and not by mere hearsay. L DUNI CHAND-DHANI RAM v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX, PUNJAB, 8 L. L. J. 106; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 161; 7 L. 201 614 ——— ss. 22 (4), 23 (2), 13 proviso—Returns by assessee incomplete or incorrect—Procedure in assessment.

When a return furnished by an assessee in compliance with a notice under s. 22 (4) of the Income Tax Act, is found by the Income Tax Officer to be incorrect, the proper procedure for him is not to compute the income as he thinks fit but to serve the assessee with a notice under s. 23 (2) requiring him on a date to be specified therein, either to attend at the Income Tax Officer's Office or to produce or to cause to be produced any evidence on which he intends relying in support of his return. Non-compliance with this procedure makes an assessment illegal.

Proviso to s. 13, Income Tax Act, applies only where no method of accounting has been regularly employed or where the method employed is such that in the opinion of the Income Tax Officer, the income, profits and gains cannot properly be deduced therefrom. L In the matter of INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, A. I. R. 1926 Lah 201; 7 L 138 150

——— s. 37 (22). See INCOME TAX ACT, 1922, s. 22 (4) 615

——— s. 42. See INCOME TAX ACT, 1922, s. 2 (4) 466

——— s. 66 (3)—Income Tax Officer's decision on method of accounting—Finality.

The proper stage for questioning the competency to issue a mandamus under s. 66 (3), Income Tax Act, is the date of hearing the application and the question cannot be agitated after an order has been passed on the application. L GOKAL CHAND JAGAN NATH v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX 128

——— s. 66 (3)—Mandamus, competency to issue, when should be challenged.

Income Tax Officer is the sole arbiter on the question of the possibility of deducing the income, profits and gains from the method of accounting employed and an assessee is not entitled to challenge his opinion. L GOKAL CHAND-JAGAN NATH v. COMMISSIONER OF INCOME TAX, PUNJAB 128

Inherent powers of Court. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT, 1881, s. 50 329

———, when to be exercised.

It is not open to the Court to invoke the inherent powers overriding distinct provisions in the C. P. C. C RAJANI KANTA DEY v. KHATIR MAHOMED 393

Inherent powers of Police. See CALCUTTA POLICE ACT, 1866, s. 78-A 266

Insolvency—Property sold by Receiver as belonging to insolvent—Claim to such property by third person dismissed—Appeal—Receiver necessary party.

In an appeal by a claimant whose claim with regard to a property sold by the Receiver as belonging to an insolvent has been dismissed, the Receiver is a necessary party. L CHIRANJI LAL v. MUNSHI 560

Insolvency Rules of Calcutta High Court, rr. 74, 150. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT, 1909, s. 15 793

Interest. See PARTNERSHIP 306

——— Decree silent as to interest—Interest, recovery of, in execution—Damages, recovery of, in separate suit.

Where a decree for maintenance is silent as to future interest, interest cannot be recovered in execution proceedings on arrears of maintenance remaining due under the decree, but it may be recovered as damages for detention of decretal amount by a separate suit. C NARESH CHANDRA BOSE v. KRISHNA BHABINI DASI, 53 C. 42; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 505 997

Interest Act (XXXII of 1839), s. 1, applicability of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73—Payment made by plaintiff on behalf of defendant—Interest, whether can be allowed.

The Interest Act forbids nothing. It permits the Court to allow interest in certain circumstances, but does not limit the allowance of interest to those circumstances.

It is hard to imagine a case in which the Court is permitted to allow interest by the Interest Act, which it is not expressly permitted to allow by some later Act, so that the Act as it contains nothing prohibitory is now obsolete unless such a case exists.

Where one person makes a payment on behalf of another under the mistaken impression shared by both of them that he is bound to make the payment, he is entitled to recover the amount of the payment from the person on whose behalf it was paid together with interest. N HARIDAYAL v. SUNDERLAL, 21 N. L. R. 16; A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 451 647

Interpretation—Ancient grant.

Should the general words of an ancient grant be uncertain they may be fairly explained by subsequent usage. P C SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v JYOTI PRASHAD SINGH DEO, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 41; 30 C. W. N. 745; 24 A. L. J. 761 974

Interpretation of Statutes. See RAILWAYS ACT, 1890, s. 113 742

———

There is a presumption that the Legislature when it repeats in a latter Act an expression which has obtained a settled meaning by judicial construction, intends the words to mean what they meant before. A SHEORAM SINGH v. BABU SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 295; 48 A. 302 849

———

Where an Act says that a person may present a petition to a particular Court, it must be inferred that it means that the Court shall have power to entertain and decide the petition.

Generally a qualifying word in a Statute must be made to qualify the word nearest to it. O ROBERT HENRY LEADON v. ETHEL MAY LEADON, 3 O. W. N. 406; 13 O. L. J. 236; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 319 952

——— Evidence Act v. Cr. P. C. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 27 901

——— General Statute v. Particular Statute—Repeal, constructive.

It is a cardinal rule of interpretation that a general Statute is to be construed as not repealing a particular one.

A repeal by implication is only effected when the provisions of a later enactment are so inconsistent with or repugnant to the provisions of an earlier one, that the two cannot stand together. L RANNUN v. EMPEROR, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 88; 7 L. 84; 27 Cr. L. J. 709 901 ———, rule of.

It is a rule of interpretation of Statutes that new powers must be conferred by clear and unambiguous language. The more defective and open to objection the language of a Statute, the greater the necessity to apply the canons of construction. O BRIJ RAJ CHANDRA v. SUBHADRA KUAR, 3 O. W. N. 321; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 324 294

Jagodih Lat. See CHOTA NAGPUR AND RAMGARH JAGIRS 1007

Jews—Marriage law applicable—Monogamy—Divorce, claim of, by Jewish wife—Grounds—Dissolution of Jewish marriage, how effected—Decree nisi—Alimony.

Jews in Bombay, generally speaking, are monogamous, and a husband cannot marry a second wife during the lifetime of her first husband except in certain specified exceptional cases.

A jewish wife can claim divorce on account of repeated ill-treatment received from her husband or turning her out of doors or prohibiting her from visiting her parental home.

A Jewish marriage can be dissolved by Courts of State and it is not necessary to obtain a ritual 'get' or 'bill of divorcement' executed by the husband.

The Court may in a case where the parties are Jews grant a decree nisi for dissolution of marriage.

It cannot be doubted that the Court has also power among the Jews to grant a permanent alimony. B RACHEL BENJAMIN v. BENJAMIN SOLOMON BENJAMIN, 28 Bom. L. R 328; A. I R. 1926 Bom. 169; 50 B 369 59

Jurisdiction of Court—Appellate Court assuming jurisdiction—Second appeal—Revision.

If an Appellate Court having no jurisdiction to hear an appeal assumes jurisdiction and passes an order, a second appeal would lie, and in any case the High Court would have power to revise that order. A HIRA LAL v. TIKAM SINGH 1

Jurisdiction of Civil Court.
See CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES ACT, 1912, s. 42 (6) 40
See MADRAS DISTRICT MUNICIPALITIES ACT, 1920, 546
See OUDH RENT ACT, 1886, s. 107-H 343

Lahore High Court Rules and Orders, Vol. V, Ch. XVII, r. 8—Fees of Counsel—Appeal from order of allotment of properties in partition suit—Power of Court to fix fees.

An appeal from an order allotting certain properties to the respective parties in a suit for partition of immoveable property, after passing of the preliminary but before the final decree, is an appeal from an order in miscellaneous proceedings and the Court has discretion to fix fees of the Counsel as in miscellaneous proceedings. L ABDUL RAB v. RAHIM BAKHSH, 8 L. L. J. 99; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 320 627

——— Ch. XX, r. 1—Documents, printing of.

The party on whom the duty falls for having a document printed is not the party which relies on the document in the sense that he produced it, but the party for whom in appeal the document is necessary and essential, and it is as necessary and essential to an appellant who impugns the correctness of a document or contends that it has not been correctly weighed and interpreted that it should be printed, as that the judgment which he attacks should be printed. L JAWAHAR SINGH v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA; 8 L. L. J. 114; A. I. R. 1926 Lah 292 635

Lahore High Court Rules and Orders—concld.

Lambardar—Suit for profits against lambardar—Negligence, what is—Patwari's register, reliance on.

Prima facie when the collection of profits by a lambardar is grossly inadequate, there is a presumption of negligence on his part.

A patwari's register cannot be safely relied on as a conclusive piece of evidence with regard to amounts collected. A CHATURI LAL v. LAKHMI CHAND, L. R. 7 A. 176 Rev. 389

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), s. 9 (2)—Formal statement of claim, putting in of—Uncertified copy of sale-deed, sending of.

Section 9 (2) of the Land Acquisition Act requires all persons whose land is taken under the Act and who have any occasion to advance any specific claims to the land which require to be considered, to state the nature of their respective interests in the land and the amount and particulars of their claims to compensation for such interests. Merely placing before the Collector an uncertified copy of the sale-deed of the land of which the land acquired formed a part does not satisfy the requirements of the section.

A District Court, when acting under s. 25 (2) of the Land Acquisition Act, cannot award a sum exceeding the amount awarded by the Collector. L ORIENT BANK OF INDIA LTD., v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA 245

——— s. 26. See C. P. C, 1908, O. XLI, R. 1 145

——— s. 54—Appeal, proper stage for—Apportionment of claims—Duty of District Judge.

Section 54 of the Land Acquisition Act contemplates only an appeal from a final award or part of a final award. Where a question as to apportionment has been referred to the District Judge, unless he has decided that question there is no final award which can be appealed against.

A District Judge is bound to decide the question of apportionment when it is referred to him and the existence of a civil suit between the parties does not affect his jurisdiction to decide that question. L DEO KARAN DAS v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA 249

Landlord and tenant—Eviction, what is—Suspension of rent.

Eviction is not a mere trespass but is something of a grave and permanent character done by the landlord with the intention of depriving the tenant of the enjoyment of the demised premises.

The facts necessary to cause suspension of rent must be distinctly found in order to bring into operation the rule of suspension of rent which has been applied as a punishment to the landlord for his illegal acts.

Mere mistake of landlord in including in a previous decree lands not forming the subject-matter of the suit in consequence of which they were sold, would not entitle the tenant to suspension of rent as the error could have been rectified by the tenant. C BISESWAR SARKAR v. KALI CHARAN 418

——— Ex-proprietary tenant.

An ex-proprietary tenant is not a tenant of the one particular proprietor who purchases sir land but is a tenant of the whole proprietary body A SOHAN LAL v. MAKHAN LAL, L. R. 7 A. 163 Rev. 171 ——— Gift by lessee of his holding—Lease of same by zemindar to donee—Termination of lease—Lease by lambardar—Subsequent lease by co-sharers—Priority—Suit by lessee against subsequent lessee for recovery of possession—Non-joinder of landlord, effect of.

If a tenant of a holding gifts it away and the zemindar also grants a lease of the same to the donee, the first tenancy terminates.

In U. P. a lambardar is presumed to have, by established usage or with the consent of the whole body of co-sharers, i. e., zemindars, the power to grant leases, and unless the contrary is proved, the mere fact that some of the co-sharers also sign a lease along with the lambardar does not invalidate the lease.

If a lambardar authorised to grant lease on behalf of the whole body of co-sharers leases a land, a subsequent lease of the same by the whole body of co-sharers will have no priority over the earlier one.

The non-joinder of the lessor does not affect a suit by a first lessee against the second lessee for recovery of possession of the property on the ground of his lease being prior. O KARAMAT KHAN v. YASIN KHAN 3 ——— Lease—Covenant providing for assignment subject to consent of landlord—Consent withheld unreasonably, effect of.

Plaintiff obtained a lease of a piece of land from the defendants which contained a covenant that the demised premises and the buildings erected thereon should not be assigned without the consent in writing of the defendants, but that such consent would not be unreasonably withheld in the case of a respectable and responsible person. Plaintiff erected certain buildings on the land demised and entered into an agreement with a tenant to take the buildings on rent. Defendants, however, withheld their consent and plaintiff thereupon filed a suit for a declaration that the refusal of the defendants to consent to the assignment was unreasonable and that the plaintiff was entitled to assign the lease without their consent. It was found that the proposed tenant was a respectable and responsible person and that the defendants had withheld their consent owing to the fact that there had been a dispute between them and the proposed tenant with regard to another letting:

Held, that the refusal of the defendants to consent to the assignment was unreasonable and that the plaintiff was entitled to the declaration sought for by him. B RATANJI DORABJI v. KISANDAS TRIBHOVANDAS, 27 Bom. L. R. 340; A. I. R. 1925 Bom 302 923

——— Monthly tenancy—Notice to quit expiring on last day of tenancy, validity of—Notice expiring with expiration of Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act, validity of.

In the case of a monthly tenancy a month's notice to quit expiring on the last day of the tenancy is a valid notice so as to terminate the tenancy.

There was nothing in the Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act which prevented a landlord from giving a notice to quit expiring with the expiration of that Act. B MAHOMEDALLY EBRAHIMJI v. ABDULLAH KAZIM, 27 Bom. L. R. 102; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 167 631

——— Occupancy holding, non-transferable, transfer of—Rent, suit for, whether lies—Suit by transferee for declaration that rent-decree is void, maintainability of.

Where an occupancy tenant of a non-transferable holding transfers such holding, the landlord may, if he chooses, ignore the sale and bring a rent suit as against his tenant, and in execution of the decree obtained in such suit proceed to bring the holding to sale.

Landlord and tenant—contd.

In such a case the transferee of the holding has no locus standi to maintain a suit for a declaration that the decree obtained by the landlord is invalid. Pat LACHMAN SAHAY v GAURI CHARAN MAHTON, 7 P. L. T. 137; (1926) Pat. 99 556

——— Parti land—Presumption as to ownership of taluqdar*—Possession of tenant—Adverse possession—Tenant, whether can put structures on land without permission of landlord—Tenant's right to retain possession over land held for more than 12 years.*

It is settled law in United Provinces that where a proprietor of a village is proved to be in rent collecting possession thereof, his possession over the lands situate in that village which bear the character of waste land, tank land and jungle land must be presumed.

Where a person is admittedly a tenant, his possession of the land must be deemed to be in that very capacity unless it be shown by satisfactory evidence that it was of a contrary nature.

The tenants residing in a village who are in the enjoyment of the land in front of their houses, the title of which is with the landlord, are not entitled, according to the custom prevailing in Oudh, to put up structures on the land without the consent of the landlord.

If a tenant in a village has been in possession of a plot of land as sahan darwaza for more than 12 years, he obtains a right by such possession to remain in actual enjoyment of the land and the landlord cannot deprive him of such enjoyment. O HULAS v. BARKATUNNISSA BEGUM, 3 O. W. N. 475 1034 ——— Premises damaged by combustion of cotton stored—Liability of tenant.

In Agra, on 25th March 1920, defendants hired a room on the ground floor of the plaintiff's house and stored therein 338 bales of cotton. The cotton was of 1919 season and remained in that room throughout the hot weather of April, May and June 1920. There were three doors to the room but no ventilation and when the doors were shut the whole room was a sealed chamber. Some days prior to 28th July rain had been falling. At 4 P. M. that day the cotton was found to be on fire and the fire was not got under until great damage had been done to the upper portion of the house:

Held, that the defendants were liable for damages on the ground that the fire which occured would not have happened had the defendants exercised proper watchfulness and control over the cotton. They had the exclusive control and custody of the cotton and must be presumed to know the degree of care required by persons who store cotton in India in bulk in unventilated rooms during months of April, May, June and July. A MUL CHAND-NEMI CHAND v. BASDEO-RAM SARUP, 24 A. L. J. 420 425 ——— Rent, non-payment of, in Revenue Records—Relation between parties.

Where, though the plaintiffs and defendants are shown in the Revenue Records as landlords and tenants, those very records show that the defendants never paid any rent and were in possession as trespassers, the relationship of landlord and tenant is not established between the parties. L RAHMAT ULLAH v. NAWAB 417

Landlord and tenant—contd.

——— 'Sharing in cultivation', meaning of. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 100 190 ——— Suit for rent by co-sharer landlord—Abatement, plea of, whether can be raised—Measurement, whether can be claimed.

In a rent suit the tenants are not precluded from raising the question of abatement of rent by reason of the fact that the suit is one between one of several co-sharer landlords and the tenants, when the plaintiff co-sharer under an arrangement between himself and his other co-sharers and the tenants has been collecting his share of the rent separately.

When deduction or abatement of rent is claimed by a tenant in a suit for rent he may insist on a measurement and an order for measurement must be made if a case justifying or necessitating the order is made out. C SIVADAS DUTTA v. BIRENDRA KRISTA DUTTA, 43 C. L. J. 116; A. I. R. 1926 Cal 672 844 ——— Suit for possession—Plaintiff's title established but not contract of tenancy—Defendant's possession permissive in inception—Adverse possession—Decree for possession.

Where the plaintiff's title to the property claimed has been established and also that the defendant has been in occupation of that property by permission of the plaintiff, the plaintiff would be entitled to a decree for possession in spite of the fact that he may have failed to establish the contract of tenancy set up by him as the basis of his claim.

The principle of law that possession prima facie may be considered adverse cannot apply to a case where the possession of the defendant in its inception is of a permissive nature. O AHMAD SHARIF v. UMRAO BEG, 3 O. W. N. 460; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 353 779 ——— Transfer by tenant—Acceptance of transferee as tenant.

A landlord cannot be taken to have accepted a transferee from his tenant as his own tenant, merely because he brings a suit for possession against the transferee, which suit is not proceeded with and comes to nothing. C SIATAJ SHAIKH v. BISHNUDAS DHAR 400 ——— Village abadi*—Ejectment—House built by tenant—Right of tenant to retain house.*

A tenant cannot be ejected from the house in the abadi of the village as long as he retains any interest in the village. O MAHANT DASS v. RAM GHULAM 399

Lease, See LANDLORD AND TENANT 3

——— Life-estate—Lease-money—Personal debt—Rent, when due.

Rent due by a lessee to a lessor holding a life-estate is a personal debt to which a personal heir of the lessor would succeed on his death even though the property in respect of which the rent is due cannot be inherited by such heir.

The rent of a leased property is due as soon as the lease is granted, although it may not be payable till a particular time.

The fact that a life-estate-holder dies before the rent in respect of the estate becomes payable would not make it any the less his personal debt. N MARUTI v. UKARDA, 22 N. L. R. 13; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 314. 741 ——— Second lease for convenient use of land under first lease—Presumption as to incidents of second lease—Indefinite tenancy, duration of—Yearly rent—Presumption as to nature of tenancy.

Where a land is taken on lease for the convenient use and occupation of other premises already taken under a lease, there is no presumption that incidents of the first lease also attach to the second.

Lease—concld.

The question whether a lease for an indefinite term enures for the life of the grantee and cannot be put an end to by a notice to quit, depends upon the terms of the lease.

In the absence of anything to show the contrary an agreement to pay annual rent indicates that the tenancy is yearly. C CHANDI CHARAN MITRA v. ASHUTOSH LAHIRI, 53 C. 95; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 558 684

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), ss. 12, 13, 14—Legal Practitioner committing criminal offence—Procedure.

Where a legal practitioner is suspected of having committed a criminal offence, proceedings under the Legal Practitioners Act should not be taken, but if it is thought necessary, action should be taken by way of a criminal prosecution. C EMPEROR v. RAJENDRA KUMAR DUTTA, 30 C. W. N. 186; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 502; 27 Cr. L. J. 701 893

Letters Patent (Bom.), cl. 12—Jurisdiction to entertain matrimonial suits between Jews.

Clause 12 of the Letters Patent of the Bombay High Court gives that Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit arising out of matrimonial disputes between Jews and the law applicable would be Jewish Law "with such adaptations to the circumstances of the case as justice may require." B BENJAMIN v. BENJAMIN, 28 Bom. L. R. 328; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 169; 50 B. 369 59

Letters Patent (Lah.), cl. 10. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 47 521

Letters Patent (Mad.), cl. 15—Order refusing leave to file memorandum of objections in forma pauperis —Discretion—Interference in appeal.

When the order complained of in an appeal under cl. 15 of the Letters Patent is merely the result of the exercise of discretion on the part of the Judge in a matter which was a proper subject for the exercise of that discretion, the Appellate Court would rightly decline to interfere.

Quære.—Whether an order refusing leave to file a memorandum of objections in forma pauperis is a judgment under cl. 15, Letters Patent. M PARVATHI AMMAL v. VENKATESHWARA AIYAR, (1926) M. W. N. 255; 23 L. W. 511; 50 M. L. J. 426; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 656 45 ——— cl. 15—Order transposing defendant as plaintiff—Judgment—Appeal.

A determination, whatever it may be called, which has the effect, whether on a technical ground or on the merits, of putting an end to the proceedings as regards the particular people or in toto is a judgment within cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and is appealable, but if the pronouncement leaves the suit free to go on, then it is not a judgment within the meaning of the clause.

An order of a Judge of the High Court, on the Original Side transposing a person from the position of a defendant to that of a plaintiff is not a judgment under cl. 15, Letters Patent, and is, therefore, not appealable. M OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF MADRAS v. A. RAMALINGAPPA, 50 M. L. J. 361; 23 L. W. 592; (1926) M. W. N. 366; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 554; 49 M. 539 456

Limitation—Application barred—Extension of time. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 115 117 ——— Contract for several lots of goods—Contract indivisible—Starting point of limitation.

Where the contract for the supply of several lots of goods is indivisible and not an instalment one, limitation in respect of all lots would run from the date when the last lot is due to arrive. L AMBA PARSHAD-GOPI NATH v. JAWALA DAT-RAM KANWAR, 8 L. L. J. 101 629

Limitation—concld.

———, operation of. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XX, R. 7 121

———, plea of, abandoned in Trial Court, whether can be taken in appeal.

It is open to a party to press in appeal a point of limitation, though the issue embodying the plea of limitation may have been abandoned in the Trial Court. R MAUNG MYA v. MA THIN TIN, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 313; 4 Bur. L. J. 113 611

Limitation Act (IX of 1908)—Limitation for certain suit provided—Maintainability of suit.

A provision as to limitation for a particular suit in the Limitation Act is no argument that such a suit is maintainable, for the Act does not create a cause of action if it does not already independently exist.—C ALBERT BONNAN v. IMPERIAL TOBACCO CO., 30 C. W. N. 465; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 757 444

——— s. 3—Limitation, point of, in appeal.

The question of limitation though neither raised in the Trial Court nor in the grounds of appeal may be urged at the hearing of appeal for the first time. L DULO v. MUHAMMAD NATHU 251

——— s. 3—Limitation urged for first time in appeal.

Question of limitation should not be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal where its determination requires an investigation into facts to see whether a particular payment was made in such a way as to extend time. L TEJU v. RALLA 457

——— s. 5. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XXII, R. 4 929

——— s. 5—Copy of Trial Court judgment filed with delay—Delay due to Counsel's mistake—Extension of time—Contract for several lots of goods—Contract indivisible—Limitation, starting point of.

Where a copy of the first Court's judgment is filed after the period of limitation for the second appeal owing to the delay caused by mistake on the part of the appellant's Counsel in asking for a copy of the decree instead of judgment in his reminder to the copying department, though originally it was the copy of the judgment that had been applied for, the delay would be excused and time extended. L AMBA PARSHAD-GOPI NATH v. JAWALA DAT-RAM KANWAR, 8 L. L. J. 101 629

——— s. 5—Discretion, nature of—Second appeal—Interference with refusal to exercise discretion.

Discretion vested in a Court under s. 5 of the Limitation Act is a judicial one and where a refusal of the Court to exercise this discretion is not based on appreciation and consideration of such facts as are relevant and the application of the right principles, the High Court is competent to interfere with it in second appeal. L BACHINT SINGH v. HARNAM SINGH 396

——— s. 5—Extension of time—Sufficient cause.

An applicant filing an application beyond time, under a mistaken view that it is within time, cannot ask for extension of time under s. 5 of the Limitation Act, where even according to his own mistaken view he has filed it on the very last possible day. N KUTUAB-UD-DIN v. GULAM RABBANI 121

——— s. 5—Second appeal—First Court judgment, delay in preparation of—Extension of time.

Where a copy of the judgment of the first Court is applied for within limitation but is not filed in time with memorandum of appeal owing to inordinate delay in its preparation, the appellant will be given the benefit of s. 5, Limitation Act. L Bhuri v. Asghari Begam 959 ———— ss. 6, 7—Minor—Limitation begun before birth—Benefit of minority.

Limitation Act—contd.

A minor cannot take advantage of his minority or plead ss. 6 and 7 of the Limitation Act where limitation had already begun to run before his birth. A Bohra Natha Mal v. Jhunia Lal 180

———— s. 7—Decree obtained by joint Hindu family—Manager, whether can give discharge—Execution of decree—Minor member—Limitation.

The manager of a joint Hindu family can give a valid discharge in respect of a decree on his own behalf and on that of a minor brother and the latter cannot, therefore, take advantage of the provisions of s. 7 of the Limitation Act for the purpose of executing the decree. A Radha Kant Shukul v. Butia Misir 922

———— s. 10—Endowment in favour of deity.

For application of s. 10, Limitation Act, two conditions must combine, there must be a trustee with an express trust and an estate or interest vested in the trustee. Therefore, the section is inapplicable to the case of an endowment in favour of a deity. C Ganga Prosad Chowdhury v. Kuladananda Roy, 30 C. W. N. 415; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 568 235

———— s. 12—Time requisite for obtaining copies.

A Jhelum appeal was heard by the District Judge, Rawalpindi, in his capacity as Additional Judge, Jhelum, and decided on 25th May 1925. On the 24th July 1925 the appellant applied in the Court of the District Judge, Jhelum, for copies of the judgment and the decree of the Appellate Court. His deposit of the fees was accepted and an order was made on the application for supply of the copies. On 28th September 1925 appellant's application was returned with a direction that it should be made at Rawalpindi. The application was presented in Rawalpindi Court on the 29th September 1925 and copies were obtained on the 5th October 1925 and the appeal was filed on 30th October 1925:

Held, that the appellant was entitled to count the whole period from the 24th July till the 5th October as time requisite for obtaining copies. L Kalian Singh v. Fazal Din 1055

———— s. 15.

See Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, 1876, s. 3 (1) 624

See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 182 482

———— s. 18. See Limitation Act, 1908, Sch. I, Art. 164 56

———— s. 20—Part-payment—Payment sent through messenger by agent of debtor—Person making payment, who is.

Where an agent of the debtor sends a sum of money through a messenger to the creditor with a slip signed by himself asking that the sum be credited to the debtor, the payment made is by the agent within the meaning of s. 20, Limitation Act. C Ramkumar Sewchand Roy v. Nanuram Poddar, 53 C. 163; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 510 657

———— s. 22. See Contract Act, 1872, s. 140 575

———— s. 22—Suit against Railway—Defendant described as "Agent of the Railway"—Misdescription—Amendment—Limitation.

In a suit for damages for non-delivery of goods consigned to the East Indian Railway for carriage, the defendant was described as "Agent, East Indian Railway." The Railway Company entered appearance, put in a written statement and fought out the case and it was only in the Appellate Court that objection was taken to the description of the defendant:

Held, that as the case had been fought out on the merits by the Railway Company it was only a case of misdescription which could be rectified by a formal amendment and that, as no new defendant would be added or substituted by the amendment, the provisions of s. 22 of the Limitation Act had no application to the case. C Gopiram Behariram v. Agent, E. I. R., 30 C. W. N. 209; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 612 762 ———— ss. 36, 25—Slander of title or of goods—Suit.

For purposes of limitation a suit for slander of title or slander of goods is governed by Art. 36 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. C Albert Bonnan v. Imperial Tobacco Co., 30 C. W. N. 465; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 757 444

———— Sch. I, Arts. 36, 42—Civil action brought maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause—Suit for damages, whether lies—Limitation—Temporary injunction obtained in suit—Damages, cause of action for—Sea Customs Act (VIII of 1878), ss. 18, 19-A—Detention of goods in customs house maliciously—Damages, cause of action for—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 95, interpretation of.

Where a party maliciously obtains an order for the detention of goods of a person under s. 19A, Sea Customs Act, the latter is entitled to bring a suit for damages and limitation for such a suit is two years under Art. 36 of Sch I to the Limitation Act.

A suit for damages for wrongful interference with the property of a person by obtaining an order from a Court in a suit or proceeding, when malice and want of reasonable and probable cause is established, is maintainable. The summary remedy provided by s. 95, C. P. C., is no bar to such a suit. C Albert Bonnan v. Imperial Tobacco Co., 30 C. W. N. 465; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 757 444

———— Art. 49, scope of—Suit for compensation for trees cut by occupancy tenants—Limitation.

A suit by the landlord against his occupancy tenant for compensation for the trees cut is a suit for compensation for the breach of an implied contract not specifically provided in the Limitation Act and is governed by three years' limitation under Art. 49, Sch. I, Limitation Act.

Article 49 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act covers all other cases of specific moveable property wrongfully taken or wrongfully detained which do not arise out of theft or dishonest conversion as provided by Art. 48. A Jagdish Prasad v. Raghubir, L. R. 7 A. 167 Rev. 336 ———— Art. 115—Suit for non-delivery of goods per several shipments—Limitation, starting point of.

The limitation for a suit for non-delivery of goods of various shipments, starts from the last day of the arrival of the last shipment and no cause of action accrues to the plaintiff until then. L Chhota Lal-Amba Parshad v. Basdeo Mal-Hira Lal 2

Limitation Act—1908—contd.

——— Sch. I, Arts. 115, 116—Dividend payable by Company—Suit for recovery by share-holder—Limitation.

A debt created by the declaration of dividend by a Company in favour of a share-holder, whether or not in certain circumstances and for certain purposes it may be regarded as a contract, is not a contract such as is contemplated by Arts. 115 and 116 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. M GURUNADHA RAM SESHAYYA v. TRIPURASUNDARI COTTON PRESS, 50 M. L. J. 520; 49 M. 468; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 615; 24 L. W. 102 515

——— Art. 120—Suit to recover remuneration for services in temple—Limitation—Recurring right.

There is a vast distinction between a suit brought to establish a periodically recurring right and a suit brought to enforce payments due as remuneration for the performance of services arising out of that right.

A suit by the dwaris of a temple to recover dues which they claim to be payable to them as remuneration in respect of their services in connection with the temple is governed by Art. 120 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and a claim relating to a period more than six years prior to the date of the institution of the suit would be barred by time. Pat BAIDYANATH JIU v. HAR DUTT DAWARI, (1926) Pat. 1; 5 Pat. 249; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 205; 7 Pat. L. T. 465 826

——— Arts. 120, 62, 115, 116—Dividend payable by Company—Suit for recovery by auction-purchaser—Limitation.

A suit by an auction-purchaser of a share-holder's rights to receive dividends of a Company for recovery of dividend declared and payable by the Company is governed by Art. 120 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and not by either Art. 62, 115 or 116. M GURUNADHA RAMA SESHAYYA v. TRIPURASUNDARI COTTON PRESS, 50 M. L. J. 520; 49 M. 468; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 615; 24 L. W. 102 515

——— Arts. 132, 147.

Article 147 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act is applicable only to the class of mortgage generally known and defined by the Transfer of Property Act as an English mortgage. A suit to recover money due on a mortgage by conditional sale is governed by Art. 132 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and limitation begins to run from the time when default is made in payment of an instalment of interest, where the mortgagee is given the right on such default to sue for the whole amount. A SHEORAM SINGH v. BABU SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 295; 48 A. 302 849

——— Arts. 142, 144—Suit for possession—Land under cultivation—Burden of proof.

In a suit for possession of land under cultivation plaintiff, in order to succeed, must prove his possession and dispossession within twelve years. L RAHMAT ULLAH v. NAWAB 417

——— Art. 144—Co-owners—Suit for possession—Limitation—Ouster—Adverse possession.

The possession of one co-owner must be deemed to be the possession of all the co-owners, unless there was some act of ouster by which one of the co-owners was deprived of possession by another.

Where parties are co-sharers and no partition has taken place between them, mere non-participation of profits by one and occupation and enjoyment of the joint property by the others is not per se adverse possession. There must be a disclaimer of others' right by an open assertion of a hostile title on the part of the other co-owner setting up adverse possession and notice of such disclaimer to the others. Limitation against a co-sharer does not begin to run until his title is openly denied.

Where in a suit for possession the plaintiff has established his title as a co-owner, the onus is on the defendant co-sharer to plead and prove adverse possession for the statutory period. Article 144 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act applies to such a case. O AHMADULLAH v. BASHIR AHMAD 855

——— Sch. I, Art. 144—Possession of mortgagee after satisfaction, when adverse.

A suit which in essence is one for declaration of title and recovery of possession is governed by Art. 144 and not Art. 148 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

The possession of a mortgagee does not become adverse to the mortgagor merely because the mortgagee remains in possession after the mortgage-money has been satisfied.

The question whether the possession of the mortgagee after the mortgage-debt has been satisfied is adverse to the mortgagor or not is always a question of intention of the parties concerned. C KESHAB LAL GOSWAMI v. BHOLANATH GANGOPADHYA 342

——— Art. 148—Suit by second mortgagee decreed—First mortgagee not party—Sale in execution of decree—Second mortgagee's right to redeem first mortgage—Limitation.

A second mortgagee who has not been made a party to the suit of a prior mortgagee is entitled to redeem the prior mortgage and is not bound either by the decree in the suit of the prior mortgagee or by the sale held in execution thereof.

The period of limitation for such a suit is 60 years under Art. 148, Sch. I, Limitation Act. Pat RAMJHARI KOER v. KASHI NATH SAHAI 284

——— Art. 164. See C. P. C., 1908, O. IX, R. 13 420

——— Art. 164—Application to set aside ex parte decree—Nature of fraud permissible to prove—Remedies open to applicant.

It is not correct that for the purposes of Art. 164 of the Limitation Act the only fraud that is relevant to be considered in the application for setting aside an ex parte decree is a fraud with reference to the service of the notice and that s. 18 of the Limitation Act does not otherwise apply to such an application. It is open to the applicant in such a case to prove a fraud practised on him by the decree-holder which prevented him from appearing in Court on the date of hearing.

The applicant in such a case has a dual remedy, one by an application to set aside the ex parte decree and another by a civil suit to set aside the decree as having been obtained by fraud. N M. B. KINKHEDE v. MOHANTA 56

——— Art. 166—Application to set aside sale—Service of notices—Limitation.

The sole object of O. XXI, r. 92, C. P. C., is to provide that no adverse order should be passed in the absence of the persons affected by it. Inasmuch as an application under O. XXI, r. 90 is an application in the suit itself, all the decree-holders are parties to the proceedings under the application. Pat ISHWAR DAS MARWARI v. BISESWAR DAS MARWARI, (1926) Pat. 83; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 266; 7 P. L. T. 532 31

——— Art. 177. See C. P. C., 1908, O. XII, R. 4 929

Limitation Act—1908—contd.

—— Sch. I, Art. 181—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 39, O. XXI, r. 10—Transfer of execution, application for—Step-in-aid of execution—Limitation.

An application under s. 39, C. P. C., for transfer of the execution of the decree is not an application for execution within the meaning of O. XXI, r. 10, C. P. C., but an application to take a step-in-aid of execution governed by Art. 181, Sch. I, Limitation Act. A SAHODRA v. BHAGWAN DAS 482

———— Art. 182—Decree passed against wrong person by mistake—Application for execution—Amendment—Substitution of judgment-debtor's name—Limitation, extension of—Previous application, whether in accordance with law.

In a suit in which there were several defendants the Court purporting to pass a decree against one particular defendant passed it by mistake against another. The decree-holder made several applications for execution of the decree against the defendant whose name was entered in the decree. The latter then applied for amendment of the decree and the decree was amended by striking out his name and substituting the name of the defendant against whom the Court had intended to pass the decree. This was done more than three years after the date of the passing of the decree. When the decree-holder made an application for execution of the decree against the defendant whose name was entered in the decree on amendment an objection was taken that the application was barred by time:

Held, (1) that so long as the wrong decree stood, the only person against whom the decree-holder could proceed in execution was the person whose name was entered in the decree and that, therefore, the applications made by the decree-holder for execution prior to the amendment of the decree were made in accordance with law within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of Sch. I to the Limitation Act and operated to save limitation;

(2) that the present application having been filed within three years of the last application was within time;

(3) that on another view of the case, it was not possible for the decree-holder to execute the decree against the real judgment-debtor till the date of the amendment and that it was only after the amendment that a right to apply to execute the decree against him had accrued and that for this reason also the application was within time. A DEBI BAKHSH v. SHAMBHU DIAL-GANGA PRASAD, 24 A. L. J. 266; 48 A. 281 877

———— Art. 182—Decree partly joint and partly several—Execution application—Execution of costs in execution.

Where a decree is jointly passed against all the defendants in one matter and severally against different defendants with respect to other matters, the first portion of the Explanation to Art. 182, Limitation Act, shall apply to decrees passed severally and the second portion to the decree or decrees passed jointly.

Application for execution of costs incidental to the execution proceedings is not an application for the execution of the original decree or any part of it and, therefore, does not save limitation. A NAND LAL SARAN v. DHARAM KIRTI SARAN, 24 A. L. J. 465 961 ———— Art. 182—Execution of decree—Execution stayed till decision of another suit—Suit decided by Trial Court—Decree-holder's duty to continue pending execution—Limitation.

Limitation Act—1908—concld.

Where execution proceedings are stayed till the decision of another case, no sooner the latter case is decided it is the duty of the decree-holder to take out execution proceedings notwithstanding the fact that the judgment-debtor may have in the interval filed an appeal, and if the decree-holder fails to do so within three years execution of the decree would be barred. A SAT NARAIN LAL v. GANGA JAL 1005

———— Sch. I, Art. 182—Execution of decree—Sale of decree—Application for execution by purchaser directed to be filed owing to defect in sale-deed—Removal of defect—Fresh application—Limitation.

The purchaser of a decree from a decree-holder made an application for execution of the decree but it was discovered that the number of the decree was entered incorrectly in the deed of sale. The application for execution was, however, merely ordered to be "filed". The purchaser then obtained another sale-deed which described the decree correctly and made a fresh application for execution:

Held, that the previous application having been ordered to be simply 'filed' and not having been struck off owing to a default of the decree-holder, must be deemed to have been still pending when the subsequent application was made and that the subsequent application must be treated as an application for revival of the previous application and no question of limitation arose in respect of the subsequent application, which in its turn could be availed of as giving a fresh start of limitation. A BITTEE v. KANHAIYA LAL MISIR 869

———— Art. 182 (2)—Withdrawal of appeal.

An appeal is withdrawn within the meaning of Art. 182 (2) of Sch. I to the Limitation Act on the date when the order permitting it to be withdrawn is made by the Court and not on the date when the application for permission to withdraw the appeal is filed. A RAM CHANDRA NAICK v. NAZAR ALI, 24 A. L. J. 544 390 ———— Art. 182 (5)—Step-in-aid of execution—Issue of notice under O. XXI, r. 66, C. P. C.—Affidavit, swearing in of—Limitation, fresh start of.

Issue of notice under O. XXI, r. 66, C. P. C., to the judgment-debtor in order that he might be present to assist the Court in drawing up the sale proclamation, not on the motion of the decree-holder but of its own accord is not a step-in-aid of execution. Nor does the swearing in of an affidavit by the decree-holder's identifier to the effect that the notice had been served unaccompanied by any application oral or written give a fresh start to limitation. C JADU NATH SINGHA v. KRISHNA RANGINI DASSYA 44

———— Art. 182, s. 15—Stay of execution—Deduction of period of stay in computing limitation.

Where on the request of the parties execution of a decree is stayed and the judgment-debtor is allowed a certain period to pay the decretal amount, a subsequent application for transfer of execution made within three years from the date of the expiry of the period allowed to the judgment-debtor is within time.

The period allowed to the judgment-debtor for payment of money, during which period execution remains stayed, is deducible under s. 15, Limitation Act, in computing period of limitation for an application for transfer of execution. A SAHODRA v. BHAGWAN DAS 482

Madras District Municipalities Act (V of 1920) —Rules for conduct of elections, r. 5—Candidate's name, omission of, in final list of valid nominations —Remedy of party aggrieved—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of—Statutory tribunal, creation of—Effect.

Where a special tribunal out of the ordinary course is appointed by an Act to determine questions as to rights which are the creation of that Act, then except so far as otherwise expressly provided or necessarily implied, that tribunal's jurisdiction to determine those questions is exclusive. If the tribunal has functioned and given a decision whether right or wrong, the Civil Court has no jurisdiction. It is only when the special tribunal has refused to function that a Civil Court exercises the jurisdiction which the proper tribunal has failed to exercise.

Where at an election of a Councillor for one of the wards of a Municipality, the name of a candidate is omitted from the final list of valid nominations published under r. 5 of the Election Rules, the remedy of the aggrieved party is to refer the matter to the Local Government under r. 31 or to file an election petition under r. 1 of the Election Dispute Rules, and not a suit for injunction restraining election in a Civil Court. M VICE-CHAIRMAN, CHIDAMBARAM MUNICIPALITY v. GANASAMBANADHAM PILLAI 546 ——— ss. 249, 250, 338, Sch. V, cl. (q)—Factory, construction of, permitted by Council—Annual license, failure to take out—Prosecution—Machinery under Sch. V (q), what is.

Where permission has been granted by a Municipal Council under s. 250 of the Madras District Municipalities Act for the construction and establishment of a factory to work a rice hulling machine, annual license is not necessary to be taken from the Chairman under s. 249 and where a person uses a 22 horse power gas engine in the factory without taking such license, he is not liable to be prosecuted under s. 338 of the Act.

The Madras District Municipalities Act clearly intends to draw a distinction between what is described as "industries" and 'factories'. The former are dealt with in s. 249 and the latter in s. 250.

The machinery referred to in Sch. V of the Act is machinery of a kind that is propelled by means other than those described in s. 250 which contemplates some sort of mechanical motive power and must be such as is likely to be dangerous to human life, health or property, the object of the clause being to bring under control the storing, manufacturing, and using of things which are dangerous to human life, health or property.

The last clause in Sch. V, cl. (q), namely, "which is likely to be dangerous to human life or health or property" governs that part of cl. (q) which begins with the words "using for any industrial purposes" and not the whole of cl. (q). M MADURA MUNICIPALITY v. MUTHUBALU CHETTY, 50 M. L. J. 384; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 576; 27 Cr. L. J. 635 411

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 12, scope of—Trees on land under lease, rights in.

Where trees are growing in land which is held by a ryot, though no mention of trees be made in any lease, s. 12 of the Madras Estates Land Act applies and the landholder has no claim. But where the trees are let to a person on whose land they do not grow the landholder has a claim for full value of the trees cut by the ryot. P. C. RAJA OF RAMNAD v. KAMID ROWTHER, 50 M. L. J. 503; A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 22; (1926) M. W. N. 376; 49 M. 335; 24 L. W. 1; 30 C. W. N. 844 322

Madras Estates Land Act—concld.

——— s. 30 and Ch. XI—Record of Rights—Fair and equitable rent, determination of—Section 30, whether can be disregarded.

A Revenue Officer acting under Ch. XI of the Madras Estates Land Act to determine the fair and equitable rent should take into consideration the existing rate of rent, the rise in prices, the time when the rate was last settled and the present state of things as regards the facilities of irrigation and other circumstances which would enable him to settle what is a fair and equitable rent. Whatever may be the rate of rent, if he considers that it is not fair and equitable he is entitled to alter it and in doing so he is not bound by the rule in s. 30 of the Act that the increase cannot be more than annas 2 in the rupee. M NARASIMHA RAO v. RYOTS OF PEDAMA MIDIPALLI, (1926) M. W. N. 131; 23 L. W. 320; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 480; 49 M. 499 164

——— ss. 164, 180 (Ch. XI). See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, 1908, s. 30 164

——— ss. 171, 172. See GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915, s. 107 164

Madras Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act (I of 1914)—Bequest in favour of unborn child, validity of—No intervening life-interest, effect of.

The vesting of an estate cannot be kept in abeyance pending the happening of an uncertain event nor even by the appointment of trustees.

A person unborn at the death of a testator cannot avail himself of the provisions of the Madras Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act in a case where no life-estate is interposed between the death of the testator and the time provided for his taking the property. M APPU BHATTA v. UNNA SUNDARIAMMA, 23 L. W. 547; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 668 42

Madras Land Encroachment Act (III of 1905), ss. 2, 16—Submission—Rights of tenure-holders, effect on—Government's right to deal with property.

Mere submergence of land held under ryotwari tenure does not infer a relinquishment by the holder. On the other hand, if he wishes to retain his right to the submerged lands on the off-chance of their being re-formed in situ at some future date, he must continue to pay year by year the assessment or rent which is due to Government. The Government may from humanitarian motives remit the rent and such remissions are provided for by the standing orders. But such remissions can only be made by the authority of the Board of Revenue and the inferior officials including the Collector have no power at their own instance to make them.

Where rights in a Government land on its submersion are relinquished by the tenure-holders, the Government are free to deal with it as they please and s. 16 of the Madras Land Encroachment Act has no application. P. C. MIRZA RAJA v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 18; 50 M. L. J. 391; 49 M. 249; 43 C. L. J. 378; 28 Bom. L. R. 865; 24 L. W. 9 501

Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act (I of 1900), s. 6 (3)—Re-valuation of improvements, method of—Commissioner, duty of—Burden of proof.

On an application for re-valuation under s. 6 (3) of the Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act the valuation of the improvements as embodied in the original decree cannot be disturbed and must be accepted. The Commissioner on such re-valuation has to consider (1) if any and what com pensation is to be given for new improvements subsequent to the date up to which compensation for improvements has been adjudged in the decree and (2) whether any improvement, which has already been adjudged has to be re-valued, in consequence of some change in its condition since the adjudication of it in the first decree. It is not his business to make a valuation de novo. The starting point of the second valuation is the point where the first was left off, and on the tenant rests the onus of putting before the Commissioner evidence on which he has to make his decision. M GODAN NAMBUDRIPAD v. KRISHNAN NAMBUDRIPAD, (1926) M. W. N. 326; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 680; 23 L. W. 754 943

Malabar Compensation for Tenants Improvements Act—concld.

Malabar Law—Maintenance karar with tarwad karnavan—Allotment of properties to members of tavazhi in lieu of maintenance—Subsequent suit for maintenance against succeeding karnavan—Parties, necessary.

A karnavan of a Malabar tarwad cannot set aside an existing maintenance arrangement made by his predecessor with the members of the tarwad unless he makes some other suitable arrangement.

A maintenance arrangement, however, is usually subject to modification if there is an appreciable or material change in the circumstances of the family.

Where the karnavan of a Malabar tarwad entered into a karar with its members by which properties were allotted to various tavazhis for maintenance and it was provided that the karar was to be operative only during the lifetime of the karnavan although on the terms of the karar it was open to the tarwad as a whole by its conduct to adopt the karar as binding on its members even after the karnavan's death:

Held, that the karar was not a bar to a subsequent suit for maintenance by some of the members of one of the tavazhis against a succeeding karnavan of the tarwad.

Where the claim for maintenance is made not only against the karnavan but also against the tarwad properties, the karnavans of the various tavazhis who were under the prior karar in possession of the properties of the tarwad must also be impleaded as parties. M PAYOTH RANDUPURAYIL SARA UMMA v. KIDANGUKITTIYA, 23 L. W. 581 508

Mesne profits—Land in occupation of tenant—Basis of assessment of mesne profits—Co-sharers—Dispossession—Excess of enjoyment, if amounts to ouster.

Where land is in the occupation of the tenants mesne profits should be awarded not on the basis of the produce but on the basis of rent.

Where a decree for mesne profits is passed against a co-sharer there must be a finding as to dispossession.

Mere excess of enjoyment does not itself amount to an ouster. C MAJID MIA v. MUNSHI MIA 255

——— Trespassers.

A trespasser actually cultivating the land is bound to pay mesne profits on produce basis. C EASIN SHEIKH v. SIKANDAR SHEIKH 118

Mirasi grant, nature of. See SARANJAM 737

Mortgage—Foreclosure—Decree nisi before Transfer of Property Act—Mortgagee allowed possession—Mortgagor's right to demand account and further day for payment—Long silence, effect of.

Before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act, it was not the practice of the Bombay High Court to require a mortgagee, who had obtained a decree nisi for foreclosure, upon non-payment of the money due at the time prescribed, to obtain an order for foreclosure absolute as against the person or persons in default; the mortgagee was permitted to foreclose by proceedings in execution of the decree instead of obtaining an order absolute.

Mortgage—contd.

As a general rule after an order for foreclosure nisi, the mortgagor can apply for, and in suitable circumstances and on certain conditions obtain an order enlarging the time for redemption; but enlargement of the time is not a matter of course. The power to extend the time is in the discretion of the Court, and in order to entitle himself to such indulgence the mortgagor must apply to the Court with reasonable promptitude.

A mortgagee obtained a decree nisi for foreclosure in 1875. The period allowed to mortgagor for payment and redemption was six months. Soon after the mortgagee got possession of the property under some arrangement with the mortgagor. The mortgagor never took any steps to ask for further accounts, nor did he or those claiming under him ever apply to the Court for enlargement of the time. The mortgagee treated the property as his own and erected costly buildings over it to the knowledge of the mortgagor. After the lapse of 45 years the representatives-in-interest of the mortgagor brought a suit claiming the property:

Held, (1) that the mortgagor acquiesced in the position that the mortgagee was entitled to hold the property as his own and it was no longer necessary for the mortgagee to execute the decree and he became full owner of the property;

(2) that assuming that this was not so, and that the plaint in the suit could be treated as an application for extension of time for payment made in the foreclosure suit of 1875, the delay of 45 years on the part of the mortgagor was fatal to his case. B VASANTRAO GOVINDRAO v. NANABHAI SADANAND, 28 Bom. L. R. 347; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 273 96

——— Mortgage suit—Receiver—Loan by tenant to mortgagor—Payment towards rent—Money spent on improvement of mortgaged property—Collateral arrangement—Receiver, whether bound—Estoppel—Tenant in possession—Notice—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 115—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 8, 50.

A Receiver was appointed in a mortgage suit and thereafter the mortgagor entered into an arrangement with the tenant of the mortgaged premises under which the tenant advanced a sum of money to the mortgagor which was applied towards the repairs and improvement of the mortgaged premises, the mortgagor agreeing to set off the amount of the loan towards future rent:

Held, that irrespective of the fact whether the Receiver had or had not power to sanction the arrangement between the mortgagor and his tenant the Court would not allow him to repudiate the transaction after it had been carried through, and after he and the mortgagees had taken advantage of the transaction and the money had been advanced and spent in the improvement of the premises which were the mortgagees' security.

Where an arrangement between a mortgagor and the tenant of the mortgaged premises for pre-payment of rent, or for setting off future rent against money due from the tenant to the mortgagor, is made subsequent to the date of the mortgage, such arrangement is only a collateral bargain between these parties and is not binding upon the mortgagee.

Mortgage—contd.

Per Rankin, J.—The principle to be applied in the case of a mortgage of tenanted land is that the mortgage operates as a grant of the reversion expectant on the determination of the term of the lease, and the rents and profits accruing after the transfer pass to the mortgagee. The tenant in such a case has the protection of s. 50 of the Transfer of Property Act, if the rent is paid as rent and is not paid in advance. Any payment made by the tenant to the mortgagor in advance would be a mere loan. C TILOKE CHAND SURANA v. BEATTIE & Co., 29 C. W. N. 953; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 201 538

——— Mortgagor paying off earlier mortgage—Charge, keeping alive of—Presumption—Improvements by mortgagor paying off earlier mortgage—Priority of charge.

Where there are several mortgages on a property the owner of the property may, if he pays off an earlier mortgage, keep it alive for his benefit and come in before the later mortgagees. In the absence of an indication to the contrary, it is to be presumed that the owner intends to keep alive the previous charge if it would be for his benefit.

Where the earlier mortgage-deed paid off by the owner contains a clause by which the mortgagee is entitled to be re-imbursed at the time of redemption for any expenditure incurred by him during the currency of the mortgage, the owner is entitled to the benefit of that condition and the sum which he spent on improving the property must be allowed as a prior charge. L MEHL SINGH v. AMAR NATH, 7 L. 212 152

——— Nankar *rights reserved—Foreclosure decree—*Nankar, whether charge on property.

A usufructuary mortgage of a share in a village with a condition for foreclosure provided that the mortgagee would take possession of the mortgaged property with the exception of the 130 bighas sir lands and of Rs. 100 cash annually fixed for the maintenance of the executant and his descendants, etc. The mortgagor obtained a decree for redemption with a condition of foreclosure in the event of default. The default being made decree for foreclosure was made absolute. The annuity was treated as nankar by both the parties before as well as after the foreclosure decree:

Held, that the entire share in the village was mortgaged subject to the liability of Rs. 100 annually which was nankar and that nankar was a charge on the property by which the ex-mortgagee was bound. O BISHWANATH PRASAD v ABDUS SAMAD KHAN, 13 O. L. J. 149; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 349 788

——— Redemption before time—Cause of action—Suit for possession—Premature suit for redemption—Period expiring during pendency of suit—Decree, whether can be granted—Procedure.

A mortgagor cannot be allowed to redeem the mortgage before the expiry of the term mentioned in the mortgage-deed, unless there is a contract to the contrary in favour of the mortgagor.

Especially in the case of a usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagee is entitled to insist on his full term of enjoyment where there are no clear words in the mortgage-deed permitting the mortgagor to redeem before the expiry of the period.

Mortgage—concld.

A party suing for possession must show that on the date of the suit he is entitled to the relief.

A suit for redemption of a usufructuary mortgage, which is premature, cannot be decreed on the period of mortgage expiring during pendency of the suit. In such a case the only course is to dismiss the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one on a proper cause of action. M MYLAVARAPPA RANGAPPA NAIDU v. BASANNA SIMON, 23 L. W. 357; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 594 639

——— Redemption suit. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 11 27

——— Redemption decree—Costs, whether charge on mortgaged property—Decree, interpretation of.

Costs awarded to the mortgagee in a redemption suit are, as a rule, added to the amount of the security, and the mortgagor is made personally liable for them only in very exceptional cases of misconduct.

It is competent to the Court in the exercise of its discretion to award the costs personally against the mortgagor, but where the terms of the decree are ambiguous it ought not to be construed in such a manner as to enable the mortgagee to realise his costs personally from the mortgagor. A SHEO DARSHAN SINGH v. BENI CHAUDHURI, 24 A. L. J. 424 872 ——— Redemption suit—Decree.

In a suit for possession by a mortgagee under the terms of the mortgage, a mortgagor endeavouring to get the mortgage set aside cannot be given a decree for redemption without a suit to that effect on his plea that in the event of mortgage being held to be good against him he should be permitted to redeem it. O BHAWANI DIN v. SATROHAN SINGH, 3 O. W. N. 457; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 357 759

——— Redemption suit—Jurisdictional value—Suit challenging previous redemption—Nature of suit.

In redemption suits the jurisdiction is governed by the amount of the principal mortgage money and not by the value of the property mortgaged.

A suit against the mortgagee for redemption on the ground that a redemption obtained by some of the defendants through Court under a compromise is a collusive transaction, is a suit for redemption and not a suit for possession by a mortgagor against his co-mortgagor for his share of the redeemed property. O MOHAN LAL v. MOHAN LAL, 3 O. W. N. 467; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 346 784

——— Several mortgages—Priority—Presumption.

A prior mortgagee is not barred from putting forward his claim where the prior mortgage was not impugned in the suit by the subsequent mortgagee and the latter had not sought to displace the prior title of the prior mortgagee and postpone it to his own.

Where a subsequent mortgagee fails to mention a prior mortgage in his plaint the presumption is that he does not question the priority of the prior mortgage. A COLLECTOR OF MORADABAD v. MOHAMMAD HIDAYAT ALI KHAN 505

——— Several mortgages—Suit by second mortgagee decreed—First mortgagee not party, effect of. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 148 234

Muhammadan Law—Dower—Claim based on contract—Customary dower, whether can be decreed.

In a suit for dower if the plaintiff bases her claim on a contract between the parties at the time of her marriage but fails to establish the amount claimed, the only amount which the Court can allow is the amount which the defendant either admits or agrees to pay and no decree for customary dower can be passed. L BHURI v. ASGHARI BEGAM [illegible]

Muhammadan Law—contd.

——— Dower—Widow in possession of husband's property—Widow's right against secured creditor.

A Muhammadan widow in possession of her husband's estate in lieu of her dower has no right to retain possession against a creditor of her husband whose debt is secured by that estate. N ASABI v. KANHYALAL, 22 N. L. R. 14; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 307 754 ——— Gift for services—Possession, delivery of.

A deed of gift unsupported by any money consideration but purporting to have been effected for services rendered which cannot be given any monetary valuation is a deed of simple gift and not of hiba-bil-ewaz and a delivery of possession is necessary to validate such a gift. O AMIR KHAN v. HAKUMAT BIBI 392 ——— Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 122—Mosque, whether person—Gift to mosque.

Mosque is recognised by Muhammadan jurists as a juristic person and, therefore, a valid gift can be made in favour of a mosque. L MAULA BUX v. HAFIZ-UD-DIN, 8 L. L. J. 156 7 ——— Guardianship and Minority—Mother's power to alienate infant son's property Recovery by minor—Court's discretion to order refund of benefit—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 41.

A Muhammadan mother has no power to alienate the property of her minor son and if she does, the latter is entitled to recover possession of the property alienated. But the Court may under s. 41, Specific Relief Act, make it a condition that the minor should refund the amount by which his estate and himself were benefited. L RANG ILAHI v. MAHBUB ILAHI, 7 L. 35; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 170 25

——— Inheritance—Descendants of brother's daughter

Under Muhammadan Law the descendants of brother's daughter of the deceased who died during the lifetime of the deceased are not entitled to succeed in the presence of other daughters of deceased's brother. L SHAHAB DIN v. UMRAN 148

——— Shia Law—Last owner dying heirless—Imam, rights of—Escheat, law of—Trust in favour of poor Shias—Community, right of, to sue for declaration.

Even if a trust be in favour of poor men of Shia community, the entire community is interested to have the trust declared.

According to Shia Law proper where a Shia dies without leaving any heir his property goes to Imam to be dealt with by him as he pleases. But the practice of the Imam had established a rule which was binding upon the Mujtahids who took the property during the absence of Imam Mehdi on his behalf, and under that practice property was to be distributed among the poor and the indigent. But this rule of inheritance is not in force in British India. In British India any question touching inheritance is determinable in a manner personal to the last owner. But when it is made out clearly that by the law applicable to the last owner there is a total failure of heirs, then the claim to the property ceases to be subject to any personal law, the law of escheat intervenes and prevails. Private ownership not existing, the State must be owner as ultimate Lord. Pat KHURSAIDI BEGUM v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA, (1926) Pat. 145 433 ——— Marriage—Pre-nuptial agreement to live with wife's parents—Legality.

An agreement by which a Muhammadan husband binds himself to live presumably for all time, so long as the marital relationship continues, in his wife's house is invalid. A KHATUN BIBI v. RAJJAB 224

——— Wakf—Wakf institution and property—Removal from office—Effect—Decree.

A wakf institution is something distinct from the wakf property attached to the institution. Therefore, the mere removal of a gaddi nashin from the office does not imply his physical dispossession from the property of the institution. L HUSSAIN BIBI v. NUR HUSSAIN SHAH 212

Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court—Practice—Reference to Bench—Appeal heard and closed for judgment—Legality.

Though it is open to the Judicial Commissioner under the Bench Rules of the Nagpur Judicial Commissioner's Court to order that a particular case be heard by a Bench, such orders will be passed in exceptional circumstances only unless the Additional Judicial Commissioner concerned is of opinion that reference to a Bench is necessary or desirable in the case.

An application for reference to a Bench which is filed after an appeal is heard and closed for judgment, should not be granted as the granting thereof would amount to an expression of opinion of a Judge of co-extensive jurisdiction that the view the Additional Judicial Commissioner might take in the appeal in question is likely to be doubtful or erroneous one, and, therefore, he should desist from passing a judgment. N In re DEONATH 81

Negligence. See PRINCIPAL AND AGENT 860

——— Master, liability of, for negligence of servant —Deviation from instructions—Course of employment.

The defendant drove in his car to the Railway Station and gave the driver instructions to take the car back to the garage. The driver instead of taking the car to the garage direct went first to his own house, had his evening meal there and then drove to the garage. While driving to the garage the car collided with the plaintiff's car and it was found that the accident was due to the negligence of the defendant's driver. In a suit by the plaintiff to recover damages from the defendant:

Held, that the defendant's driver had deviated from the instructions of the defendant in going home for his meals, but inasmuch as at the time of the accident he was carrying out the defendant's instructions and was driving to the garage, he was at the time of the accident acting in the course of his employment and was not on a frolic of his own and that, therefore, the defendant was liable. B ROBERTS v. SHANKS, 27 Bom. L. R. 548; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 360 551

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 68, 69—"Place", meaning of—Place of presentment, more than one—Failure to present anywhere — Cause of action to sue, whether arises.

If more than one place is mentioned in a negotiable instrument as the place of presentment, there must be presentment at one or other of these places.

The word 'place' in ss. 68 and 69 of the Negotiable Instruments Act must be construed as including "places" as it would be anomalous to require presentment if one place is mentioned but none if two places are mentioned. M CHEGGANMULL v. DESUR MANIKA MUDALIAR, 50 M. L. J. 212 384

Negotiable Instruments Act—concld.

——— s. 80—Promissory note on demand—Interest, date of accrual of.

Under s. 80 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, on a promissory note payable on demand, interest begins to run from the date of the note and not from the date of demand for payment. B FRAMROZE DULJEE DINSHAW v. MAHOMED ESSA, 28 Bom. L. R. 141; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 241; 50 B. 266 21

Notice. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY 538

Oudh Estates Act (I of 1869), ss. 22, 29, 29-A—Son, meaning of—Personal law, application of—Adoption, effect of—Brother, meaning of.

Son in s. 22 (1) of the Oudh Estates Act includes a son adopted by ceremony where the personal law of the deceased taluqdar allows such adoption.

Adoption whether by ceremony or deed must carry with it the consequences assigned to adoption by the personal law of the persons who are parties to the adoption, that is to say, among Hindus, the civil death of the adopted boy in the natural family and re-birth in the adoptive family.

Brother in s. 22 (6) of the Oudh Estates Act does not, in the case of Hindus, refer to a natural brother where there has been a valid adoption either by ceremony or by deed of adoption.

When it is a question of succession s. 22 of the Oudh Estates Act is to be looked to but when it is a question of determining relationship it is the personal law that is to be resorted to.

A deed to be a testamentary devise must contain language from which can be inferred an intention to make a devise.

Obiter.—Section 22 (5) (8) of the Oudh Estates Act does not apply to any class but the Muhammadans and does not give Hindus an alternative mode of adoption. O BRIJ RAJ CHENDRA v. SUBHADRA KUAR, 3 O. W. N. 321; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 324 294

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 107-H—Under-proprietary rights, assertion of—Potential and not actual rights—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of.

In Oudh the Court of Revenue has the exclusive jurisdiction to determine what is the status of a tenant of lands, and what are the special or other terms upon which such tenant holds, and the Civil Courts have the exclusive jurisdiction to decide whether or not a person in possession of the land holds a proprietary or under-proprietary right in the lands.

Where, however, the plaintiff comes into a Civil Court asking for a declaration that the defendants are neither proprietors nor under-proprietors, the defendants' reply to the effect that they never asserted that they were proprietors and that they only asserted such under-proprietary rights as could be created under s. 107-H, Oudh Rent Act, in other words potential rights in the future and not actual rights in the present, takes the case out of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court, the under-proprietary rights claimed by the defendants being not such as could be determined by a Civil Court. O UMANATH BAKHSHI SINGH v. RAJ BAKHSH SINGH, 13 O. L. J. 229 343

——— s. 108—Mortgagee with possession, whether co-sharer—Suit for profits—Entry in khewat, Revenue Courts whether bound by.

A mortgagee with possession is a co-sharer within the meaning of s. 108, cl. (15), Oudh Rent Act, and can sue and be sued for profits.

Oudh Rent Act—concld.

It is sufficient for a plaintiff, in order to establish his title to the share of profits, to prove that his name stands recorded in the khewat, and the Revenue Court need not go behind the entry in the revenue papers in deciding the case. O GAJADHAR SINGH v. HAR PRASAD 693

——— s. 127—Suit for rent—Person taking possession for cultivation—Section whether applicable to person realising rent from tenants.

Section 127 of the Oudh Rent Act is intended to cover the case of a person who has actually taken possession of the land for the purpose of cultivation and does not cover the case of a person who has merely realized the rent of the land, which originally belonged to him but has subsequently ceased to be his property, and who has thus caused the dispossession of the person to whom the land now belongs. O BADRI BISHAL SINGH v. RAM AUTAR, 3 O. W. N. 370; L. R. 7 A. (O.) 224 369

Pardanashin lady—Execution of mortgage—Proof. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 70 558

——— Notice, service of. See C. P. C., 1908, O. V, R. 15 228

Parties—Appellant dying without substitution in lower Appellate Court—Necessary parties in second appeal.

Where some of the appellants die in the lower Appellate Court without their legal representatives being brought on the record, the decree of the Trial Court remains good against them even though the appeal is accepted and in a second appeal by the opposite party they are not necessary parties. L ISHER SINGH v. WIR SINGH, 8 L. L. J. 341 1000

Partnership, dissolution of, suit for—Onus as to factum of partnership—Evidence of partnership.

In a suit for dissolution of partnership the onus of proving the factum of partnership is on the plaintiff. Where there is no agreement of the partnership, it is necessary for the plaintiff that the conduct of the parties towards one another, the mode in which they have dealt with one another and the mode in which each has with the knowledge of the other dealt with other people, raises a necessary presumption that a partnership was entered into. As a rule in the absence of direct evidence of partnership the relationship is shown by books of account, by correspondence, by the evidence of employees, by admissions and so forth. L HAKAM RAI v. GANGA RAM, 8 L. L. J. 111 633

——— dissolution of—Taking of accounts—Interest on monies drawn by partner, whether allowable—Interest on advances, calculation of.

In taking accounts in a suit for dissolution of partnership, it is not the practice to allow interest on monies drawn by a partner from the partnership funds be it capital or interest unless it is so provided in the deed of partnership.

Interest is payable on advances by a partner only till the date of the preliminary decree when the partnership is dissolved, and not till the date of the final decree. M UMAMHESWARA MUDALY v. MUNISWAMI MUDALY, 50 M. L. J. 428; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 642; (1926) M. W. N. 465 306

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 34. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 381 881

——— ss. 34, 304, 325—Joint attack by accused with lathis—Fracture of skull resulting in death—Offence.

Penal Code—contd.

Where the accused in furtherance of a common intention beat a person with lathis and one of the blows causes fracture of the skull which results in death, the accused are guilty of an offence under s. 304 and not s. 325, Penal Code, even though it may not be ascertainable as to who dealt the fatal blow. A CHANDAN v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 619; L. R. 7 A. 96 Cr. 363

——— s. 75—One previous conviction—Enhanced sentence.

One previous conviction does not necessarily mean that the convict is a habitual criminal, though a subsequent offence, shortly upon the release from Jail, is certainly a matter which entitles the Trial Court to impose a more severe sentence than would be the case if there has been no other conviction. L LABH SINGH v. EMPEROR, 8 L. L. J. 146; 27 Cr. L. J. 621 365

——— ss. 79, 88, 89—School-master punishing pupil—Offence.

A school-master may for purposes of discipline inflict moderate punishment and such punishment may be inflicted for offences committed not only within the school limits but also outside the school walls except when the school is closed for any length of time for a period of regular holidays. R EMPEROR v. MAUNG BA THAUNG, 3 R. 661; 27 Cr. L. J. 636; A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 197 412

——— ss. 96, 302, 304—Private defence, plea of—Fatal blows, infliction of.

In the course of a family quarrel between a brother and sister, as to possession of a store room, the sister was roughly handled and on hearing her cry out for help, the husband who was working near about turned up and finding the wife being assaulted by her brother and another and her hands cut and bruised, struck the brother one deadly blow with an aruval and on himself being attacked by the other man, dealt another fatal blow to him also :

Held, that the accused had reason to suppose that his wife might be severely injured and the blows struck by him on both the men were in exercise of the right of defence of his wife and himself. M BERMU CHETTY v. EMPEROR, (1926) M. W. N. 212; 27 Cr. L. J. 617 361

——— s. 109. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 381 881

——— s. 160—Exchange of abuse—Offence, nature of.

An ordinary exchange of abuse in a public street where neither side is armed and no blows are struck is an offence too trivial to be taken notice of. L EMPEROR v. ATMA RAM, 8 L. L. J. 82; 27 Cr. L. J. 696 888

——— ss. 171D, 171F—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 196, 403—Election—Abetment of false personation, what constitutes.

The expression "abets the voting by any person in any such way" in s. 171F of the Penal Code means abetment of voting at an election in the name of another person living at that date, or in a fictitious name, or a second time.

Where a candidate at an election who is not aware of the fact that a person who professes to be a particular voter is not that voter and that he is falsely personating such voter, attests his voting slip but does not profess to do so on his personal knowledge and the polling officer is aware that the candidate is not attesting on personal knowledge, the candidate cannot be held guilty under s. 171F of the Penal Code of intentionally aiding the commission of an offence as defined under s. 171D of the Code. A RAM NATH v. EMPEROR, 24 A. L. J. 180; A. I. R. 1926 All. 221; 27 Cr. L. J. 705; L. R. 7 A. 18 897

——— s. 174—Subpœna, defective, failure to comply with—Offence.

A subpœna requiring a person to attend either at the thana or wherever the Inspecting Officer might happen to be is not legal subpœna as it does not require attendance at a definite place and an omission to comply with it is not an offence punishable under s. 174, Penal Code. A HUKUM SINGH v. EMPEROR, 24 A. L. J. 536; 27 Cr. L. J. 697; L. R 7 A. 132 889

——— s. 193. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 381 881

——— s. 201. See EVIDENCE, CIRCUMSTANTIAL 901

——— s. 216B—False information to Police, whether harbouring.

A person giving false information to the Police with respect to a proclaimed offender or warning the latter of the approach of the Police so that he might make good his escape is guilty of the offence of harbouring. L TARA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 7 L. 30; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 206; 27 Cr. L. J. 563 131

——— ss. 225B, 332, 333—Arrest by Police Officer—Right to resist illegal arrest.

Even if the action of a Police Officer in arresting a person is wholly illegal, yet the person arrested or the persons who assist the arrested person are not entitled to use more force than is necessary for protection against illegal arrest. S HARDAYAL SINGH v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 628 404

——— s. 300, Excep. I—Provocation grave and sudden.

If a man comes home and finds a person actually misbehaving with a relation of his, there is a provocation grave and sudden and his blood can hardly be expected to cool down in the course of a few seconds. L DINI v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 572 140

——— s. 300, Excep. 4—Burden of proof—Offence committed without premeditation and in heat but with hatchet—Benefit of Exception.

The onus is on the accused to show that his case falls into one of the Exceptions to s. 300, Penal Code.

Although culpable homicide may have been committed without premeditation and in a sudden fight and also in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel, if it appears that the accused had used a hatchet on another unarmed man and had struck a blow on the latter's head with a hatchet splitting the skull while under no reasonable apprehension of injury to himself, he cannot claim the benefit of Exception 4 to s. 300, Penal Code. L KANSHI v. EMPEROR, 8 L. L. J. 188; 27 Cr. L. J. 566 134

——— s. 302. See EVIDENCE, CIRCUMSTANTIAL 901

——— s. 302—Death caused by beating—Drunkenness—Sentence.

Evidence of drunkenness falling short of a proved incapacity in the accused to form the intent necessary to constitute the crime, and merely establishing that his mind was affected by drink, so that he more readily gave way to some violent passion, does not rebut the presumption that a man intends the natural consequences of his acts.

Where accused who have beaten a man to death, had primed themselves with drink in order to wreak vengeance on the deceased and to beat him mercilessly, they cannot escape the penalty of death on the ground of drunkenness. L SHERU v. EMPEROR, 7 L. 50; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 232; 27 Cr. L. J. 630 406

Penal Code—contd.

——— s. 304II—Lethal blow—Knowledge of likelihood of causing death—Presumption.

When a person chooses to lay about with a lathi, it being a lethal weapon, with all the force at his command, it must be presumed that he knew he was likely to cause death. L GHULAM MUHAMMAD v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 569 137

——— ss. 332, 333. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 225-B 404

——— s. 334—Blow, striking of, under provocation—Offence.

It is not correct to say that a person who strikes a blow under provocation commits no offence. L GHASITA v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 574 142

——— s. 377—Evidence to substantiate charge.

Evidence to support a charge under s. 377, Penal Code, must be very convincing as it is very easy to bring such a charge but extremely difficult to refute it. L EMPEROR v. SAIN DASS, 8 L. L. J. 180; 27 Cr. L. J. 593 257

——— ss. 381, 34, 193, 466—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 30, 124—Removing Official file from proper custody—Dishonest intention—Theft—Abetment—Destruction and mutilation of documents.

A correspondence file belonging to Government was in the custody of a mamlatdar who handed it over for safe custody to a clerk. The latter kept the file at his house, but while he was away accused No. 1, a karkun in the mamlatdar's office, obtained the key of the house from the person with whom it had been left, and removed the file. Accused No. 1 then accompanied accused Nos. 2 and 3, who were interested in the property to which the file related, to the house of their Pleader who had been retained to prepare an appeal and for that purpose wanted to inspect the file. Accused No. 1 handed over the file to accused Nos. 2 and 3 at the Pleader's house and himself went away. He returned in the evening and having obtained the file from accused Nos. 2 and 3 replaced it in the house of the clerk. It was subsequently discovered that during the interval that the file had been in the possession of accused Nos. 2 and 3 one document had been abstracted and some others had been mutilated. The file contained documents of which accused Nos. 2 and 3 were not entitled to have inspection:

Held, (1) that accused No. 1 having removed the file from the possession of the clerk who had the custody of it on behalf of the mamlatdar, without the consent of the mamlatdar with intent to cause wrongful gain to accused Nos. 2 and 3, he was guilty of an offence under s. 381 of the Penal Code;

(2) that accused Nos. 2 and 3 were guilty of an offence under ss. 381/109 of the Penal Code;

(3) that the inference was that the removal and the mutilation of the documents had been effected by one or both of accused Nos. 2 and 3;

(4) that even if it was effected by one of them in the presence of the other in furtherance of the common intention of both of them, s. 34 of the Penal Code was applicable and both of them were guilty of offences under ss. 193 and 466 of the Penal Code. B VALLABHRAM GANPATRAM v. EMPEROR, 27 Bom. L. R. 1391; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 122; 27 Cr. L. J. 689 881

——— s. 402—Assemblage of accused—Preparation for dacoity.

Where the accused, belonging to different villages are found at a lonely well at a long distance from their homes fully armed and equipped for committing dacoity, a conviction under s. 402, Penal Code, is maintainable. L WARYAM SINGH v. EMPEROR, 27 Cr. L. J. 605 269

——— s. 409—Detention of money by postal servant against rules—False entries in register and false explanation—Offence.

Detention by a postal servant of monies received by him in his capacity as such through V. P. parcels etc., for several days in violation of the postal rules, coupled with a false explanation that the monies were not received on the days on which they were actually received and false entries in his register showing that the articles were still undelivered in the Post Office, constitutes an offence under s. 409, Penal Code. Pat CHANDRA PRASAD v. EMPEROR, (1926) Pat. 190; 27 Cr. L. J. 611; A. I. R. 1926 Pat 299 355

——— s. 409—Public servant, retention of Government money by—Money not included in balance—Misappropriation—Failure to give excess money to successor-in-office—Money, retention of, pending scrutiny of accounts.

The fact that the accused a public servant, does not include the money received by him in his capacity as a public servant in the cash balance is a very strong prima facie evidence of misappropriation on his part. Failure to hand over the money due in his hand to his successor-in-office is a further proof of his guilt.

A public servant is not entitled to retain, pending the scrutiny of accounts, any money due to the Government in his hand in excess of what the registers show to be due. If he removes the balance he is guilty of misappropriation even if he removes it to godown belonging to the Government. O EMPEROR v. DAYA SHANKAR, 3 O. W. N. 382; 27 Cr. L. J. 589 205

——— s. 411—Receiving stolen property—Possession of accused.

The accused, along with several others, was found in the house of one of them, quarrelling over the division of certain stolen property, which consisted of packages of cloth which had been cut through and were lying open in the house:

Held, that the accused was in possession of the property for purposes of s. 411 of the Penal Code. Pat PARMESHWAR DAYAL v. EMPEROR, (1926, Pat. 139; 27 Cr. L. J. 657; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 316; 7 P. L. T. 567 705

——— s. 411—Stolen ornament found in house occupied by accused and his mother—Offence.

Where an ornament called kangni stolen in a burglary is found by the Police in a jar of chillies in a house occupied by the accused and his mother and there is nothing to show that he put it there or knew that it was there, an offence under s. 411, Penal Code, has not been established. L EMPEROR v. CHHOTU, 27 Cr. L. J. 717 909

——— s. 417—Taking thumb impression—Offence.

Mere taking thumb impressions on a blank piece of paper may be a preparation to cheat but unless something is written on it, it cannot amount to cheating or attempt to cheat. Pat SHEO PRASAD v. EMPEROR, (1926) Pat. 110; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 267; 27 Cr. L. J. 609 353

——— s. 420—Sale of property—Consideration money, balance of, not paid—Offence.

Where the complainant's case is that it was agreed between him and the accused that the consideration money for the sale of property was to be paid by the accused after execution of sale-deed and that the complainant had executed the sale-deed and had got it registered but that the accused refused to pay the money, the dispute is purely of a civil nature and no offence under s. 420, Penal Code, is made out. C RAM CHANDRA DE v. GAJENDRA NATH DAS, 43 C. L. J. 287; 27 Cr. L. J. 588 204

Penal Code—concld.

——— s. 466. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 381 881

——— ss. 467, 471. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 236 270

——— s. 489-B, object of—"As genuine", effect of—Person selling forged note—Offence.

The object of Legislature in enacting s. 489-B, Penal Code, is to stop the circulation of the forged notes by punishing all persons who knowing or having reason to believe them to be forged, do any act which would lead to their circulation.

A person who knowingly sells a forged note to a person who also knows it to be forged is guilty under s. 489-B, Penal Code.

The words "as genuine" in s. 489-B, Penal Code, govern only the verb 'uses' and not any other verb. L BHIKA RAM v. EMPEROR, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 72; 7 L. 80; 27 Cr. L. J. 638 414

——— s. 497—Adultery—Marriage, proof of—Statement of complainant, whether sufficient.

In a prosecution for adultery the marriage must be strictly proved. For the purposes of such a prosecution the marriage cannot be held to have been proved merely by the statement of the complainant. R GOPAL v. EMPEROR, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 328; 4 Bur. L. J. 107; 27 Cr. L. J. 651 603

——— s. 499, Excep. 9—Defamation—Statement made by party to judicial proceeding, whether privileged—Absolute privilege, doctrine of, applicability of.

The law of absolute privilege does not apply in India in the case of criminal prosecutions for perjury. In a prosecution for perjury, however, in respect of a statement made by a party to a judicial proceeding, the special position occupied by the party must not be lost sight of.

Parties and witnesses in all judicial proceedings are in a peculiar position and it is necessary, if their interests are to be safe-guarded, that they should be allowed to make statements freely subject to the ordinary law of perjury. Generally speaking, there would be a presumption that what they say is said bona fide in the protection of their own interests, and they would be protected by the provisions of the Ninth Exception to s. 499 of the Penal Code. R SYED ALLY v. EMPEROR, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 360; 4 Bur. L. J. 181; 27 Cr. L. J. 648 600

Pleadings—New plea in arguments.

A Court is justified in rejecting a plea in argument which was not raised by the defendant in his defence. O DAWARKA v. SANKATHA 307

Pleadings and proof—Litigant changing position. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 115 501 ——— Suit for declaration of customary right—Custom found against—Common Law right as citizen, whether can be set up.

Where the plaintiffs who are shepherds in a village sue the defendants, the members of another community, for a declaration that they, the plaintiffs, are entitled by custom to take their procession on marriage and other festive occasions through the public streets of the village with music, dancing and torches by daylight, which they claim to be component parts of the procession itself, from time immemorial and the alleged customary right is not proved, the plaintiffs' suit must fail. Any right which the plaintiffs may have, based upon their Common Law right as citizens, must be vindicated in a separate suit.

Obiter.—Any member of the public has got the right to use a public street in any lawful manner and a declaration can be granted if he is prevented from so doing without proof of any special damage. M MUCHUMARRI MALLIAH v. YERRAVULU GANGANNA 226 ———, variance between.

A party cannot be allowed to plead inconsistent facts or to give proof at variance with his pleadings. Pat JUGAL SARKAR v. RAJ MANGAL PRASAD, A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 187; 7 P. L. T. 747 929

Police diaries.

See (i) CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.
(ii) CR. P. C., 1898, ss. 162 and 172.

Possession as notice. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY 538

——— Land under water—Ownership.

Possession of land under water follows ownership. C MOHENDRA NATH ROY v. NABADIWIP CHANDRA NANDY, 43 C. L. J. 180 5

Practice.

See (i) CIVIL PROCEDURE.
(ii) CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.
(iii) EVIDENCE.

——— Witnesses in attendance—Court's duty to examine.

A Court is not justified in refusing to examine a witness who is present in Court and for whose examination no adjournment is asked for. L AMAR SINGH-DHOOMI MAL v. JAI DIAL KAPUR & SONS 21

Pre-emption—Sale-deed containing wrong number of plot—Execution of another deed after 4 years containing correct number—Subsequent deed, whether sale.

A plot of land was transferred by sale-deed. Subsequently another deed was executed after 4 years stating that the plot of land in the first deed was misdescribed and that the correct number was mentioned in the later deed. In a suit for pre-emption on the basis of the second deed:

Held, that it was not a sale-deed and the suit was barred by time. O SHEO NARAIN v. KHADERU, A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 475 378

——— Sale of nine items of properties by one deed—Pre-emption as to one—Partial pre-emption.

Where nine items of property are sold to nine different persons for different considerations by one set of vendors by execution and registration of a single deed of sale, there are in effect nine different sales and a suit for pre-emption with regard to one of them cannot be resisted on the ground of partial pre-emption. A CHUNNI SINGH v. LAKSHPAT SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 534 320 ——— suit—Pre-emption price exceeding Court's jurisdiction—Decree.

Where in a suit for pre-emption regarding revenue paying land the value for jurisdiction, i. e., 30 times the proportionate land revenue does not exceed the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court, but the amount payable by the pre-emptor exceeds its jurisdiction it can hear the suit but cannot pass a decree. However, if such a suit is transferred to another Court which has jurisdiction to pass the decree, the latter will pass the decree and not dismiss the suit on the ground that the first Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. L ARSHAD ALI v. BICHHA LAL, 8 L. L. J. 58 125

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 15—Insolvency Rules of Calcutta High Court, rr. 74, 150—Petition by debtor—Procedure—Petition by partner—Debts due by firm, whether can be entered in list—Debtor, whether bound to hand over books to Official Assignee before adjudication—Practice.

Rule 74 of the Insolvency Rules of the Calcutta High Court provides that where a petition for adjudication is filed by a debtor the Court shall forthwith make an adjudication order thereon. The rule contemplates that if the petition is in form in the sense that the Court has jurisdiction and the conditions prescribed by the Act have been fulfilled, the order shall go as a matter of course.

It is open to a partner in a firm to apply to be adjudicated an insolvent and in such a case he would be right in setting out in his petition the debts due by his firm, for the reason that under the ordinary law they would be debts for the full amount of which he would be personally liable. The mere fact, therefore, that such debts are entered in the petition would not mean that the petition is made on behalf of the firm.

There is no rule requiring an unwilling debtor to hand over his books to the Official Assignee before he is adjudicated an insolvent.

A practice founded upon the willingness of debtors cannot be regarded as being a settled practice obligatory upon persons who do not wish to comply with it.

On a petition for adjudication it is open to the Court to make a reference to external matters, provided they are relevant, but if an order is to be founded upon them they should be duly brought to the notice of the parties and the parties given an opportunity of furnishing an explanation. O In re Gopaldas, 30 C. W. N. 173; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 640 793

——— s. 101—Party aggrieved—Order of Court confirming sale of insolvent's property by Official Assignee—Appeal.

An insolvent has, after adjudication, no legal interest in his estate and has no right to interfere in the realisation of that estate and cannot be treated as aggrieved by any order passed in the course of such realisation.

The insolvent, therefore, has no right of appeal against an order by Court confirming a sale of part of the estate which was originally his and subsequently vested in the Official Assignee. M Hari Rao v. Official Assignee, 50 M. L. J. 358; 23 L. W. 599; (1926) M. W. N. 364; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 556; 49 M. 461 642

Presumption. See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 114 361

Principal and agent. See Contract Act, 1872, ss. 140, 141 575

——— Agency, termination of.

Where a deadlock has been created owing to the conduct of the members of the Firm of Managing Agents, the Directors of the Company are justified in the interests of the Company to put an end to contract of managing agency. C Gus Alexander Mackenzie v. Himalaya Assurance Co., 30 C. W. N. 440; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 745 381 ——— Agent acting to best of his capacity, whether liable for negligence.

Where one person is employed by another to do a certain kind of work with full knowledge of his qualifications and the latter does the best that he can with respect to the work entrusted to him, there can be no question of negligence unless he does something which any reasonable man with his qualifications would have omitted to do. M Purasawalkam Hindu Janopakara Saswatha Nidhi Ltd. v. Kuddus Sahib, 23 L. W. 476 860

——— Suit for account—Negligence and misconduct alleged—Cause of action, where arises. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 20 287

Privy Council—Arguments urged for first time—Practice.

The Privy Council has long established it for itself as a principle of wisdom and prudence that it should be very chary of entertaining an argument which has not been sifted in the Courts below especially when the question to be decided concerns the diversified and complicated Indian Law as to tenure of land. P. C. Secretary of State for India v. Jyoti Prashad Singh Deo, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 41; 30 C. W. N. 745; 24 A. L. J. 761 974 ——— Variation of its own orders—Practice—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLV, r. 15 (1)—Failure of party entrusted with order to lodge it—Remedy.

It is only in exceptional circumstances that Privy Council varies its own orders.

If the party to whom an order of the Privy Council is entrusted delays or refuses to lodge it in the High Court concerned, the remedy of the person desiring execution of the order is an application under r. 15 (1), O. XLV, C. P. C., to the High Court for a summary order on the defaulting party to lodge the order and not a petition to the Privy Council for variation of the previous order. P C Sourendra Mohan Sinha v. Hari Prasad Sinha, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 31; 5 Pat. 461; (1926) M. W. N. 492; 24 L. W. 84 813

Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), applicability of, to unprobated mufassal Will.

An executor appointed by a Will in the mufassal of the Madras Presidency to which the Hindu Wills Act does not apply, has vested in him the estate of the testator and has all the powers of an executor as set out in the Probate and Administration Act even though such executor does not obtain Probate of the Will. M Katreddi Ramiah v. Kadiyala Venkata Subamma, 50 M. L. J. 308; (1926) M. W. N. 297; 49 M. 261; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 434 83

——— s. 20—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 16—Property situate in Burma and at Ludhiana—Probate taken out in Burma—Suit for administration of estate—Jurisdiction.

A suit for a declaration that the Probate proceedings shall not affect the plaintiffs and for the administration of the estate is not a claim for the determination of any right to or interest in immoveable property within the meaning of s. 16, C. P. C., and the mere fact that part of the property is situate at a particular place does not confer jurisdiction on the Court at that place. Such a suit would be entertained by the Court at the place where the Probate is taken out. L Shiv Ram v. Ishri 1046

——— s. 21—Administration, grant of—Applicant claiming under Will—Administration completed—Application, whether to be rejected—Person challenging Will, position of—Grant of Letters—Title, effect on.

The fact that an applicant for Letters of Administration claims under the Will, but his claim is unsustainable, would not deprive him of his right to administer the estate if he is otherwise entitled to the grant under s. 21 of the Probate and Administration Act.

Probate and Administration Act—concld.

The distinction between an application for Letters of Administration and for Letters of Administration with the Will annexed is important and should not be overlooked.

It is of paramount necessity that the Will should be established and the establishment of the Will is one of the functions of the Probate Court, and, in the case of an application for Letters of Administration with the Will annexed, the Probate Court cannot decline to exercise that function on the ground that there is nothing to be administered.

A person who challenges the Will as a forgery is not entitled to make an application for Letters of Administration with the Will annexed.

A grant of administration does not decide any question of title. Pat KAMALA PRASAD v. MURLI MANOHAR, (1926) Pat. 118; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 356 750

——— s. 50, scope of—Withdrawal of letters—Courts, inherent powers of.

Section 50 of the Probate and Administration Act is exhaustive and not merely illustrative. But apart from that section, when the condition on the fulfilment of which alone the grant of letters can be made is not fulfilled, the Court has inherent power to withdraw the order for grant so as to prevent an abuse of its process. L PREM SUKH v. PARBATI, 7 L. 270; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 352 329

——— s. 77—Executor doubting genuineness of Will—Renunciation—Executorship, when may be accepted or renounced—Court's powers to refuse Probate on ground of executor's incapacity.

Until the validity of a Will is established, an executor appointed thereunder is not bound to accept or renounce the executorship.

Where in proceedings for grant of Probate, a person appointed as executor filed a statement doubting the genuineness of the Will but expressed his willingness to act as executor if the Court considered the Will genuine and granted Probate, it cannot be said that he renounced the office of executor.

A Court cannot refuse an executor Probate because it considers him unfit to be executor unless the unfitness is of the nature of legal incapacity, that is, minority or unsoundness of mind. M THOPPAI VENKATARAMIER v. GOVINDARAYALIER, 23 L. W. 462; (1926) M. W. N. 323; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 605 73

Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), s. 4—Insolvency Court, powers of, to go into question of title.

By the Court—Under s. 4, Provincial Insolvency Act, full power is given to the Insolvency Court to decide not only all questions of title or priority, but also of any nature, whatsoever, whether they involve matters of law or of fact, which may arise in any case of insolvency coming within the cognisance of the Court or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice. Therefore, there is nothing to prevent the Insolvency Court from declaring, even though it be at the instance of the Receiver, that certain property belongs to the insolvent and that any other person who is putting forward a claim to it is not really entitled to it. A HARI CHAND RAI v. MOTI RAM, 24 A. L. J. 495 429

——— ss. 4, 5. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920, s. 56 506

——— s. 5—Insolvency Court, power of, to review orders—Creditor who has tendered proof of debt, right of, to appeal.

Provincial Insolvency Act—1920—contd.

By s. 5, Provincial Insolvency Act, an Insolvency Court is invested with the powers and jurisdiction to review its own orders in circumstances laid down in O. XLVII, C. P. C.

A creditor who has tendered proof of his debt is a person aggrieved by an order refusing to review an annulment of an adjudication and is, therefore, entitled to appeal against the order. M CHALLA ABBIREDDI v. CHALLA VENKATAREDDI, (1926) M. W. N. 256; 23 L. W. 644; 51 M. L. J. 60 351

——— s. 20. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920, s. 52 126

——— s. 28—Joint Hindu family—Insolvency of father—Property vesting in Receiver.

Where a father in a Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara Law has been declared an insolvent, the Receiver is entitled to sell not only the share of the father that will fall to him on partition but the entire property in his hand belonging to the whole family consisting of himself and his sons. A OM PRAKASH v. MOTI RAM, 24 A. L. J. 417; A. I. R. 1926 All. 447 175

——— ss. 37, 43—Insolvent's failure to apply for discharge—Annulment of adjudication—Protection of creditors, provision as to.

A Court has no option but to annul adjudication where an insolvent fails to apply for an order of discharge within the time specified by the Court. But with a view to protect the creditors the Court should pass an order under s. 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act vesting property of the debtor in a person appointed by it. L ROOP NARAIN v. KING KING & Co., A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 370 234

——— ss. 52, 20—Interim Receiver—Delivery of property.

An application under s. 52 of the Provincial Insolvency Act to the Court executing a decree against the judgment-debtor to deliver property to the Receiver can only be a valid application if the Receiver has been clothed by the Insolvency Court with powers to take possession of the insolvent's property.

Where the interim Receiver appointed under s. 20 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is not clothed with any such powers, the Court has no jurisdiction to hand over the property to the Receiver.

Quære.—Whether the term "Receiver" used in s. 52 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is restricted to a Receiver appointed after the adjudication, or will apply to an interim Receiver appointed under s. 20 of the Act and whether the application under that section is restricted to one by the Receiver or may be made by the insolvent or any one else. M ARUNACHELLAM CHETTIAR v. NAYANNA NAICKER, 23 L. W. 513; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 606 126

——— s. 53—Two years' limitation, starting point of.

The limitation of two years prescribed under s. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act, is applicable to all cases where the transfer when originally made was a good transfer of property though it was subject to an option of avoiding it to be exercised by the receiver, that is to say, to a transfer which is only voidable and not void.

Where an alienation has been effected by a registered deed the period of two years under s. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act, is to be counted from the date of execution and not of registration of the deed.

Per Mukerji, J. contra.—An Insolvency Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an application of the Receiver to declare an ostensible transfer void if the transaction took place more than two years before the adjudication. A HARI CHAND RAI v. MOTI RAM, 24 A. L. J. 495 429

Provincial Insolvency Act—1920—contd.

——— ss. 53, 54—*Fraudulent preference, intention necessary to constitute—Execution of mortgage by debtor—Act of insolvency—Adjudication, order of, as insolvent—Application to set aside mortgage under s. 53—Mortgagee, whether bound by prior order—*Bona fides, proof of—Mortgage declared void—Prior genuine mortgage-debts, discharge of, by mortgagee—Rights of mortgagee.

In order to make out that an alienation by an insolvent amounts to fraudulent preference under s. 54, Provincial Insolvency Act, it must be shown that the insolvent had the dominant idea of cheating his other creditors by preferring particular creditors.

Where at the instance of a creditor, a debtor is adjudicated an insolvent on the ground that a mortgage executed by him amounts to an act of insolvency, on an application by the petitioning creditor under s. 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act to have the mortgage declared void as against the Official Receiver, it is not open to the mortgagee to attack the finding that the execution of mortgage was an act of insolvency.

To attract the operation of s. 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, it is not in terms necessary that the document should be to defeat or delay creditors. It is sufficient if it is a transfer not in good faith or not for valuable consideration. It is, therefore, open to the mortgagee to escape the operation of the section by showing good faith and payment of valuable consideration.

A document cannot be partly in good faith and partly not.

The general principle applicable to cases under s. 53 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is this:—The assignment, as an assignment is void; but, for money genuinely paid in discharge of genuine debts, the alienee will stand in the shoes of those whom he has paid. In the case of a mortgage-debt paid off, the transfer will not operate as a mortgage at all, not even to the extent of the amount paid, but the alienee will be entitled to rank in the schedule of secured creditors to the extent of his payment. M RAMASWAMI AIYANGAR v. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, 50 M. L. J. 448; (1926) M. W. N. 419; 23 L. W. 734; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 672 535

——— ss. 56, 415—Ad interim Receiver, appointment and powers of—Receiver in insolvency, duty of Court to appoint, before realisation of property—Removal of possession of property from person other than insolvent—Proper authority—Procedure.

The Insolvency Court before taking any action under s. 56 (3), Provincial Insolvency Act, in the way of realisation of property must appoint a Receiver and that means a Receiver in insolvency and not a Receiver ad interim. The power to remove property from the possession of any one other than the insolvent is reserved to the Court.

The Court can before adjudication depute an ad interim Receiver to collect evidence as to the assets of the insolvent but such a Receiver cannot pass a final order in a claim by a creditor to a property.

Section 4 read with s. 5 of the Insolvency Act requires a Court in matters of forcible realisation of property to act with the procedure and with the judicial caution of a Civil Court. Pat GOBARDHAN DAS v. JAGAT NARAIN, (1926) Pat. 134; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 291 506

Provincial Insolvency Act—1920—concld.

——— s. 75 (4)—Receiver's report, confirmation of—Consent of parties—Jurisdiction.

The District Judge has no jurisdiction to confirm the Receiver's report except by consent of parties until 21 days have elapsed within which the aggrieved creditors can apply to the Court for the reversal or modification of the act or decision by which they are aggrieved. C GOBINDA CHANDRA MAJUMDAR v. HARI CHARAN MARWARI, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 826 332

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 15 (2)—Vendee, default by, to pay kist—Payment by vendor in whose name patta *continues to stand—Suit by vendor for recovery of amount, whether cognisable by Small Cause Court—Plaintiff, right of, to personal decree—*Kist for more than three years, whether recoverable.

Where a vendee undertook to pay the revenue payable on the land and committed default therein, and the vendor, in whose name the patta continued to stand, was compelled to pay, in a suit by the vendor to recover the money in a Small Cause Court:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was entitled to a personal decree;

(2) that the suit was cognisable by the Small Cause Court;

(3) that plaintiff was entitled to recover only three years' kist. M PUTHALATH UKKARAN NAIR v. PONNIGARI UKKARAN NAYAR, (1926) M. W. N. 291; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 633 1046

——— s. 23—Transfer of suit to Original Side—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 96, 102—Appeal, second.

A small cause suit when transferred to the original side under s. 23 does not remain a small cause suit though it remains of a small cause nature. An appeal, therefore, lies against the decree in such a case, but where the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed Rs. 500, a second appeal is incompetent. M MIKKILI ANKAYA v. ALLAPARTI RATHAMMA, 23 L. W. 518; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 622 77

——— s. 25—Appeal, right of—Revision, whether lies.

The exercise of the right of interference in revision under s. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act does not depend upon the question whether an appeal lies or not, but it is a matter for consideration whether when there is a speedy remedy open to a party by way of appeal, he should be allowed to come up in revision and drag the opposite party to the High Court where the expense of engaging a Counsel must be greater than in the Mofussil. A BANWARI LAL v. SHALIMAR PAINTS COLOUR 790

——— s. 25—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XX, r. 4—Judgment of Small Cause Court containing points for determination—Revision, interference in.

A judgment of the Court of Small Causes which contains points for determination and shows that the Judge has applied his mind to the evidence and has come to a perfectly intelligent finding cannot be upset in revision. O CHOTKAN v. SITA RAM, A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 478 397

——— Sch. II, Art. 31—Suit for damages for use and occupation, nature of.

A suit for damages for use and occupation based on an allegation of permissive occupation is a suit of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—concld.

small cause nature and does not come under Art. 31, Sch. II, of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. M MIKKILI ANKAYA v. ALLAPARTI RATHAMMA, 23 L. W. 518; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 622 77

——— Sch. II, Art. 41. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 102 949

Public street, use of. See PLEADINGS AND PROOF 226

Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), s. 41—Second appeal—Neglect—Finding of fact.

The finding of the lower Appellate Court that there was wilful neglect on the part of the appellant is a finding of fact and cannot be disturbed in second appeal. L B. B. & C. I. RY. v. MUL CHAND-SANWAL DAS 348

Punjab Excise Act (I of 1914), s. 61 (1), offence under—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 562, application of.

In an offence under the Excise Act it is necessary to impose a sentence which would have a deterrent effect and a mere sentence of fine will not do.

Ordinarily a person convicted under s. 61 (1), Punjab Excise Act, is not entitled to the benefit of s. 562, Cr. P. C., though the section is not only applicable to offences under the Penal Code but also to offences punishable under a special or a local Act. L EMPEROR v. PIARA SINGH, 7 L. 32; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 166; 27 Cr. L. J. 561 129

Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), s. 131—Reservoir, demolition of—Damages—Municipality preventing re-building of reservoir—Good faith—Perpetual injunction, issue of.

Under s. 131 of the Municipal Act, a Committee cannot order the demolition of a reservoir, it can only have it filled up.

Where, however, a Municipality has acted in good faith in having a reservoir demolished, a plaintiff is not entitled to an injunction to the effect that the Committee should be perpetually restrained from preventing him from re-building his reservoir. L NATHU RAM v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, MUKTSAR, 8 L. L. J. 162 192

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 15—Pre-emptor having two qualifications higher and lower—Vendee with only higher qualification—Pre-emption.

Where the pre-emptor and the vendee both possess the same higher qualification, the possession of an additional inferior qualification by the pre-emptor does not entitle him to a decree for pre-emption against the vendee. L RAGHA RAM v. DEWA SINGH, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 300; 7 L. 306 253

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), s. 77—Suit for possession of land—Defendant's plea as to right of occupancy—Jurisdiction.

Where in a suit for possession on the allegation of defendant's trespass, it becomes necessary on the plea of the defendant that he is an occupancy tenant, to adjudicate as to the status of the defendant as occupancy tenant, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is ousted and the suit becomes one cognizable by a Revenue Court only. L NAWAB v. ARURA 514

Railway Company. See CARRIAGE OF GOODS.

Railways Act (IX of 1890), s. 7—Suit for damages against Railway Company—Loss of goods—Failure to put padlocks on waggons—Wilful neglect.

A Railway Company cannot be held guilty of wilful neglect by not putting on padlocks on the waggons immediately on hearing that thefts were frequent between two Railway Stations on running trains. O JAGANNATH PRASAD v. AGENT, G. I. P. RY. CO., A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 468 644

——— s. 72—Goods consigned to Railway for carriage under Risk Note Form "B"—Non-delivery—Damages, suit for—Loss, proof of—Burden of proof.

In a suit to recover damages for non-delivery of goods consigned to a Railway Company for carriage under Risk Note Form "B", the burden of proving that the case falls within the exception contained in the Risk Note, viz., that the goods were lost owing to the wilful neglect of the Railway Administration or to theft by or wilful neglect of its servants etc., is upon the plaintiff. But before the plaintiff is called upon to prove that the goods were lost by wilful neglect or by theft, it must be shown that the goods have been lost. It is for the Railway Administration to prove in the first instance that the goods have been lost, and it will be then for the plaintiff to show that the loss was due to the wilful neglect of, or theft by, Railway servants.

Except in cases where the plaintiff admits that the goods have been lost, a Railway Company is not entitled to rely upon the provisions of the Risk Note which pro tanto exempt it from liability unless and until evidence has been adduced which satisfies the Court that a loss has occurred, and the loss must be a loss of the goods by the Railway and not merely a loss to the consignor. C GOPIRAM BEHARIRAM v. AGENT, E. I. R., 30 C. W. N. 209; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 612 762

——— s. 72—Risk Note Form H—Time covered by note—Loss of consignment, meaning of—Wilful neglect, meaning of—Onus.

Risk Note Form H limiting the liability of Railway Administration not only covers the time of actual transit but covers the whole period during which the goods remain with the Railway.

When the goods in the custody of the Railway become rotten and are destroyed under the orders of the Station Master, it must be said that the owner has suffered loss of the whole consignment.

A person is said to be guilty of wilful neglect when he intentionally and of set purpose does something which ought either to be done in a different manner or not at all or omits to do something which ought to be done.

The onus of proving wilful neglect lies upon a plaintiff suing a Railway for compensation for loss of goods consigned under a Risk Note. L JAGAN NATH-BAIJ NATH v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA 173

——— s. 113—Passenger travelling without ticket—Penalty, suit for, recovery of, whether maintainable in Civil Courts.

The general rule of law (or rather of construction) is that where a general obligation is created by Statute and a specific statutory remedy is provided, that statutory remedy is the only remedy.

A suit by a Railway Company to recover from a passenger who has lost his season ticket, the ordinary fare plus excess charge as provided by s. 113 of the Railways Act, being a suit for recovery of a statutory penalty created by the said Act, and being unknown to Common Law is not entertainable by a Civil Court. The penalty can be enforced only by following the procedure laid down in the said Act. B BHIMJI N. DALAL v. B. B. & C. I. R. Co., 28 Bom. L. R. 443; 50 B. 215; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 266 742

Ramgarh raj. See Chhota Nagpur and Ramgarh Raj 1007

Registration, whether notice.

The mere registration of a deed under Registration Act is not per se constructive notice of the transaction. L Jhanda Singh v. Harnam Singh 75

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 3. See Registration Act, 1908, s. 35 560

——— s. 17—Compromise petition presented to Executing Court—Compromise dealing with matters outside decree—Registration—Claim under compromise, how to be enforced.

A compromise petition presented to the Executing Court dealing with matters under the decree as well as extraneous to the decree does not require compulsory registration even so far as it relates to the latter.

Where a compromise presented to a Court deals with a liability under a decree as well as a liability independent of it, the former can be enforced by a proceeding in execution and the latter by means of a separate suit. A Sital Prasad Singh v. Janki 210

——— s. 17 (1) (a)—Gift deed, registration of.

Every instrument of gift of immoveable property requires compulsory registration irrespective of the value of the property conveyed by the instrument. L Maula Bux v. Hafiz-ud-din, 8 L. L. J. 156; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 372 7

——— s. 17 (1) (b)—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 59—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 91—Suit for recovery of possession of immoveable property—Allegation that possession was given to defendant as security for advance of Rs. 100 or upwards—Oral evidence, admissibility of.

Where a plaintiff seeks to recover possession of immoveable property on the allegation that possession of the property was given to the defendant as security for a loan of Rs. 100 or upwards, but without the execution of any registered instrument, oral evidence is not admissible to prove the transaction alleged by the plaintiff. R Maung San Min v. Maung Po Hlaing, A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 291; 4 Bur. L. J. 118; 4 R. 1 567 ——— ss. 17 (1) (b), 49—Construction of document—Compromise recognising person as successor, effect of—Annuity created and charged upon estate—Registration, whether necessary.

A petition of compromise recited that after the death of the applicant the respondent shall be her representative and successor and provided that so long as the estate in dispute was not transferred to the respondent on behalf of the applicant, a certain sum of annuity shall by monthly instalments ever remain payable from the said estate to the respondent, his heirs and representatives on behalf of the applicant, her heirs and representatives and that the said estate shall be liable for payment of the said annuity :

Held, (1) that upon a proper construction of the compromise the respondent was to succeed the applicant only in the event of a transfer being made by her in his favour either by way of gift inter vivos or by bequest and that so long as the estate did not vest in the respondent in either of these ways he was entitled to receive the annuity and in the event of his dying before the happening of that contingency his heirs and representatives would be entitled to the sum ;

(2) that the compromise was an instrument of the nature described in s. 17 (1) (b) of the Registration Act and was compulsorily registrable and not being registered could not be received in evidence of any transaction affecting the estate. O Sakina Begum v. Ali Haider 1039

——— ss. 35, 87, 3—Registration of document—

Registration Act—concld.

Death of one of two executants—Admission of execution by surviving executant and widow of deceased executant—Registration, validity of—"Representative", definition of, whether exhaustive.

One of the two executants of a deed died before the deed could be registered. After his death a fresh clause was added to the deed giving a more detailed description of the properties to which the deed referred. This fresh clause was signed by the surviving executant and by one of the widows of the deceased executant, who signed as the guardian of the sons of the deceased who were infants and whose own mother was also alive. The document was then registered on an admission of execution by the surviving executant and the widow of the deceased executant who had signed the additional clause :

Held, (1) that the widow of the deceased who had signed the additional clause was a representative of the deceased executant within the meaning of s. 35 of the Registration Act and that the registration was, therefore, valid ;

(2) that even if the widow was not a representative of her deceased husband within the meaning of s. 35 the error of the registering officer in accepting her as such was only a defect in the procedure which was not sufficient to invalidate the registration.

The definition of the word "representative" as given in s. 3 of the Registration Act is not exhaustive. B Dattatraya Keshav Naik v. Gangabai Narayan Naik, 27 Bom. L. R. 1334; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 137 560

——— s. 49—Document reciting terms of mortgage, admissibility of, without registration.

Where contemporaneously with the execution of a pro-note, the lender wrote a letter stating, "please retain the title-deeds of the undermentioned property as equitable mortgage of title-deeds for the amount of pro-note of this day" :

Held, that the document contained the terms of the arrangement under which the loan was made and was inadmissible in evidence without registration to create a valid mortgage. M Nageswara Iyer v. Alagu Srinivasa Iyengar, 23 L. W. 675; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 743 427

——— s. 74—Document ordered to be registered on payment of penalty—Requirements of law, meaning of.

Where a document is ordered to be registered by the Registration Officer on payment of certain penalty, failure to pay such penalty is a non-compliance with the requirements of law as contemplated by s. 74 of the Registration Act. L Dulo v. Muhammad Nathu 251

——— s. 87. See Registration Act, 1908, s. 35 560

Religious endowment. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 92 695

Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863), s. 14—Temple Committee—Breach of trust—Trustee, appointment of—Undischarged insolvent removed from Government service, whether can be appointed.

An insolvent ought not to be appointed to a position of trust since a necessitous man is more likely to be tempted to misappropriate trust funds than one who is wealthy and besides a man who has not shown prudence in managing his own affairs is not likely to be successful in managing those of other people.

Where persons in a fiduciary capacity make an improper choice of a person to fill an office of trust, they must be held to have been guilty of a breach of trust and it would be wholly wrong to say that after all the choice was not improper because it has turned out that no material damage has been done to the institution through the improper appointment.

Religious Endowments Act—concld.

Where the members of a Devasthanam Committee under the Religious Endowments Act appointed to the trusteeship of a temple with an annual income of about 2 lakhs of rupees a retired Government servant who was an undischarged insolvent and had been removed from Government service before the age limit without a pension for flagrant violation of the Government rules regarding the conduct of public servants:

Held, that in the matter of the choice of the trustee, the members were guilty of a breach of trust in that they had not done their duty or acted reasonably in the interests of the institution of which they were in charge and they were accordingly liable to be removed by Court under s. 14 of the Act. M RAMANATHAN CHETTIAR v. KANAGASABAPATHY CHETTIAR, 23 L. W. 339; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 500 955

Res judicata. See ALSO C. P. C., 1908, s. 11.

——— Decision as to right of easement, whether res judicata in suit for title.

The decision in a previous suit between the plaintiff and the tenants of a village declaring a right of easement in favour of the tenants over certain property claimed by the plaintiff cannot operate as res judicata in a suit brought against the proprietors of the village for a declaration of the right of ownership over the same property. C MOHENDRA NATH ROY v. NABADWIP CHANDRA NANDY, 43 C. L. J. 180 5 ——— Decision in same suit in previous proceedings —Binding force.

A decision in previous proceedings in the same suit though not strictly speaking res judicata has still a binding force. O HAMID HUSAIN v. HADI RAZA, A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 420 313

Revenue entries, value of,

Where the origin of an entry in the Revenue Records is not known, the entry itself might afford an indication of the rights conferred but where the origin itself is not in doubt and where according to the entry itself the fountain-source of the rights can be traced, it is not safe to rely upon the entry itself, but recourse must be had to the origin itself to discover what the rights conferred actually are. O PIRTHA SINGH v. RAJA MOHAMMAD ALI KHAN, 13 O. L. J. 126; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 427 188

Revision.
See (i) C. P. C., 1908, s. 115.
(ii) CR. P. C., 1898, s. 439.
(iii) PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1887, s. 25.
See JURISDICTION OF COURT 1

Sale of Goods—Breach by vendor in delivery—Series of sellers and buyers—Ultimate buyer himself vendor higher up in chain—Breach of contract with third persons—Suit by buyer for return of advance, whether maintainable.

The M Mills sold certain bales of yarn to V and sons, who sold them to the plaintiffs, who sold to H who sold to M and sons, who sold to A and sons, who again sold to the defendants, who in their turn sold to the plaintiffs who paid an advance of about Rs. 7,000 towards the contract. At the time of these transactions the market was in a highly speculative state and each one of these sales was made at a profit. But at the end the market price had fallen and the goods were not worth what the various buyers had paid for them. In a suit by the plaintiffs for return of the advance with interest the defendants pleaded that the plaintiffs could not sue them because they themselves were in default higher up in the chain of buyers and sellers:

Sale of goods—concld.

Held, that since the defendants had contracted to deliver the bales to the plaintiffs, they could not be heard to say that the plaintiffs were out of Court because they had been in default at an earlier stage of the series and broken a contract not with the defendants but with somebody else. M MUTHUSWAMI IYER v. RAMALINGA MUDALIAR, 23 L. W. 215; 50 M. L. J. 260; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 485 334

Saranjam—*Nature of grant—Alienation, whether binding beyond lifetime of alienor—*Mirasi grant, nature of.

An alienation beyond the lifetime of the saranjamdar, who makes it, is not ordinarily binding on his successors.

In cases when the object of the saranjam grant is to make a permanent provision for the maintenance of an important family, the saranjam or jagir although ordinarily hereditary, is not alienable beyond the life of the actual holder. But in cases where the object of the grant is purely personal, e. g., to ensure the rendering of certain services to the State or to reward an officer on retirement for faithful services, then the grant, in the absence of express provision to the contrary, is one of an absolute estate and alienation made by the holder for the time being is binding upon his successor. Cases of the latter type are, however, exceptions rather than the rule.

A grant of mirasi rights is not necessarily an alienation which will not be binding beyond the lifetime of the saranjamdar making the grant. B MADHAVRAO RASTE v. IMAM BAPU SHERKAR, 28 Bom. L. R. 433; 50 B. 195; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 316 737

Sea Customs Act (VIII of 1878), s. 19A. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 36 444

Second appeal. See APPEAL, SECOND.

Settlement—Husband releasing interest in property —Widow, whether can challenge settlement.

A widow claiming title through her husband is not competent to challenge a settlement to which her husband was a party and by which he released his interest in certain property. P C DADABHOY FRAMJI CAMA v. COWASJI DORABJI PANDAY, A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 306 535

Shamilat land—Building on portion under authority of co-sharer—Suit for ejectment by some co-sharers —Demolition of building.

A person who, either on behalf of or under the authority of one of the big proprietors and with the permission of majority of them, builds upon a portion of a shamilat land cannot be ordered to demolish such building at the instance of other co-owners, unless it is proved that the action of such person in building upon the joint land has caused a material and substantial injury such as cannot be remedied by partition of the shamilat land. L AMAR SINGH v. JAT MAL, 8 L. L. J. 313 995

Sovereign Act. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 79 433

Specific performance—Agreement to surrender. See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, s. 52 655

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 9—Mortgagee in possession—Possession through tenants—Dispossession of tenants—Suit by mortgagee, whether maintainable.

A mortgagee in possession through tenants is entitled to invoke the aid of s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act on his tenants being ejected from possession by others. N Samsherkhan v. Abdul Sattar Khan, 22 N. L. R. 30. A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 290 70

——— s. 18 (c)—Contract of sale—Specific performance, suit for, against vendee—Direction to vendor to discharge encumbrances, legality of

When a vendor undertakes to discharge the encumbrances on the property, the Court decreeing specific performance as against him can direct him to discharge the encumbrances before he is paid the consideration for the sale. M Katha Muthu Pillai v. Subramania Chettiar, 50 M. L. J. 228; (1926) M. W. N. 271; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 569 561

——— s. 41.

See Evidence Act, 1872, s. 115 853

See Muhammadan Law—Guardianship and Minority 25

Stamp Act (II of 1899), ss. 32, 37, 57—Collector's certificate—Civil Court's power to question.

A Civil Court cannot review the certificate granted by the Collector under s. 32 of the Stamp Act and its validity cannot be challenged except under s. 57 of the said Act, on a reference by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority. S Firm of Parsram Hirji v. Firm of Parsram Hassanand 747

——— s. 57. See Stamp Act, 1899, s. 32 747

Statutory tribunal, creation of. See Madras District Municipalities Act, 1920 546

Succession (Property Protection) Act (XIX of 1841), s. 14—Idol, competency of, to make application under Act—Testate succession, application of Act to—Six months' limitation, starting point of.

There is nothing in the Curators Act to show that its application is confined to intestate succession and does not cover cases of testamentary succession.

An idol is a juridical person and is entitled to make an application under the Curators Act. But as an idol must make an application through human agency, an application by a shebait on behalf of idol for possession of property under the Act is competent.

To bring the Curators Act into operation, it is sufficient that the application under the Act be made within six months of the death of the last proprietor, even though the claimant claims succession through an earlier proprietor dead more than six months before the application. C Benode Behary Saha v. Sundari Dassya, 30 C. W. N. 500; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 779 588

Suits valuation—Redemption suits. See Mortgage 784

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 8. See Court Fees Act, 1870, s. 7 (iv) (d) 951

Tort—Person in wrongful possession—Damages for loss—Burden of proof.

The word "tort" does not occur in the law administered in India except in cases of actionable wrongs where the English Law has to be applied because no Indian Statute covers them.

After an owner who has been wrongfully dispossessed has given evidence as to the loss caused to him, it is for the defendant to prove that the loss was less than the amount claimed. N Ramcharan v. Sarwar Khan 999

Trespass. See Acquiescence 168

Trespasser, whether liable for mesne profits. See Mesne profits.

Transfer of property—Tenant. in possession—Notice.

In the absence of an enquiry by a transferee of tenanted premises, the open possession of the tenant over the premises is notice not only of the immediate terms of his tenancy but of collateral agreements as well. C Tiloke Chand Surana v. Beattie & Co., 29 C. W. N. 953; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 204 538

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 50.

See Mortgage 538

——— s. 52—Lis pendens—Applicability to surrenders of tenancy holdings—Specific performance—Agreement to surrender.

A surrender of tenancy holding during the pendency of suit for possession by a purchaser is void against him. An agreement to surrender tenancy land at some future time cannot be specifically enforced. N Mohan v. Bodhan, 21 N. L. R. 144; A. I. R. 1925 Nag. 421 655

——— s. 53—Fraud—Delay—Intention to delay—Ostensible owner, when entitled to retain property.

It is not fraudulent to shield some particular property from being proceeded against by creditors so long as there are other properties from which the just dues of the creditors may be realized.

An intention to delay creditors is not necessarily fraudulent or unlawful.

Mere delay caused to creditors in the realization of their dues is not of any consequence so long as there has been no deprivation of the creditors in respect of their just dues.

Fraud in respect of creditors involves an element of loss or injury of a substantial character and not merely inconvenience caused by delay in the realization of what is due.

Where nothing has been done to carry the fraud or illegal purpose into effect the disposer is entitled to have the property reconveyed.

To enable a fraudulent confederate to retain property transferred to him in order to effect a fraud the contemplated fraud must be effected.

Overt acts done or steps taken for the purpose of effecting the fraud or the accomplishment of the illegal purpose, if comparatively insignificant or harmless, do not disentitle the disposer to relief but a partial yet substantial execution of an illegal purpose disentitles the disposer to the assistance of the Court.

If the disposer has been frustrated in his attempt to carry out his fraudulent or illegal purpose he is entitled to the relief. C Rajani Kanta Das Gupta v. Abani Kanta Das Gupta, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 850 33

——— s. 53, proviso—Simple money-decree against judgment-debtor—Mortgage of property by judgment-debtor—Mortgagee unaware of execution proceedings—Intent to defeat creditors—Deed, validity of.

Where a judgment-debtor executes a mortgage of his property on a date prior to the service of notice under O. XXI, r. 54, C. P. C. on him, with a view to defeat the creditor who has obtained a simple money-decree against him, but the mortgagee has no notice of the execution proceedings, the mortgage-deed cannot be declared void under s. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. O Ram Charan v. Ragho Singh, A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 469 420

——— s. 53, scope of.

Documents which are voidable under s. 53, Transfer of Property Act, are good in law so long as the option to avoid them is not exercised by the creditors who are defrauded. A HARI CHAND RAI v. MOTI RAM, 24 A. L. J. 495 429

———— ss. 53, 118—Hindu Law—Partition, whether transfer—Distinction between transfer and exchange—Mala fide partition in fraud of father's unsecured debt—Decree—Son's share, whether liable to be attached.

A partition cannot be considered a transfer in so far as it does not in effect change the rights of the parties; what it does do is to effect a change in the mode of enjoyment.

Partition in certain aspects approximates to exchange as defined in s. 118 of the Transfer of Property Act, but even so the distinction emerges that in exchange two persons owing two specific properties transfer or convey their respective ownership, one to the other.

A fraudulent partition cannot, however, be regarded as entirely divorced from the principles of s. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act.

Ordinarily property taken by a Hindu son in partition cannot be seized in execution of a decree in respect of an unsecured personal debt of the father, but it is liable for the father's debt if it be shown that the partition was made with a view to defraud or defeat creditors. N CHHOTELAL v. LAKHMICHAND 282

———— s. 55.

The provisions of s. 55 of the Transfer of Property Act apply not only to completed sales but also to agreements of sales. M KATHA MUTHU PILLAI v. SUBRAMANIA CHETTIAR, 50 M. L. J. 228; (1926) M. W. N. 271; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 569 561

———— s. 55 (2)—Covenant for actual possession, whether implied.

Where there is no express contract in terms in a sale-deed, a provision that the vendee shall be put into possession of the property sold cannot be said to be implied in it by virtue of s. 55, cl. (2), Transfer of Property Act. M MUTHUSAMI IYER v. DHARMA RAJA, (1926) M. W. N. 209; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 495 302

———— ss. 56, 81—Mortgage of several properties—Mining leases granted by mortgagor in respect of some properties—Mortgage-decree—Order of sale—Marshalling.

Some out of several mortgaged properties were leased out by the mortgagors on mining leases under which the mortgagors were entitled to recover rent and royalties from the lessees. The mortgagee subsequently obtained a decree on foot of his mortgage and in execution of the decree the mortgagors obtained an order that the properties which had been leased out should first be sold in satisfaction of the decree inasmuch as it was expected that the sale of those properties would satisfy the decree completely. The lessees contended that the properties other than those leased to them should first be sold in execution of the decree:

Held, (1) that inasmuch as the mortgagors had a valuable interest, viz., the right to receive rent and royalties, in the properties leased, the principle of s. 56 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable to the case;

(2) that the lessees having taken with full notice of the mortgage the principle of marshalling of securities laid down in s. 81 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable to the case;

(3) that the order directing that the leased properties should be sold first was perfectly proper in the circumstances of the case. C LOW & CO. v. HAZARI MULL BABU, 30 C. W. N. 183; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 525 786

———— s. 58—Construction of document—Sale of property with right to re-purchase—Sale or security for money.

A person executed a sale of certain properties to another for Rs. 3,500 and on the same day obtained a counter-agreement from the vendee providing that at the end of any fasli before three years from date, the vendor might re-purchase the property conveyed on paying the total sale price. The property sold was worth very much more than Rs. 3,500. The vendor was to bear the expenses of the deed of re-conveyance and was also to pay interest on a sum of money payable to a third person to whom the property had been usufructuarily mortgaged and whose mortgage had two years more still to run. There was no defeasance clause on the grantor or vendor failing to pay by the fixed date. There was a power in the vendee to recover the sum named as the price of re-purchase. Moreover the price payable by the grantor on the re-purchase was not fixed but was subject to an account for the cost of a well and for repairs. The two deeds were executed within two hours of each other. They were registered together and the stamp papers bore consecutive numbers:

Held, that the documents really and substantially formed a single transaction and the conveyance was not intended as an absolute sale but only as a security for the money. M MUHAMMAD YAKUB SAHIB v. MAHABOO BIBI, 23 L. W. 151 756

———— s. 58—Mortgage by conditional sale—Suit to recover money due—Limitation, commencement of—Option given to mortgagee—Waiver.

Per Kanhaiya Lal, J.—The essential characteristic of a mortgage by conditional sale is that on the breach of the condition of re-payment the contract executes itself and the transaction is closed and becomes one of absolute sale to be enforced in a particular manner.

A mortgage-deed provided that if interest for any six months remained unpaid, the mortgagee shall have power either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage-money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period or to wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest till the expiry of the term fixed. In a suit to recover the amount of the mortgage-money:

Held, that despite the authority given to the mortgagee by the mortgage-deed, the operation of the clause which gave an option to the mortgagee for his own benefit could not be waived so as to prevent or postpone the starting of limitation against him and that limitation began to run from the date when interest for a period of six months became due and remained unpaid. A SHEORAM SINGH v. BABU SINGH, 24 A. L. J. 295; 48 A. 302 849

———— s. 59. See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 17 (1) (b) 567

———— s. 59—Equitable mortgage—Deposit of title-deeds—Mortgage-deed, whether document of title.

A mortgage-deed executed by the owner of a property in favour of a third person cannot be deemed to be a title-deed within the meaning of s. 59, Transfer of Property Act, though it may be evidence of the fact that the mortgagor dealt with the property as his.

An equitable mortgage by deposit of title-deeds is created by the borrower depositing with the lender

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

title-deeds, the gist of the transaction being the intention that it should be held as security

A document evidencing an equitable mortgage by deposit of title-deeds is compulsorily registrable. M NAGESWARA IYER v. ALAGU SRINIVASA IYENGAR, 23 L. W. 675; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 743 427

——— s. 69—Mortgage—Sale, power of, irregular exercise of—Mortgagee, right of, to recover balance of mortgage-money—Notice, whether necessary.

Where in a mortgage-deed the amount due for principal is not re-payable at any particular time nor is anything stated as to when it is to be re-paid, there can be no default in payment of the principal sum due within the meaning of s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act until there is a demand made for the money.

When a mortgagee demands payment of the mortgage-money, he should be in a position to give back the mortgaged property and allow the mortgagor to redeem. Where he has wrongfully disabled himself from doing so, for instance, by having sold away the mortgaged property under an irregular exercise of his power of sale, he cannot sue the mortgagor for the balance of the mortgage-money.

A mortgagee has a right to make use of his remedies against the mortgagor for obtaining payment of his money; but as soon as the mortgage-money has been fully paid he is bound to deliver over the mortgaged property to the mortgagor. If he has made it impossible for himself to restore the property mortgaged, he cannot proceed against the mortgagor to recover the amount of the mortgage-money.

Per Krishnan, J., Obiter:—In cases falling under s. 69 of the Transfer of Property Act, if interest amounting to at least Rs. 500, is in arrears and unpaid for three months the mortgagee, if he has got a power of sale under the mortgage, can exercise the power without notice to the mortgagor. M PURASAWALKAM HINDU JANOPAKARA SASWATHA NIDHI LTD. v. KUDDUS SAHIB, 23 L. W. 476 860

——— s. 76 (e)—Mortgagee's duty to mortgagor—Suit for redemption—Mortgagee setting up occupancy rights—Estoppel.

A mortgagee is precluded from doing anything which might put a hinderance to the redemption of the property. Therefore, in a suit for redemption a mortgagee cannot be allowed to set up occupancy rights even if his mortgagee rights have passed to third parties under an auction-sale. A GAURI v. MANGLA, L. R. 7 A. 171 Rev. 442

——— s. 81. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 56 786

——— s. 82—"Contract to contrary," meaning of—Contract between mortgagor and mortgagee not providing manner of liability of different properties—Effect—Subsequent purchasers, right of—Vendee's right to avail of contract between his vendor and another vendee.

The expression "a contract to the contrary" in s. 82, Transfer of Property Act, means a contract between the mortgagor and mortgagee. Therefore, in the absence of any contract between a mortgagor and his mortgagee that the several properties mortgaged are liable in any other manner than that contemplated by the section, neither of the purchasers of the properties subsequent to the mortgage can as against the mortgagee set up a case that the properties are not rateably liable to contribute to mortgagee's debt.

A vendee cannot avail himself of a personal covenant between his vendor and another vendee. A CHARAN SINGH v. GANESHI LAL, 24 A. L. J. 401; A. I. R. 1926 All. 352 1048

——— s. 108 (c)—Lessor and lessee—Lessee's duty to surrender possession.

A lessee whose possession has been disturbed only temporarily and who gets back into possession before the term of the lease comes to an end, is duty bound at the termination of the lease to surrender peaceably the premises leased to him. L JAMITA MAL-SANT RAM v. GOKAL CHAND, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 371 121

——— ss. 111 (h), 113—Rent, receipt of, after notice to quit—Waiver of notice.

Where rent is accepted after the notice to quit, whether before or after a suit has been filed, the landlord thereby shows an intention to treat the lease as subsisting and there is a waiver of the notice to quit. C MANICKLAL DEY CHAUDHURI v. KADAMBINI DASSI, 43 C. L. J. 272; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 763 156

——— ss. 111, 117—Agricultural leases—Relief against forfeiture for breach of covenant.

Agricultural leases are exempt from the operation of s. 111, Transfer of Property Act. Therefore, a Court can in a proper case exercise its equitable power of relieving against forfeiture for breach of covenant. B MHALAPPA VENKATESH SHETTI v. JANARDAN GOVIND MAHALE, 28 Bom. L. R. 527; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 304; 50 B. 450 1054

——— s. 115. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, s. 53 282

——— s. 116—Landlord and tenant—Sub-lessee from tenant, liability of, as lessee—Landlord's assent, what amounts to.

Where a sub-lessee from a lessee is sought by the landlord to be rendered liable as a tenant by virtue of s. 116, Transfer of Property Act, it is the lessor and not the lessee that must have done some act, recovered rent or otherwise given assent to the sub-lessee remaining in possession as a tenant.

Where a landlord served the sub-lessee with a notice to vacate the premises or he would be charged Rs. 75 per month along with the costs of the case, it cannot be said that the landlord consented to the sub-lessee remaining in possession as his tenant in direct privity with him. M KUPPUSWAMI PILLAI v. MUHAMMAD KASIM, (1926) M. W. N. 236; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 566 308

——— s. 122. See MUHAMMADAN LAW—GIFT 7

——— s. 123—Oral gift of right of residence—Interest of donee, whether saleable—Acknowledgment in writing of gift, whether gift deed.

A gift cannot be created by a document signed by the person intended to be benefited by an oral gift in favour of the owner of the property acknowledging gift.

Where an oral gift is made as to the right of residence in a house unaccompanied by any powers of alienation, the donee cannot be said to have any saleable interest in the house which, on his insolvency, can be put to sale by the Receiver. B GIRJAPRASAD CHINUBHAI v. PARSHOTTAM VITHALRAI VYAS, 28 Bom. L. R. 421; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 261 609

Trust—Breach of trust—Participation in division of trust funds—Liability to refund trust moneys.

Defendant No. 1 was an employee of the plaintiffs and was entrusted by the latter with the cashing of a cheque for a large amount of money. He cashed the cheque and made away with the proceeds with the help of defendant No. 2, his brother. The proceeds were subsequently divided between the different defendants who were members of a joint Hindu family. Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 were tried for the offence of criminal breach of trust and were convicted. Plaintiffs subsequently brought a suit to recover from all the defendants the amount of money which had been embezzled by defendant No. 1 with the help of defendant No. 2:

Trust—concld.

Held, that defendant No. 1 having committed a breach of trust in which defendant No. 2 was an abetter and that the remaining defendants having afterwards been parties to a mis-application of the trust property in breach of the trust with notice of the trust, they were all liable to replace the trust moneys and that the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree. B KISHENPRASAD & Co v. RAJARAM RAMHARAKH, 27 Bom. L. R. 1159; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 13 770

——— Inam—Non-performance of services—De facto trustee, powers of.

A trust shall not fail for want of a lawful trustee and where a person is doing something unlawful or something to the detriment of the trust, even a de facto trustee is entitled to maintain a suit against him for the benefit of the trust or institution.

But where certain lands were granted as Sarva Dambala inam to certain dancing girls long before the Permanent Settlement for the purpose of rendering service, it is not competent to a de facto trustee to call upon the service-holders to perform the services, and in default of performance to dismiss them and appoint other persons in their places. M TADANKI BRAHMAYYA v. PUVVALA MADHAVAN, 50 M. L. J. 282; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 496 489 ——— Scheme settled by Court, alteration of—Scheme, direction in—Mode of enforcement.

A scheme once settled by a Court cannot be altered except by the Court and this would preclude suits between parties to establish a private right, which, if established, would interfere with the charitable scheme settled by the Court. A direction in a scheme of this nature may be enforced in execution application by persons interested. N RAMU v. PUNA, 9 N. L. J. 45; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 326 326 ——— Trusteeship, transfer of—Adverse possession.

A transfer of trusteeship of a temple is invalid.

But such a transferee of trusteeship can prescribe for a lawful title by adverse possession of the office for more than 12 years. M TADANKI BRAHMAYYA v. PUVVALA MADHAVAN, 50 M. L. J. 282; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 496 489

Trusts Act (II of 1882), s. 90—"Properly incurred," meaning of.

The words "properly incurred" in s. 90 of the Trusts Act mean "reasonably and suitably incurred". N WAMANRAO v. SHRAWAN 941

U. P. Court of Wards Act (III of 1899), s. 58—Dispute between wards—Arbitrator, appointment of—Court, power of—Act, retrospective, operation of.

The provisions of the Court of Wards Act of 1912 are applicable to an estate handed over to the Court of Wards under the Act of 1899, notwithstanding that the handing over was voluntary on the part of the ward.

Section 58 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act does not bind a Court of Wards to await an agreement between the persons it has appointed to represent the respective wards, between whom a dispute arises, as to an arbitrator to decide the dispute. It can nominate an arbitrator and require the representatives to submit the dispute to him. A SHIVA PRASAD v SHAMBHU PRASAD, 24 A. L J. 501; A. I. R. 1926 All. 450 246

U. P. Court of Wards Act—concld.

U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 4—Mortgage of sir land by co-sharer to another—Resumption of possession on redemption.

Where a joint sir-holder transfers his zemindari rights by way of mortgage to his co-sharer, he is entitled on the redemption of his mortgage to recover possession of the sir land. A RAM KISHORE SINGH v. JAI MANGAL SINGH, L. R. 7 A. 261 Rev. 992

U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), s. 307 (b)—Order of continuing fine when can be passed.

It is not legal for a Magistrate to pass an order of continuing fine in a trial for an unauthorised construction. Such an order can be passed only on a separate trial if the accused fails to remove the unauthorised construction after his original trial. A MATHURA PRASAD v. MUNICIPAL BOARD, ETAWAH, 27 Cr. L. J. 568; L. R. 7 A. 113 Cr. 136

Vakalatnama. See CR. P. C., 1898, s. 340 714

Vendor and Purchaser—Sale of immoveable property—Earnest-money—Breach of contract by purchaser—Earnest-money, whether can be recovered.

Under a contract of sale of immoveable property the earnest-money is part of the purchase price when the transaction goes forward: it is forfeited when the transaction falls through, by reason of the fault or failure of the vendee.

Plaintiff agreed to purchase certain immoveable property from the defendant at the price of Rs. 4,76,000 and one of the conditions of the contract was that Rs. 20,000 was to be paid as earnest and the balance in two moieties, the first being payable on executing the conveyance and the last within six months thereof. Plaintiff did not pay the earnest-money as such but obtained a financial modification of the terms of the contract whereunder he paid the sum of Rs. 1,65,000 towards the sale price of Rs. 4,76,000. The plaintiff was subsequently unable to complete the contract even in its modified form and brought a suit to recover the part of the sale price paid by him:

Held, that the plaintiff having broken his contract must lose the earnest-money, viz., Rs. 20,000 but must be re-paid Rs. 1,45,000 the balance of his payment to account. P. C. CHIRANJIT SINGH v. HAR SWARUP, A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 1; 23 L. W. 172; 3 O. W. N. 168; (1926) M. W. N. 145; 24 A. L. J. 248; 50 M. L. J. 629 782

——— Sale-deed guaranteeing indemnity in case of loss—Pre-emption, loss in consequence of—Vendee's right to be recompensed.

A guarantee clause in a sale-deed to the effect that the vendor would be liable to recompense any loss that might accrue to the vendees in connection with the sale (agar intikal haza men mushtarian ko koi nuksan paunche to main zimmenwar hunga) covers the risk of the vendees' title being defeated by a pre-emptor. L KALIAN SINGH v. FAZAL DIN 1055

Water rights—Riparian owners—Higher owner, whether can appropriate whole water of stream—Prescription—Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 17, applicability of.

Water rights—concld.

For ordinary purposes such as drinking and watering cattle, a higher riparian owner is entitled to appropriate, if necessary, the whole of the water of the stream; but for extraordinary purposes, such as the irrigation of his fields, he is entitled only to take so much as will not reasonably diminish the volume of water in the stream.

It is open, however, to a higher riparian owner to establish that he has been in possession from time immemorial of the right to appropriate the whole of the water of the stream for extraordinary purposes.

Section 17 of the Easements Act is intended to apply to rights in the nature of profits a prendre which do not include a right to water. Pat JUGAL SARKAR v. RAJ MANGAL PRASAD, A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 187; 7 P. L. T. 547 929

Will. See CONSTRUCTION OF DOCUMENT 967

——— Draft Will as evidence of oral Will.

A draft Will may be accepted as evidence of an oral, one where the facts show that the testator had expressed his final intention as to the property. O GUR PRASAD v. SITLA DEI, 13 O. L. J. 152; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 424 796

Will—concld.

——— Executor—Appointment of member of firm, effect of.

Where a member of a firm is appointed an executor under a Will the appointment only applies to a person who was a member of the firm at the date of the Will and also at the date of the testator's death. C In the matter of GEORGE NASH, 29 C. W. N. 373; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 606 994

——— Testimentary devise, essentials of.

A deed to be a testamentary devise must contain language from which can be inferred an intention to make a devise. O BRIJ RAJ CHANDRA v. SUBHADAR KUAR, 3 O. W. N. 321; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 324 294

Witnesses. See PRACTICE. 21

WORDS AND PHRASES.

'Sikh and Singh distinguished'. See C. P. C., 1908, s. 92 695

Wilful neglect, meaning of. See RAILWAYS ACT, 1890, s. 72 173